32 African Countries Set Out to Bring S. A. to Knees, And Drive Portugal Out

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Armed with the most-powerful voting force the United Nations has ever known, 32 African countries have set out to bring South Africa to its knees and drive Portugal from the African continent.

The strength mustered by the young African states to ram through resolutions denouncing race repression in South Africa and Portugal's treatment of its territories has made a deep impression.

It also has caused apprehension at the UN as extremist African elements step up demands to expel both South Africa and Portugal. This fear is mainly prompted by threats from both countries to quit on their own rather than submit to ceaseless invective in the world forum.

The Africans are dedicated to the common aim that they must never again undergo servitude.

On colonial issues, the Africans have chalked up an impressive voting record. What they have achieved is open to question.

MARSHALS OPINION

The rash of resolutions denouncing apartheid (race separation) has helped marshal world opinion against Premier Hendrik F. Verwoerd's, South African regime and its policies.

It has also prompted white south Africans, including many who oppose apartheid, to close ranks and give the premier support he never anticipated.

Determined to make South Africa an economic as well as a moral outcast, the African bloc pressed the General Assembly last year into calling for a sweeping trade boycott of Verwoerd's government. This has had little effect because the Western powers have refused to go for harsh penalties against either South Africa or Portugal.

On the other front, the black nations have tried to force Portugal to give full freedom to its African areas by putting through a Security Council call last summer for an embargo on arms shipments.

The Africans staged another show of strength this month when they rallied 106 nations behind a demand that South Africa call off a political trial and free political prisoners.

The Western powers went along with the resolution as a whole because of world sentiment. They abstained on a key paragraph and made plain they did not relish telling a sovereign nation how to run its court system.

Diplomats have hopefully detected a slight relaxation of position by both South Africa and Portugal.

Some important information for every man who will need a new truck within the next 12 months

New Chevrolets are a lot more truck than your money bought the last time. Here are some of the things that have been done to give you more value for practically the same investment.

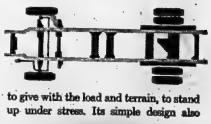
Double-wall construction. This feature of Chevrolet cabs and the Fleetside pickup body has many advantages—here are two. Insulation and sound-deadening material is sandwiched between the two layers of steel in the cab roof to give you more comfort; in the body, the inner wall acts as a buffer against load damage, preserving the outer appearance of the truck.

Other insulation includes full undercoating of the cab floor, and a thick woven cotton fibre pad for the underside of the cowl chamber.

In addition to double-wall construction, cab door openings are larger now. Getting in and out is much easier.

Suspension to fit the truck. You get a much better ride in every size Chevrolet truck today than you used to. Instead of making one type of suspension system do for the whole truck line, we now have different types and combinations of springing designed for your particular needs.

Conventional half- and three-quarter ton models have independent front suspension with variable-pitch coils in the rear. Variable pitch coils do not "bottom-out" as readily.



Mediums and heavies have I-beam front suspension with variable-rate leaf springs. This variable-rate leaf-type suspension automatically stiffens as the load increases—and vice versa. It means a smoother, flatter ride regardless of load, and a better handling truck.

The right engine. Chevrolet has been building truck engines since 1918 but never has it been in a better position to give you the type and size you need for maximum efficiency. Today there are many different capacities of gasoline and diesel Chevrolet truck engines—fours, sixes, V8s.

Stronger frames. Every conventional 1964 Chevrolet truck has a ladder-type frame. Formerly used on heavier trucks only, this type is more resilient, better able to give with the load and terrain, to stand up under stress. Its simple design also makes it easier to mount special bodies on the truck. Its riveted side rails are stronger.

Greater model selection. This time you're going to find it a simple matter to pick the exact type of Chevrolet truck for the kind of work you do. In delivery trucks, for instance, in addition to regular panels and pickups, there are eleven different sizes of ready-made walk-in vans. All have full-width rear doors as an option.

There are also the Corvair 95 vans with the air-cooled engine in the rear. And the Corvair 95 Rampside with its exclusive side-loading feature. These trucks have more power this year.

Have you seen the '64 El Camino deluxe pickup yet? We think it's the best looking commercial vehicle ever built.

In the medium- and heavy-duty area there are tilt cabs, low-cab-forward and conventional cab units to suit almost any requirement—including school bus bodies of up to 66 passenger capacity.

Dump truck operators now can order a Chevrolet tandem with either gasoline or diesel power.

Quality and value. Chevrolets today are a lot more truck than your money bought the last time. Call your Chevrolet dealer today for information and a demonstration.

Trusteeship Measure To Be Invoked

Govt. May Press Legal Action Against Banks

Reported 3 Trustees Ready for Appointment

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government likely will invoke its trusteeship measure today and take over the rebellious Seafarers' International Union of Canada in an effort aimed at ending a threatening shipping emergency.

The cabinet is expected to make the move in the face of the SIU's continuing defiance of federal law—an overwhelming vote Tuesday night by striking members in Montreal to stay off their ships despite a government back-to-work order.

At the same time, government lawyers may press legal action against the top brass of the SIU, including the Seafarers' International chieftain, Hal Chamberlain Banks.

The law of Canada commitors to be disobeyed," said Labor Minister MacEachen after Tuesday night's meeting of the SIU voted in Montreal by a show of hands not to return to their ships until "we get civil justice."

He said that the government would "likely" move on the matter with the paper ready to be highly placed by tomorrow.

According to the version, the J. Louis was stoked when she accidentally sailed into the ditch of a fight between Cuban coast defenses and a sizable party of Cuban exiles. Possibly four or five Miami-based the vessel because their Cuban pilots "in the best of action" believed also were involved in anti-Castro landing operation.

The owners of the vessel reported no casualties during the hour-long attack. Flares were dropped to light up the target. Shells damaged the superstructure and hull and set a fire in the forecastle of the 33,000-ton vessel.

The J. Louis, with its crew of about 32, arrives late tonight at Corpus Christi.

U.S. Ship Sailed Into Cuban Raid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has launched an investigation of the straying of an American-owned ship off the coast of Cuba early Thursday.

There is no doubt the straying was carried out by Cuban planes. Although it did not identify the ships, Havana radio said its air force attacked a vessel in the area.

Havana claimed the ship was carrying saboteurs and arms. However, it was learned elsewhere that the vessel, the bulk carrier J. Louis, was steaming from Oche Rios, Jamaica, to Corpus Christi, Tex., with 51,000 tons of bauxite ore, the fluffy material for aluminum.

The cargoer may be in at so-good given the New York Times by what the paper reported to be highly placed informants.

Post Office Auction Sale Attracts Eager Bargain Seekers

OTTAWA (CP)—Ever wonder what happened to that electric razor dad didn't receive from you last Christmas or that pair of genuine cowhide moccasins you didn't get in the mail?

If either parcel was improperly addressed, it's a good bet it turned up here Tuesday at the annual Canada post office auction sale of unclaimed parcels.

An eager crowd of more than 100 gathered to carry away such prizes as the 36 silk neckties a bankrupt firm could not take—or the "genuine" leather corset, size 36, that somehow didn't reach its destination.

Postmaster Thom, assistant deputy postmaster-general, auctioned off the first article, a German camera valued at $60 which sold for $68.

Brothers Leo and Jerry Barber were buying on a family tradition by purchasing the first item. They aided their father, Olawa, Lieutenant Paul Barber, had been the first successful bidder every year for as long as they could remember.

Most of the bidders were bargain-hunting women hoping to get an inexpensive headstart on their Christmas shopping.

The Ottawa department last year realized more than $10,000 from the two-day sale. The total is expected to be even higher this year.

The unclaimed articles, contained in about 600 seven-card board boxes packed by three post office employees who work all year round on the task, came from 12,000 post offices across Canada.

Prices of each box ranged from $30 to $75, but they could sell for much less. Average price for a box containing 10 items Tuesday was about $20. A 15 per cent sales tax was added to the auctioneer's final price.

For example, a mixed parcel containing a camera with film and flash bulbs, two boys' sweaters, a girl's cardigan, a kitchen blouses, a pair of cotton pyjamas, a night-gown, a bottle warmer and vaporizer along with a number of unclaimed smaller items went for $17.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A very warm south westerly flow covers Ontario today and numerous record afternoon temperatures. Mild and high 70 readings are expected for southern Ontario and near the 70 mark elsewhere. The warm weather will continue through Thursday for all but northwestern regions where some cloudiness and cooler temperatures are indicated for Thursday.

Vote Favors Govt.

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Great Lakes labor fiasco continued to boil through Parliament Tuesday, reaching a non-confidence vote that the government easily survived.

As members of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada were meeting in Montreal to vote against returning to their ships, the combined strength of the Liberal, New Democratic, Social Credit and Creditiste parties was voting down a Conservative motion that accused the government of dawdling and delay in taking action on the issue.

Speaking by the opposition to say exactly what the government intended doing—and when Labor Minister MacEachen said the government is "searching" for the three trustees for the impending public trusteeship over five marine unions in Canada.

As soon as they agreed to serve, the trusteeship legislation would be proclaimed law "and the trustees will go about their work."

ISSUES WARNING

Mr. MacEachen, he wasn't ruling out direct government action. The government, he told the House, has several courses of action in mind. Later he issued a stern warning to SIU members that unless they return voluntarily to their ships the government will crack down on them "illegal strike."

The government was buffeted throughout the day by the Conservative opposition for not acting faster and clamping the government's hand on the maritime unions before strike action began.

Michael Starr, former Conservative labor minister, said the breakdown of negotiations on the Great Lakes ship should have brought on immediate implementation of the federal.

"Why the delay, procrastination, evasive statements?" asked. "The government had admitted the strike was illegal. Why hasn't it done something about it?

MAINTAIN LAW

Mr. MacEachen said the government, which is determined to maintain the law of the land, also was anxious to avoid any precipitate action during the St. Lawrence longshoremen's strike, he said, the Conservative motion called for immediate government action when the strike was "only four hours old."

"We took a different course and we were proven to be correct in those circumstances."

The labor minister made a statement on the issue soon after the House opened. Some of his points:

"Strenuous and patient efforts" had been made to establish a satisfactory private trus-

Pearson Sees Rocky Road For U.S.-Canada Relations

HALIFAX (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday night Canada and the United States must find "increasingly effective ways" of working together.

But he warned this will be difficult to achieve—not because of any deliberate design on either side to create trouble, but because "carelessness, accident or ignorance" in relations.

Referring to his meeting at Hyannis Port last May with President Kennedy, Mr. Pearson told the annual meeting of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council:

"The misinformation of each country about the other didn't end last May. The techniques of consultation did not automatically become full and instantaneous just because we met."

"But while things have not become perfect, things would be even more imperfect if we didn't have the kind of spirit and good

Plan Cut In Armed Forces

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Special manpower studies prepared for Defence Minister Hellyer show that the armed forces have more personnel but are doing fewer tasks than they were a few years ago, informed sources say.

As a result of these and other studies ordered by the minister, the government plans to reduce the combined strength of the armed forces by some 10 per cent—that is, to about 109,800 personnel from 122,000.

The reduction won't be sudden. It will be carried out over a period of at least 18 months starting next year and can be accomplished by temporarily drying up recruiting.

Gen. Charles Foulkes, chief of the army general staff from 1945 to 1951 and chairman of the chiefs of staff committee from 1951 to 1960, summed up the situation for the parliamentary committee Tuesday when he said: "We have more men to do less."

PARALLELS STUDIES

His testimony in this respect almost exactly parallels the manpower studies ordered by defence department. His chief example was the Royal Canadian Air Force:

Up until a few years ago, the RCAF operated nine air defence squadrons of 18 aircraft each instead of the present five with 10 planes each. In the division in Europe had 12 squadrons instead of the present eight; thousands of aircrew were trained in Canada for NATO compared with a few more now; the air defence system has been automated, releasing many personnel from manning it.

Gen. Foulkes did not refer to other factors such as the aircraft and maintenance personnel required to enable airmen normally on ground duties to earn flying pay; disbandment of most of the ground observer corps; the Bomarc missile program; the two Comet jetliners; automation of the supply system; and the probable future role of some heavy radar stations.

While these reductions in tasks were taking place, the strength increased by about 1,000 to more than 51,000.

"The RCAF does not appear to be able to do as much now with the same manpower as in the 1950s despite our modern systems and reduced commitments," Gen. Foulkes said.

HAD FEWER MEN

He also noted that the Canadian army in Germany had two operational brigades in Korea and West Germany with 3,000 fewer personnel than it now maintains one brigade in Europe. Army strength is about 50,000.

An example in the navy is that the number of personnel has not been reduced though the service no longer operates

Big Three Under Pressure To Ban Underground Tests

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Big Three moved into high gear mounting UN pressure today to ban underground nuclear tests, but the United States and the United States remained deadlocked on the inspection issue.

Eight non - aligned nations opened a two-day session Tuesday night calling for the Big Three sponsors fear any mention of inspection would kill chances of passage in the General Assembly's main political committee. Since the disarmament debate opened in the 111-nation committee last week, delegate after delegate has called on the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union to extend the limited test ban agreement to underground blasts. France, the world's fourth nuclear power, has refused to sign the agreement.

The Russians claim onsite inspection is a cover for Western spy efforts. They contend that such checks are not necessary to verify underground explosions.

Some delegates believe the belief that can be expected is an agreement to return the whole test-ban question to the 18-nation disarmament conference in Geneva with a recommendation for priority treatment.

President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia urged the United Nations Tuesday to give high-level consideration to establishment of a code for the peaceful coexistence of the world's nations.

Speaking in forceful tones in his native Serbo-Croat, the visiting Yugoslav leader told the crowded General Assembly that the fundamental political ques-

Farmers in Southern Sections Scanning Skies for Relief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While firefighters in Northern Ontario braced themselves for another taste of unseasonably warm weather after Tuesday's rain, farmers in drought stricken southern sections of the province were still scanning the skies for relief.

But weather officials predicted no rain for at least the next 24 hours. Clear skies were forecast across the province with little chance of temperatures ranging from 75 degrees in the south to 70 in the northern sections.

A band of showers, extending from the Kenora district east to the Quebec border, brought much needed relief to the northwest area, although extensive hazard conditions were still reported in the Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury and North Bay districts.

Tuesday only three fires were still burning in northwestern Ontario.

The largest was a 400-acre blaze about 35 miles north of Parry Sound. Department of lands and forests officials said this blaze was expected to be out by today.

There were 43 fires reported in the province Tuesday.

Farmers in the southern part of the province may appeal to the federal government for drought relief and firefighting assistance.

In many areas farmers have already abandoned plowing. The soil is too hard to make a fur-

Protest Placing Maritime Unions Under Trustees

West Coast Members Remain on the Job

By STRUAN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 2,000 members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), led by president Hal C. Banks, have voted to continue their walkout in protest against government legislation to place maritime unions under trusteeship.

The walkout affects shipping in the Great Lakes and eastern Canada but West Coast union members remain on the job.

Even the biggest meeting held in Montreal Tuesday night—which was to have given the lead to members gathered at other union halls—more than 500 members on the Great Lakes voted overwhelmingly to stay off their jobs.

The Montreal meeting of an estimated 1,500 men in the downtown Atwater Market voted overwhelmingly to stay off the job until they obtained "civil justice."

VOTE BY HAND

The vote by hand was taken in front of reporters who had previously been kept out of the meeting. Union members told reporters that speaker after speaker got up to condemn the trusteeship legislation and that Mr. Banks spoke for about an hour.

The vote could quite possibly be the most important in the SIU's 15 years in Canada," Mr. Banks told the members in front of reporters.

He said the resolution invited reporters to witness the vote was passed to show that "the SIU is not being run by a dictatorship."

Only about 20 sailors put up their hands in favor of returning to their ships. They took about a second and third time to put up their hands and the chairman of the vote counted each time.

A meeting of the 600 sailors who walked off their ships in Toronto was postponed until today just before it was to start in Montreal. They had been waiting for instructions from Montreal, officials said.

16 TIED UP

Earlier, 250 sailors from 16 ships tied up at the Lakehead voted overwhelmingly in favor of continuing their walkout at a meeting in Fort William, saying the decision was made by the membership of the union. The matter what happens in Montreal.

Must Stop Going Into Debt to Foreigners To Pay Our Current Bills Declares Gordon

HAMILTON (CP) — Pending from this dependence" on foreign capital, Gordon said Tuesday night.

"It is time we stopped going into debt to foreigners in order to pay our current bills," Mr. Gordon said.

"It is time we stopped buying more goods and services from foreigners than we sell to them each year."

The government was determined not to resort to higher tariffs to bring Canada's international payments into better balance. Thus exports would have to be increased, including exports of manufactured goods.

"This is the situation with which we are confronted. The problem is how to resolve it when 80 per cent or more of all trolled abroad."

Text of his speech was released to the press prior to delivery.

Mr. Gordon said foreign-controlled companies having a minority ownership by Canadian investors have more local economy than companies wholly owned by foreign interests.

They pressed harder to find export business and to find Canadian sources of supply.

Mr. Gordon said many of the changes in this year's federal budget aimed at encouraging at least a 25 - per - cent Canadian ownership in foreign-controlled companies.

"This objective can only be achieved gradually and over a must make a start."

Mr. Gordon also said the economic outlook for the next three to six months "is quite encouraging."

A number of economists had predicted an economic downturn would begin many months ago. "But this has not yet happened."

The unemployment rate last month was lower than for any September since 1957. For the first eight months of this year, the merchandise trade surplus was $200,000,000, compared with a $37,000,000 deficit a year earlier, and there had been a moderate reduction in the big deficit on

Urges Ontario to Repeal Law Permitting Segregated Schools

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto law professor called today for the repeal of legislation which he said allows Ontario the only jurisdiction in North America with the power to set up segregated schools.

H. W. Arthurs, a lecturer at Osgoode Hall law school, said that while the legislation has long been inactive, it remains on the books "as a mighty example of legislative hypocrisy" again which, after 115 years, remains a blot on the moral and public policy expressed in the Ontario Human Rights Code" of equality for all.

In a copyright article in The Globe and Mail, Mr. Arthurs said legislation was introduced in 1949 by the pre-Confederation province of Canada as part of the Separate Schools Act and "allowed the white community to forcibly exclude Negroes."

"By 1890 the right to establish Negro separate schools was revoked, instead, in the Negro community itself. There it remains today."

The pertinent section says: "Upon the application in writing of five or more heads of coloured people, the council of the township or board of public school trustees of the city, town or village shall authorize the establishment therein of one or more separate schools for coloured people."

The legislature of the time contended that Negro children were being denied admittance to public schools "by causes arising from the prejudices and ignorance of certain other inhabitants," Mr. Arthurs said.

Subsequent court decisions upheld the legislation, he said.

He cited cases in Chatham, Windsor and St. Catharines—of municipally imposed schools segregation. As late as 1926, a Negro failed in a court attempt to have his child transferred from a school to a public school in Windsor.

"None are known to exist today. Since the colored separate schools disappeared from the community, the legal basis for enforcing admission to public schools was gone.

"Today there remains only the anomalous provision in the Separate Schools Act whose re-

Quinte Addition Completed, Board Turns to Planning New High School Near OSD

Official opening ceremonies of the new million-dollar addition to the Quinte Secondary School will be held this fall — possibly some time in late November.

At the October meeting of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board a special committee of Dr. J. Barlow, Harleigh Hamilton, Raymond Rowe and the board chairman, Bruce Ports, was named to arrange suitable opening ceremonies for the new technical addition to the school.

But school construction programs never seem to end and already members of the Bay of Quinte District board are thinking in terms of still another high school to serve the increasing needs of the district.

The new school will be constructed on Palmer Road, north of the Ontario School for the Deaf and planning details will be one of the major items facing the 1964 board.

And more renovations are apparently in store at the Belleville Collegiate where the telephone system is claimed to be badly out of date, and improvements are needed to the science laboratories.

The property and supply committee of the board was authorized to make a complete survey of requirements and to proceed with the work if deemed necessary.

TO ATTEND FESTIVAL

The Board will contribute toward the cost of a bus to take members of the Quinte Secondary School Band to the Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto next spring. The board itself will make up the balance of the cost of the bus after students have contributed $2 each toward their own transportation.

The board is still having difficulties in arriving at a satisfactory settlement with school architect H. E. Roberts of Westport, with regard to repairs to supporting members for the roof of the original unit at Picton Secondary School.

A special committee of Dr. J. Barlow, Bruce Ports and Mrs. Mary Ann Ward was named to consider the matter further with the view of taking possible legal action to have the matter settled.

RETAIN FEES

The Quinte board will make no change in its policy decision of a year or more ago to charge fees for students attending city high schools after six full months.

The fee for students attending their seventh or more term is $31 per month or $310 for the school year. This board members state, is the actual base cost of instruction.

The board turned down an offer to sell part of the administration office property on College Street.

The District Board will be host on Saturday for a Zone 10 meeting of the Ontario Trustees' Council which is being held at Moira Secondary School. There will be representation from 19 boards in the district and as many as possible from the local board will attend.

Salary schedules and other matters pertaining to the school administration will be discussed at the meeting.

WANT REVISED AGREEMENT

Residents in the Hillcrest area of the city are looking for better bus service from their area to and it more convenient for high school students in the area to get to school.

Labor Council Officer Offers Resignation

Gordon Hutchinson has offered his resignation as sergeant-at-arms of the Belleville and District Labor Council. His letter of resignation, read at last night's meeting of the council was not officially accepted, explained pressure of other work interfered with his holding the council position. He prevented him from attending the council meeting last night he said.

Mr. Hutchinson's letter also contained an answer to what he described as an "accusation" made in a recent news item. The news item, which originated at the Trenton and District Labor Council meeting last Thursday, described how last minute preparations were being made to get a planned set of labor courses operating. The news item mentioned that Trenton Labor Council's claim that two members of the Belleville Council had met with two members of the Trenton council and that the date of the course was decided at the meeting. "The data was settled," said the news item, "but apparently never reported to the Belleville Labor Council".

Mr. Hutchinson's letter said he had been present at the meeting, and no aspersions had been cast on the way Mr. Hutchison had done his job.

But the fact was, Mr. Nokes pointed out, that the Belleville Labor Council had been given little warning of the courses. His gold council members that because of the short notice, delegates will be allowed to register Saturday, at the Park Motel in Trenton. Cost of the two-day course is seven dollars, which includes tickets to a Saturday night banquet. He said the courses are the only ones planned for the Quinte area this year.

Jaycees Will Again Sponsor Sports Show

Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce will repeat the Quinte District Home and Sports Show next spring, the group decided last night. Tentative date for the show is the third or fourth week of March, "late enough to avoid conflict with the Stanley Cup playoffs," and planned location is the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment armories, in the city. The show will be essentially the same as last year's successful effort.

Don Dafoe of Belleville has been named chairman of the affair and Don Burr is vice-chairman. Seven committee chairmen have also been named.

Children Here Will Again Help UNICEF

Six years ago when the traditional Hallowe'en treks wormed to include UNICEF collections some protests were recorded: "Don't rob the youngsters of Hallowe'en fun. It's their night!"

Fun-loving youngsters were unmoved by the attack practically Hallowe'en is still their night — but they have made it also a night for children 'round the world. Over the years Canadian youngsters have learned and enjoyed the privilege of sharing with their friends. Through education in schools and libraries they know that their help with UNICEF Hallowe'en posies is needed. Hence their pride in collecting the UNICEF equals the joyous acceptance of jelly beans and candy kisses. The children of Belleville will be sharing their fun again this year with children in underprivileged countries, through UNICEF.

Last Hallowe'en Canadian weather was as variable as the moods of children. Rain fell in the Atlantic Provinces, in Quebec and British Columbia brought home candy, cookies and apples. In the UNICEF collection boxes was almost $400,000 in pennies, nickels and dimes — this for the world-wide humanitarian work of UNICEF.

UNICEF is a crusade by children for children. Let's not dampen the ardor of youthful unselfish giving. Today's world needs it.

Until she's gone away.
God has her in His keeping,
I have her in my heart.
Sadly missed by husband and son.

Labor Council Donates $25 to Striking Union

Belleville and District Labor Council last night voted $25 to Local Eight of the International Leather Goods, Plastics and Novelty Workers' Union, to be paid only if the local is still on strike. The 125-member local went on strike Aug. 23, according to a letter from the Ontario Federation of Labor, and is beginning to run low on funds.

The letter had been mailed about two weeks ago, and council member Herb Pointer said the strike against the Dominion Luggage Co. might have been settled since the letter was mailed. He originated the motion, however, that the council make a $25 donation if the strike is still on. The motion was passed.

Parks Board Will Allow Traffic Circle Widening

TRENTON—The members of the Trenton Board of Parks' Management approved in principle last night the town's plan to cut back the south side of Gilmour Hill by 12 feet in order to widen the traffic circle at the top of the hill. The parks' board fountain will be moved back, or removed. At the suggestion of Mayor James MacDonald, the board will plant new trees on Gilmour Hill as soon as the widening process is finished.

The board will also act on a suggestion of the mayor that trees be planted on Dufferin Ave. when reconstruction is completed on this street. Seventy-one shade trees will fall when Dufferin Ave. is widened.

The firm of Armstrong Planning was last night given the contract to build a parks' board equipment storage shed in the Bayshore Extension. Cost to the board will be $1,678 and "extras". Clyde Mason was given authority to spend "up to $1,700" on the project.

The board also approved the selection of a parks' site in an extension to the Elmwood Acres sub-division and granted the Trenton Legion permission to fly "Poppy Flags" on flag poles in Fraser Park and on Gilmour Hill on Nov. 11.

Board member Donald McPherson told the members that the Lions' Club, of which he is an active member, would paint several large garbage cans, now stored in the town sheds, if the board would agree to having them placed in parks. The 45 gallon cans will be placed in Hanna Park, at the ball diamond in Bayshore Park and in the Elmwood park.

Board treasurer John Sayior told the members that the board would end the year with a "healthy surplus," in the bank. He suggested that part of this be used to do "something outstanding" in the Gilmour Hill park and board secretary Wes MacDonald later added the suggestion that $1,000 be earmarked for the replacement of trees on Dufferin Ave. and for other areas in the town.

Mr. Saylor reported that a new fence around McNichol Park would cost the board more than the planned-for $1,000, but that the fence would be there when he "was an old man."

Mr. McPherson asked for and received board sanction to have the parks' tractor overhauled at the Toronto manufacturer's plant and he will also get prices on night-stacking Mpbs for Cottrell and High Parks.

Parks gardener Bart Boers will check with the Trenton fire department to see if there are any old fire hoses for sale. These are now borrowed from the department to flood the skating rinks.

Present at last night's meeting were the chairman, W. A. Ireland; Miss Babe, Mr. McPherson, Norman Armstrong, Mr. Mason, Mr. Saylor, Mr. Boers and two reporters.

Fire Prevention Week Success Says Chief

TRENTON — Fire Prevention Week in Trenton was "very successful" from the viewpoint of Fire Chief Cecil Ellis.

Chief Ellis reported to council Monday that all local factories, warehouses, furniture storage depots, hotels, garages, churches, schools, and stores on the east and west sides of the river had been visited by his men during the week (Oct. 6 to Oct. 13). In addition, the theatre, the hospital and rural schools from Wooler to Consecon and in Murray township were checked for fire hazards. At the schools, fire drills were carried out and the children in the rural schools were given pamphlets dealing with fire prevention and printed rules for baby sitters. Trenton children had last year received similar literature and will receive more next year. A film on fire prevention, aimed at the school age audience, was shown 16 times in Trenton and in the rural schools.

One man, Inspector Robert Hales, attended a course at RCAF Station Trenton, dealing with detection of radioactive material, during Fire Prevention Week.

Fire Chief Ellis said later that he had received the utmost co-operation from factory heads, store owners and others. Several suggestions for greater safety measures were made and readily accepted.

Last week, following Fire Prevention Week, firemen inspected a number of private homes, where the owners had requested the inspection.

Car Strikes Telephone Pole, $425 Damage

TRENTON — Damage totalled about $425, early this morning when a car struck a telephone pole on highway 33 just north of the C.N.R. subway, Henry Schlieger, 66 years old, of R. R. 2, Trenton was unhurt in the accident. Mr. Schlieger was alone in the car at the time.

Mr. Schlieger lost control of the car about 12.30 a.m., according to police. Damage to the car totalled about $300., damage to the pole was estimated at $125.

$12,000 Home, Contents Lost In Flash Fire

TRENTON — A Gardenville couple, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Anderson, lost their home and possessions in a flash fire yesterday. Loss has been set at $13,000, but the building and contents were insured.

Mr. Anderson, who has worked for Klingson Upholstering in Trenton for a number of years, was at work when the fire broke out. Mrs. Anderson was working at Batawa and the couple's daughter, six-year-old Kathleen, was at school. A younger child, Scott, Jr., was being looked after by a neighbor.

The fire was reported to the Trenton fire department at 10.40 a.m. Two trucks with regular firemen and volunteers were sent to the scene. Water to fight the fire was brought in a small pond, and firemen were on the scene for more than three hours.

The fire is thought to have started in the kitchen area of the frame home.

The Anderson family is staying with friends until other accommodation can be found.

Council Will Not Collect Burning Leaves

TRENTON — Trenton council is definitely not interested in collecting fallen leaves, not even to save town citizens from what the Health Board terms, the "hazard to health and property" smoke that bonfires produce.

One councillor, James Duncan, even went so far as to say at Monday night's council meeting that he "liked the smell of burning leaves".

After briefly considering the cost involved in paying to have the leaves collected, council agreed that it should be brought to the attention of the public that one should first, obtain permission from the fire chief before burning the leaves, and went along with the suggestion that the garbage operator, Ross Willman, could be expected to collect leaves up neatly packaged in cartons.

"What if the leaves fall on town property?" Councillor Edward Todd wanted to know, "Do we go to have them collected?"

"If you leave them long enough they'll blow over onto private property", suggested Councillor Ross Burtt.

Town engineer Eric Alderson hopes that residents will refrain in the future from burning the leaves on sidewalks or asphalt roads. He suggested, that the fire chief has stipulated that leaves be burned on the residents own property. Leaf fires "melt the asphalt and blacken and deface curbs.

Federal Govt. to Contribute $300,000 to New Bridge

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald announced on Tuesday that the federal government had agreed to subsidize construction costs of a second bridge for the town . . . provided the town would assume all future maintenance costs for the swing portion of the present bridge. The grant named by Department of Transport officials at Ottawa is $300,000. Estimated cost of the proposed bridge is between a million and $1,200,000. The Ontario government has committed itself to pay 75 per cent of construction costs.

In making the announcement, Mayor MacDonald termed the arrangement suggested at an October 10 meeting in Ottawa, as a "concession" to the town Ottawa, as a "concession" to the town Ontario Wednesday. The government does not make grants towards new bridges which do not involve a swing portion and plans for the new Trenton bridge delete a swing portion.

"There will be no major expense for Trenton involved," said the mayor.

On Wednesday, October 16 Mayor MacDonald consulted with deputy minister of highways for Ontario, A. T. C. McNab in Toronto, and as a result of the discussion, the provincial department has agreed to assume one-third of the maintenance costs of the swing portion of the present bridge. Yesterday, highway engineers and others examined the structure and pronounced it sound.

"The Ontario government has co-operated one hundred per cent in this matter," the mayor said last night.

Mayor MacDonald also paid tribute to the efforts of the federal representative from Hastings South, Robert Temple, who arranged the meeting between town officials and the federal minister of transport, the Hon. George McIlraith.

THE REMARKABLE NEW CLAIRTONE

STEREOPHONIC CONSOLES

THURSDAY, FRIDAY & SATURDAY—OCT. 24th, 25th, 26th.

CLAIRTONE CREATES TUBELESS SYSTEM TO BANISH HEAT DETERIORATION. RESULT: ASTONISHING FIVE-YEAR GUARANTEE.

The Achilles heel of the stereo set has always been its glowing tubes. They heat up, gradually cook out the circuits, crystallize the solder—and eventually burn themselves out.

Clairtone's solution is simple and dramatic. Eliminate the tubes. Old glaze radio tubes are replaced by a modern completely solid state system, as reliable as the components used in missile control systems and airborne computers. In Clairtone sets there are no glowing filaments. No heat deterioration. Result: Clairtone now guarantees all solid state parts for an astonishing five years.

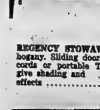
Now you can hear recorded music undistorted, pure and true — not only at high volume, but at a whisper, too.

CLAIRTONE has created a high fidelity instrument with good living room manners. No longer need high fidelity music be played at glass-shattering volume.

Simply press the remarkable new low level fidelity button and music can be reduced to a polite murmur — without sacrificing the authoritative bass or the tinkly high notes. An enthusiast's dream — and Clairtone's contribution to marital harmony.

Your Clairtone can be two, or even three, sets in one. Reason: Versatile Rocker Keys, easy to operate.

The Clairtone keyboard is composed of individually lighted rocker keys. Why? One reason is simplicity—the keys take the frightening mystique out of stereo. Another important reason: you can engage several keys simultaneously. Your Clairtone can be two, or even three sets in one.



EXAMPLES: You can play records in one room and relay AM or FM music to another at the same time.

If you choose a CLAIRTONE television model, you can enjoy TV in your living room, pipe recorded music to the rec. room and radio music to the kitchen. All at once.

ANOTHER ADVANTAGE: Plug in a tape recorder or TV set to your CLAIRTONE, press a key — and enjoy pure sound through the high fidelity speakers.

What Makes Butler Tick?

What makes a man like Richard Butler tick?

Here he is, passed over for the second time for the leadership of the British Conservatives, meekly accepting the former portfolio of the man who has filched his rightful heritage from him.

That, at any rate, is the interpretation which many of us would put on events, were we in Butler's shoes.

It-is self-evident that he is different from the average man, but whether this makes him lesser or greater is not clear. It requires great humility or great patience to play the role Butler has accepted, if he is activated by more than a spiritless acceptance of events.

If it is patience, it seems likely to go unrewarded. At sixty, Butler can hardly have reasonable hopes that he can succeed Lord Home and rebuild the Conservatives in time for the next election but one, should Home's administration be defeated at the polls when it shortly goes to the people, as it must. If, on the other hand, Lord Home is returned to power, what reasonable expectation has Butler that, in the event of his leader's retirement, he will be better served by Home than by the two other Conservative prime ministers he has served so faithfully?

But perhaps Butler, while not without ambitions, is great enough to place the welfare of his party, (on which, he probably believes, depends the welfare of his country), above his own personal hopes.

Perhaps, he is a great man who scorns the fates. If so, tradition probably aids him in treading the path he has chosen. His political fate, though, focuses the spotlight on a very real, and immensely important, difference between Britain's politics and the politics of the lands she has mothered and which fondly believe they copy her ways. Imagine the furor in Canada if either the Progressive Conservatives or the Liberals allowed their leader to be selected by "those who counted—ancient families."

Lousy Politicians

Newspapermen make lousy politicians.

That is the opinion of ex-newspaperman Edwin Mahoney, voiced in precisely these words in the Toronto Telegram.

Injured pride suggested the retort courteous, that politicians make lousy newspapermen, but right above Mr. Mahoney's article was the regular contribution of Douglas Fisher, M.P., a politician whose journalistic talents make many a newspaperman turn green with envy.

Mr. Mahoney chose to base his contention of the lack of talent which newspapermen show for politics on the recent unfortunate experiences of John Wintermeyer, just resigned as Chairman of Liberal Party. Mr. Mahoney, though, buttressed this example with others and indeed he knows from personal experience of what he speaks, he having deserted the editorial sanctum of the Toronto Telegram for a stint as executive assistant of David Walker, then Federal Minister of Works, now ex-M.P. for Toronto Rosedale.

Mr. Mahoney's remarks about the unfortunate experiences of Mr. Wintermeyer as the result of listening to newspapermen are of special interest to many Belleville residents, because Mr. Wintermeyer's executive assistant was Dr. Boyd Upper, a former member of The Ontario Intelligencer editorial staff. Mr. Mahoney, though, while he named several names amongst his list of horrible examples, did not include that of Dr. Upper.

It could be that Mr. Wintermeyer listened to the wrong newspapermen. Members of the clan have been known to hold differing views on a variety of subjects—including the best way of getting elected to office.

Indeed, we suspect that Mr. Mahoney's dictum needs a slight qualification. Many newspapermen make lousy politicians—which is true of many butchers, bakers and candlestick makers, and even of some lawyers.

How faint, how remote, are the memories of 1956. How different in 1963 are the attitudes of men. We then existed in an atmosphere of suffocating pessimism. Today, cautious buoyant optimism is the prevailing spirit.—Halle Salassie of Ethiopia addressing the U.N.

The greatest danger for South Africa is that liberalism, preaching that everyone is equal, is busy gaining ground in the world. This can only make us soft and break our spirit. We must stand fast against it.—Justice Minister

Power Pool Proposed

Montreal Gazette

Mr. Stewart Udall, the U. S. Secretary of the Interior, has spoken in support of the idea of creating a gigantic pool of Canadian - American power resources.

The idea is an attractive one in many respects. It would save it gives rise to doubts, and suggests some limitations.

As far as oil is concerned, it is a policy from which both countries could well benefit. For geographical reasons it is essential for Canadian oil to be sent from western Canada into the United States.

The alternative to this policy would be to build a pipeline from western Canada to eastern Canada. But when this question was under active discussion in 1960-61, the prevailing opinion was that bringing oil from Alberta to Montreal would raise the price of oil for eastern Canada. This would mean that all sources of energy, both in industry and for domestic use, might rise in price, increasing the general cost of living and of industrial production.

Though a settled policy of sharing oil on a continental basis would clearly work out to the advantage of both countries, the sharing of hydroelectric power presents more problems.

The present Liberal Government has abandoned the former Liberal policy of allowing the export of power from Canada. The belief now seems to be that it would be unwise to allow this if some very large hydroelectric projects are to be developed in Canada. To sell the right to use the power to the United States would provide only a few jobs in construction. This would be true of the Columbia River project, and it might prove useful in developing the project at Hamilton Falls in Labrador and on the Nelson River in Manitoba. No doubt it is felt that the export of power would also bring in U. S. currency particularly help Canada's balance of payments.

But some prudent hesitation in exporting power may not be unjustified. Hydroelectric power is one of the most attractive assets that Canada possesses. It ought to be used as far as possible to help industries in Canada to make use of it, and not exported to develop industry and employment outside Canadian borders.

The late C. D. Howe was adamant on this point. In 1955 he sponsored legislation to give Ottawa authority to block the export of power.

Mr. Howe recalled what had once happened in Quebec. The Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co. wished to export 40,000 kilowatts of power from its Cedars plant to the St. Lawrence for the Aluminum Company of America at Massena, New York. But the federal government had refused to give its permission.

"We were then," said Mr. Howe, "making aluminum at a plant in the province of Quebec that was less than one-twentieth the size it is today. If we had been willing to send that power over the line the plant at Massena would have been a big plant today, and the plant on the Saguenay would not be the size it is today."

The immediate arguments for exporting power may seem overpressingly compelling. Seen in the longer view, some doubts may linger. Mr. Howe remembered Massena.

It is obvious that whatever arrangements may be made for pooling the development of our sources of energy, they will not in themselves solve the greatest of all Canadian economic problems: the problem of making more finished goods by a largor secondary industry in Canada.

Mr. Sharp himself made his point in a speech in which he said that Canada's resource industries, important as they are, can never be the chief source of Canada's economic problems. This was seen in the buoyant years after the war. Increased capacity of Canada's resource industries increased enormously. At the culmination of the period Canada's deficit in current account reached its maximum.

As Mr. Sharp says: "The big growth in manufactured goods in the world today is in the area of manufactured goods. . . This means that there is no doubt in the long lasting solution to our payment gap is to extend our production base and to diversify more. We can create our proficiency in the area of secondary manufacturing."

The pooling of the energy resources between Canada and the United States would be a big thing. But it is hardly a substitute for that. This would be no substitute for the need for Canada to manufacture more things to use at home and more things to sell abroad. And care would have to be taken that the development of the pooling of energy resources would diminish Canada's potential advantages in having a big power to manufacture, and to attract manufacturers.

Sickening Invitation

United Church Observer

We received an invitation last month, to join a new organization (at least in business circles) known as the National Affiliation of Christians in Professions and Business. We don't know who, or what, is behind the movement, but that invitation makes us sick.

The NACPB says its purpose is to help spread the Gospel by encouraging percentage-giving members to help one another, and to help build the profit of Christians in professions and business. "Now over big or small, you can profit by letting your Christian brother know you are in business," it says.

To qualify, a business man must "have experienced Christ in my life . . . believe in the virgin birth, the physical life, death and resurrection of our Lord . . . and give more than 10 per cent of my income to Protestant churches and evangelical organizations."

The most sickening paragraph of all: "You now have the necessary information to make a prayerful decision to increase your profits and the spread of the gospel by membership in NACPB."

Tricky Task For Engineer

Alma of Industry

Alan Barton, of Derby, in the U.K., a former captain in the Brigade of Guards, Britain's corps elite, has been worried about the unexpended.

As an engineer and a specialist in car suspension—he has been working for Parnell and John Dalton, two of the U.K.'s leading racing motorists—Captain Barton was worried that a lady friend if he could do something about the suspension of ladies' shocking pink cars—as was that the suspender — as every man has observed — shows a tight fitting clothes.

"After all," says Captain Barton, "this is all a matter of engineering so I said I would study the problem from all angles."

The result of engineer Barton's interesting study is that he has perfected models for a plastic suspender which is only 7/8-thousandths of an inch thick, and could certainly never be seen by the most eagle-eyed male.

Alan Barton (he won the French Croix de Guerre during the war), called in one of his services colleagues, Wing Commander Gordon Haywood, ex-Royal Air Force, and they have gone into production in a big way with this delicate article of feminine attire. He reports brief service stores in the U.K. are tumbling over themselves for the latest suspenders, while he has already received inquiries from overseas and apparently ladies have suffered from the same embarrassment. It takes a discerning eye to spot a winner!

Fire drill in each of the city schools will form part of the observance of Fire Prevention Week in Belleville it was stated by Fire Chief William Lynch who intimated that today members of the department would visit schools to check times of emptying classrooms following alarm bells.

Initial activity of the fire department in regard to observance of Fire Prevention Week was a test run by fire fighting equipment which was staged on Monday morning the business and residential parts of the city.

It seems that smokers have only themselves to blame if they find themselves almost continually out of matches, with their tobacconist or grocer unable to sell them the quantity desired. At least that was the answer suggested by an official of a wholesale firm in Belleville when the Ontario Intelligencer enquired as to the reason for the scarcity of matches which has been experienced for the past many weeks.

And what has caused the scarcity run on matches by smokers? That was quite simple. Lighters and lighter flints were scarce, and on top of this the complimentary book matches which before the war were so popular have now been almost entirely cut off. At one time hotels, service stations, and travellers gave away these book matches, and now this supply has now been cut off.

For some time the club has carried on its activities in the club rooms of the Wharf Street Debating Club.

To Your Good Health

We Need to Have Healthy Respect for Barbiturates

By JOSEPH C. SOLMER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: How does phenobarbital affect the heart? Could it be harmful if I increased the dosage over the amount prescribed? I am enclosing 25 cents in coin and a self-addressed envelope for a copy of your booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Thank you. — Mrs. A. H.

I'm well aware of several recent national magazine articles pointing out the dangers of barbiturates, of which phenobarbital is, of course, one.

I wish there were some magic method of impressing on people the importance of having a healthy respect for barbiturates. But there isn't any such way. It's like fire. In cold climates, without fire to heat our homes, and elsewhere to cook our food and run trains and planes and blast furnaces, we'd be in such a pickle that in the course of one winter we'd be dying off at the rate as the Pilgrims did in that first winter in New England.

We must respect the uses of fire. We must constantly remind ourselves of its dangers — the child playing with matches, the fooling with a bonfire, the heater that causes carbon monoxide, the peril of forest fires, a house aflame.

Fire can kill us. Fire can keep us alive.

Barbiturates — and countless other drugs — can do likewise. Don't let them frighten you into them intelligently.

Phenobarbital (in your case) calms the system and relieves tension. This in turn causes the heart rate to slow down, or to eliminate extra beats. All to the good. That helps.

It should not increase the dose b possibly not. Just because a furnace makes the house comfortable, you shouldn't increase its heat until it explodes.

I may sound elementary about this, but the principle is elementary. Enough is fine and too much can be disastrous and drugs are, like fire, a powerful force.

The dividing line between "enough" and "too much" is difficult to define. So don't ever increase any drug dosage without your doctor's sanction. I would not think of telling my plumber how to fix his job, or my TV repairman, or any of the people upon whom I rely for good results. I expect them to know their jobs. They generally do. So your doctor knows his job, too!

Dear Dr. Molner: After a hysterectomy at the age of 48, is it necessary to have a "Pap test" every six months or so?—S.A.S.

The "Pap test" is aimed essentially at detecting abnormal cancerous cells if they appear at the cervix, or "neck of the womb". That's a vulnerable spot, although we don't know why. Find out from your doctor whether the cervix was removed. If it was, then a routine "Pap test" is wise.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told that by drinking two shot glasses of brandy a day I would never have prostate trouble. Thank you for your reply. — S. H.

You're welcome, sir, but pay no attention to such a wild statement. It's not only a simple precaution would work, but it won't. The only reason I ponder the strange collection of goofy theories is that so many of them keep cropping up, and people — not you, of course — refuse to ignore them — want a little moral support for their common sense.

Strictly Personal

Man Lives by Words Rather Than His Ideas

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Every decade or so, we are treated to some new translation of the Bible, which is supposed to clear away the cobwebs and "more modern" in language than the archaic versions our forefathers were nourished upon.

Nevertheless, these ancient editions maintain their hold upon us, because what one learns as a child becomes a comfortable incantation in later life, and we need never think it afresh or feel it anew. Despite the powerful and old-fashioned phraseology of the King James version maintains its unexpectedly awesome effect upon us.

Consider, for example, St. Paul's famous words about the "flesh" and the "spirit." Every educated person knows a little bit known that the "flesh" is bad and the "spirit" is good. But hardly anyone, except a few ignored theologians, knows what the Bible meant by "flesh."

We suppose, in a balanced and semi-educated way, that St. Paul was talking against the "sins of the flesh" — that is, "the sins of the flesh" he meant gluttony and drunkenness and fornication and all the other carnal satisfaction of all the appetites. He meant nothing of the sort.

The "flesh" refers to the "natural man," as opposed to the "supernatural man." It is the total human personality of the man who has not been "reborn."

The "spirit," on the other hand, according to Paul and the fathers of the Church, are primarily those activities and attributes which contrast most sharply with the supernatural virtues: greed, envy, lust, cruelty, injustice, and the hardness of heart that is at the core of all of them.

In fact, the one lesson to be learned from a careful reading of the gospels is that Jesus counted these sins infinitely worse than the grossest and perversion of the physical appetites. Everything in the gospels indicates that it is the people in the company of the disreputable to the company of the respectable hypocrites.

Because so many have a not understood what the Bible means by "flesh," it has been assumed that the "worst sins" are physical, when in fact every competent theologian knows that they are "spiritual." Many so-called religious people even believe that the prime sin of Adam and Eve was sexual in nature, when it was the same dis-sin of pride and disobedience.

New versions of the Bible try valiantly to correct these errors and misconceptions, but most of the traditional ties to the past are too strong. We live by words rather than by ideas, and when the wrong word is clamped to an idea it an early age, it is much easier to cling to the wrong word than to examine the idea behind it.

Yo-Yo Back But Price Up

Ottawa Journal

Yo-yos seem to have come back, as they do once every generation or so. Once again young wits, just getting the hang of the thing, are talking about "walking the dog" and "rocking the baby" and other tricks. Once again the "big kids" are growing insufferably conceited about their skill at "making the dog sit" or doing the "around the world," which is probably the second "walk."

To people who did their yo-yoing a generation ago there is also striking evidence that revival is the way it shows what has happened to the dollar. Ever since with a decent yo-yo was the Canasta of his neighborhood, the yo-yo would cost a dollar today. What will it cost the next time yo-yos come in?

The yo-yo cycle itself is something to ponder. Yo-yos are popular, then they are not. Then they disappear. There arises a generation that knows not yo-yos. Then they suddenly they are in every young hand again.

Is this a business cycle, or nonsuch? What do the yo-yo makers do in the lean years? Will they be ready to begin coining back, why can't we have a good, spirited revival of tiddly-winks or jacks?

MENTAL problems were discussed with Belleville teachers last night by Rev. R. C. Pickett and Dr. R. F. Briggs, Kingston.

Should Mentally Retarded Persons Marry? Subject of Talk Before R. C. Teachers

Should mentally abnormal persons marry?

A Catholic priest and theologian last night confessed that as one of the most agonizing questions facing a clergyman throughout his vocation.

"Nobody has ever given us the answer to that," Rev. R. C. Pickett told a meeting of Catholic teachers at Nicholson College.

With Kingston psychiatrist and lecturer Dr. R. F. Briggs, Rev. Pickett discussed the problems of the mentally retarded in schools before a local assembly of the Catholic English Catholic Teachers' Association.

Father Pickett suggested that much could be done by teachers in reconciling mentally retarded persons during their school years with the fact they cannot lead normal lives.

No one person has the right to say people should not get married, he said. Yet a clergyman has grave misgivings when a couple is mentally retarded.

"It is a terrible problem and one of the worst ones I have ever been faced with," said the priest.

"There is nothing in the law-books, there is nothing anywhere to guide us—just our own judgment."

He recalled such a marriage some years ago in Ontario that eventually brought public condemnation down on the clergyman who performed it.

Yet, said Father Pickett, "I knew I would have done the same thing myself—and there is no way to guide us."

TEACHERS CAN HELP

Teachers should try to inculcate mentally abnormal pupils with the idea they can never lead normal married lives.

"Teachers might help in steering these people into a satisfied single state." "And that is my reason for bringing up the problem here," said Rev. Pickett.

"I think it might help if teachers kind of coaxed these people away from the fact that they will ever have a normal life."

"It's too late when they present a marriage licence to some clergyman," he said.

Mental diseases some day would be successfully dealt with, claimed the speaker. Modern science has successfully dealt with most diseases once believed incurable.

"Surely we can have confidence that (mental illness) can be met up with and can be conquered."

Statistics may reveal some startling facts about contemporary mental stress, but this was no reason for panic.

"I am not surprised at this statistic," said Rev. Pickett recalling modern social pressures. "I am surprised it's not twice as bad as it is."

"I can hardly face the world about us now and get my bearings and keep them. And what would I do if I were a teenager facing into this life?

A GOOD SIGN

The daily outpouring of social problems in the communications media makes the gloomiest picture of contemporary life.

"I am personally surprised," he told the teachers, "not by the numbers of teenagers with mental problems, but by the fact that there are not many, many more of them."

Current concern with mental problems is a good sign for the future. Besides mounting interest among individuals, public institutions are "now springing up" across Ontario to deal with the situation.

"Why, a generation ago there was nothing like this in our province," said Dr. Pickett. "It is coming to me the great interest that's been taken in the problem."

More Women Landscape Architects Said Needed

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — With women continuing to make inroads into careers formerly reserved for men, there aren't many new fields left to conquer.

But Dr. Patricia Harney, dark-haired, energetic landscape professor in floricultural research at the Federated College here, has one.

She would like to see more women landscape architects. There are some in the United States but she doesn't know of any in Canada.

"Unfortunately, there isn't a Canadian university which offers this degree course at the present time, but there is some talk that Ontario Agricultural College here will begin one next year."

In U.S. universities it is ordinarily a five-year course.

"A good landscape architect is a good artist and has a born talent for design," Dr. Harney says. "He is usually involved in industrial or municipal projects, and is not to be confused with the landscape designer who works a great deal with homes."

A native of Smith's Cove, N.S., Dr. Harney has her bachelor of science degree and doctorate in genetics from McGill. She spent three years working for the Nova Scotia department of agriculture.

PERFECT GERANIUM

Since joining the staff of OAC several months ago, she has started research on geraniums. Her goal is a variety that can be propagated by seed instead of cuttings.

At present all commercially grown geraniums are produced by cuttings or slips. It's not until geraniums have been inbred for several generations that they yield a bloom identical to the parent.

Dr. Harney is selecting the best plants from each generation and inbreeding them again until they produce a perfect variety.

To the commercial grower she says, this will mean "a much healthier and profuse plant, but we are primarily interested in developing disease-resistant plants."

Dr. Harney is also working on improvement of snapdragons and zinnas and next year will lecture on floriculture to the six students—all males—in the ornamental horticulture course.

Strangely, her own favorite pastime is not gardening—"mainly because in the past decade or more I haven't had a place of my own where I could use my green thumb." In her leisure hours she likes to dabble in oil painting and photography.

WORKS WITH GERANIUMS — Dr. Patricia Harney, a native of Smith's Cove, N.S., who formerly worked for the Nova Scotia agriculture department, has joined the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph as assistant professor in floricultural research. One project is development of a geranium that can be commercially propagated from seed instead of cuttings. (CP Photo)

SPEAKING of MANNERS

FREDERICA LOVING

HAIR CALL

Question: We met a charming couple at the home of friends a month ago, and invited them to dinner at our house last week-end. Obviously, word of the invitation got back to the hostess who introduced us originally, and I understand she's slightly put out about not having been invited too. I meant no slight. The couple we invited just returned from Europe. We had made the trip last spring, and this few other people present had been over during the summer. I simply thought the whole group would have fun discussing their adventures, and I was afraid the couple we didn't invite might be bored by the whole thing since they have never been abroad.

Would you consider I was being impolite to spare them a whole evening of conversation which they would hardly enjoy and which they would have felt completely left out of? — Mrs. J. C., Boston, Mass.

Answer: I can appreciate your good intentions, but I can also see why your original hostess might feel slightly miffed. She had introduced you to the couple at her home and, for the sake of good manners, she and her husband should have been invited to the subsequent party at your house. To be politic about it, you might have told her the reason for the party and let her be the judge of whether or not she wanted to attend. She and her husband might have found the travel talk stimulating. At least, her feelings would have been spared — and so, too, your relationship with her.

Rebekah Lodge Installs New Officers

Tuesday night the installation of Quinteau Rebekah Lodge officers took place in the Odd Fellows hall, which had been beautifully decorated with tall white standards of fern.

A basket of fall flowers was placed at the front of the dais in memory of a late sister Catherine Beal, by Mr. and Mrs. James Beal.

The Noble Grand, Sister Connie Wilkinson, welcomed Sister Mabel Foster, District Deputy President of District No. 4, and the Deputy Marshal, Sister Dorothy Fisher and staff of Tweed, consisting of the following sisters: Stella Wood, Margaret Locke, Grace Perrin, Hazel Albert, Ethel Dafoe, Agnes Webb, Mildred McCrory, Ruth Masters, Blanche Country-man; guard of honor, Louis Elliot, Bernice Lough, Ethel Bateman, Marion Tucker, Beatrice Reid, Jean Denham, Bob Jardine, Annie Thompson. The above sisters were escorted through the Quinteau guard of honor of the following sisters: Georgina Charlton, Merle Simpson, Verna Oliphant, Ella Anderson, Myrtle Smith, Helen Brooks, Ruby Way and Bessie Bolstrick.

The District Deputy President, Sister Mabel Foster, took charge of installation, the deputy marshal, Sister Dorothy Fisher, presented the following Quinteau sisters for installation: Clara Ironside, Noble Grand; Bernice Hall, vice-grand; Eva Judge, recording secretary; Lena MacMillan, financial secretary; Annie Webb, treasurer; Carolyn Haywood, warden; Laura Downey, conductor; Emily Beal, chaplain; Dorothy Harwood, musician; Gladys Beamish, color bearer; Irene McMartin, RSNG; Lena Belmay, LSNG; Ila Addy, RSVG; Elda Sopha, LSVG; Lillian Summers, inside guardian; Bessie Bolstrick, outside guardian, and Connie Williamson, JPNG.

Each officer installed received a lovely corsage presented by the Noble Grand. Sister Blanche Countryman, soloist for installation, sang two appropriate solos during the installation ceremonies.

At the conclusion Sister Clara Ironside, Noble Grand, was presented with gifts from her family and sister Rebekahs, during the presentation Sister Dorothy Webber, Quinteau soloist, sang a number.

Sister Ironside expressed her appreciation to the sisters and to the installing staff, who named those included on her gift. Sister Alice Adams, degree staff captain; Sister Helen Miller, Rebekah flag bearer; Sister Dorothy Harwood, tabloid reporter; Sister E. Judge, press reporter.

After closing, the guests and members adjourned to the upper hall to partake of a banquet served by Sister Ruby Way, Sister Gladys Brickman, and committee.

Appreciation was expressed, bringing an enjoyable evening to a close.

The Experts Say

Watch Should Be Wound Fully at Same Time Daily

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP) — The delicate mechanism requires constant care and protection to function best, says gemmologist and watchmaker Jonathan Fraleigh.

And to give you an idea how fragile a watch is, he notes that there are at least 127 parts and screws in the tiny models popular with the ladies, and that these parts are so small it would take 50,000 of them to fill a thimble.

"Most people who bring their watches in for repairs have dropped them, so the first rule in good watch care is: Don't abuse your watch by knocking and banging it around."

This is fairly obvious to most people, but there are many other subtle tricks that will help keep your watch working at its best.

For example, a watch should be wound fully at the same time every day.

"Have no fear of overwinding. If your watch stops when its fully wound, it's dirty."

Always take a watch off your wrist for winding because pressure caused by winding on the wrist could break the stem.

DON'T NEED REST

A watch or clock should always be set clockwise, turning until the hands backwards is liable to jam the mechanism. And keep the watch wound even if it's not being worn—"watches don't need a rest."

Although watch cases are tight, moisture and dust particles can seep inside them to cause rust or clog the moving parts.

A wrist watch should be removed for doing dishes or any other work in water "even if it is waterproof." And it should never be worn in bed because of the danger of lint working its way inside.

Even in the course of daily household routine, taking meat from a freezer and putting it directly into a hot oven can cause the hairspring to break.

"There's more breakage of this kind in the summer when high temperatures expand the moving, making it vulnerable at all times," Mr. Fraleigh says.

When buying a watch, consider the occupation of the person who will wear it. "A man who works in an office doesn't require the shockproof features of a watch to be worn by a carpenter."

17 JEWELS PLENTY

Unless a watch is made for a special purpose, it requires only 17 jewels for good frictionless running, says Mr. Fraleigh. "Extra jewels are usually just pasted on and used as a sales pitch."

Always buy a watch at a reputable jeweler and preferably one who has facilities for servicing. If you buy an unknown brand—and there are many good little-advertised brands"—know your retailer.

Mr. Fraleigh says he has found most men today prefer round thin watches of yellow gold; "square watches are out."

For women, almost anything goes — abstracts, free forms, brooches, elaborate bracelets. But there is a trend to the pendant watch and chain of the Victorian era.

INDUSTRIAL GROWTH

From a single cloth factory in 1703, Canada has become the world's sixth greatest manufacturing country.

WEDDING

LOUNSBURY — SPENCER

Ryistone United Church was the setting for a pretty autumn wedding recently when Patricia Diana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, Ryistone, became the bride of Gary Ralph Lounsbury, only son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Lounsbury of R.R. 3 Hastings.

Rev. H. E. Beare, of Roseneath, former minister at Ryistone, was assisted by Mr. Harold D. Pillen, present minister at Ryistone Church in the double-ring ceremony, before an altar banked with ferns and baskets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Helen Morrow, Stirling, presided at the piano and accompanied soloist, Linda Morrow of Stirling.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of white organza over taffeta, with embroidered appliques at the neckline and full skirt draped at the back, to a large bow. Her headdress was an organza rose surrounded by tiny seed pearls held in place by a shoulder-length appliqued veil. She carried a white Bible with pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Sherry Spencer was maid of honor for her sister, and the bridesmaids were Miss Joyce McGee, of Stirling, and Miss Virginia Davis of Glen Miller. They were gowned alike in blue satin with matching headdresses of a blue satin bow and circular veil. They wore matching blue shoes and carried semi-cascade bouquets of white shasta mums.

Flower girls were little Miss Deborah Doober of Campbellford, and Karen Thomson Bonarlaw, nieces of the bride, gowned alike in white organza with wreaths of pink roses in their hair. They carried baskets of pink and white 'mums.

Groomsman was Fred Spencer, youngest brother of the bride and the ushers were Gary Taylor and Casey Van Hoydonk, brothers-in-law of the bridegroom.

At the reception held in St. John's United Church parlors, Campbellford, the bride's mother received in a champagne brocaded satin dress with brown accessories and corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, gowned in a blue brocaded two-piece satin dress with beige accessories and corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Detroit, Mich.; Napanee, Rezdale, Glen Miller, Mount Denis, Peterborough, C a m pbellford and Belleville.

For her going-away ensemble the bride chose a dress of blue brocade with three-quarter length duster, blue marabou hat and black patent accessories, changing later for their boat trip up the Trent Waterways.

Mr. and Mrs. Lounsbury will reside at 430 Park Street, Peterborough.

Nutritionist Feels Fish Should Be Main Protein Food Three Times Weekly

OTTAWA (CP)—For a people surrounded by some of the world's richest fishing grounds, Canadians eat surprisingly little fish, — an average of 13.5 pounds a person a year—says the federal fisheries department.

It takes the opportunity afforded by Canadian Fish and Seafood Week, Oct. 20-26, to remind women that many nutritionists feel fish should be the main protein food of a meal at least three times a week, instead of the once-a-week food it is now in many homes.

All fish are excellent sources of complete, high-quality protein and, weight for weight, fish contains more protein than beef.

Of added interest to the budget-conscious homemaker is the fact that fish is usually less expensive than meat.

For the weight-watcher, fish can be an important part of a low-calorie diet, although the department emphasizes that no low-calorie food remains so if cooked in fat or smothered in rich sauce. Fish also fills the bill when a diet low in saturated fats is prescribed.

Those on low - sodium diets may be surprised to learn that both marine and freshwater fish are low in sodium if prepared without the addition of salt.

Root Vegetables Your Family Will Root for or Dig Those Root Vegetables

By MARY MOORE

We have been pampered with lovely green fresh vegetables for nearly six months, but now we will have to make good use of the harvest of root vegetables.

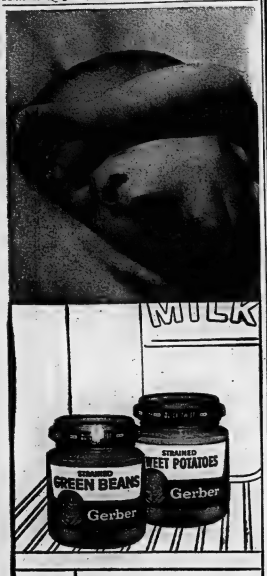
For Sunday dinner I combined carrots with parsnips and seasoned and garnished them and they were a distinguished success.

Exert your skill in making the root vegetables into guest meal items — and stretch your housekeeping money.

CARROT AND PARSNIP PURÉE:

-4 or 5 medium carrots, 4 or 5 medium small parsnips, 1 tea. spoon seasoning salt, ¼ cup butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon minced chives, ¼ cup minced parsley.

Wash and scrape or pare carrots and parsnips and cut off tops and bottoms. Cut each in halves lengthwise. Half-cover with boiling salted water and simmer, covered, 15 to 20 minutes until vegetables are just tender. Drain well. Combine butter and seasoning salt, and pour over carrots and parsnips evenly on preheated shallow serving dish. Sprinkle very generously with parsley and chives. Makes 4 to 6 servings.



DUCHESS TURNIP AND POTATO:

1 yellow turnip, cut up, 4 potatoes, freshly cooked, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 tablespoons hot milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs.

Cook the turnip in a little salted water until tender. Drain and mix with the potatoes. Mash together until smooth. Add the butter, milk and seasoning and beat with rotary or electric beater until perfectly smooth. Stir in the beaten eggs and beat again. Pile in fluffy mounds on a greased baking sheet. Brown by baking at 350 deg. Fahr. until golden or broil until golden. Lift out onto a hot platter with a pancake turner.

SAVORY ONIONS WITH CHEESE SAUCE:

Wash and peel white or yellow globe onions that are about 2¼" in diameter. Pour boiling water over them and bring to boil. Drain. Add boiling water again to cover and simmer, covered, until tender but not falling apart. Drain well and turn into preheated vegetable dish. Pour over Cheese Sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine. Stir in 4 tablespoons flour and ½ teaspoon each salt and mustard until blended. Stir in 2 cups milk until thick. Add ½ to 1 cup grated cheese or cut-up process cheese and stir until melted and heated through. Excellent on cauliflower and broccoli and green beans too.

Packed in glass to help preserve freshness of "leftovers"

Yes, now Gerber Strained and Junior Foods are packed in Wide-Top jars with re-usable Quick-Twist caps, to help keep your baby's food fresh even if served more than once. When refrigerating unused portions, caps reclose tightly to protect flavour and help prevent discoloration . . . thus reducing "leftover" waste. What's more, these tight-fitting covers also protect precious food values by reducing exposure to air.

Other advantages of Gerber in glass: you can see what you buy. The Wide-Top jars make it easy to spoon out baby's food down to the last morsel. The large-size jars of Junior Foods are designed to meet a toddler's growing appetite.

Important: Gerber Baby Foods are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements because cooking times and temperatures vary with different foods. "Custom-cooking" also contributes to the exceptionally fine flavours, true-to-nature colours and unusual smoothness of Gerber Baby Foods.

Babies are our business... our only business!

Couple Honored At Hillier Hall

WELLINGTON — Over eighty friends and relatives gathered at Hillier Hall on Wednesday evening, October 16th to honor Mr. and Mrs. Larry Vincent (nee Marilyn Chin) who were recently married, with a miscellaneous shower. The early part of the evening was spent in wedding and games. At the appropriate time, Ross Pierson acted the role as toastmaster to take their places at a decorated table, beneath pink and blue streamers. Marilyn was presented with a corsage of pink carnations. Miss Brenda Vanstaal read a congratulatory address on behalf of everyone present. The gifts were carried in by Monica Conley and Mary Kriedlyn in a gaily decorated basket, which was filled many times. Larry and Marilyn sincerely thanked everyone. A delicious lunch brought a pleasant evening to a close.

Ann Landers

College Degree No Measure Of Parental Know-How

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a boy of IV years old who has never had a serious conversation with either of my parents. It seems incredible that people can live under the same roof for so many years and never experience an exchange of ideas, but I swear it's the truth.

My parents are both professional people, socially prominent and well-respected in the community. They are good speakers and in demand as lecturers. But they don't know how to talk to their own son.

I have tried to get my parents to talk to me but I've failed. They are polite, they clothe, feed and instruct me but they haven't the faintest idea of how I feel about anything.

My best friend's father never saw the ninth grade. He works in an automobile factory. His mother is a dressmaker. Yet there is fun and laughter, and real conversation in their home. They are all friends. What is wrong in our house? — HIGH WALL.

DEAR HIGH WALL — In a word — no communication. The time to start talking to children is the moment they are born. Parents who don't think their youngsters have any ideas worth listening to find one day that their children are strangers.

Educated parents are not necessarily successful parents. No course in college teaches warmth, love and how to give and share. Such feelings are caught — not taught.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My problem is a wife who is a spender. I work two jobs and make excellent money. I turn everything over to her and she gives me $5 a week.

We are forever being dunned by bill collectors. We can't afford a really nice vacation or a new car, but we seem to have money for everything and anything a door-to-door salesman has to sell.

We borrowed money from my family five years ago to make a down-payment on our home. This debt has not been repaid and I feel rotten about it because I know my folks could use the money.

My wife is a good mother and a pleasant person but I'm tired both physically and mentally with this disorganized, frustrating way of life. What's the answer? — DOWN IN THE DUMPS.

DEAR DOWN — Tell your wife the noble experiment is over and now you will handle the money and give her an allowance. Plan a budget and stick to it. And please don't fail to include a monthly payment to your parents.

Confidential to SHOULD I OR SHOULDN'T I? — You should not. Tell him to take a long walk on a short dock.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

PC Women Given Job to Improve Image

TORONTO (CP) — The Women's Progressive Conservative Association of Canada Tuesday was handed the job of improving the party's image.

Mrs. Harrison Smith of Kelowna, B.C., the association's national president, told the Toronto group she will carry the same message to 25,000 members in 275 associations in Canada.

"The party must be cleared of four false charges," she said. "We need a bright image of our aims and attitudes."

Mrs. Smith listed the charges and denied them:

1. A party of hard times. "A deliberate falsehood. Never had the people earned, saved and spent more than under the Conservative government."

2. A party with no aims of its own. "An obvious bid to create confusion in the minds of the people. Differences between the Conservatives and Liberals are specific. In no way are the two parties alike."

3. A party of high tariff. "The present government is proving the untruth of that statement."

4. A party with anti-United States leanings. "A Liberal attempt to discredit while confusing along the strongest anti-American line ever taken by a Canadian government."

Widow Seeks New Interests

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am looking for new interests, as my family has now reached their teens. I have bowled both 10 pins and 5 pins, have been Scout leader and a teacher in church groups. At the present time I belong to a lodge of mixed company, but as a widow this can be both embarrassing and monotonous.

I am not particularly looking for marriage but would like to do things like dancing, musicals, swimming and picnics and drives. A lady can hardly go to a public dance hall alone. — UNDER 50.

DEAR UNDER 50 — Don't drop the mixed-company lodge; find another widow to attend with.

With your background I'll wager you won't be lonely long. There are bridge clubs, badminton, square dance clubs which will welcome you. The local "Y", your recreation director or your library can lead you to new fun where you are.

DEAR DORIS — I am interested in becoming a hairdresser and beautician. Would you please tell me what is required for this? — SANDY.

DEAR SANDY — In the way of talent: some deftness with the hands and a sense of the artistic. As for physical equipment, you need the health to work long hours standing. Personality? Outgoing, with a strong interest in people.

Education? A six or eight month course at a recognized school of hairdressing. I am sending you my article on the career of hairdressing.

DEAR DORIS — I'm desperate. My husband says that if we do not have a child our marriage of seven years is finished. But I am 46 and afraid. My health is not perfect.

I would be willing to adopt, but my husband says "No" very emphatically. I thought if I could take a child from the child care agency for a while my husband might then consent to adopting one. What do you think about all this? — VERY ANXIOUS.

DEAR ANXIOUS — What do I think? That a first pregnancy now would be risky. That your loving mate better decide what matters most; and that he ask a doctor he trusts what the odds are.

Adoption now would likely mean taking an older child. Most agencies require that when a person over 40 adopts a child, the child has to be as many years old as the parent is over 40. Foster parenting is another thing entirely. Both ideas need discussion with a social worker and with your own doctor.

Your husband's need for a young person in your home has to balance with the young person's need for him — and you. His ultimatum to you makes me wonder just how understanding a father he'd be.

(If it's etiquette, ask Doris. She can tell you how it's done in Canada.)

Mother's Helper

IT PROBABLY isn't a very good idea to buy your young student's smiley school wardrobe now. He may think he knows what he wants—and possibly he does—but he may change his mind when school starts. Don't underestimate the power of what "they" are wearing! Should you disapprove strongly, reach a compromise.

Shower Given By Community

2ND OF SIDNEY—Around 100 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dickens on Wednesday evening in honor of their daughter Sharon's coming wedding to Ted Couture of Trenton, which will be held on Saturday, October 26 in St. Peter's Church, Trenton with the reception at the C.P.R. Club House.

The house was decorated with pink and white streamers and white bells. The bride's table was decorated with small paper parasols.

Paul Reid was master of ceremonies for the occasion. Readings were given by Mrs. Donald Sandercock and Mrs. Alfred St. Hilaire. The address was read by Mrs. Frank McCormack wishing the happy couple much happiness, good health and good fortune. The gifts were brought to them in large baskets by Mrs. Alfred St. Hilaire and Mrs. Frank White on behalf of the community.

Sharon thanked their friends for their kindness especially Mrs. Alfred St. Hilaire and Mrs. Frank McCormack who arranged the shower and all who had helped to make it such a success. Ted added his thanks and both invited all to call on them in Trenton later. A fine lunch was served.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

GESUNDHEIT!

In conversation with Miss Nellie Merry recently I was reminded of an incident that happened many years ago, which has stayed in my mind as an example of quick thinking.

I was walking down a Belleville Street with her one day and she had her dog with her, a little fox terrier. At that time at a corner grocery store, the corners had a bull terrier by the name of Jiggs. Jiggs was a dingy white color with red eyes, and had a reputation for killing small dogs and cats.

As we neared the corner Jiggs suddenly attacked Miss Merry's dog. Whether it is true or not, the theory seems to be that a bulldog's jaws lock on its victim and that no amount of beating will make him let go.

Miss Merry dashed into the store, demanded a bag of pepper in a hurry, rushed outside and dumped the pepper on the bulldog's head.

Of course he had to sneeze, and so relaxed his grip on the little dog, and that impressed me so much that I have not forgotten it in over thirty-five years.

THE POSTMAN DOESN'T RING

Everyone likes to receive letters, but don't you hate it when someone answers a letter too promptly? You have a sense of having fulfilled an obligation . . . a pleasant one, but an obligation just the same. You seal and stamp the envelope and put it in the mailbox, and breathe a sigh of relief. You feel quite virtuous, and pleased at your industry, then a few days later along comes the reply and you are right back in the same box. So I tell my family and friends that is why I don't write too often, I don't want to put them in the position of owing me a letter. It is an excellent excuse, but I am afraid I have worn it out, and I will just have to take my typewriter in hand one of these days and answer some of that mail. I am going to put on the bottom of the letter R.S.V.P. (but not too quickly).

THE WINNER

Just finished reading, "My Life in Court," by Louis Nizer. My impression of it is that Louis Nizer thinks Louis Nizer is quite a fellow, an astute attorney who by skillful cross-examination makes his opponents look pretty inept. The impression is left too, that you had better be well-heeled before you come to him, because his cases do not deal with petty cash, but with the millions. If he ever lost a case he does not reveal it in this book. In fact, like Perry Mason, Mr. Nizer appears never to have lost a case.

Rural Night School Planned At Wellington

PICTON — Plans are underway to hold a rural community night school in the Wellington Consolidated Public School again this year. Classes being offered are oil painting, welding, needlecraft, furniture upholstering, motor mechanics, copper tooling, millinery, sewing, bookkeeping and soils and crops. Eight of these courses will be given and these decided on will be determined by advanced registration. The deadline for advanced registration is Monday, November 4th. However, applications will be accepted after that date until classes are filled or until the school gets underway. The starting date has been set for Wednesday, November 26th. The school will run for 4 weeks until December 11th, and will start again on Wednesday, January 8th. After the holiday season classes will be held on Wednesday evening of each week and will run for a total of 14 weeks. Anyone interested in registering for the school should send their application to Quick's Sunoco Service Station, Box 308, Wellington or apply in person at Quick's Station. The registration fee will be $4 per person with the exception of welding in which case the fee will be $8. This increase is necessary to help defray the cost of welding supplies. All fees are to be paid on opening night.

The night school committee is as follows: Mrs. Sam Tripp, chairman; Mrs. Jack Ogilvy, secretary; Mrs. James Callow, treasurer; Robert Quick, Murray Wilbee, Mrs. James Barratt, Gordon Nelson, Wilmot Conley, Mrs. Grover Smith, Home Economist, D. W. Maddocks, Community Programs Branch, Dept. of Education; and H. Ivan Bell, Agricultural Representative. Information regarding the night school can be obtained from Mr. C. M. L. Snider, Principal of the Wellington Consolidated School or any one of the committee.

Four Injured As Cars Collide

PICTON — A two-car collision on a hill west of Bowmanville Tuesday sent four people to hospital.

The Marshall car had about $1500 damage to the front end while the Chambers car was written off as a wreck. O.P.P. Constable Bestman investigated.

Plan Cut

fighter squadrons. In fact, naval strength has risen to 21,000 from 20,000 in 1957.

"Equally, he's shown," Gen. Foulkes said, "that once an organization or unit is set up, it is most difficult to cut back on it or reduce it even if it appears to be no longer required."

Gen. Foulkes offered the committee his outline for integration of the armed forces.

He said a "comprehensive plan", was recommended by the chiefs "four or five years ago" to then defence minister George Pearkes. But integration had been tried "from the bottom up" and didn't work. It would have to be imposed by government decision from the top.

His step-by-step integration plan:

1. Placing of all senior officers—lieutenant-colonel or equivalent and above — on one armed forces list from which commanders would be drawn.

2. Selection of a chief of personnel and a chief of supply for all services.

3. The chiefs of staff should be relieved of their present duties and ordered to sit in constant session to achieve integration.

4. With administration settled, the personnel of the armed forces would be grouped in task forces instead of services. For instance, there would be a task force for anti-submarine operations, instead of the present RCAF-Navy combination.

5. Training would be the job of one officer responsible to the chief of the armed forces.

Gen. Foulkes said such an integration plan would take four to five years to implement.

But it would eliminate "duplication and triplication" in the armed forces.

At the present time, for instance, each service had a large establishment of radar operators, trained independently by each of the services to do exactly the same job.

Gen. Foulkes cited a case in the 1950s when the army's anti-aircraft regiment at Picton, Ont., was disbanded.

He said the RCAF at that time needed radar operators for its air defence system and to accept the army radar operators, who were discharged. The air force had recruited radar operators and taken two years to train them.

Gen. Foulkes also said it was a clean, democratic union.

The trustees also would manage the Canadian Maritime Union, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the National Association of Marine Engineers and 12 marine locals of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, transport and General Workers—all of which have agreed to the trusteeship.

There were indications that one of the first actions of the trustees would be to depose Mr. Banks and order a secret ballot of the striking sailors on returning immediately to work.

against SIU leaders under the federal labor law, the Canada Shipping Act and the Criminal Code.

ACT ON REPORT

The government also could act on a special report made by two lawyers on possible criminal action against Mr. Banks and his chief lieutenants in connection with violence that has plagued the waterfront for more than three years—as recommended by Mr. Justice C. G. Norris after his searching investigation of Great Lakes labor strife and shipping disruptions.

It was Mr. Justice Norris who proposed the trusteeship to end what he said was corruption and lawlessness in the shipping industry. He blamed Banks for using fear, terror and intimidation to maintain a "dictatorship" over the waterfront.

Under the federal trusteeship act, the trustees have the power to take over control of the five unions, dismiss officers and run the organizations for three years, "—until they can be turned back to their members

He did not greet SIU president Hal C. Banks until the law of Canada is obeyed.

Monday's demonstration revealed "there are many men in that union who are not fully behind the present leadership."

SAB WITCHES

If the strikers do not return and shipping companies recruit other men, "it will indeed be a very sad outcome."

There was no doubt, he said, that Monday's march on Ottawa by 2,000 SIU members was organized from the top.

"Surely it was obvious from the directives that had been issued by the (union's) committee that the planning went far beyond the capacity of rank and file members of a trade union."

Only "the Conservatives supported the non-confidence motion, proposed by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker. It was defeated 127 to 78.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur), said his party was accepting to some degree the criticism levelled at the government.

"We have today not been given a really clear picture of how the government intends to move."

Unless there is a definite plan to separate the leaders from the members of the SIU, "I think the situation is likely to lead to some kind of warfare along the docks."

He said it may be necessary for troops to replace police at Canadian dock facilities "at this crucial period of time."

a honeymoon condition of sweetness and light, in which it was imagined that all existing problems had been washed away.

"It was rather a determination to deal seriously with serious problems between our two countries and not to dodge any problems, no matter how difficult."

The Hyannis Port meeting recognized that none of the problems would disappear overnight — that "some of them would last indefinitely."

tion facing mankind is coexistence among states with different social, economic and political systems.

He urged the UN to take the lead in translating the principles of peaceful coexistence into reality and said that one of the key steps in achieving this is the establishment of bold new trails in international economic relations.

Tito declared that war had become an absurdity which should be banished from inter-national relations; that the cold war should be ended; and that the UN should seek an agreement of all states against interference with or intervention in domestic affairs of any state.

RCAF Ground Observer Corps Is Abandoned

OTTAWA (C) — Complete abandonment of the RCAF Ground Observer Corps on grounds that it no longer is required for Canada's defence was announced Tuesday by Defence Minister Hellyer.

"Because of the proven effectiveness of present operational surveillance and control facilities throughout the North American Air Defence Command, the Ground Observer Corps no longer contributes significantly to the air defence system," he said in a statement.

The decision to disband the corps in the near future affects 30 RCAF personnel and some 1,300 unpaid civilian volunteers who man about 400 observation posts north of the 55th parallel. Some 6,000 observation posts located south of the 55th parallel and manned by 35,000 civilian volunteers, were disbanded in 1960.

The United States equivalent of the ground observer corps was disbanded in 1959.

Farmers in the southwestern part of the province are carrying water for thirsty cattle. Wells, dams and streams have dried up and a heavy 24-hour rain is needed to relieve the situation.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart met farm organization representatives Thursday to discuss the emergency situation.

Department officials said there has been a chronic problem of low water tables in the London area, but this has been aggravated by the prolonged dry spell. Until the end of September, rainfall in the district was between 10 and 11 inches below normal for the year.

BILLION PAID OUT

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Hospital Insurance Commission has paid out more than $1,000,000,000 in benefits since its inception five years and nine months ago. Commission chairman Dr. J. R. Nelson said Tuesday the plan paid out $244,400,000 last year, compared to $214,800,000 in 1961.

AJAX, Ont. (CP)—This town of 8,111 will continue its link with ships of the Ajax name by adopting a frigate to be commissioned in the Royal Navy at Birkenhead, England Dec. 11, Mayor William A. Parish said Tuesday. The town was named for HMS Ajax, which served at the battle of the River Plate in 1939 after which the German pocket battleship, Graf Spee, was scuttled.

ELECT NEGRO

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP)—A 36-year-old clergyman, Rev. Seth Mokitimi, Tuesday became the first black to be chosen leader of a major church in South Africa. rent"—the headquarters of the SIU.

Another 275 SIU members of the Hamilton district met in Thorold, Ont. and also voted to stay off their ships. A spokesman said the membership "did not feel that politicians should be running the union."

The vote in Montreal followed a day of apparent manoeuvring by Mr. Banks. It was announced in Ottawa that a request by the union leader for an interview with Labor Minister MacEachen had been turned down because the sailors had not returned to work.

Later, the labor minister said Mr. Banks had told him he would advise the 13-man "seamen's rights committee"—which he said was in charge of rank-and-file reaction to the government trusteeship—that it advise sailors to return to work. Meetings Monday night following the Ottawa march and Tuesday noon by the committee had been postponed.

NOT AGREEABLE

Mr. Banks later told the labor minister the rank-and-file committee would not agree to this.

Meanwhile, Montreal port officials said loading of ocean going vessels with grain was proceeding "normally" because the ships did not need bagboists—lifted up by the SIU walkout—to get to and from the grain elevators.

However, a blockage is reported at the Lakehead where lakers take on grain loads for transshipment at deep - sea ports. Only one laker has cleared the Lakehead with a load of grain since early last Saturday.

It was Upper Lakes Shipping Limited's Victorious manned by members of the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC), a rival to the SIU.

Upper Lakes' Mapleton II has been allocated a slip in Port Arthur harbor in which 18 SIU-manned ships are tied up. Another 10 SIU - manned ships were being held up at anchor outside the breakwater.

Lord Home

about two weeks.

As Home set in motion the processes that would strip him of his Scots earldom, Conservatives and Labor alike girded for a wordy war over Home's proposal to, defer the opening of the new parliamentary session to Nov. 12. This is two weeks later than originally scheduled and will mean the loss of 10 sitting days.

SEAT APPEARS SAFE

Home wants the postponement so that he will have time to be elected a member of the Commons in a byelection at Kinross and West Perth, on the fringe of the highlands. It is considered a safe seat.

Home, 60, will travel to Kinross Thursday or Friday and his adoption meeting is fixed for Saturday. Voting is Nov. 12.

Meanwhile, Parliament reassembles briefly Thursday for the prorogation of the old session. A speech by the Queen will be read on her behalf at a joint meeting of Lords and Commoners, and Parliament will close until Nov. 12.

The Labor party sent out orders for all its 250-odd members of the Commons to gather in London to try to stop Home's delaying tactics. Part of Labor's plan would be an attempted filibuster in the Lords.

Labor Leader Harold Wilson, speaking on television, denounced Home's postponement as "verging on the unconstitutional."

OWES DUTY

Wilson said Parliament owed a duty to the nation to discuss vital questions "regardless of the convenience of an individual, even though he be prime minister."

"It is not the fault of Parliament, certainly not of our side nor of a lot of Conservatives that they had to go to the House of Lords for a prime minister.

"Therefore, I would have thought the convenience of the House of Commons and the duty of the House of Commons should not be set aside."

The Conservative answer is that to start a new session with a prime minister unable to speak in the Commons would be ridiculous, and that the reconstructed government needs time to settle down before facing Commons questioners.

Normally Thursday's prorogation would be a mere formality.

A parliamentary official called Black Rod walks into the Commons to summon its members to the House of Lords. There they hear a message from the monarch ending one session and setting the date for the new.

The whole thing takes only a few minutes and normally only a few members attend. This year, however, the prorogation shapes up as yet another drama in the political crisis of the last three weeks.

Some Labor members were even talking of an unofficial "sit-in" strike in the Commons, others of physically barring Black Rod from delivering his message.

For technical reasons any formal debate of Home's postponement decision will take place not in the Commons but in the Lords, because the procedural rules of the upper house are more relaxed.

Lord Alexander, Labor floor manager in the Lords, has put down a motion calling for the old session of Parliament to be continued.

This will be debated and it could disrupt the entire prorogation procedure.

ON A WORK MISSION with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Martin Kennedy, 19, of Worchester, Mass., and Arthur Murray, 19, of Fredericton, N.B., are helping build the new Mormon Church in Belleville. Their material wages are room and board, the clothes they wear and three dollars a week.

Committee Hears General Demolish Policies Which He Helped to Plan

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons defence committee witnessed the rare spectacle Tuesday of a former general demolishing many of the defence policies of which he was one of the architects.

The witness before the committee for four hours was Gen. Charles Foulkes, 68, chief of the army general staff from 1945 to 1951 and chairman of the chiefs of staff committee from 1951 to 1960.

At one point, Gen. Foulkes said he recommended to the government acceptance of the low-level nuclear bombing role for the RCAF air division in Europe despite realization that the four CF-104 bomber bases would be vulnerable to missile attack. The government accepted this task in 1959.

At the same time, Gen. Foulkes said the bombing role of the eight-squadron air division is "redundant." All the CF-104s would be destroyed on the ground or in the air by missiles before they ever reached their targets.

DOUBT NOMINATION

Gen. Foulkes, who unsuccessfully sought the Liberal nomination for Parliament in 1962 in Victoria, said the air division should be converted to a transport role in the near future.

He said the original agreement for Canadian use of two bases in France was restricted to use of conventional weapons.

This spotlighted the most baffling defence question in Ottawa. It is reliably reported that Defence Minister Hellyer himself has been unable to find a coherent answer.

The question is: Why did the chiefs of staff recommend and the government accept in 1959 a nuclear bombing role for the RCAF air division in Europe when it was known that France would not permit American nuclear warheads on the two air division bases at Marville and Grostenquin in France?

One explanation is that France decided against acceptance of nuclear warheads on her territory only after Canada took the decision on the CF-104. The question then arises: Why wasn't the role changed?

Another explanation is that it was believed Gen. de Gaulle's attitude on American warheads was only temporary and wouldn't be applied to Canada.

Still another is that the RCAF went ahead with the CF-104 program as a means to force then prime minister Diefenbaker's hand on the nuclear warheads issue.

Changed Seats With Friend, Given 14 Days

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—A motorist who changed seats with a friend in a car travelling 80 miles an hour was sentenced Tuesday to 14 days in jail.

Thomas William Irish Reid, 23, of Squires Beach, about five miles south of here, was convicted of driving while his licence was under suspension Oct. 8.

He was also fined $25 for applying for an ownership permit while suspended.

Mrs. Ivey Beatty testified that she was the driver of the car. Police probably thought Reid was driving, she said, because she was wearing Reid's hat to keep her hair from falling in front of her eyes.

Reid said he took his hat back to the police cruiser stopped them.

Const. Lawrence Watson of Pickering Township police said he chased the Reid car at speeds up to 90 miles an hour before it slowed down to 50 miles an hour and the two persons changed places.

Accused Claims Being Beaten by Toronto Police

STRATFORD (CP)—William Albert, 31, of Stratford, said at his armed robbery trial Thursday he was threatened for five hours and violently beaten by Toronto police before he initialed a statement.

Instead of testifying his defence, which he has been conducting himself, Albert referred to an affidavit to the jury of being given third-degree treatment by police.

Det.-Sgt. Mitchell of Toronto denied Albert was beaten.

"We did not manhandle you," he told Albert under cross examination. "You told me you jumped out of a car" travelling 70 miles an hour and as a result became "mussed up."

An enlarged photograph of Albert, taken at the time he was booked on the charge in Toronto, did not show a black eye he said he received from police.

Albert was arrested by Toronto police along with some other men in another case after chase through city streets a month after the June 6 robbery of Lewis Gamble, 72, of Milverton, Ont.

The case was scheduled to go to the jury today.

SMOKE IN CONFESSIONAL

LES SAULES, Que. (CP) — A youth smoking in the confessional is believed to have started a fire that swept the Roman Catholic church of Ste. Monique Tuesday in this Quebec City suburb. Damage was estimated at $50,000. No one was hurt. The parish priest, Abbe Antoine Masson said he has in the past ejected a number of youths who hid in the confessional to smoke.

Young Mormons Sent Here To Help Build New Church

Hard labor on a building project is an adventure, an education and a religious duty for two 19-year-old men now in Belleville. Martin Kennedy, of Worchester, Mass., and Arthur Murray, of Fredericton, N.B., are both employed as Mormon "work missionaries," building the new Mormon church on Palmer Rd. As material return for their work they get room and board, the clothes they wear and three dollars per week spending money.

Intangible returns of the job are a chance to travel, the experience of working on a construction project and the satisfaction of working for their church. They will be on the mission, working at different cities around the continent, for a total of two years.

SERVE TWO YEARS

The work-mission program in turn, allows the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints to carry on with a crash building campaign, planned to house all Mormon congregations as soon as possible. Under the program, local congregations pay only ten per cent of the total cost of their building needs. The rest is taken care of by volunteer labor and by church headquarters at Salt Lake City, Utah.

COSTS DIVIDED

Officially, the church headquarters pays about 80 per cent of the cost of the building, the congregation pays 40 per cent. But in practice, once the ten per cent has been paid, in cash, headquarters pays for the land and the materials for the building. The congregation then provides volunteer labor and hires local tradesmen to do the actual construction. In recent years, church headquarters have often supplied a construction superintendent for the job, and part of the labor cost, by transferring the work missionary program.

Kennedy and Murray were called out about the same time, two months ago. Although Kennedy had been in the church only three months, he comes from a Mormon family and he knew about the program long before. He was working in a shoe store when he entered the church. Three days later he was interviewed by a group of elders. If he were called, they asked, would he be willing to go on a work mission? He would.

Murray, a reserve soldier, was called out for five months' army service soon after he joined the church. He had already been interviewed as a possible work-mission candidate, however, and he was called out by the church as soon as the army released him.

CALLED 2 MONTHS AGO

So it was that two months ago, the pair were included in a mission group called out in the New England area. The work missionaries called by the church were all about the same age, all had been interviewed by a board of selection, all were considered good representatives of the church and all were willing to go on a work mission.

They might have been sent anywhere but they happened to be sent to Belleville first, to help build the new church here. The local congregation is responsible for hatching them, a week or so at a time, with different members, (Kennedy is living with Mr. and Mrs. Manley Nobes in Corbyville now, Murray is living with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Blands), and must provide clothing and three dollars a week spending money. Days, the boys work on the church building, nights they study, and one-half day a week they are sent on a "diversion". Often, this takes the form of a tour of a local factory. One full day a month is also devoted to a "diversion" — planned now is a trip to the provincial legislature in Toronto.

SERVE TWO YEARS

During their two years of duty the two will be sent from project to project around the country, always building and always studying. The evening studies begin with the history and development of the church, but they later branch off in the direction of the individual's choice. During the day's work, those so inclined can specialize in one particular phase of construction, and develop to tradesman's status.

At the end of their mission, still another two years away, both Kennedy and Murray will have learned much about the continent, about their church, and about life in general. Kennedy will be married, soon after he is released, and if the church calls, he would like to go on a proselytizing mission with his wife. Otherwise his old job as assistant manager of a shoe store is still open. Murray's plans are less definite so far. He enjoys working with cement, he finds, and he may study to quality himself as a mason. After his two years' service are up, he would welcome a call to another work mission, he says.

Two years at hard labor is a stiff requirement for any church to make of its young people, but most of the Mormons who have been called consider a work mission a great opportunity for the young people it is two years of worthwhile experience. For the church in general, the program provides debt-free church buildings.

Police, Security Service, Some Papers Knew About 'Profumo Affair' in Advance

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—One of the major but least publicized points in the Denning report on the "Profumo affair" is that there is no machinery in Britain for reporting the moral misbehavior of an individual.

The tragedy in the case of former wa. minister John Profumo is that the police, the security service and some newspapers knew enough about his association with Christine Keeler to have called a halt long before it reached such staggering proportions.

But none of them spoke up. And Lord Denning says they were right in not speaking up.

Thus the responsibility fell to members of the Conservative government, but they failed the challenge. They behaved, in the words of Mark Arnold-Forster of The Observer, "like honorable simpletons."

LABOR GAINS

And no doubt the Labor opposition will make much of this angle when Parliament debates the report in November.

The fact is that if the police, security men or newspapers had put their information before the prime minister, the house secretary or indeed any minister, the government would not have accepted Profumo's repeated assurances that there was nothing improper in his relationship with the 21-year-old red-haired playgirl.

That being the case, Profumo would have "resigned earlier and never made his personal statement" to the House denying the rumors which eventually proved true, Denning says.

As for The Sunday Pictorial, which had bought Christine's confession story and also had the famous "darling" letter from Profumo, Denning says it was "under no legal duty" to make these facts known.

PAPER UNSURE

It might be argued that The Pictorial had a public duty to do so, but Denning says the newspaper was not sure the letter was genuine and did not know "how far Christine Keeler is was trustworthy." This story of her affair with Profumo and also with Capt. Yevgeny Ivanov, the Russian naval attache here, never was printed.

Regarding the letter, Denning notes sarcastically that while many knew it existed, "no one ever asked to see it."

The police came upon their information more or less by accident, in taking a statement from Miss Keeler, and they gave it to the security service.

"They were under a strict directive to confine themselves to danger to the realm as a whole," Denning wrote. "Once they came to the conclusion that there was no security interest in the matter, but only moral misbehavior in a minister, they were under no duty to report it to anyone."

DID NOT SUCCEED

Thus it was the responsibility of the prime minister and his colleagues to deal with the situation "and they did not succeed in doing so." Particularly he points a finger at the five ministers who got Profumo out of bed in the wee hours of the day he made his statement for the Commons session at the House.

Denning suggests they did not ask Profumo the right questions nor did they ask to see the "darling" letter which "might have turned the scale between belief and disbelief of Mr. Profumo's word."

The ministers have since claimed their position was misunderstood. Profumo's word had already been accepted, they argue, and the purpose of the meeting was not to investigate the case but to decide how best to handle accusations from the Labor opposition in the previous night's debate. They helped draft his statement.

Summing up, Denning says the police must not go out seeking such information and if they come upon it incidentally "there is no machinery laid down for reporting it."

"It is perhaps better thus, than that we should have a 'police state.'"

The being the case, cabinet ministers of the future will have to be less naive in dealing with wayward colleagues.

"The world of John Profumo was beyond their ken," wrote Arnold-Forster of the five ministers, "so far beyond it that they failed to notice what men with shrewder, nastier minds would probably have seen at once."

Why Crops Go in the Red: Too Many Workers on Farm?

By PRESTON GROVER

KRASNODAR, Kuban, U.S.S.R. (AP)—While Premier Khrushchev was lecturing farmers on their shortcomings in a neighbor province, a group of correspondents went to see one of his good farms work.

The farm, in the Kuban River Valley of the north Caucasus, is called the Kuban. This is rich land and the Kuban is a good farm by Soviet standards. It has a lot of machinery, relatively good buildings and a pleasant climate.

But this farm would bankrupt a North American community. The place swarms with workers. It takes so many of them to run the farm that to North American operators could finance it. The layout of 32,000 acres employs 2,400 men and women.

This correspondent has found the same ratio on other farms. The Kuban was not exceptional.

MAINTAIN NUMBERS

When I asked Ivan Sidorenko, manager of the farm, what he intended to do with surplus labor when mechanization began to approach the American standard, his reply was:

"Mechanization is to facilitate labor, not reduce the number of laborers."

He seemed to be in open conflict with Khrushchev.

Farmers on the collective work usually seven hours a day. They get a salary in cash and also food and feed for the few livestock each is allowed to keep. During the busy season in spring, summer and fall they work 10 hours a day or more.

By Soviet standards this farm was well mechanized. It has 77 units ranging from seeders and harvesting machinery to corn cutters and pickup forks for lifting sugar beets into wagons.

A pronged scoop with a conveyer belt was gobbling up a pile of sugar beets and loading them into a truck. Four women pushed the beets on to the pickup machine with their bare hands. One man—or woman—could have done it with a beet fork.

WAGES CITED

Wages range upward from 70 to 90 rubles a month—officially $77 to $82. This is for ordinary field workers. Machine drivers get 120 rubles a month. Besides, workers get an additional 25 per cent of their pay in food or animal feed.

Women get the same pay as men, but all upper level jobs are held by men.

The farmers also have small plots of land they are allowed to cultivate. On about an acre, each can keep a cow and a calf, a pig and piglets, a dozen sheep and all the chickens he wants. They sell the produce on the open market. Nearly half the cows in the Soviet Union are on these little farms.

Premier Khrushchev is trying to get the farmers to work harder on the collectives, and give up their little tracts. The plan isn't making much headway.

BUYS CANADIAN

This year Kazakhstan is spending over a half billion dollars to buy wheat from Canada and Australia because Soviet farmers didn't produce enough.

Yet every day the papers report grain is being wasted. In the virgin lands, grain is rotting on the ground.

Farmers there complain they haven't enough machinery, but thousands of harvesting machines stand idle. Somehow, the farmers didn't bother to repairing them, or they couldn't get spare parts.

Harvest warned as early as Aug. 28 that the harvest was proceeding too slowly and losses were mounting.

Pravda reported Aug. 7: "On many farms in Bashkiria and Kuibyshev and other oblasts (between the Volga and the Urals) heaps of grains are waiting to be cleaned and moved to elevators. Some of it has already rotted."

Problem? No trucks.

CORN UNSHELLED

In this rich Kuban area, the correspondent saw stacks of unshelled corn lying in the yards of elevators, partly covered by canvas, the rest open to rain. Corn on the cob is very spoiled.

On railway sidings around Moscow, hundreds of tons of tomatoes and other fresh vegetables and fruit rotted while shops in the city had no tomatoes to sell. Fruit vegetables are limited in the state stores largely to cabbage and carrots. Distribution is disorganized.

Part of the problem, as Khrushchev himself admits, is that many big state and co-operative farm managers just don't seem to care. Western delegations visiting the farms—they are allowed to visit only a few—find the farm workers care even less.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

I learned from an unimpeachable source the other day that the Ontario Minor Hockey Association has on its November 2nd convention agenda the proposal to include the squirt division in its classifications.

This may or may not be a good move, all depending on how the association intends to handle the matter.

If the squirt division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association is an example of how squirt leagues are operated in other centres, the OMHA would be well advised to leave well enough alone.

The squirt operation here has been an unqualified success since its inception, thanks to outstanding coaches, managers and the close co-operation of the BMHA.

In fact such a success that the league this year has been divided into two divisions. Recreation director "Red" Doran tells me that the number of players of this age area has increased to the point where some divisional arrangement had to be made in order to give all the "half-pints" the chance to play.

This year the "tyke" division has been organized and will consist of twelve teams of youngsters up to nine years of age. There will be six teams in the squirt section. This calls for players up to ten years.

"We did not think it right to put youngsters, seven and eight years of age into competition with boys nine and ten," Red said. "So we decided on the two divisions."

"The squirt operation has been a tremendous success since it was started," the director said. "We have had good coaches, men who can handle these 'young' youngsters and who take a personal pride in their efforts to teach them the game the proper way."

The organization of the squirt league has left nothing to be desired. And it is safe to say the new tyke section will meet with the same success.

Youngsters of the squirt and tyke age are at the stage of their hockey life when they can be "made" or "broken." They are pliant, flexible and can learn the "bad" way as easily as the good. That is where good coaching comes in. And this city has been blessed with the right type of coach as far as this division is concerned.

And all these embryonic Gordie Howes are not born with wings and halos. The coaches have their problems. One told me he had a pair of young trouble-makers on his club, youngsters who used to fight at the drop of the hat or use sticks when they thought the occasion warranted.

"I merely took them aside and talked to them," he said. "I told them certain things and what they should do if they wanted to be hockey players. They listened, and learned. I have had no trouble since," he said.

Back to the OMHA. I do not know what the association has in mind, unless it is district and provincial championships. I am definitely against the playdown system for squirts as it is operated in the higher minor brackets.

Those youngsters are too young to stand the wear and tear of travel to one centre one week and another the next, let alone the distance. I imagine parents would have something to say about that.

However, I am in favor of district tournaments where champions of leagues or areas could compete in a one-day operation. I believe in organized hockey, but as was noted, if other squirts' leagues are as successfully operated as Belleville there will be no need for further efforts along this line.

Speaking of hockey and coaches, "Red" Doran tells me there is dire need of a half dozen mentors in the midget division of the BMHA.

A meeting has been called for the Recreation Centre tomorrow night at eight o'clock and potential coaches are requested to attend. We need for those men is urgent, "Red" says. "We are appealing to minor hockey-minded men to help us with the problem."

The first of a series of four "home games" for the Oshawa Generals junior "A" entry takes place in Tranton Friday night, starting nine o'clock. By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees' youth movement has extended to the front office with the naming of Ralph Houk as general manager and the imminent announcement that Yogi Berra would succeed Houk as field leader.

Houk, 44, received his promotion Tuesday. The announcement of the 36-year-old Berra's appointment as the 17th manager in Yankee history is expected to be made at a press conference Thursday.

A Houk - Berra combination would form the youngest front office and field tandem in baseball.

All principals except Berra were present Tuesday at an elaborate press conference in a plush midtown hotel where Roy Hamey tearfully announced his retirement as general manager and club president Dan Topping named Houk as Hamey's successor.

NOT SHAKED

Houk, who led the club to three pennants and two World Series championships in three years at the helm, acknowledged his successor already has been chosen but refused to reveal his identity. All he would say was that the announcement would be made Thursday.

Another Yankee official however, informed The Associated Press that Berra was the man. Yogi, who served a year's apprenticeship as a coach last season, in his 17th year with Yankees, could not be reached for comment.

The informant said Berra was chosen because of "his keen mind, sound baseball theories, ability to get along with people and general popularity."

Houk was given a four-year contract calling for an annual salary of $50,000. Berra, who has been earning from $40,000-to-$50,000 a year as a player for the past eight or nine years, is expected to sign a two-year contract for around $45,000.

"I accepted the front office job because it presents a challenge to me," said Houk. "I just hope I can do the job for the next manager as well as Hamey has done for me."

Houk said he was first approached about the new job so far back as October, 1962, during the World Series between Yankees and San Francisco Giants.

Hamey, 61, underwent a gall bladder operation in the summer of 1962. He succeeded George Weiss as general manager in October, 1960, and had two more years remaining of his original five-year contract.

Canada Cup Golf

Palmer, Nicklaus Heavy Favorites

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PARIS (AP) — It's Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus of the United States against the field Thursday when top golfers from 23 countries tee off over one of Louis XIV's old cow pastures in the 11th annual Canada Cup and 63rd international golf matches.

Al Balding of Markham, Ont., agrees that the Americans are the ones to beat but his partner, veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver, doesn't think so.

Most of the golfers pick the Americans because of their power off the tees. But Leonard, who won the individual title twice in 1954 and 1959, said:

"These are very small greens. I think the tournament will go to the man or men who can finesse the ball — chip, blast from the traps and putt. That could mean anybody."

PROVED THE BEST

Balding, the tall Canadian, said: "It seems just a question of which one, Palmer or Nicklaus, wins the individual title. They've proved they're the best golfers going to beat them!"

Lufthander Bob Charles of New Zealand, the British Open champion, and Gary Player of South Africa agreed.

"I just don't see how anyone can beat Arnie and Jack on this course," said Charles. "There's no penalty for a wild shot. They can just stand up there and crank it."

Thus the odds swung heavily in favor of Palmer, all-time leading money winner, and Nicklaus, a 21 winner of the U.S. Masters, Open and PGA crowns, in the annual international competition among handpicked two-man teams from all parts of the world.

The four-day, 72-hole tournament opens Thursday over the 6,504-yard par 72 Saint-Nom-La-Bretache course, which only recently was carved out of grazing grounds and potato patches of Louis XIV's farm yards near Versailles.

Hockey MP's Combine On Stick Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Red Kelly has a stand on a plan by northerner Gene Rheaume to get some free hockey sticks for youngsters in the Northwest Territories.

Rheaume, Conservative MP who represents the northern one-third of the country in Parliament, had the idea.

Kelly, Liberal MP for York West and a feature attraction at centre for Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL, found the sticks.

Both will chip in to buy and ship the high-quality sticks to Yellowknife, N.W.T., on the north shore of Great Slave Lake, where white, Indian and Eskimo youngsters have a fledgling organized hockey setup.

Right now, the 300 pounds of sticks—300 in all—are in Kelly's Toronto garage. They are custom-made but rejected by the Maple Leaf players for one reason or another although by no means sub-standard.

STICKS ARE GOOD

Rheaume said they are better than the sticks sold commercially and are being obtained at a "ridiculously low" price from the company.

The two MPs will foot part of the freight bill into the north although Pacific Western Airlines Limited is handling the shipment free from Edmonton on.

"Freight adds about $1 a stick normally," said Rheaume, 33, who has spent most of his adult life in the territories.

Rheaume said that while Red is Liberal and he is Conservative, this was a "gesture to indicate that there can be inter-party co-operation between individual members."

Tough Guys Sometimes Finish Tops

In Sanctioned Competitions

Curling Body Ruling Would Exclude Pros

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rinks entered in Dominion Curling Association sanctioned competitions may in future have in their number one professional if a proposed eligibility rule is accepted by the association.

Eligibility has been a sore point in the association for many years with many of Canada's competitors using their knowledge of the game to teach others how to play, write articles about the game or endorse paraphernalia used in the game.

With the controversy surrounding playing eligibility of such persons raging, the DCA set up a committee to draft a ruling to cover this problem.

The tentative ruling, to be considered at the next association annual meeting, in Charlottetown, now has been released.

In the ruling, any person instructing others, employed in any capacity by a curling arena or writing about or broadcasting concerning the game and receiving any kind of remuneration broadcasting concernig the game and receiving any kind of remuneration is considered a professional.

ALLOW EXCEPTION

But, where many curlers advocate the complete expulsion of these professionals from DCA - sanctioned competition, the ruling would allow one member of any four-man rink to make all or any part of his living directly or indirectly from curling.

But, the ruling excludes from DCA-sanctioned competition, including Canadian and world championships, any person who receives prizes valued at more than $250 from any bonspiel; gives endorsation to any product; competes in events not sanctioned by the DCA; accepts travel or living expenses in competitions other than as approved by the association; or wages on any match in which he is a competitor.

A person found ineligible will be allowed one return to grace, but a second fall would make him ineligible forever.

The rule, it is proposed, would take effect Aug. 1, 1964 at which time "all players will be deemed eligible notwithstanding any previous actions which would have established ineligibility."

Emanates From Pembroke

TV Coverage Worries Riders

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Football Club says it's worried about the number of fans who watch Rough Rider home games in Ottawa area hotels.

At least five hotels are equipped with large antennae which bring in the signal of a CBC station in Pembroke, about 100 miles northwest of the capital.

"The CBC is not living up to the letter of the law in permitting Pembroke to carry the game into Ottawa," director Sam Berger said.

Berger said that while the Eastern Football Conference TV contract calls for a blackout of home games for a 75-mile radius, there is an understanding that the black-out will be extended to the home-game area.

"We'll fight this thing to the finish because it could ruin the sport," said Berger who is also counsel for the Canadian Football League.

DON'T WANT LOSS

"We want to show football to as many people as possible but we're not going to do it at the expense of undergoing a heavy financial loss," said Berger, explaining that private homes also could be equipped with the antennae.

While Riders attracted a record crowd of 29,763 for their game against Montreal Alouettes here Saturday, they drew their smallest turnout the week before against Edmonton Eskimos.

"The television coverage from Pembroke definitely hurt us," said general manager Red O'Quinn.

He noted that last Saturday's game was played in almost ideal fall weather.

"Think of what free television would mean on a cold wet or unusually cold day," he said.

Berger said he already talked the matter over with CBC officials and that further talks will be held later this week.

Proves Sweeping Beneficial

Now A Mechanical Curler!

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP) — R. M. Werlich of Preston, Ont., manufacturer of children's playthings, thinks he has the answer to a sweeping question.

Mr. Werlich, president of Werlich Industries Limited, contends that use of a broom is a definite asset in curling and says he has a machine to prove it.

Curling fans will get an opportunity to see his machine in action Thursday when it is demonstrated at the Dundas Valley Golf and Curling Club, weather permitting.

"We've found our sweeping does help," Mr. Werlich said in an interview Tuesday.

"But some things remain unproved. Like why sweeping helps. Everyone has a different idea on that. It's like religion."

His brainchild is a cast iron tripod from which the rock holder hangs like a pendulum, allowing rocks to be thrown at a constant weight.

Before being released by a trigger, the rock can be held aloft at different heights, measurable on a scale. The holder can be adjusted to revolve on its downward swing, giving in or out turns.

"We've found good sweeping can take a rock 12 to 16 feet farther," said Mr. Erlich. But one good sweeper, he has learned, is as effective as two.

Statistics Prove It

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hockey coaches in their sagacity, like to make a point: "You can't score goals from the penalty box."

But based on the statistics the National Hockey League issues from week to week it would appear you don't really need to do so.

The figures indicate that the penalty records piled up by the six clubs bear no relation to their respective positions in the standings.

They show over the years, incidentally, that on the average each club is assessed something around 11 minutes a game in penalty time.

So far in this fledgling season, the two most heavily-penalized clubs lie at opposite extremities in the standings.

Chicago's high-riding Black Hawks and Boston's impotent Bruins share the penalty time lead with 87 minutes apiece for a team-total.

The Bruins, a sixth-place club the previous three seasons have played at least one game more than the other teams.

LEAST PENALIZED

But last year they were the least-penalized club — averaging a little more than nine minutes a game—the previous season four teams had higher penalty totals and the year before that, three teams.

Blowups such as the one that added 22 minutes to the record of Chicago's Howie Young the other night perhaps tend to distort some conclusions.

But it would seem, in any event, that aggressive play and winning are linked to some degree at least. And when you're belting the other fellow hard you're bound to catch the eye of the referee with greater frequency.

Take Detroit Red Wings. They led the NHL with better than a 15-minute-a-game average last season and made it as far as the Stanley Cup finals.

The Wings, fresh from a player shakeup, are among four clubs the schedule sends into action Thursday night. They meet the Black Hawks at home while the fifth-place New York Rangers go against the Bruins in Boston.

HOWE AFTER RECORD

Big Gordie Howe, hampered by a cut foot, will be playing his third game in a bid for goal No. 544, the one that will lift him to Maurice Richard's record.

Howe's Red Wings, sharing No. 3 spot in the standings with Toronto Maple Leafs, sent three forwards down to their American Hockey League farm club at Pittsburgh Tuesday and called up two.

Eddie Joyal and Lowell MacDonald were those promoted. Both appeared with the Wings briefly in previous seasons. Art Stratton, Ted Hampson and Floyd Smith, all scoreless so far this season, were farmed out.

Last week Detroit grabbed off Billy McNeill from the Boston Bruins. So the shift completes what amounts to a three-for-three deal.

Defence Journeyman Doug Harvey, meanwhile, is to rejoin the Rangers for the Boston game. Harvey missed New York's pre - season training camp because of business pressure and later booked on with St. Paul Rangers of the Central Professional Hockey League to play himself into shape.

His absence from New York was conspicuous and the Rangers will probably show a stronger defence, although some might doubt the need for it in the light of Boston's record on the attack—eight goals in six games so far.

The Leafs meanwhile announced they have settled their contract squabble with all-star defenceman Carl Brewer. No terms were disclosed, but Brewer will be unavailable to the club for some time anyway because of a broken left arm suffered in the Stanley Cup's final game last season.

The talented 25-year-old is expected to start skating today and the word is he might get back into action after Christmas. When he was unable to come to terms with the front office, he enrolled at the University of Toronto. His ambition is to become a high school teacher. But he planned to cancel his enrolment now.

Toronto is idle until the weekend and by then right-winger Bob Nevin is expected to be fit for duty after severely bruising his right ankle last weekend in a game against Detroit.

A bone-break was feared initially. But x-rays showed it was a severe bruise.

By ED SMITH

HALIFAX (CP)—The Maritime Amateur Hockey Association is going to clamp the lid down on 4,000 youngsters.

An edict handed down at the MAHA's annual meeting here in September makes compulsory the wearing of helmets in games of the juvenile, midget and bantam age groups.

The association strongly urged that goalkeepers wear protective face masks but made this optional.

The extra padding is going to mean extra expense but it gets the approval of parents and coaches and the applause of three former NHL players.

Gordon (Doggie) Kuhn, whose NHL-AHL career dates back to the 1930s, says the helmet rule is "a fine idea."

"In this game you make one mistake and that's it." says the 57-year-old former New York Americans player, now a foreman with the Nova Scotia highways department.

Marty Barry, now 59, who played 12 seasons with Americans, Boston Bruins, Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens, recalls that helmets were made "mostly" for Bruins players soon after the Ace Bailey-Eddie Shore incident.

ALMOST KILLED

That was in December, 1933, when Shore, then a Boston defenceman, charged the Toronto forward and crashed him to the ice. Bailey was near death for weeks and, although he pulled through, he never played hockey again.

The serious head injury to Bailey prompted Bruins to order their players to wear helmets.

"We wore them for a year but they petered out," Barry recalls. "Some of the players kept wearing them."

Pete Kelly, 51, who had experience with St. Louis Eagles, Detroit and the Americans, says the Bailey affair and a serious head injury to Sid Howe recalled in the introduction of helmets by the Red Wings in 1935-36. But, he says, they were unpopular because of their construction.

"They were padded leather affairs and made you sweat. They got heavy and some of the perspiration rolled down into your eyes. But the new plastic affairs are light, airy and balanced. They provide no impediments."

CURB BODY-CHECKS

Barry, who now manages a commissary for the navy at the Shannon Park married quarters development in Dartmouth, N.S., and Kelly, director of athletics at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton, say young players tend to mimic on the ice what they see on television Saturday nights.

The two agree that the helmet and a newly introduced MAHA rule that prohibits body-checking in the centre ice zone will help improve the game.

"It could help bring back the lost art of stick-handling," says Barry, one of the smoothest stick-men the game has known.

Other MAHA rules for juvenile, midget and bantam play are aimed at cleaner play and prevention of injuries.

Two high-sticking penalties in a game mean an automatic major penalty. Five minor penalties incurred in any one game will mean automatic banishment from that game and reinstatement only on the approval of the league president.

MAHA vice-president Ron Slade of Halifax says the new rules weren't installed to promote any haberdashery or because of injuries in the past.

"It's just a case of trying to close the door before the horse gets away. We want to give the youngsters all the protection possible."

RELEASED BY MISTAKE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Robert Lawrence was released Monday after 25 years behind bars. It was a mistake. Police discovered too late that the 39-year-old Negro had another year to serve. A pickup order was issued with the notation he left no forwarding address.

HANDSOME SMILES — Brothers Danny and Brian Dunnigan are taking part in a pilot study in Edmonton aimed at helping young hockey players keep their teeth. The study, a joint effort by the Edmonton and District Dental Society and the Edmonton and District Hockey Association, is testing tailor-made mouth protectors. Pilot Study on Mouthguards For Young Hockey Players Moving Into Second Stage

By WALTER KRZYENCHUK

EDMONTON (CP) — A pilot study aimed at helping young hockey players keep their teeth intact will move into its second stage here this winter.

The study, a joint effort by the Edmonton and District Dental Society and the Edmonton and District Hockey Association, is testing tailor - made mouth protectors.

Started last winter among 150 minor league players in the area, the study proved successful in one respect but a partial disappointment in another.

"We had only one bruised lip all year," said Dr. M. J. Blackburn, chairman of the dental society's committee on mouth protectors.

This compared with an average of $3,000 spent for repair of the injuries in the previous three-year period by companies insuring hockey players.

However, the committee decided it needed another year to find a mouth protector that could meet the qualifications—protection, comfort and cost.

The committee last year concentrated on a guard made of latex. It proved inadequate because players chewed through it rather easily and suffered from dehydration of the mouth.

ATTITUDE CHANGES

This year the committee, which has help from 35 dentists in fitting the mouthguards, will switch to resilient acrylic material. It also will reduce its study to about 120 boys in the 14-to-21 age group.

Dr. Blackburn says the program started to move smoothly after overcoming initial suspicion from young players.

"Some youngsters felt a conviction of missing front teeth indicated they were tough hockey players. It seemed this proved you were the type of player others

"Jest a Second"

"I know! I'll tap my teeth with a pencil and you guess what time it is."

who wasn't afraid to go big the corner and fight for the puck."

Most boys who wore the mouthguards now say they wouldn't be without one again.

"Some boys felt the guards made them more aggressive."

The Edmonton study, believed the first of its kind in Canada, has acted as a spur for setting up similar programs in other parts of Canada. Dental associations in Saskatchewan, the Maritimes and Ontario have indicated they plan similar projects.

Rochester Shades Clippers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wally Boyer, a pint-sized centre, is turning into a big man for Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

The five - foot - seven, 160-pounder, acquired in a trade with Springfield Indians, scored two goals including the clincher, as Rochester defeated Baltimore Clippers 3-1 Tuesday night. The victory moved Americans to within two points of the leading Pittsburgh Hornets in the western division.

Len Lunde clicked for two goals and two assists in Buffalo Bisons' 6-4 victory over Quebec Aces in the only other game.

Lou Angotti opened the Rochester scoring before Boyer made it 2-0 in the second period. After Ken Schinkel scored for Baltimore midway through the final period, Boyer put it out of reach at 12:18 with a disputed goal. Baltimore argued the goal was kicked in by one of the Americans.

Officials ruled the puck bounced off a Clipper skate, and allowed the goal.

Besides Lunde, Billy Dea, Ed Kachury, Cliff Schmautz and Aut Erickson scored for Bisons. Wayne Hicks scored twice for Aces and Bill Dineen and Don Blackburn once each.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Pat Crowe of Elmvale, Ont., Thursday night became the first reinsman of Western Fair Raceway's fall season to pilot home three winners.

Crowe launched his run in the fourth race with Scotland's Van, owned by Elliott Carruthers of Ripley, Ont. Scotland's Van paid $15.80 and combined with Priscilla's Maid for a $49.80 quinella.

Spills in two races saw drivers rushed to hospital with injuries. Murray Stephenson, a 31-year-old driver-trainer from North Burnaby, B.C., was thrown heavily to the track in the fourth outing, while 37-year-old Stan Williams of Southwold, Ont., was dumped in the fifth.

Stephenson was reported in satisfactory condition with head injuries. In the fourth, the gate had just pulled away from the seven-horse field when Donna Dale suddenly buckled her legs and went down in front of the grandstand, hurling Stephenson from his sulky. He just missed having the falling mare collapse on him.

Wes Coke of Petrolia, Ont., was unable to avoid Donna Dale as he came out of the seventh position and crashed into her. He was shaken up but otherwise uninjured.

Williams, also in satisfactory condition with possible internal injuries and leg lacerations, was hurt when his sulky collided with Dora Harmony who went down on her knees after making a break.

Norwegians Rebuke Canadian Body

Skater Bar Draws Criticism

OSLO, Norway (CP - AP)—Several Norwegian newspapers criticized the Canadian Speed Skating Association Tuesday after a statement by Paul Enoch, 30-year-old speedskater from Toronto, that the association had virtually barred him from representing Canada in the 1964 Olympic Games.

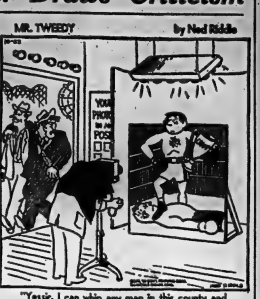
Enoch said Monday he had received a letter from the association which told him: "You cannot qualify for the 1964 Olympic speed skating team because you did not return to Canada to take part in four meets held in Canada in February, 1963."

Norway's biggest evening newspaper, Aftenposten, said Tuesday it failed to understand the association's action. It described Enoch as "the best Canadian speed skater" and continued:

"He defeated other Canadians in international meets in Scandinavia and this should have been enough to prove his abilities."

Enoch has been working in Norway as an architect for two years and training with Norway's Olympic skating candidates.

The newspaper Arbeiderbladet, voice of Norway's ruling Labor party, gave prominence to Enoch's statement and said the skater had been treated unfairly.



The evening paper Verdens Gang told Enoch's story over a full page and printed a facsimile reproduction of what it said was the Canadian association's letter to the skater.

The paper commented: "To us it looks as if the Canadian association simply won't accept Enoch as Canada's best skater."

In reporting his receipt of the letter, Enoch said it had been signed by K. A. West of Saskatoon, president of the speed skating association. It offered him another chance to qualify, Enoch said, but he intimated he is unlikely to accept the opportunity.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the hottest battles continually waged in U.S. network television involves the two big early news programs.

Heading the NBC team are Chet Huntley and David Brinkley. Walter Cronkite leads the CBS forces.

In many cities, the shows are seen at the same time. In the New York area, Cronkite comes on a half hour ahead of Huntley-Brinkley.

Both programs have about the same size audiences, with perhaps a slight edge for NBC.

Both shows cover the headline news of the day. Tuesday night both opened with stories about the plane attacking the U.S.-bound freighter. Both followed with resumes of the day's civil rights developments. Then both touched on Tito's UN visit, the British jet crash, the transatlantic troops air lift.

Obviously one's choice of program must be a preference for the style of the men who read the news. Some like Huntley's sober, incisive ways with a short sentence or Brinkley's dry manner and wit. Others prefer Cronkite's business-like approach.

ABC has purchased the television rights to show films of the Fischer quintuplets on a Nov. 17 news show.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Conn Smythe's three-year-old Warrior's Day has had more injuries than a race hardened veteran since he came on the race track as a yearling. Despite his setbacks the gallant gelding keeps on plodding.

At Greenwood Tuesday the light bay son of Whirling Home came whirling through the late stretch, put down the bid of Blue Light and won the featured sixth race.

During the running of the 1 1-16-mile test around Greenwood's tight turns, Warrior's Day either over-reached his stride kicking his left rear leg, or was accidentally clipped by another horse.

With blood streaming from the open wound just above the hoof, Warrior's Day, the choice in the race, returned $4.40.

Stamps Lose Eagle Day

CALGARY (CP) — Quarterback Cliff Hay was admitted to hospital Tuesday and won't be with Calgary Stampeders when they travel to Edmonton to play the Eskimos in a Western Football Conference game Saturday night.

Day has a bruised kidney, picked up in the 23-23 tie with Saskatchewan Roughriders last Saturday. He was admitted to hospital as a precautionary measure.

Coach Bobby Dobbs will replace Day with Jerry Keeling.

Bulldogs To Play All-Stars

GUELPH (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association president Pat Patterson confirmed Tuesday that an all-star game under international rules will be played in Windsor Sunday between the Bulldogs and a senior A OHA all-star team.

The Bulldogs, winners of the Allan Cup last year, are playing this season in the International Hockey League and will make an 11-game European tour Nov. 13-Dec. 5.

They are to play six games in Russia, three in Czechoslovakia, and one each in East Germany and Switzerland.

The all-star team roster has not been confirmed, but Patterson requested the loan of this year's OHA senior grouping to make certain players available. They are:

Chester Worobel, Welland; Neil Maban and George Montague, Port Colborne; Jack Price and Carl Hymers, Oakville; Ted Power, Byrie Elliott, Rio Caron, Gerry Stringle and Bob Robinson, Woodstock; Dave Dryden, Joe Hogan and Ron Hergott, Galt; and Boat Hurley, Keith Worrall, Willy Menard, Don Duke, John Lowes and Butch Keeling from Guelph.

LEAVES BULLFIGHTING

MADRID (AP)—Juan Garcia, 29-year-old bullfighter known as Mondemo, said Tuesday he would retire and become a monk after his coming tour of Mexico. He has been listed among the top Spanish bullfighters for the last two years.

AT THE PARK — Lassie can be seen on motion picture screens in her first feature length picture in twelve years. She is starring in "Lassie's Great Adventure", a De Luxe Color production starting tomorrow at the Park Theatre. Her TV co-stars June Lockhart, Hugh Reilly and Jon Provost also star in the movie. The added feature stars Kent Taylor and Jeff Morrow in "Harbor Lights".

Burton Vetoes Photos With Actress and Himself Alone

By BOB THOMAS

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP)—It seemed to be a gossip's dream: Richard Burton on location with Lolita.

Indeed, some practioners of fanciful journalism here already have tried to dream up visions of Lolita, 17-year-old actress Sue Lyon, toying in love Burton away from Elizabeth Taylor.

The only trouble is that nobody involved is co-operating. Conscious of the situation, Burton is seen alone with the young actress only when they are in front of the cameras. He has vetoed any photos showing Sue and himself alone.

As for Sue, she says: "I don't see how anyone could connect us when he spends all his time with Elizabeth and I spend all of my time with Mario."

WAS DANCER

Mario is actor Hampton Fancher III. He once worked as a flamenco dancer in Spain under an assumed name that his friends still use.

Like Miss Taylor, Fancher is often near the set of Night of the Iguana. Whenever Sue isn't working, Burton is with him.

Night of the Iguana is Sue's first picture since the sensationridden Lolita, which made her a famous 14-year-old. She has no regrets about the film or the long lapse between pictures.

"I went into Lolita with my eyes wide open," she said. "I knew that it would be controversial and that it might reflect on me. But you know, people are a lot nicer than you give them credit for. I've never had an unkind or vulgar thing said to me because I was Lolita.

"I finished the picture 2½ years ago, but the wait for another movie hasn't bothered me. It gave me time to grow as a person. In the last few months I've discovered method acting, and it has changed both my life and my work.

"The actors I admire most—Marlon Brando, Paul Newman, Shelley Winters, Joanne Woodward — all use the method. That's good enough for me."

Omaha Wins Over Braves

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Omaha Knights twice battled from behind before breaking loose with two third-period goals for a 5-3 victory over the winless St. Louis Braves Tuesday night in a Central Professional Hockey League game.

The victory was the fifth straight for Knights and the sixth loss for Braves in seven games. They have tied one.

Bill McCreary shot from the side of the cage bounced off a skate and into the net for Knights' fourth goal at 6:32 of the final period. Bill Ingin' long shot at 19:03 was deflected in by Roy Edwards, Braves goalie, for the game-winner.

Ortiz Wins Over Tough Britisher

LONDON (AP)—World light weight boxing champion Carlos Ortiz of New York outpointed English mixer Maurice Cullen in a tough 10-round bout at London's Indoor Wembley Stadium Tuesday night.

The British, 138, surprised Ortiz, 137, by opening a cut under his right eye in the eighth round.

In a co-feature, world featherweight champion Sugar Ramos stopped Sammy McSpadden of Scotland at 2:58 of the second round of a scheduled 10-round non-title bout. Ramos, a Cuban, now lives in Mexico City.

Earlier, Gomon Brennan of the Bahamas won the vacant British Empire middleweight title by outpointing British champion Nick Gargano of Ireland in a 15-rounder.

The crowd of 10,000 loved the referee's decision in favor of Brennan.

Hawks Whip Kitchener

Marlies Defeat Oshawa 7-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The season has barely started, but Terry Sawchuk, back in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A division after a three-year absence, can already be big boated as contenders for the Memorial Cup.

Forward Andru Champagne contributed four points—three goals and an assist—as Toronto Marlboros Generals 7-3 Tuesday night for their fourth victory in five starts.

It gave them eight points, two more than Peterborough Petes, with a chance to boost the margin Thursday night when they take on Hamilton Red Wings, cellar dwellers in the eight-team loop. Peterborough is host to the fourth-place Niagara Falls Flyers the same night while Kitchener Rangers travel to Montreal to play the Junior Canadiens.

St. Catharines Black Hawks picked up their first points of the season Tuesday night when they downed Kitchener 8-2 in twice and Chuck Eddy got a single. Gary Sabourin scored both Kitchener goals, his first coming early in the third period after the Hawks had jumped into a 6-0 lead.

SPORT BRIEFS

NAMED SCOUT

MONTREAL (CP)—Joe Stracina, his football career cut short by a freak accident while playing a home mower, has been named a scout by Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference. He was announced Tuesday. The 31-year-old Stracina suffered severe spokes in his left leg in the accident earlier this season and needed skin grafts.

HAT COST TOO MUCH

TORONTO (CP)—Repairs to Toronto's 48 year - old Maple Leaf Baseball Stadium may be too costly, city building commissioner Frank Wellwood said Tuesday. Whether the repairs are done to the crumbling walls depends on the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club, which rents the stadium from the Toronto Harbor Commissioners.

gls. Gary Sabourin scored both Kitchener goals, his first coming early in the third period after the Hawks had jumped into a 6-0 lead.

Stricken Farmers Plan Meeting With Ont. Govt.

Will Seek Some Relief Due to Long Drought

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Drought - stricken farmers from southern Ontario meet today with Agriculture Minister William Stewart as summer-like weather continues to parch farm and woodland throughout the province.

Record - high temperatures were recorded from Kenora to Windsor Wednesday and more of the same is forecast today.

The farmer delegation today is seeking provincial relief in its meeting with Mr. Stewart, who has described the drought condition as the worst since 1901.

However, no relief is promised by the weatherman and a further outbreak of brush and forest fires is threatened this weekend.

In North Bay, Frank Miller of the lands and forests department said Wednesday "we can expect bad trouble if we have a wind."

Forty forest fires were burning in the province Wednesday, nine in the North Bay area and eight around Sudbury.

WOULD SEED CLOUDS

Meanwhile, Mayor R. C. Sargent of Owen Sound has asked the Ontario government to hire a cloud-seeding plane to bring relief to farmers. He said in a Toronto interview a firm of weather consultants in technical claims cloud seeding can be done if there is rain in the prevailing weather system.

In Essex County in the province's southern tip, drought has a giant tinder box, Chief Archibald Sandberg of the Leamington and Mersea Township fire department said only one spark is needed to start a major fire.

He said there is a danger if hunters are allowed into the area only on the opening day Saturday of the pheasant hunting season.

Tobacco beet weigh scales in Chatham and Wallaceburg in adjoining Kent County have been closed since dry, windy weather is drying up stockpiled supplies.

FARMS DRY UP

Lands and Forest department officials say many swamps and feeding streams have dried and wildfowl in the province have little cover and other feeding grounds have been burned out by bush fires.

Today's 78 degrees at Windsor and Hamilton Wednesday were records for the date. At Timmins, the high was 75, a

No Answer By Banks On Request

MONTREAL (CP)—Officials of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) gave no indication early today whether the members would respond to an appeal by federal maritime trustees to return to their jobs.

Nor was there any comment from Hal C. Banks, the union's Canadian president, on a summons to meet the trustees in Ottawa today.

Mr. Banks left what appeared to be a union executive meeting at the SIU's Montreal headquarters at 8 p.m. EDT Wednesday night and returned to his home in suburban Point Claire shortly before midnight.

He refused to open his door to reporters and could not be reached by telephone.

Meanwhile, some SIU members and officials remained at union headquarters. One official said they were keeping in touch by telephone with representatives in Ottawa.

Latest reports indicated the general walkout of SIU members, which started last week end, had tied up at least 21 Inland cargo vessels in eastern Canadian ports. No SIU crews had left ships on the west coast.

ISSUE APPEAL

The appeal to return to work was issued following a meeting of the three-man board of trustees empowered to take over full control of the SIU and four other maritime unions. The trustees also summoned leaders of the five unions to a meeting in Ottawa.

Some 400 seamen milled about SIU headquarters Wednesday night before the trustees met. Some were already straggling home after collecting clothing and other belongings from their lockers.

In Toronto, William Glasgow, SIU port agent, said the union would comply with trusteeship legislation but declined to say whether his statement indicated a return to work.

"Our decision was that if there were any new developments we would hold another meeting, and we will have one

Algerians and Moroccans Locked In Fierce Battle Over Oasis

By STEPHEN HUGHES

ZAGORA, Morocco (Reuters) — A fierce battle today raged between Algerian and Moroccan forces near the strategic oasis of Hassi Beida and the outpost of Tinjoub in the disputed desert area.

Moroccan military sources said the Moroccan Army was receiving air support as both sides prepared for further battle.

The fighting began when powerful Algerian forces attacked the Moroccan lines Wednesday and continued through the night.

The Moroccan command estimated the Algerian strength at three battalions armed with machine-guns and heavy mortars.

Newspaper men said they saw about 5,000 to 6,000 Moroccan troops, nearly all infantry, dug in with machine-gun nests on high ground overlooking the two tiny oases of Hassi Beida and Tinjoub.

Wednesday night the oases were being blasted at regular intervals by heavy Algerian mortar fire.

It was impossible to estimate casualties as fighting was dispersed all day along a front about 30 miles long. But there were dead and wounded on both sides.

At dawn Wednesday the Algerians made a diversionary attack on a gift unmanned outpost to the north, driving out the 20-man Moroccan garrison.

When the Moroccan Army moved to retake the post, the Algerians launched a major attack on Hassi Beida and Tinjoub to the south.

Late Wednesday night the Moroccans still held the rocky escarpment which overlooks the Hassi Beida waterhole.

Propose Ways To Speed Up

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Having passed three items of legislation in the 18 working days since the session resumed, the House of Commons Wednesday set up a committee to propose ways of making it more efficient.

Although all parties endorsed creation of a 13-member special committee headed by Speaker Alan Macnaughton, they took different approaches to the issue of streamlining the ancient rules of parliamentary procedure.

Prime Minister Pearson and Social Credit Leader Thompson said far-reaching rule changes are needed to speed up the parliamentary machinery and boost the public image of the lawmakers.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader Douglas agreed that the Commons wastes considerable time. But they warned against any changes that would turn over more control to the all-powerful cabinet at the expense of the historic rights of MPs.

The new committee, whose members will be named later, will be empowered to call expert witnesses and file interim reports to the House.

CETIS RADIO?

It starts with one strike against it, since similar committees set up in recent years failed to agree on most of the proposals they discussed.

Today the Commons resumes debate on amendments to the income tax act arising from the June 13 budget.

The present legislative pace was demonstrated clearly Wednesday when preliminaries took up two hours, leaving only 90 minutes for study of government legislation—in this case Mr. Pearson's motion for the procedure committee.

Prime Minister Pearson suggested question periods be limited to 30 minutes except on special occasions; that set periods be allocated for study of particular bills, and that the House sit beyond the normal 10 p.m. adjournment to clean up unfinished business.

Wilson Attacks Home

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home was pictured today as trying to ride into the House of Commons on the "coat-tails" of Labor member Anthony Wedgwood Benn, the former "reluctant peer."

Labor Leader Harold Wilson raised a ruckus of shouts and laughter when he suggested that the new prime minister could thank Benn for opening the way to a Commons seat.

The prime minister was not able to attend today's emergency debate in the Commons

U.S. Clears Way to Sell 120 Million Bushels of Corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has cleared the way for sale of 1,200,000 bushels of corn to Hungary. But the largest issue of wheat sales to the Soviet bloc remains confused.

Cabinet officers huddled Wednesday with a Soviet trade delegation and failed to iron out the chief obstacle to completion of the wheat deal—the higher shipping rates charged by American shipowners.

There is a growing feeling here that the problem can be resolved only by a White House decision, not through negotiation.

The corn sale to Hungary was resolved smoothly because corn and other grains are exempted from the condition that wheat sold to the Soviet bloc must be carried in American ships where "available."

The commerce department approved the $1,209,384 shipment by issuing a licence for its export, and a spokesman for Cargill Incorporated, big Minneapolis grain processing and shipping firm, said the corn will be shipped soon, probably from an east coast port.

Involved are 39,000 long tons of corn—about one - third the amount the Communists are ex-

White Hawk Would Return To Ways of Her Forefathers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rangers at Angeles National Forest did a double-take when they received this letter:

"How can I find out if Indian squaws still suppose can live on land and hunt, fish and bring food from mother earth, not from tin cans?

"Not make mess with tin cans, bottles and papers like white brothers, keep mother earth clean for future generations. Not waste fish, footed animals . . . signed, White Hawk."

White Hawk identified herself as a Chippewa Indian with a hankering for a piece of land where she could pitch a wigwam and return to the ways of her forefathers.

Anselmo Lewis, chief ranger of the Mt. Baldy district, answered White Hawk in kind.

"It is with sincere regret that we must inform you that it has been many winter moons since there was forest land in this area on which you could live and return to the

SIU's Hal Banks Agrees To Meet With Trustees

To Confer Separately With Heads of Unions

OTTAWA—(CP)—Waterfront czar Hal C. Banks has agreed to come to Ottawa for a face-to-face showdown with the federal trustees who have taken legal — if not physical — control of his rebellious Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

Mr. Justice Victor Leonard Dryer said he talked to Mr. Banks by telephone shortly before 10 a.m. EDT.

He said Mr. Banks agreed to come to Ottawa as quickly as possible for the meeting, which is expected to take place in an Ottawa hotel.

The Vancouver jurist said no time had been set for the confrontation with Mr. Banks—except that it would take place as soon as the SIU leader could arrive to Ottawa.

Action on the Great Lakes labor crisis was happening on two fronts—the three trustees working on their own to meet separately with Mr. Banks and the leaders of the four other maritime unions today, and the cabinet meeting for the third straight day.

HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

The full cabinet met right after a special midnight committee mapped out plans for dealing with the illegal strikes of SIU members that is crippling Canadian shipping on the Great Lakes and seaway canal.

The special cabinet team was presided over by Labor Minister Hellyer, and included Defence Minister Hellyer, Justice Minister Cherrier, Transport Minister Pickersgill and Immigration Minister Fayreau.

The meeting was also attended by Air Marshal Frank Miller, chairman of the chiefs of staff; Vice - Admiral H. S. Rayner, chief of naval staff; RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harvison; Chairman Howard C. Mann of the National Harbors Board, and senior officials of the departments of external affairs, labor, justice and transport.

Emerging from the meeting of the special committee, Mr. MacEachen said he had not heard today from Mr. Banks but appointed Wednesday to take over the SIU and four other marine unions.

Moving swiftly after cabinet proclamation of Parliament's union trusteeship law, the three trustees flew to Ottawa, conferred with Labor Minister MacEachen for three hours Wednesday night and then:

1. Sent telegrams asking SIU President Banks and the lead-

Yogi Berra Is Manager Of Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra was named manager of New York Yankees today, confirming reports that had been widespread since Ralph Houk was promoted to general manager two days ago.

Dan Topping, co-owner of the Yankees, made the announcement, saying Berra had been signed a week ago and that the contract was for one-year at Berra's request.

Topping said Berra's salary would be less than he received this year as a player-coach—reported to be $45,000 — and added that Yogi would no longer be an active player.

Appointment of the 38-year-old former catcher was announced at a press conference. It had been common knowledge that Berra was the choice from the minute Houk was promoted Tuesday after leading the Yankees to three American League pennants and two world series championships in his three years as manager.

Houk succeeded Roy Hamey, who resigned because of ill health.

Berra, one of the most popular players in baseball and the top home run hitting catcher in major league history, takes over the managerial spot after a 17-year career with the Yankees.

This last season, Berra served his first year as coach, and also was a part-time player.

Berra, born Lawrence Peter, but known all as Yogi—a nickname he picked up as a boy —was 38 last May.

Rock 'n' Roll Rebels Returning To 17th-Century Way of Living

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP)—There'll be some tired, ing, rock 'n' roll rebels among the 198 passengers sailing home today to their 17th-century way of life on remote Tristan da Cunha Island.

The Tristan elders found life in Britain too swift and yearn to return to the tiny windswept South Atlantic island from which they were driven by volcanic eruptions 50 years ago.

But the young ones don't want to go home.

Some are going back only because their parents say they must. One is 17-year-old Rosemary Green. She fell in love with the twist and television and translator sets.

"I'll be back for good when I'm 21 and my own boss," she vowed.

Rosemary and like - minded teen-agers packed all the radios and record players they could afford in the long nights of Tristan they'll take back with them 'n' roll to compete with the everlasting winds that whip "the loneliest inhabited island in the world."

They are lugging back comic books and paperback novels, too, to read by lamplight in their stone cottages.

The 147 adults and 41 children today boarded the Norwegian Danish liner Bornholm for the 17-day trip to their island, about midway between Africa and South America.

British authorities evacuated Tristan's 268 inhabitants in October, 1961, after earth tremors created big cracks in the island's surface and touched off fiery eruptions of its 6,780-foot volcano.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 23, 1963

Labor Minister MacEachen announced that the cabinet has proclaimed the marine union trusteeship act, thus making it law.

He named Mr. Justice V. L. Dryer of Vancouver, Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal and C. H. Millard of Toronto as the trustees.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker led opposition parties in endorsing the action, aimed at the rebellious Seafarers' International Union.

Mr. Diefenbaker said a proposal to modernize Commons procedure should avoid increasing the powers of the cabinet.

NDP Leader Douglas said the public is demanding more efficiency and speed from Canada's parliamentary system.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said a sharp overhaul is needed because the public image of Parliament is being destroyed.

Dust From Volcano Eruption Produces Beautiful Sunrises

NEW YORK (AP)—Scientists say that a massive volcanic eruption in Indonesia last spring has apparently deposited layers of dust high in the atmosphere producing unusually beautiful sunrises and sunsets.

Not only do particles from the eruption diffuse the sunlight into a spectrum of color, but at a high altitude they also mirror the light for a longer period from the unseen sun.

"It means you can see the refracted sunlight for a greater length of time after the sun has disappeared or before day," said Franklyn Branley, astronomer at Hayden Planetarium here says.

The volcano Agung on Indonesia's island Bali erupted in March.

Dr. A. R. Meinel, of the Stuard Observatory at the University of Arizona, told a recent seminar in Rochester, N.Y., that two layers of dust resulting from the Agung upheaval—one at about 90,000 feet, the other at 150,000 feet.

Nature seldom sets the scene for such twilight spectaculars, expected to last a month.

Meinel said there was a simi-volcano Krakatao, in the same area, erupted bringing about beautiful sunsets and sunrises for more than a year.

'Make-Shift' Tug Crews Dock Liner

MONTREAL (CP) — Three tugs manned by supervisory personnel in place of regular SIU crews brought the Canada liner Carmania to dock today, after a strike tie-up had said they would bring the 20,000-ton liner to dock with or without the aid of crews.

However, McAllister Towing Limited, which dispatches eight privately-owned and two National Harbor Board tugs, managed to get together captains and non-SIU engineers to man the vessels.

"Don't ask too many questions about the make-up of their crews," a McAllister spokesman said. "You can call them make-shift."

Quinte School Valedictory Given by Bill Buddle

Mr. Reid, honored guests, visitors staff and students of Quinte. When I began thinking of this address, I was troubled with the problem of how to say goodbye, and include the other feelings that go along with this goodbye. The feeling of regret, sadness, or melancholy if you wish the elation and joy that is felt and the deep feeling of gratitude.

One might wonder why I say regret is a part of this goodbye. Well it seems to me that no matter what you do, you can usually look back and see places where you could and should have done better. You like to take sort of an aloof and superior attitude because you made it and advise those coming along to be apathetic, not to let their work slide, not to let their school down but then this aloofness usually will give way to a feeling of humility and regret when you realize that you had been told the same thing and had perhaps not listened too carefully.

Much more prominent is the sadness and geslancholy that goes along with this goodbye. It is one that may well be the last for so many who have shared the same rooms, and halls, and teachers with you for the last five years. Even those with whom you differed will be missed. All these friends who together have helped mold the character you partially molded here at school, will no more be a unit.

WILL MISS SCHOOL

The school itself will be missed. Oh! We did complain about narrow stairs and halls, poor ventilation and so on. It's now like an old house you had to move away from, and though you like your new house there are yet things from the old one will be remembered — the cement blocks painted a sorry green in the new wing, the unfinished paintings in the room that used to be Mr. Craigheads — somewhere two hundred and something, the view from the window down in Mr. Clanu's english class. Our picture of the school as it was will stay with us, even though it's now so changed etc.

There will also be a tinge of regret when we think how we will no longer share the youthful exhuberance displayed at the football games, the singing of the boys and girls at their first school dance, nor the gaiety of and laugh at the antics we had about the mysterious seniors, as they carried their dignity of their books to and from school. Our happiness comes also now with the new building and Albert Lackey to go out, armed with the skills and ideas developed here, and the boldness of one who perseverred, and made it through high school, to take on new jobs, more schooling, or be in any case the rest of our lives.

DEBT OF GRATITUDE

But through this talk of how we made it, and how we persevered, comes the debt of gratitude we owe those who helped us. We cannot bid our school farewell without thinking about and thanking the people who put so much into the effort that got us through. To our teachers and parents that caused us to think, and have thus developed us into what we are and will become, will be a part of us always. Though we may forget many things, the personal qualities will always show what these people have added.

And so with a touch of regret, a touch of sadness, a sense of joy and a sense of gratitude, I bid thee Quinte goodbye.

Bill Buddle.

Airman Fined For Taking Car Without Consent

A Trenton airman, who pleaded guilty to joy-riding today was warned by Magistrate T. Y. Wills about his record.

He was Leading Aircraftsman Albert Lackey who was fined $25 for taking without consent, the car of a fellow airman Sept. 28th.

Lackey admitted taking the car from the 8RD barrack block after removing the keys from the owner's locker. He drove the car to his home at Carp, where, he said, police were contacted by provincial police from Ottawa. He later left the car with the OPP.

Assistant Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson asked a fine of $50 and costs on the basis of a technicel offence."

The magistrate noted the 20-year-old airman already had been charged with theft at Perth last year.

"Lackey, you had better be careful what you're doing," warned Magistrate Wills. "You are building up a record. One next offence will land you in Jail—and you know what that means as far as the airforce is concerned."

Napanee Dealer Wins Dismissal On Technicality

A charge of failing to register a car sale was dismissed against a Napanee dealer on a technicality in Belleville this morning.

Arthur Brinklow pleaded not guilty to the charge before Magistrate T. Y. Wills then later in evidence admitted he failed to register the sale with provincial authorities within the required six days.

He then pointed out that he was charged under the name of Arthur Brinklow Motors which he said was non-existent.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills agreed there was "no legal status to a car sold called Arthur Brinklow Motors."

Dismissing the charge he cautioned the dealer: "You are very lucky. You don't deserve it."

Presence of mind on the part of two B.N.E. Electric employees who spotted a woman running from the side door of her house with her clothes afire, yesterday saved an expectant mother from possible fatal burns.

In Belleville General Hospital with serious burns is 22-year-old Mrs. D. V. Willis of 24 Wilkins Street.

She was rushed to hospital in a factory workers' car when a doctor and an ambulance were not immediately available.

Youth Placed On Probation For Shoplifting

A 16-year-old youth, charged with shop-lifting from Belleville's newest department store, was placed on one year's probation by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

He was charged after a floor walker at Rileways stopped the youth — in company with a juvenile — leaving the store October 1st with about $10 in goods. He later confessed to another theft from Rileways two weeks earlier.

"I suppose some of your friends may give you the idea that this is a smart thing to do — if you can get away with it," said the magistrate as he suspended sentence. "Well it isn't smart and you didn't get away with it. Now you have a criminal record."

IN MEMORIAM

BELNAP — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ada Belnap, who passed away October 24th, 1962.

Lonely in the world without you,
Life to me is the same,
But to me who loved and lost you,
Memories are my gain.
Borrowed for a while I am home-sick,
Longing for my home.
In the midst of my joys I am lonely,
With a smile on my face I've a heartache.
Leaping deer husband for you.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Alice Belnap.

BELNAP — In loving memory of our dear father, Mr. Ada Belnap, who passed away on third October 24th, 1962.

We think of you in the morning,
In the night and day,
Just plain like you see, the years and the sky,
We think, and we know, he has gone from our sides,
But we think of you in the utmost of pride.
—Never forgotten, loved to be remembered, sons, daughters and grandchildren.

Synchronized Traffic Lights Might Alleviate Situation

TRENTON — Trenton and area motorists who spend what sometimes seems a lifetime crawling through the main street at certain hours of the day, or who wait and wait and wait for a traffic light to change, and then find themselves waiting all over again because of cut-ins from side streets, may soon find cause for rejoicing.

If Mayor James MacDonald and the members of the Trenton Traffic Committee can convince town council that it's a good thing, a new system of synchronized traffic lights should alleviate the situation.

Traffic expert Mervin Stevens, from the Ontario Department of Transport, told the mayor, two members of council, Councillors Edward Todd and Duncan MacDonald, and the members of the traffic committee yesterday, that a master control unit at the intersection of Division Street and Dundas St. West would control these lights at Dufferin Ave. and Dundas St., at Division and Dundas, at Front and Dundas and at Marmora St.

Eastbound traffic would be encouraged to keep a constant speed of 28 mph from Dufferin to Division St. and then slow to 21 mph for the rest of the way to Marmora St. The lights would be so set that a car, proceeding at the suggested speeds, would "hit" green lights all the way. The timing cycle for the change-over of intersection lights would be changed from the present 120 seconds to 65 seconds. The master control would be set up by re-programming itself once every hour. The new system would cost the town $3,000. Additional costs would be taken up by the Ontario government.

If the new system is adopted, Front Street will once again be opened to two-way traffic and parking on this street prohibited.

MAYOR ENTHUSIASTIC

Parking on the "south" side of Dundas St. W. would be restricted from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. to permit a steady flow of two-way traffic during these hours. From 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., parking on the "north" side of Dundas St. W. would be prohibited.

Mayor MacDonald is more than enthusiastic about the proposed new system.

"I've been disgusted with the traffic pattern in Trenton for years," he said yesterday. "Nothing works right."

The members of the traffic committee were almost equally enthusiastic, but foresaw a few problems which might not be solved overnight.

For one thing, Chief of Police F. J. Taylor said that weather could throw out any system, no matter how perfect it seemed. Another problem, said the chief, was pedestrian traffic, and especially at Mark Tripp's corner.

"Let's face it," said the chief, "Pedestrians are here to stay. They must be considered. We can't expect to keep a steady 21 mph speed for cars on the streets when we have to consider that pedestrians will want to cross over."

THINKS OF MERCHANTS

Committee member Frank Filion thought that cutting off "north" side Dundas St. W. traffic at 4 p.m. was too restrictive . . . and especially from the viewpoint of the merchants on the street.

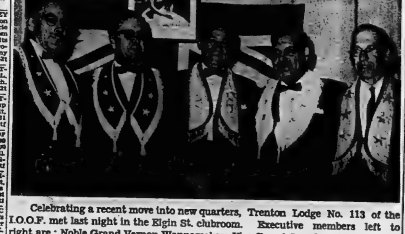
Traffic member Paul Tripp and Councillor Edward Todd thought that some problems would be encountered with traffic proceeding onto the street from King St. A suggestion that traffic be only permitted to proceed in a north-south direction on this street, (entering from Dundas St. W.) didn't solve the problem for them. This would only succeed in tying up traffic on Front St., said Councillor Todd.

"The least we could do is to try this plan," snapped the mayor after several objections to the proposed plan had been raised, "Either try it or leave the d . . . thing in the mess it's been for the past five years."

In the final analysis, it was decided to submit council with the proposal and get the individual councillors' reactions.

Ameliasburg Home Owners' Group Meets

TRENTON—John Ellis, president of the 17-year old Hyndale Ratepayers' Association of Belleville, outlined the accomplishments over the years of his organization for the benefit of 25 members of the year-old Ameliasburg Home Owners' Association, at a meeting in the John Wallace Hall at Carrying Place Monday night. Mr. Ellis advised the members of the younger group to keep the organization free from political, religious and race discrimination and to keep the association on a strictly non-profit basis.



"You deserve a lot of praise for having come so far in your first year," Mr. Ellis told the Ameliasburg members.

Chairman of Monday night's meeting was Elmer Bonter, vice-president of the home owners' association, President Stanley Downing is stepping down from office for health reasons and an election will be held in November

Mr. Bonter noted that the organization had grown from 25 members to 90 members and that the members had learned during the past year that it was better to foster a community spirit rather than be constantly critical of the efforts of township council and the planning board. Mr. Bonter said that all three groups should work together to make the township second to none in the province.

Representing township council at the meeting was the newly-appointed township clerk, William Nightingale, and representing the planning board was Earl Onderdonk.

Association member W. G. Harvey is now preparing a constitution and this will be presented at a general meeting in the near future for modification and approval.

TRENTON — "Ontario is one of the most expensive places in which to die."

Maudie Bayley, a former national president of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, last night urged Trenton B. & P. members to make a study of Ontario's succession duties with a view to the club at provincial level doing something about it. Mrs. Bayley was guest speaker at a banquet at the Trenton Country Club arranged for a joint celebration of B. & P. week and the Trenton club's 10th. birthday.

Mrs. Bayley said that one "just cannot afford to die in Ontario." She said that she knew of one instance where an American businessman, wishing to spend his retirement years in Ontario, found he could not do so if he wished to pave the way for his son and grandson after his death.

All B. & P. members across Canada have been asked to study the succession duties' act this year. Frequently, the club at national level presents briefs concerning issues of the day to the federal government . . . and frequently, said Mrs. Bayley, the government heeds an ear and does something about it.

"The Business and Professional Women are highly regarded at national and provincial government levels," Mrs. Bayley told her audience. "No other organization goes into issues so fully and deeply."

The theme of national B. & P. Week this year is "Reach Out and Grow," and last night Mrs. Bayley told the 50 Trenton and Belleville members at the banquet that it was necessary in this day and age to keep abreast of events at national and international level. One should read newspapers, good books, and listen to radio and TV.

"But don't let the radio become your master," she warned. "You could sit around and wring your hands over the alarming newscasts. On the other hand, if you don't listen and appraise the news, you'll come day be thrown into such confusion you'll almost lose your sanity."

Mrs. Bayley said there wasn't much use of writing the present generation off because of the threat of atomic bombs.

"It isn't going to happen if enough people care and say, 'It won't'."

Mrs. Bayley said that such things as studying or gardening were much better than "vegetating," and confessed that she quite often spent a great part of the night dreaming up "killer dillers."

"Some night I'm going to get up and write it down," she said, "and I'll probably find I've written the mystery story of the century."

Head table guests at last night's banquet included Margery Fewtress, a former provincial president, who presented the Trenton club charter in 1953; district C vice-president Dorothy Brown of Belleville; 1963 Trenton president, Doris Webb, and Violet Kennedy, convener for B. and P. Week.

Among the charter members present were Ann Johnson, charter president, the members of her executive, Rhoda London, Carabelle Allison, Era Baker, Hazel Farley and Nellie Bain and Elizabeth Blachledge, Lela Jordan, Nora MacLellan, Lillian McPhail, Ruth McAuley, Isobel McCrodan, Bessie McKibbon, Ellen Whitehouse, Verna Nelson, Doris Stewart and Alice Wilson.

A carload of ladies from the Belleville B. and P. Club also attended the event.

The country club auditorium had been decorated in an autumn motif for the banquet with table centrepieces being fashioned of bronze, golden and pink 'mums.

A sing-song led by Mary Thompson, highlighted songs written by charter members Elizabeth Blachledge, and entertaining the diners were Mary Caves, Ruth McAuley and Nina Read.

$200 Stolen From Cafe

TRENTON—The sum of two hundred dollars was missing this morning from the Hill Top Coffee Shop on Highway two, just west of town. Thieves apparently forced entry through the back door to the restaurant office last night, according to Ontario Provincial Police officers. The officers refused to say where in the office the money had been kept.

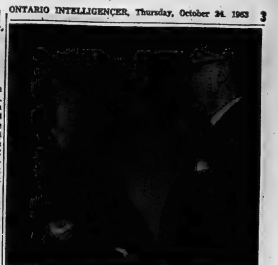
Refuses Remand Later Adjourns Case Six Days

TRENTON — In Trenton court Tuesday, Magistrate T. Y. Wills ordered the trial of a Trenton man, John Wood, of 78 Murphy St., to proceed in spite of the fact that the defendant asked for a remand, because his lawyer, he said, was "out of town." Later in the day, the magistrate told Mr. Wood his trial would go on yesterday and that he would brook no delays.

Wood, charged with drunk driving, was told by the magistrate yesterday, "I'm not taking any more nonsense." The magistrate entered a plea of not guilty for the accused.

The court was told that Wood had scuffled with a police officer after he had been apprehended and had been brought to the police station handcuffed. A second police witness, Staff Sergeant Walter Youmans, was called away from his lunch at his home, and the arrest, a young boy who had seen the accused struggling with Constable John Graham.

In court yesterday, Wood challenged police evidence that he had driven on the wrong (the left side of the road, said police).



"How could I have?" he queried, "Byron Street's been torn up for six weeks." (The accused was convicted and arrested on Sept. 22). However Constable Graham and Sgt. Youmans told the court that Byron Street was open to traffic on the date in question.

Finally the magistrate said he could produce witnesses and his case was enlarged until next Monday to allow him to do so.

Wood pleaded guilty to a second charge of driving while prohibited and the magistrate delayed until Monday a plea on a third charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence.

FLOODED OUT

COLOMBO (AP)—Floods following a week of torrential rain have left about 15,000 homeless in Ceylon. In the low-lying suburbs of Colombo City alone, some 11,000 persons flooded out of their homes have been given free meals by the government.

A former Trenton resident, Miss Eleanor O'Rourke, returned to town two years ago and since then has a better attendance record at council meetings than some of the councillors. Miss O'Rourke, daughter of the late Magistrate P. J. O'Rourke, is a retired registered nurse and worked in New York for many years. Since returning to Trenton, she has kept her finger on the municipal pulse by attending nearly all public meetings. She is shown here chatting with a long-time friend, Clerk-Comptroller O. W. Larry.

Hour of Decision

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver described Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, as "a bully, cruel, dishonest, power-hungry, contemptuous of the law."

He also said Banks was capable, decisive and ruthless.

This capable, decisive, ruthless man will not be defeated easily.

It is not at all certain that his immediate adversaries, the members of the Federal Cabinet, are equally capable and decisive—and it is certain that they cannot match him in ruthlessness.

Yet ruthless action is what the situation demands. It will save everybody—including members of the SIU—a lot of bruises.

Mr. Banks should be faced with the alternative of shutting up or being shut up.

Decisi...ves ruthless—action just might settle this dispute quickly. If it is allowed to drag out, retaliatory action by unions in the U.S. will face the Canadian Government with the alternative of capitulating or taking measures of a kind which will inevitably do untold harm to our relations with our neighbor.

Politics—the dependence of the Democrats on the labor vote in the big U.S. industrial cities —make it unlikely that the Kennedy Administration will be able to prevent U.S. unions meddling in Canada's private business.

Fortunately, politics also makes it likely that the Federal Government will act with more than customary vigor in a labor dispute. The Western farmer, already enraged by the longshoremen's strike, would never forgive a government which permitted Banks to deprive them of their new-found Russian market for wheat and flour. Most of organized labor in Canada wants to see Banks defeated. As for the rest of Canadians, they are waiting anxiously to discover who governs this country, the men they elect to Parliament, or Banks.

Banks' power is based primarily on the loyalty he has been able to inspire amongst a comparatively small group of seamen. In part, this loyalty has been bought by favors. Let us be honest, though, and recognize that his ability, his decisiveness, his ruthlessness, have resulted in greatly bettering the working conditions and the wages of these men during the years he has headed the SIU. There is no good reason to doubt but that many of these seamen sincerely believe that Banks is right—and the great majority of Canadian wrong—in this dispute.

Behind Banks, though, and the ultimate source of his power, are certain unions in the U.S. Even if they were not honest, well-run unions, sincerely believing that the SIU was being victimized, Canadians could not permit them to over-rule the decisions of our own government regarding laws in Canada.

The time has passed when there was any possibility of honorable compromise. Either Banks must be defeated or we must admit that we are not a self-governing nation but are dependent upon the whims of powerful factions in a neighboring land.

Sauce for the Gander

The ladies—bless 'em—have two well known and completely dissimilar types of reaction whenever they catch a mere male drooling over those pictures of beauty queens clad in bathing suits.

They either snicker disparagingly or smile indulgently.

The mere male learns to dismiss either of these differing reactions as symptoms of the same emotion—hopeless envy.

Faith in the male analysis of the female reaction to bathing beauties has, alas, been shaken by the pictures which appeared in the sport section of this great family journal on Monday.

There, posing like some fifth-rate ham actor giving his impression of Tarzan, was "Mr. North America." Surrounding him, bow-legged, knotty-muscled and bosomy, were his nearest rivals for the title.

Any normal, flat-chested, flabby-muscled, paunchy mere male who caught the ladies peeking at that picture would have snickered or smiled indulgently.

But not, of course, with envy. Perish the thought!

Women!

A one-party system may at any time change into a dictatorship and a dictator may change into a man who believes he is God, and it is an odd thing that as soon as a man believes he is God he behaves far worse than an ordinary human being.—Dame Rebecca West.

Ottawa Offbeat

'Olf' to Assure Preservation Of Unsullied English Culture

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Somebody, finally, has had the good sound sense not to get mad at the French reasonably. Instead, he kid the pants off the Quebec "Separatist" groups which have burned effigies of Donald Gordon, painted "A Bas Le Confederation" on the Capital, and generally raised nationalistic hob about "freedom" for La Belle Province.

Get mad and take them seriously, and you give them an inflated self-importance.

Kid them, laugh at them, and perhaps they'll call it off out of sheer frustration or embarrassment.

That is what a new organization, which, tongue in cheek, calls itself the "Ontario Liberation Front" has been doing.

And its brochures have become must understudies for reading of most MPs, even a goodly few from Quebec.

It tells its story . . .

The various Separatist movements in the United State of Quebec have produced something of mild alarm in the rest of what is now a province . . . and to face realistically the problems which will arise when Quebec becomes independent, this organization (The OLF) has been formed.

First, let it be understood that our Movement is not against the secession of Quebec. Secession, after all, is anybody's inalienable right to choose the form of government he wishes to live under.

CIVIL WAR

If the United States Government had not denied the right of the Southern States to secede in 1860, it would have been spared the civil war, heartache and embarrassment it now is experiencing . . . so we say to Quebec and its people: "Go, if you must, and God Bless You."

If this happens, it will be obvious then that the rest of Canada will have to take economical measures to prevent a flood of goods produced by cheap labor from disrupting our own industry . . . and cut off from the markets of Canada. Quebec will wither away economically . . . the factories and mines closing, her ports stagnating.

It is an historical fact that when such conditions occur, the country's rulers, in an endeavor to take the people's mind off their misery, resort to foreign adventures, as did Hitler in the Sudetenland and Alsace.

Now, we in this Mother Province are vulnerable to invasion on the hollow pretext of liberation of pockets of citizens of French descent, and the existing primarily in Northern Ontario and along the north and St. Lawrence rivers closest to Quebec, and so, most receptive to the siren call of false propaganda.

The Quebec military forces have little experience in large scale operations. So, except for one terribly vulnerable area, Ontario's forces and the rest of Canada could be put into shape at little expense.

But the area is one that threatens all of us and lays Ontario's heartland and the nation open to invasion. At the confluence of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers many years ago a triangle of land which was seized and occupied by Quebec, perhaps through some far-sighted politician in La Belle Province realizing the tremendous value of this beachhead.

TO ARMS:

. . . Now, it is quite clear that the main communities of Eastern Ontario (and the ramparts of the rest of Canada) are the two rivers. It is obvious that when God made Ontario, He intended this to be so, for He follows naturally, then, that if God intended this area to be Ontario, He intended the inhabitants to be Ontarioans.

Naturally, then, apart from the strategic implications of this territory, we cannot stand aside and see our blood brothers swallowed by this land-hungry new State of Quebec. When this area, which contains such typically Ontario towns as Rigaud Vaudreuil, Dorion and St. Telesphore, is returned to our Mother Province, our eastern land borders will become behind our river frontiers, and for the time being no more territorial demands will be made.

Can we, then, as red-blooded Canadians, see Ontario soil held by "occupying forces" can we see our brothers in Rigaud, Vaudreuil, Dorion, and St. Telesphore, and Cornwall and St. Polycarpe subjects of a foreign ruler and liable to abuse, discrimination, injustice and indignities?

. . . We think not.

. . . All Ontario soil must be free.

. . . All Ontarioans shall be free.

. . . Think upon the absolute need of keeping our English culture pure and unsullied.

. . . For far too long now have our children been banished to learn French, a so-called romance language. It is the very core of the "Quiet Revolution" that has led to the alarming rise in teen - age illegitimacy. French phrases are bandying our Wonderful Mother Tongue. How many of us ask for a "chocolat au lait" speak of a "rendezvous," a "parfait," a "creme de menthe," and other words Shakespeare never dreamed of?

. . . We think not.

. . . All Ontarioans shall be free.

Job-Snob Parents

Halifax Chronicle - Herald

Contemporaneously, speaking in Detroit and Montreal expressed criticism of the attitude which too many parents of today have towards vocational training.

In Montreal, Mrs. Stuart Balcom, president of the former Somerset Court lodge and the only female member of the city's school board, asserted that university education had become a status symbol. Parents, particularly those who themselves possess college degrees, tend to desire the same for their children despite the fact that some young people are obviously better suited to some form of vocational training.

At the same time, in Detroit, Principal Ben Chinitz of Cooley High School told a PTA group that skilled jobs in industry are going begging because parents are "failing to emphasize the dignity of labor."

In the public mind, Detroit is closely associated with the automobile industry. It is something of a surprise, then, to note Mr. Chinitz' observation that the auto industry's mechanics are having a hard time filling their rolls.

This is because the boy doesn't want to enroll but because parents don't want their sons entering home duty.

For many reasons, not everyone can go to college. Indeed, it would be impossible to build a society around a community of university graduates, everyone seeking "white collar" jobs and everyone looking down the "hewer of wood or the drawer of water" who is basic to our civilization.

The important emphasis in these comments from two widely separated sources is the responsibility which belongs to parents.

The schools, of course, can and must do more for our youth by providing vocational guidance and the training which best aids the development of natural ability.

But all of this will be of little avail if the efforts are thwarted by antipathetic home attitudes.

Someone has called such parents "job snobs." In any case, it will be a sad day if ever we come to the point where the average parent is more concerned about the prestige of having children in college than they are for the children's welfare.

Bardot Takes Refuge in Hotel Kitchen

LONDON (AP)—Brigitte Bardot took refuge in a kitchen of a London hotel Wednesday as angry photographers fought to get near her.

Peeping out from under her blonde, haystack hair style, the 29-year-old French actress said: "Why are they so angry? What's wrong with them?"

The trouble began when her plane from Paris arrived 60 minutes late. Further time was lost answering her luggage. When she arrived at her hotel, nearly 200 photographers and reporters had been waiting nearly an hour for her.

But Brigitte decided she wasn't ready to face the press. She sent word she would see another hour.

Then she finally entered a room at the press reception, photographers pushed and shoved each other in an effort to get photographs. As the mob advanced, Brigitte fled.

"Jest a Second"

"Swallowed a fork, has he? The way you're fussing, you'd think we were short of cutlery!"

INCREASES PRICES

The Canadian wheat board increased export prices again Wednesday, northern grades by 2¾ cents a bushel and durum grades by 5¼. This puts the Lakehead price of No. 1 northern at $2.02⅞ a bushel. The increase follows strong international demand.

SHIPMENTS ARE UP

Net shipments of rolled steel products in August amounted to 492,164 tons, an increase of 3.5 per cent over last year's tonnage, the bureau of statistics reported.

MILK SALES UP

Sales of fluid milk and cream amounted to 507,388,000 pounds in August, up five per cent from a year earlier. This brought sales in the January-August period to 4,031,819,000 pounds, a rise of two per cent from a year ago.

CAR LOADINGS RISE

The movement of wheat to Canadian ports contributed to the eight per cent increase in the number of cars of revenue freight loaded on Canadian lines in the seven-week period ended Oct. 14 compared to a year earlier, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday. Cars of revenue freight during the period numbered 72,006. Of these 6,204 carried wheat, an increase of 2,389 from the previous year.

JAPAN IS BUSIEST

Japan is listed as the world's busiest shipbuilding nation in Lloyd's Register returns published Wednesday. Japanese yards had 119 vessels totalling 1,635,507 gross tons under construction at the end of September. That is more for Japan and represents nearly 18 per cent of world tonnage under construction.

ELECTED CHAIRMAN

The Chemical Institute of Canada announced Wednesday that Dr. W. J. M. Douglas has been elected chairman of the institute's chemical engineering division for 1964. Dr. Douglas, a native of Weyburn, Sask., is associate professor of chemical engineering at McGill University.

PLAN PAPER MILL

The weekly Newfoundland Herald says the Newfoundland Pulp and Chemical Company will build a pulp and paper mill on Come-By-Chance, about 30 miles northwest of St. John's. It would be the third paper mill in Newfoundland.

Truck Driver Burns to Death In 401 Crash

TORONTO — John Collison, 42, of Toronto, burned to death in his blazing cab early today amid a spectacular, four-truck collision which blocked Highway 401 for eight hours.

Police blamed the crash on a combination of fog and pea-soup smoke which swirled across the highway, reducing visibility to a few feet.

Three trucks collided and were sideswiped by another, all so heading east from Toronto.

Burning wreckage was spread 300 yards across the highway.

Rush-hour traffic was diverted around the blazing barricade, slowing it to a crawl. Huge cranes were brought from the city to clear the debris. Two other drivers were injured, but not seriously.

Hoped for Best Expected Worst Says Union Head

WASHINGTON (CP) — Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers' International Union of North America, took the news of Canada's trusteeship action against maritime unions calmly but sadly Wednesday.

"We had hoped for the best but expected the worst," said Hall.

"I don't know what will happen now. "There are a variety of courses open to us, but any comment now would be throwing more gas on the fire.

"Whatever we say seems to be twisted up north as being anti-Canadian and meddling in Canadian affairs. But you can say this much: I'm proud to be associated with Canadian sailors. I've seen pictures of these who were in Ottawa, Canadian sailors are the greatest in the world."

Professor Says Red China Doing OK With Farmlands

VICTORIA (CP)—The head of the history and economics department at Royal Roads Services College says China is moving in the right direction agriculturally.

Prof. Charles S. Burchill, recently returned from a 19-day visit to China, says:

"I grew up on a farm in Saskatchewan and I know what land is being used for maximum production with a minimum of waste.

"In China they are getting the highest possible level of production from their land. There is good pasturizing, good management and a high level of productivity."

The weakness is that the system provides group incentive rather than individual incentive.

"There are many brigades of agricultural workers and a brigade which produces more than the average is rewarded as a group, with a bonus payment.

"The individual worker is subservient to the group."

$30 A DAY

Prof. Burchill says it cost him and his wife $30 a day for hotel accommodatin, meals, car, driver, interpreter and railway transportation.

"Many people would find this trip enlightening and enjoyable but unfortunately Canadian and U.S. travel agencies are not very helpful."

Victoria agencies "do not seem interested" in booking tours to China and they had to go to an agency in Winnipeg.

Prof. Burchill said whereas the Soviet Union excluded the upper middle class from higher education in its early years, there is no such discrimination under the Chinese regime which came to power in 1949.

"A great deal of the kind of talent which the Russians wasted has been utilized by China."

B. and P. Women Urged To Develop Talents

The October dinner meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club was held Monday evening at the Belmont Rooms with 21 present. Following dinner Miss Florence Fitzgerald, president, welcomed the members and their guests and conducted the business portion.

Mrs. Charlotte Strachan introduced the head table and Miss Joy Nichols introduced the guest speaker, regional advisor, Mrs. Anne McLean. Mrs. McLean spoke to the club about developing their talents, particularly in their club work. She said that everyone had a talent, no matter how small it might be and that the more these talents were used the bigger they would grow. Talents do not have to be spectacular and we must develop the small ones we have. She urged members to attend Provincial and Regional Conference to see how hard workers were expressing their talents and that a lot could be learned about BP work at the conferences. Also by attending one would have the joy of renewing old acquaintances and meeting new friends. She said each club should have well planned and interesting meetings and that each member should give something to her club besides her dues. If each member would bring one friend to a meeting it would encourage new membership. Mrs. McLean was born and educated in Saskatchewan and now lives in Tweed. She is a past president of the Tweed Business and Professional Women's Club.

Miss Hilda Collier expressed appreciation on behalf of the members and presented Mrs. McLean with a gift.

Mrs. Dorothy Brown offered her home for such a meeting. Mrs. Haig showed club members a brochure of samples of the UNICEF Christmas cards and took orders from members.

Mrs. Dorothy Brown read a letter from provincial president, Mrs. Margaret Ashdown, congratulating the club on the success of their Autumn Friendship Night Dinner. She also outlined the club's aims and objectives.

NEW MEMBERS

Mrs. Jane McCabe and Miss Dawn Woods were installed as new members by Miss Jean Stephenson and were welcomed to the club by the president.

Mrs. Osborne Bath, corresponding secretary, read an article from the newspaper Business Women's West October 30-31. She also read a letter of resignation from Miss Evelyn Coulter which was accepted with regret.

Mrs. Kathleen Lambert gave her report on Business Women's Week. She stated that 13 members and one guest attend. ed the church parade and luncheon on Sunday and that she had placed the cards in the store windows and sold the car stickers advertising Business Woman's Week. She mentioned that she was particularly pleased with the response of the local merchants.

WEDDING

HODGE — LOVE

Rev. R. A. Sinclair, B.A., was the officiating minister at the wedding of Donna Lamoine Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Love, Madoc, to Wayne Frank Hodge of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Hodge, on October 12th at St. John's Presbyterian Church, Madoc. The church was decorated with baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and white gladioli. - Mrs. Irena Crawford was organist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride looked lovely in a full-length white velvet gown with fitted bodice featuring a round neckline, long pointed sleeves, and a small bow at the waist line. The skirt was softly pleated at the sides and back and fell to a slight train. Her headdress of white orchids held a shoulder length veil of white tulle trimmed with lace. She carried a semi-cascade of red roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. David Love of Oshawa in lime, a street length bliss velvet dress with a softly gathered skirt. Her headdress was a white feathered band holding a short veil in place. Blue shoes and white gloves completed the costume. She carried a nosegay of pink and white 'mums centred with pink roses.

Groomsman was Mr. Ronald Wood of Oshawa, and the ushers were Fred Hodge of Trenton and David Love of Oshawa.

A reception was held at the church parlors where the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered pillared wedding cake surrounded by tulle with yellow flowers and the wedding bouquets.

The bride's mother received in a blue brocade sheath with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who wore a beige brocade sheath with brown accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

For a wedding trip to Algonquin Park and other points of interest in Northern Ontario the bride chose a three piece double knit blue wool suit with white accessories, and a corsage of white 'mums.

Out of town guests were present from London, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Trenton, Belleville, Marmora and Whitby.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodge will reside at 210 Church Street, Oshawa.

WIDDIS — HALL

A pretty fall wedding was solemnized in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville on Saturday, October 5th, when Joanne May Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hall, Belleville was united in marriage to John Arthur Widdis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Widdis, Brockville R.R. 3. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell officiated before a background of white mums and white gladioli. Traditional wedding music was rendered the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full-length gown of real silk faille with the bodice fashioned in a tulip design formed by three deep horizontal pleats coming to a bateau neckline and having cap sleeves outlined with French guipure lace. The nipped waistline was accented by a wide band of guipure lace to the unpressed pleated bell skirt ending in a chapel train. Her four-tier silk illusion veil was held in place by a matching crown of faille and guipure lace edged with seed pearls. A single strand of cultured pearls a gift from the bridegroom completed the bridal ensemble. She carried a bouquet of pink sensation roses and feathered carnations.

Miss Dorothy Benedict, Belleville R.R. 5, as maid of honor and Miss Linda White, Kingston, cousin of the bride and Miss Barbara Widdis, R.R. 3 Brockville, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids, were gowned alike in pomegranate red peau taffeta with the bodices featuring scoop necklines, elbow-length sleeves and styled along princess lines. They wore tiny matching crowns with seed pearls and matching shoes. Each carried a bouquet of large white commercial 'mums and white shasta 'mums.

Mr. Dean B. Pond, Belleville was groomsman, while Mr. Peter Hall, cousin of the bride and Mr. E. M. (Ted) Moore of Prescott were the ushers.

A reception was held in St. Thomas parish house where the bride's table was prettily appointed with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a champagne glass filled with miniature pink roses to match the bridal bouquet. The colorful bridal bouquets added to the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a turquoise dress of satin brocade with matching accessories and a corsage of pink sensation roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a three-piece suit of dark brown boucle wool, beige accessories and a corsage of bronze miniature roses.

For the wedding trip to the Laurentians and the northern United States the bride chose a beige English wool suit with fox collar, beige hat, dark brown leather bag, shoes and gloves and a solitaire orchid corsage.

Guests were present from Kingston, Brockville, Lindsay, Ottawa, Peterborough, Prescott and Vancouver.

Previous to the marriage a shower was held by Mrs. Betty Cowan of Belleville, also a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Albert Wright, Kingston; a presentation by the staff in the registrar's office of Queen's University when the bride was the recipient of a fruit dish and at a presentation held by the Belleville Se-ne-ca Club of which the bride is a past president, whom she received a pyrex serving set. Mr. and Mrs. Widdis are residing at 128; Collingwood St., Kingston.

Remove False Labels P.C. President Tells Local Association

By GILBERTS WARD

"We must: first: cast off the false labels, either: traditional: parties have: planned: on us," Mrs. Ellen Rose Smith, National President of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, told the women of the local association at a reception and tea given for her at the Kinsmen Centre on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Smith, who has travelled over 32,000 miles by car; not including planes, travel, was accompanied on this part of her trip by Miss Mary Metherland, president of Eastern District No. 2, and Mrs. Dorothy Dowling, national organizer of the Women's PC Association.

Her trip had been spread with happy memories. Mrs. Smith told the audience, and she was particularly impressed with the genuine and true friendship and hospitality of the Belleville women. She congratulated them on the good job they had done in the Ontario election.

SENSE OF BELONGING:

"It is important that you feel part of a great national political party," said Mrs. Smith. "We must accommodate the sense of belonging to the participating people from our destiny with a renewed sense of direction.

"We have a tradition forever to bring sanity and dignity in the area of public thinking. The past week has been hysteria in Ottawa, there is confusion in the House of Commons, many parties there are in Ottawa. By planning false charges on the Progressive Conservative party the other parties hope to confuse, divide and conquer the Canadian people at election time. We must eliminate such strategy from political thinking.

EDUCATE WOMEN:

"We have been called in hard times party. There never was a time of such prosperity. The Ontario government was the first to recognize the advantages of the offer by the 1961 federal government to pay 75 per cent of capital costs for building vocational schools. This was the most magnificent achievement of the Federal government while it was in power. We cannot afford to let any individual work below his capacity. There are great demands from students trying to enter these schools, with 1,500 applications from girls in Windsor alone, when only 150 could be selected. As one school principal put it, 'When you educate a man you educate a individual; but when you educate a woman you educate a family.'

INDOCTRINATE CHILDREN:

"Mothers indoctrinate their children with their attitudes, and it is important that these attitudes be educated ones. Children have a choice of 17,000 new jobs never available in former generations. So, you can justify defeat: this backlining of vocational schools.

"You hear: that there is no difference between the old parties. This is another attempt to divided and conquer. The not draw inward in your thinking. Be right and right enough circle. You should: be clear in your thinking and work at it.

"Negative thinking is often the fate of the party in opposition as we were for years in the Federal government, and it sometimes deteriorates into tearing down. We must enrich our thinking: to the positive side. We have a golden opportunity and we must be ready for the return of the Progressive Conservatives at Ottawa.

"We must pay our fair share of campaign costs, and now is the time to prepare. The life of all parties is membership. We should be constantly working on the spirit of unity within the party."

The speaker was introduced by Miss Kay McFarland and appreciation was expressed by Mrs. Rhoda Gray, president of the local association.

Mrs. H. Yorke convened the reception and tea. The rooms had been attractively decorated with autumn colors of red and gold leaves, and cornopeia arranged with fruits, by a committee of Mrs. S. Howell, Mrs. T. Orr, Mrs. P. Murray, Mrs. J. Matthews and Miss Helen Salman.

Receiving the guests at the door were Mrs. R. Sandercock, Mrs. L. Grills, Mrs. W. Gray, Mrs. Harrison Smith, Mrs. Dorothy Downing, Miss K. McFarland and Mrs. M. B. Weese, who was the first president of the local association.

The tea table was charming by appointed with an oval scalloped cloth, silver tea services, tri-branched silver candelables with dark red candles flecked with gold, and a centre piece of bronze and gold 'mums and fern arrangement in a gold container. Pouring tea were Mrs. J. Stock, Mrs. R. Potter, Mrs. J. Broad and Mrs. J. Ireland. The hostesses were Mrs. H. Rollins, Mrs. M. Tugnett, Mrs. J. Musgrove, Mrs. G. Gibbons and Mrs. H. Ellery.

RECEIVING LINE — At yesterday's meeting of the Belleville Women's Progressive Conservative Association held at the Kiwanis Centre included Mrs. Dorothy Downing, Toronto, National Director; Mrs. Lee Grills Progressive Conservative Association of Canada; Mrs. Wesley Gray, Belleville president, and Mrs. M. B. Weese, past president and organizer of the local women's PC Association many years ago.

Two Women Deal With Bilingualism

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Montreal women writers, one French-speaking and one English - speaking, have come to grips in a moving, reminine manner with the French fact in Quebec in a book called Deux Enemies published here Wednesday—in both languages.

The book is a dialogue in letter form between journalist Solange Chaput-Rolland and novelist Gwethalyn Graham, stemming from their meeting on a peace train of women to Ottawa a year ago.

Contrary to the title, the two women became good friends instantly. But in their letters they let off plenty of steam.

Solange Chaput-Rolland is a member of the national executive of Voice of Women.

Both admit that parts of the were based on their own experiences, feelings and ideas rather than on research.

Among points raised by Miss Graham that impressed Mrs. Chaput-Rolland were the lack of patience showed by many French - speaking Canadians when English-Canadians tried to speak French, and the necessity of French-Canada to provide teachers of French for, English Canada to provide a truly bilingual nation.

Miss Graham found from Mrs. Roland - Chaput's letters "the depth of the obstacles French - Canadians are up against when forced to speak a language that is not their own in the provinces of Quebec—and outside the province, where Solange described an incident when she was asked to "speak white."

Lady Home Says Hubby Is Not a 'Faceless Man' Nor 'Proud Aristocrat'

By LYNNE EDMUNDS

LONDON (Reuters) — Lady Elizabeth Douglas-Home says she regrets her husband had to renounce his titles after becoming Britain's new prime minister.

But at her first press conference in the premier's official residence at 10 Downing Street Wednesday, she explained:

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home renounced his 20th-year-old Scottish peerage as the Earl of Home plus three baron's titles, one dating back to 1472. He remains a Knight of the Thistle. Unlike the titles he renounced, the knighthood is not hereditary.

The prime minister's wife, in her mid-50s, was relaxed in the wake of the political turmoil of the last few days.

"My husband is not as he is painted," she explained. "He is not the 'faceless man' nor the 'proud aristocrat.'

DON'T UNDERESTIMATE

"He is a warm and sympathetic person. I think he is very much like the average Englishman—or Briton—but people underestimate him at their peril."

Lady Douglas - Home was dressed discreetly in a flannel grey two-piece suit with a pearl necklace. She wore bright pink nail polish and lipstick.

"I am not a worrier," she said. "My only concern is that we won't see much of him now."

The Douglas - Home family, with a son 19, and three daughters all in their 20s, will have little time for their two country homes in Scotland—one a shooting lodge and the other a modernized 23-bedroom house that

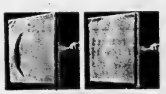
Now a tissue so big, strong and absorbent

YOU CAN USE IT ALL DAY,

like a handkerchief!

100% Canadian Product

That's why Man-Size Facelle Royale saves you money... saves washing and ironing, too!



People who've tried Facelle Royale Man-Size say it's so good, it makes the handkerchief old-fashioned! Women especially love Man-Size Facelle because of its special softness and absorbency. And thanks to its generous size—one foot square—and 3-ply thickness, you can use one again and again—just like a handkerchief. Think of the washing and ironing it saves. And since one Man-Size Facelle Royale does the job of several ordinary tissues, a box lasts longer and you save money!

These unretouched pictures show why no ordinary tissue can compare with Man-Size Facelle Royale...

MUCH SOFTER!

Magnified six times, Facelle Royale is made a different way—77% thicker than 2-ply tissues with more "give" to it. It has the softness of cashmere ... much more gentle to your skin.

MUCH STRONGER!

A strong jet of moist air goes right through an ordinary tissue.

Facelle's strength is remarkable. Because it's 3-ply tissue, it doesn't come apart—even when you blow your nose hard. Facelle stands up under use and goes further.

NEW "TWIN PACK"!

This exclusive new box breaks in half to give you two handy boxes! Keeps each tissue clean and neatly folded, like a freshly laundered handkerchief. Use one box in bedroom or bathroom, one in kitchen or car.

Once you try Facelle Royale you'll never use ordinary tissues again!

Rice Flour and Ground Rice Recipes for Patients Allergic to Wheat Flour

By MARY MOORE

First I should be sure to say these recipes are delicious for those who do not have wheat flour allergies. They are priceless for those who do and both were carefully tested by me.

Mrs. D. A. H. wrote asking me for any rice flour recipes I might have.

I bought my ground rice and rice flour in eight - oz. yellow boxes in the spice section of a large supermarket. You can buy them in large drug stores or drug departments of department stores too.

LITTLE RICE CAKES:

½ lb. ground rice (⅛ cup less 1 tablespoon,) ¾ cup butter, ¾ cup less 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 egg.

Cream butter. Cream in sugar. Beat in egg until smooth. Beat in ground rice. Drop by teaspoonfuls 2½" apart on buttered cookie sheet. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. about 30 minutes, or until edges begin to turn golden.

The above are made with ground rice — coarser than rice flour. This grainy texture is characteristic of them and desirable by English folk who know them well.

The next recipe is an adaptation of Hot Milk Sponge Cake and is made with fine rice flour. It worked and I was delighted for Mrs. D.A.H.'s sake and for the sake of others who have wheat allergies.

HOT MILK SPONGE CAKE (using rice flour):

1 cup sifted rice flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 6 tablespoons hot milk.

Sift rice flour once, measure, add baking powder and sift together three times. Beat eggs until very thick and light and nearly white (10 minutes). Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add lemon juice. Fold in flour mixture, a small amount at a time. Add milk, stirring until batter is smooth. Turn, at once into ungreased tube pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes, or until when touched with fingertip cake springs back. Remove from oven and invert pan one hour or until cake is thoroughly cold.

This mixture may be baked in one lightly greased 8 x 8 x 2" pan or in standard loaf pan.

BOSLIN — Mr. and Mrs. John Cross were honored recently by their family on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary, when their children and their families, and their brothers and sisters met at their home to spend the evening with them and to present them with a number of beautiful gifts and wish them many happy years of married life together.

Mr. and Mrs. Cross (the former Janice McLennan) of Croton, Ont., were married in Toronto by the Rev. Whitehead.

They have five children (all married): Phyllis (Mrs. Jack Skelly, Plainfield; Sam of Roslin; (Doreen) Mrs. Stan Weston, Thurlow; (Audentia) Mrs. Boyle, Prince Edward County, and (Maxine) Mrs. Tom Lewis of Belleville, and 11 grandchildren.

Guests were present from Elma, a suburb of Buffalo, N.Y.; Belleville, Prince Edward County, Cannifton and surrounding districts.

Wife Preservers

If, in reducing a recipe, you find it calls for half an egg, you may safely beat a whole egg and use half of it, use one small egg, or one just the right.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart B. Housman

One of the things that Dad tried to teach me was to trust people and to expect the best of them. I remember a time when I was a little boy and I had a fight with another boy. I came home and told my father that I had hit the boy because he had called me a name. My father looked at me and said, "Son, I don't care what he called you. You don't hit people because they call you names. You hit people because you want to hurt them."

North American, in particular, is a society that tends to do what it pleases. They tell it what to do. Our society is a highly developed, pre-organized, pre-chewed society. We are told what to think, what to believe, what to buy, what to eat, what to wear, what to drink, what to smoke, what to read, what to see, what to hear, what to say, what to do, what to be, what to SPEAKING of MANNERS

ENTAILS OBLIGATIONS

Joined any committees lately? If so, let's hope you're prepared to do something about it.

Very often a woman will agree to serve on a committee for a club, a school or a charity, thinking it's the "right" thing to do. Of course it is. But many forget that when they accept membership on a committee they also accept an obligation to do some of the work the committee was formed to do.

Unfortunately, there are a few silkberti gibbets who say "yes" when asked to serve, and that's the last word the chairmen ever hear from them again.

Actually, being asked to serve on a committee is an honor, and in most cases, you're expected to lend not only your name but also some elbow grease. It's very discourteous to accept the appointment but reject the responsibilities that go with it.

If you've been thinking about joining a committee — whether it's Hospitality, Ways and Means, or a committee for a special event such as a dance or a luncheon — here are a few reminders about the etiquette of following through successfully and fruitfully.

In the first place, work on a committee does require a certain amount of time. If you can't handle an assignment that means many hours away from home, accept one that can easily be managed, without stirring from the hearthside. For instance, if you can't run around tracking down decorations for a dance, then accept an assignment to keep tabs on reservations and seating arrangements over the telephone.

HONOR-BOUND TO ATTEND

Meetings must be held occasionally, and a committee member is honor-bound to attend. If there's a serious reason why a member can't, then she should submit a report in writing, so the chairman will know how her phase of the operation is progressing. Except for an emergency, though, committee members should plan to attend meetings promptly and have facts and figures ready for presentation, so others won't be inconvenienced by delay.

Making reports is another part of committee work. A report should be brief, to the point, and delivered in a clear voice without distracting "ers" and "ums." If you can't remember all the details without referring to notes, then by all means simply read from the report, itself. This certainly is preferable to citing a point about expense, for instance, then taking agonizing minutes sifting through piles of material to find a substantiating figure. It's often easier to make a digest of the report first, giving highlights, then reading off figures, as a finale, to bolster your contention.

Actually, doing committee work can be stimulating and it does keep you in social contact with others in the group whom you might not see otherwise. It can be satisfying to you personally, and to the organization to which you belong, providing you work for the committee and don't take the attitude that it's supposed to work for you.

ways of your fathers.

"In fact, we are afraid that anyone trying to live off the local chaparral-covered mountains would soon die of starvation or appearance of a Sioux war pony after a hard Dakota winter," Lewis wrote.

He invited her to take a vacation in one of the forest's public campgrounds.

Interviewed at her modest apartment, White Hawk turned out to be a slim, attractive young widow whose long, dark braids are her only Indian characteristics.

She came to the point with her problem, and in faultless English.

JUST A LURE

"That make-believe Indian was just a way of getting the rangers to read my letter," she explained.

"The books of civilization to me are like a bridle to a horse.

"I want to get out and live like my ancestors did and escape from the pressures of modern - day living. The trouble is, I just don't have anyplace to go."

White Hawk, 32, says she was born among the Indians in Wyoming, but because she can't document her Chippewa heritage, she can't qualify for government land available to Indians.

She has two sons, Walking Bear, 4, and Black Cloud, 2.

"I've lived in a wigwam before and grew up in the open country. I want to prove to myself and to everyone that it can still be done. Besides, living in the out of doors is more healthful.

"I've suffered from an ulcer for years."

Greek Awarded Nobel Prize For Literature

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Greek poet Giorgos Seferis was awarded the 1963 Nobel Prize in literature today. Seferis, 63-year-old diplomat, is the first Greek ever to receive a Nobel Prize.

The Swedish Royal Swedish Literary Academy said that Seferis was awarded the 265,000 crown (about $37,100) prize "for his eminent lyrical writing, inspired by a deep feeling for the Hellenic world of culture."

"Seferis' poetic production is not great in size, but because of its unique thought and style, and its beauty of language, it has become a lasting symbol of all that is indestructible in the Hellenic acceptance of life," the academy's permanent secretary, Dr. Anders Osterling, said in his citation.

Seferis—pen name for Giorgos Seferiades—was born in Smyrna in then Greek (now Turkish) Asia Minor Feb. 22, 1900.

In 1914 his family had to flee to Athens. From the end of the First World War to 1924 Seferis studied in Paris, and in 1926 joined the Greek diplomatic service.

His first appointment was in London in 1931. He left London only a few months ago, after three years as ambassador to settle in Greece again. In the Second World War he served the free Greek exile government in South Africa, Egypt, Palestine, London and Italy.

Ann Landers

Early Years Most Important Ones in Child's Development

ANN LANDERS

DEAR READERS — Parents often write and ask me what makes some children turn out well and some badly. Why do some youngsters grow up to be responsible, loving, well-adjusted adults while others seem to lose their way?

There are no pat answers to these questions. Heredity is undeniably a factor but there is more and more evidence to support the theory that a child is the net result of what happens to him in his early years.

The following piece came in the mail from a reader. It was signed "Author Unknown," and I would like to share it with you.

If a child lives with criticism he learns to condemn.
If a child lives with hostility he learns to fight.
If a child lives with fear he learns to be apprehensive.
If a child lives with pity he learns to feel sorry for himself.
If a child lives with jealousy he learns to hate.
If a child lives with encouragement he learns to be confident.
If a child lives with praise he learns to be appreciative.
If a child lives with acceptance he learns to love.
If a child lives with approval he learns to like himself.
If a child lives with recognition he learns to have a goal.
If a child lives with fairness he learns justice.
If a child lives with honesty he learns what truth is.
If a child lives with friendliness he learns that the world is a nice place in which to live.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a Navy wife whose husband is on a Polaris submarine riding the sixth patrol. My man is gone 14 weeks and is home for 10 weeks.

My two children are in school so they don't require much time or attention. I read, sew, clean, shop, bowl, swim, watch TV and go to the movies but still I get lonely, especially for male companionship.

It is no secret that some Navy wives run around. Everyone knows who these women are. In some cases their husbands know and are willing to forgive and forget. I don't think my husband would be so broad-minded (or lion-hearted) if I stepped out on him.

So far I've been 100% faithful but it's becoming increasingly difficult not to wink back — if you know what I mean. Please help. — A POLARIS WIFE.

DEAR WIFE — To cheat or not to cheat — that is the question which faces almost all married people at one time or another. Disenchantment, or in some cases plain boredom, causes much of the straying.

Thousands of sad and sorry people have written to tell me they paid a dear price for what they had meant to be only a little fun. The ability to play it straight pays handsome dividends in long-term profits, my dear. This is what separates the girls from the women.

DEAR ANN — I was disappointed in your all-out knock for dancing schools.

You said, "Take that 11-year-old kid out of that silly dancing school and put him in a Y.M.C.A. swimming class."

Just because the kids got into a kissing game at a party for the dancing class was no reason to bum-rap the school. Where were the parents when this foolishness was going on? It is their fault, not the fault of the dancing school.

Please set the record straight. Thank you. — STILL BOILING.

DEAR BOILING — Dancing is fun, lovely, beautiful, esthetic, healthy, and I do it myself. But I am not in favor of 11-year-old boys taking lessons in ballroom dancing. It puts youngsters in an adult type of setting which is unnatural.

You are right, however, in saying the parents and not the school were to blame for that "Heaven or Hell" game. Those kids should not have been without adult supervision.

Trustees Given Massive Powers to Run SIU and Other Great Lakes Unions

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may act as a government or as a ship owner in any legal action against the Seafarers' International Union of Canada for inciting an illegal strike.

As a government, it can invoke the powers set out in the Maritime Transportation Unions Trustees Act, taking over "control and management" of the SIU by appointing three trustees in whom full authority over union affairs would be vested.

The Trusteeship Act, approved by Parliament, gives the trustees massive powers to run the SIU and four other Great Lakes labor unions.

The government is a ship owner because the National Harbors Board has contracts with the SIU for the crews of NHB tugs in Montreal. The tug crews walked off their jobs with other unions and have refused to return to their ships in response to a government back-to-work order.

Thus the government could act on behalf of the National Harbors Board under the provisions of the Canada Shipping Act dealing with desertion or being absent without leave.

MAY ACT AS SHIP

Under the Trusteeship Act, the three government trustees are empowered to "manage and control each of the maritime unions and do all things necessary or advisable for the return of the management and control of each of the maritime unions to duly elected and responsible officers of such unions at the earliest date consistent with the lawful and public interests of Canada."

Their powers and duties include:

1. Promotion of the establishment of advisory councils of seamen to help the trustees do their job.

2. Promotion of joint advisory councils of seamen and ship owners to develop good relations "except those voluntarily associated with collective bargaining."

3. Recommend changes in the constitution or by-laws of the unions to ensure "more efficient, effective or direct control of the union by the members."

4. Exercise "all the powers of the officers of the union under the constitution and by-laws of such union."

CAN NAME OFFICERS

5. Designate officers or union members as bargaining committees to negotiate collective agreements.

6. Remove or suspend any officer or employee of the union and appoint replacements.

In doing their work, the trustees may spend union money, borrow money, sell union property and execute in the name of the union "all required deeds, assurances, receipts and other instruments" as long as they do so within the constitution or by-laws of the union.

But they also have the power to demand papers, books, records or documents dealing with the unions. Failure to produce such records renders offenders liable to fines of $100 a day plus a jail sentence not exceeding one year.

The trustees can seek a court warrant to enter and search, if necessary by force, "any place for any papers, books, records or documents."

Under one provision of the Trusteeship Act, any persons who obstructs or hinders the trustees or their delegated representatives is guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction and is liable to a fine not exceeding $10,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to both fine and imprisonment.

HITS INTERFERENCE

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Lesage Wednesday attacked "interference" by the United States government and labor unions in Canadian affairs. There is a "very strong feeling across Canada that it is time for the Americans to stop trying to run our affairs in Canada," he told reporters. Mr. Lesage had made a similar statement during a television interview in Philadelphia Monday.

Ginny Hovers Off Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Ginny lashed Florida's upper east coast with gales today as she crept a little closer to land.

But the weather bureau said Ginny probably wouldn't whip ashore within the next 12 hours. Even if she did, forecaster Gordon Dunn said, "there should be no major damage."

Ginny's peak winds of 75 miles an hour barely qualified her as a hurricane.

The weather bureau predicted a course 30 to 100 miles offshore parallel to the Florida coast.

After a brief pause during the night about 100 miles east of Cape Canaveral, Ginny started northwestward at five miles an hour. But the danger wasn't over and the weather bureau maintained a hurricane watch from Cape Canaveral to Brunswick, Ga.

J. J. Vaughan, Formerly With Eaton's, Dies

TORONTO (CP)—John James Vaughan, 81, former vice-president of T. Eaton Company Limited, died here Wednesday.

Mr. Vaughan, a native of Toronto, joined Eaton's in 1900 and was appointed secretary in 1907. He was made a director 10 years later and in 1933 was made a vice-president.

When he retired in 1942, his brother, O. D. Vaughan, succeeded him as vice-president and held the post until retirement in 1961.

Another brother, R. C. Vaughan of Montreal, was president of the Canadian National Railways from 1942 to 1950.

The year after his retirement, J. J. Vaughan became a director of the Bank of Toronto, now the Toronto-Dominion Bank. In 1943 he was appointed a member of the royal commission on co-operatives.

New Brunswick Youngsters Given Opportunity to Express Their Theatrical Talent

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. (CP) — Until five years ago the young people of New Brunswick had little opportunity to express their theatrical talent. Seldom were they afforded the chance to study live theatre first hand. Opportunity came with the establishment of the province's first professional summer stock theatre, at Deer Island in the Bay of Fundy near the Maine-New Brunswick border.

In 1959 Philip Wentworth of New York and Miami and a company of 15 professional New York actors opened a small theatre on the island.

It seated only 250 and the stage was cramped. But the setting had a historic flavor. The building had been used for more than 50 years as a rural school. At various times before that it had been a community hall, a recruiting station for the British Army.

In the room where the cast put on their makeup the Redcoats had been briefed before attacking the Irish radical. Plans more than 100 years earlier.

STUDENTS TUTORED

In the first year Wentworth hired and tutored 10 high school students. Most received their backstage and onstage training and played bit parts. And if the surroundings didn't inspire all of them, the proximity to live drama certainly did.

After one season a theatre tent was attached to the building, increasing seating capacity to 250 and more than doubling the stage area.

The playhouse was forced to move from its island location after four years because water transportation became difficult to get audiences to the performances.

But by then word had spread that here was a chance to learn about the theatre from the inside. And when the theatre opened in the Milltown Elementary School auditorium near here last July, Wentworth was besieged with requests from all parts of the Maritimes for parts in his productions.

Some asked to work for nothing just to be able to live and work in a theatrical atmosphere.

IMPORTANT TO YOUNG

This attitude is one that Wentworth understands and approves.

"I was very young when I first went into the theatre," he says, "and I know how important the expression of theatrical talent can be to a young person."

His career dates back to the 1920s when he appeared in a number of Broadway productions. After serving in the Marines in the Second World War he returned to the stage and founded the U.S. with stock companies.

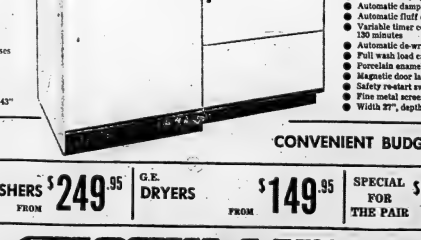
He left in 1954 to set up a boys' school at Kennebec, Me., and continued there until 1958.

After a year of preparation the Chocolate Cove Playhouse opened on Deer Island in 1959.

When the Chocolate Cove Players open their sixth season next summer more than 30 high school students and graduates will have passed through at least one season of theatre.

"The experience one gains after years of footlights and temperaments is the standard by which the theatre world judges an actor or actress," Wentworth says, "but I feel the youthful enthusiasm of a young hopeful is of as much value to the theatre, or maybe more, than experience."

HOLD CANADIANS



RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—A Montreal couple have been arrested by Brazilian police in connection with a $145,000 Royal Mail armored car robbery, at Mont Lorient, near Montreal, last year Interpol announced Wednesday. They were identified as Leopold Desmarais, and his 24-year-old wife, Lise. Police said the couple probably would be returned to Canada.

SIU's

ers of the four other marine unions under trusteeship to come to Ottawa today for individual meetings with the trustees.

2. Appealed to the 2,000 striking SIU members to "return to their ships so that all ships now idle will be moving without delay."

3. Promised to protect all the constitutional and collective bargaining rights of the 22,000 Canadian sailors, engineers and deck officers covered by the unprecedented takeover law.

USE VELVET GLOVES

The trustees are Mr. Justice Victor Leonard Dryer, 52, Vancouver; Judge Rene Lippe, 53, Montreal, and retired union leader Charles H. Millard, 67, Toronto—dressed velvet gloves for their first moves into the lawless, corrupt and violent waterfront labor crisis.

Armed with powers no other men in Canada possess, the three were obviously trying to resolve the most critical problem first—restoring shipping to normal on the Great Lakes and the East Coast before it begins to strangle Canada's grain shipments overseas.

"We are convinced that sanctity of contract is a key question and the ultimate test of shipping contravenes union-management responsibility to abide by the terms of agreements entered into in good faith by management and a union alike," they declared in a joint statement.

"We are convinced a vast majority of the maritime union members will co - operate. We ask them to return to their ships so that all ships now idle will be moving without delay."

There was no reference to the government's back-to-work order or to Labor Minister Mac-Eachen's view that the SIU protest strike involving some 3,000 ships is illegal and in defiance of the law of Canada.

CONCEAL MUSCLES

Nor was there any flexing of muscles under the provisions of the trusteeship which makes any person who obstructs or hinders the trustees' work liable to fines of $10,000 or jail terms of two years.

"I long ago learned that the first thing you do is get to know the facts, then you check the law, then you decide what you're going to do," said Mr. Justice Dryer, a Supreme Court judge in British Columbia for the last three months, said on arriving.

"I haven't done either of those yet."

After his three-hour session with Mr. MacEachen and his fellow trustees—all strangers to one another until their Ottawa encounter—the Vancouver jurist emerged to hand reporters a prepared statement.

"I do not wish to complicate this statement," he said. "We want it to go out just in this form to the people involved."

A few minutes later, he emerged again from the minister's office and said:

"On behalf of the trustees and myself, I'm sending out a message to the heads of each of the unions involved asking them to meet the other members of the board of trustees and myself."

Finally, he disclosed that the meeting would be on an individual basis at first. The site would be a downtown hotel.

UNITE LAWYERS

"We may see fit to bring them, all together later if they will come but we want to see them individually to see what their individual views are."

He said he and his fellow trustees went over the trusteeship act, then held a private meeting among themselves and concluded that the act provides ample protection for all constitutional and collective bargaining rights of all marine union members.

The trustees also discussed the machinery of the trusteeship including where they would have their headquarters. They said Montreal would be a probable site.

"The trustees have looked at the act," he said, "and we've come to the conclusion that it doesn't represent a danger to the trade unions or trade unionists. We have assured the trade unions our interests in the well-being of their members and we have suggested that they should—as all unions I've known do—have concern for the sanctity of contract.

"In view of that, we have asked the boys to go back to their ships. We hope they'll do that."

MOVE SWIFTLY

Wednesday's events moved at a breathless pace.

At 3:28 p.m. EDT, Mr. MacEachen announced in the Commons that the trusteeship legislation, approved overwhelmingly by Parliament earlier, had been put into effect by the cabinet.

It was the crucial step in a dramatic sequence of events that began more than three hours ago in union skirmishing on the Great Lakes and headed to a climax with the startling findings of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris that the SIU was a lawless, corrupt union headed by a ruthless, cruel, power-hungry dictator, the American-born Mr. Hall.

It was the crucial step in a dramatic sequence of events that began more than three hours ago in union skirmishing on the Great Lakes and headed to a climax with the startling findings of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris that the SIU was a lawless, corrupt union headed by a ruthless, cruel, power-hungry dictator, the American-born Mr. Hall.

Mr. Justice Norris proposed public trusteeship as the only workable method of cleaning up the SIU, eliminating abuses within the union and finally restoring it to its 15,000 members as a free, democratic organization.

APPLIES TO OTHERS

The trusteeship law applies not only to the SIU, which was expelled in 1960 by the Canadian Labor Congress and is an outcast among Canada's organized labor, but also to:

1. The 500 sailors in the Canadian Maritime Union, a fledgling rival of the SIU.

2. The 2,500 deck officers in the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

3. The 150 marine engineers in the National Association of Marine Engineers, and

4. Some 3,000 sailors and engineers in 13 marine locals of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The four unions—all exclusively Canadian in character and leadership in contrast to the SIU—willingly accepted the federal trusteeship. All are affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress, which has pledged to co-operate with the trustees in their task.

MacEachen's announcement of the proclamation move was greeted with approval from opposition spokesmen.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker praised the action and the quality of the trustees.

"We in this Parliament—without regard to party—will uphold the rule of law in this country, will join together to ensure that the laws passed by Parliament the elected representatives of the people, shall not be flouted or mocked by cavalier action of anyone, however, powerful.

"I want the House to know that is our attitude."

Wilson

but is expected to take his seat provided he wins what is considered a safe constituency in a Scottish by-election Nov. 7.

The 39-year-old Benn, wearing his customary red tie, had just been formally installed when Wilson opened his attack on the new prime minister, installed during the weekend after a two-week leadership crisis.

The peers' bill enabling titled persons to disclaim their peerage resulted largely from Benn's long struggle for legislation enabling him to become a commoner.

TRIED TO TURN TABLES

Selwyn Lloyd, making his comeback on the government front bench as house leader, joined in to turn the argument against Wilson.

Lloyd said many opposition members seemed embarrassed by Wilson's references to Benn.

The hard-hitting nature of Labor's attack on Sir Alec-Home was symbolized by backbencher Emanuel Shinwell's comment that Wilson was a better minister than a Scottish aristocrat — and a "Scottish aristocrat is the worst of all aristocrats."

Lloyd denied Wilson's accusation. Sir Alec-Home had not consulted the cabinet on the question of postponement of the new session of Parliament for two weeks until Nov. 12 while he contests the byelection.

"It was a personal decision of an immediate general election," Lloyd said: "We are ready to fight on the line we took."

This was greeted with Labor laughter and cries of "now."

Lloyd also told Sir Alec-Home was showing no disrespect for Parliament by not attending its opening until he himself could lead the debate on the government's new legislative program.

TENSION HIGH

Parliament reassembled in an atmosphere of high political tension. Both parties and Conservatives faced each other again in the Commons and the Lords.

What was to have been a decorous ceremony to close out the old session threatened from time to explode into a full-scale political impasse. Conservative and Labor leaders rallied their full parliamentary strength. The House of Commons was packed.

But the Conservatives were without their new 60 - year - old leader in the House of Lords. Douglas-Home, who shed his six ancient titles Wednesday, had at least the right to the right to sit in the House of Lords, and until he is elected cannot sit in the Commons.

While the Commons debate raged on, the peers took a vote on the Labor motion. As expected, it failed by a vote of 101 to 32—a Conservative winning margin of 69.

The Conservative Marquess of Salisbury accused Wilson of acting not in the interests of the nation but for party gain.

Former P.M. Goes for Drive After Operation

LONDON (Reuters) — Former Prime Minister Macmillan left hospital today for the first time since his operation two weeks ago and went for a drive.

The 69 - year - old statesman was brought to the hospital door in a wheelchair and was assisted into the car by nurses.

"I'm feeling very well," Macmillan said, "but, just a little tired."

The car was driven by his wife, Lady Dorothy.

Macmillan underwent an operation for the removal of his prostate gland.

as soon as possible," he said.

The SIU walkout appeared to be having little effect on ocean traffic in Montreal, because ships did not need tugs to tie up at grain elevators, but a tie-up was reported at the Lakehead where lake freighters pick up western grain for trans - shipment to deep-sea ports.

ONE SHIP SAILS

The Victorious, a lake freighter manned by members of the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC), is the only vessel reported to have left the Lakehead with grain since last Saturday.

Ports on the Great Lakes, St. Lawrence River and the Atlantic coast were affected by the SIU walkout.

There were forecasts Wednesday night that a continuing strike would also affect shipments of paper and disrupt Montreal's installation for completion of the 1967 world's fair site.

Dredging of the St. Lawrence River for fill to complete the fair site came to a halt at midnight Saturday when SIU members who operate the dredges walked off the job.

Other phases of construction, such as the erection of a rock retaining wall around the island site, were far ahead as usual but Montreal's public works director, Lucien Saulnier, exclaimed fears the city could not meet the Dec. 15 deadline for completion of the site if the strike went on.

HIT PAPER MILLS

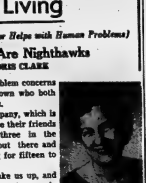
Montreal shipping officials said shipments of paper were piling up in St. Lawrence River ports and confusion delays could result in layoffs at pulp and paper mills in Quebec province.

Companies might have to be asked to curtail shipments of paper to arrange for adequate storage space.

"This is a critical period of the year for a seamen's walkout because of the weather," said one shipping company official.

"A sharp change causing freeze-up could hurt us and we'd never get the boats tied up for winter."

APPROVE TREATY



TOKYO (AP) — Communist China and Afghanistan have approved the draft of a border treaty, Peking radio reported Thursday. The broadcast gave no further details, but the treaty probably related to a narrow strip of Afghan territory that touches the border of Red China's Sinkiang province.

Neighbors Are Nighthawks

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — My problem concerns our neighbors a few doors down who both have loud and carrying voices.

Whenever they have company, which is often, they come outside to see their friends off, usually around two or three in the morning, and they stand out there and laugh and talk and even sing for fifteen to twenty minutes.

They never fail to wake us up, and seeing that we have to get up at seven in the morning to go to work, this can become very annoying.

How can I get it across to them to please be a little more considerate of their neighbors? — A VERY TIRED READER.

DEAR VERY TIRED — Let's try honey before vinegar. I'm tempted to suggest you drop in with an ice bar or an aspirin the next morning! But perhaps a casual call with the morning paper would be a more subtle way to establish the fact you don't think they are all bad.

A neighborly chat might include the information that you are terrible light sleepers and hear every sound that floats in your window. And be that this will surprise them —some people go out like a light!

If they don't get the message, let the police remind your song-happy friends that there are anti-noise laws.

Confidential to WELL WISHER — Thank you for your suggestions. I am discussing them with a physical culture specialist. Sometimes it is helpful when we have an old familiar idea expressed in completely new terms.

DEAR DORIS — How do you go about having a housewarming? — BRIDE BROWN.

DEAR BRIDIE — In a housewarming the spirit of good fellowship brings warmth to the atmosphere of a newly occupied home. So it's a party.

You plan entertainment which will make for laughs and togetherness; food to delight the palate. Get your invitations out, either by telephone or informal note, early enough to flatter the guest that it is important to have him.

Don't let it floor you. I'm sending you games and suggesting some menus. But if I were to suggest a single cautious word it would be, don't let your concern for food or furniture show in your face.

A cheery, enthusiastic host and hostess are head and shoulders better than a perfect cook and housekeeper. Be as ready ahead as you can be, then stay with your guests.

To HIT-OR-MISS REDUCER — Do you want a sudden reduction or do you want a slim figure for keeps? For health, the thing to do is to change eating habits, lose a pound or two a week until you are where you want to be, then keep it off. Send me a stamped envelope for the leaflet "Be Figure Perfect" which is a great help for taking off unseemly bumps by exercise — while you diet.

pected to buy and a mere trickle when compared to the $250,000,000 worth of wheat whose sale now appears clinched.

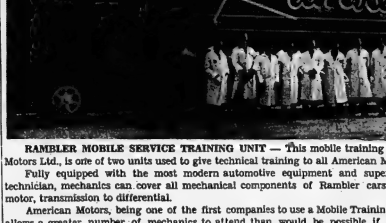
In giving advance approval of grain sales to the Soviet bloc, President Kennedy stipulated that shipments be made on American ships when they were available. Last Friday the commerce department exempted grains other than wheat from the requirement.

Russian officials are balking at the higher rates charged by American shippers—about 20 to 30 cents a bushel higher than foreign rates. This led to Wednesday's "courtesy" luncheon at the state department, although the United States had advised Moscow that the wheat deal ceased being a government matter once Kennedy had cleared the way for the sales.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government probably will ask the United States for discussions on wheat-pricing differences when it has more problems to clear up first, a trade department spokesman said Wednesday.

He was commenting on the suggestion from Henry Brodie of the U.S. state department's office of international resources who said such a meeting would be of mutual benefit.

Mr. Brodie was quoted as saying that he wanted talks to be to seek the meeting but his colleagues were too busy and that perhaps Canada should do the inviting.



Canada and the U.S. some time ago arranged wheat-sale consultations through a consultative committee which meets about every three months.

The Canadian spokesman said no new meeting is in sight. The Canadian government has a few matters of its own of pressing nature, but was without questioning specific cases such as the problem of keeping record wheat movements going to Russia and other European buyers despite a seamen's strike.

ARMS BUYERS HOAXED

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two anti-Castro revolutionaries confessed to police that $1,000 worth of arms they bought turned out to be concrete blocks and grass when they opened the wheat boxes. Police tracked down the sellers Wednesday. They returned the money. The buyers declined to press charges.

Wholesale Price of Sugar Hits Highest Level Since 1920 at $18 a Bag

MONTREAL (CP)—It's costing the consumer twice as much to satisfy his sweet tooth today as it was at the beginning of this year.

Last Jan. 1 the price of sugar at the local grocery store was 51 cents for a five-pound bag and 98 cents for a 10-pound sack. Now, the corresponding prices are $1.01 and $1.80.

The wholesale price of refined sugar hit its highest level since July, 1920, early this week when three major eastern refineries—St. Lawrence, Atlantic and Canada and Dominion—raised their price by $1.10 to $17.85 a 100-pound bag and then 15 cents to $18.

In July, 1920, the price reached an all-time high of $24 a 100-pound bag.

What's behind this tremendous increase?

IT'S SIMPLE LAW

The simple, economic law of supply and demand, says a refinery spokesman. If the consumer wants more of a commodity than is readily available, the price goes up.

Reason for the short supply are many, but the foremost among them are the devastation of the world's sugar crop by Hurricane Flora and a failure in the Indonesian sugar beet crop to keep pace with the normal increase in world consumption.

These developments have created a shortage on the world market, which in turn has sent sharply upward. A spokesman says refiners here buy sugar on the world market and so must pay the going price.

The spokesman said, however, there is no foreseen acute shortage occurring in Canada. As long as Canadians are willing to pay the price, the Commonwealth countries will supply Canada with sugar. Under the Commonwealth Sugar Agreement, these countries have agreed to reserve enough sugar to supply Canada's needs, he said.

Usually when the price of an item increases, the consumer will employ substitutes to avoid paying the high sugar. Under instance, if butter were to double in price, many consumers would switch to margarine.

But sugar is a basic commodity and has no substitute for domestic purposes.

Industrial users can offset higher sugar prices to a certain extent through the use of glucose—a thick, clearish, viscous liquid—in canning and jam and jelly manufacturing.

However, glucose manufacturers have been so hard-pressed to keep pace with the demand it couldn't supply the glucose for domestic use even if the demand existed.

A spokesman for a grocery chain said there has been no slackening of sugar sales.

There have been accusations in the House of Commons that price-fixing exists in the sugar industry, but refinery officials deny this.

"We follow the world price and there is nothing we can do about it," said one refinery spokesman. "The Canadian government cannot de..le what the world market price should be, that's for sure.

Diana Churchill Took Own Life Says Coroner

LONDON (AP)—A coroner ruled today that Sir Winston Churchill's daughter Diana, whose nude body was found in her home last Sunday, took her own life with an overdose of sleeping pills.

Coroner Gavin Thurston did not specifically call the death suicide, a legal term. He listed the cause of death as acute barbiturate poisoning, self-administered.

Mrs. Churchill, who resumed the use of her maiden name but retained the title of Mrs. after her divorce from Colonial Secretary Duncan Sandys, was 54.

Ironically, for the last 18 months her main interest in life had been working for an organization called the Samaritans, which seeks to dissuade people with a suicidal urge from killing themselves.

Miss Jean Lee, an associate in the organization, told the inquest Mrs. Churchill called her Saturday night and talked about future plans for their work with the group.

Dr. J. H. H. MacRae, Mrs. Churchill's doctor, said she called him at 1 a.m. Sunday and said she was worried about the effectiveness of her work with the Samaritans.

"She sounded quite rational," Dr. MacRae testified.

FOUND BY HOUSEKEEPER

The body was found in the bathroom of Mrs. Churchill's house in fashionable Belgravia a few hours later by her housekeeper, Mrs. Hilda Lucas.

"I got up at a quarter to seven Sunday morning," Mrs. Lucas said, "and saw the lights on outside Mrs. Churchill's bedroom. That was unusual.

"I pushed open the bathroom door and saw her lying there.

"I said to her 'oh madam, you are cold.' I felt her. She had no clothes on. I took the bottle off the rail and put it over her because she was so cold, as I thought.

"I did not think she was dead until I saw there was discolouration at the end of her face."

Mrs. Lucas said the level of a bottle of whisky which had been in Mrs. Churchill's room the night before had been lowered by at least a quarter.

Mrs. Churchill's marriage to Sandys in 1935 ended in divorce in 1960.

Their son, Julian, a lawyer, and one of their two daughters, Mrs. Edwina Dimbleby, were witnesses at the inquest.

Young Sandys said his mother had taken sleeping tablets for years and often had two or three drinks of whisky in an evening "but I have never seen her adversely affected by drink."

Red, White and Blue Travel System Outlined to Members Of CNR Pensioners' Assoc.

The dining room of the Club Canara was filled to near capacity on Tuesday as some 200 Canadian National Railway pensioners assembled for the fourth annual Belleville District pensioners' Association meeting.

Pensioners from all over the province were in attendance for the meeting, while several others were expected later in the afternoon.

Guest speaker J. Ken Fleming, Manager of Passenger Sales for Ridesu Area Headquarters, Belleville, gave a lengthy address on the Canadian National Railway's new Red, White and Blue travel system which will be going into effect on Sunday next.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Fleming said "our new approach to the passenger service and its successful implementation and operation will depend to a great extent on all persons either presently employed or on pension, on being fully and completely informed of the new system."

"You are all aware of the Red-White and Blue fares which have been in force in the Maritime Provinces and have proven most successful. The new plan was developed to level out the peaks and valleys of passenger travel by offering incentive fares."

Mr. Fleming went on to explain that the calendar year was divided into Red, or bargain days, White, economy days and Blue, standard days.

RED FARE CHEAPEST

The Red fare, using a red designed equipment will set a new unequaled standard of attractiveness in Canadian railway travel. Lounge cars will add new comfort for the pleasure of sleeping car passengers, and seating capacity will be almost double that offered at the present time".

The speaker stated that "the Super-Continental was inaugurated in 1955 on a 73 hour and 20 minute schedule, Montreal to Vancouver. The 1963 model, after October 27th will cover the same route seven hours and 20 minutes faster."

In closing his speaker stated that supervisors of the regions affected by the new plan were given a three-day training session recently in Montreal and visits are being made to all other station agents, while in other areas, the agents are being brought in to a central point for group instruction on the new travelling system".

The speaker was introduced by president of the local association, Mr. Joe Hunter.

OUTLINED WORK

Prior to Mr. Fleming's address, Superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, Mr. Joe Demers, gave a brief but informative outline of the work carried on at the school for deaf children across the Dominion. Mr. Demers stressed the important fact that the children attending this school were usually referred to as "deaf and dumb" or "deaf mutes." This is most untrue he said, they are simply children who cannot hear, therefore they are "deaf" children.

The oldest pensioner attending Tuesdays meeting was Mr. Harry Latter from Toronto who is 86 years old. Because of slight indisposition, Mr. Tom Hallam of Elm Street, 79 years old, was unable to attend. Norm Thompson acted as Master of Ceremonies.

"The Super-Continental's re-

ticket, is the cheapest and is in effect for a total of 163 days a year, offering savings up of 38 per cent over standard fare rates. These days will be in effect during the month of May and from the first of October until April 30th, with the exception of Sundays and holidays.

"White tickets" said Mr. Fleming, are used for economy fares and provide up to 22 percent savings over standard fares. These tickets are in effect from June 1st to Sept. 30th as well as from April 30th for a total of 144 days. The remaining 59 days are classed as standard days on which Blue tickets are issued.

"To the Canadian National Railways", remarked the speaker, "the Red-White and Blue fare plan is a manifestation of its determination to remain in the passenger business and to make it a paying proposition."

"Beginning Sunday," he continued, the new plan will be extended to Western Canada and in addition to redesigning many cars on the Continental and the Super-Continental, the fastest transcontinental passenger service in the history of railway will be offered. For instance travelling time will be cut by seven and one half hours from the previous 79 hours.

SOME CUT ON MEALS

"In many cases the fares to Western Canada will be cut by more than half and in addition to cutting fares, the plan provides for complimentary meals for passengers holding sleeping car accommodation."

PONDERS NEXT MOVE — Labor Minister McEachen reviews documents as he prepares the government's next move in the dispute with the Seafarers' International Union. Mr. McEachen has indicated the government may press legal action against the SIU for its current walkout, in the face of government orders to return to the ships.

Wants to Open Radio Station In Montreal

OTTAWA (CP)—The question of how best a radio station could contribute to solving agricultural problems was raised Wednesday before the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The issue arose as a group, headed by Allan Waters who runs radio station CFGM in Toronto, sought permission to start a new English-language AM radio station in Montreal.

The BBG has received opposition to the bid on various grounds: that the Montreal market is already saturated with radio stations, that the proposed station won't offer anything especially new in programming and that any new station should be either bilingual or French-language.

Mr. Waters said the new station would provide a 24-hour-a-day service of quality music and news programming. It is a type not now available in Montreal.

He said Montreal has a population of some 1,200,000 English-speaking people and the city has a relatively high buying rate, so that it could support a fourth English - language private commercial radio station.

FEATURES NEWS

One of the station's special features would be news coverage — with a bilingual staff member in Quebec City and a news representative in Ottawa. Prerecorded items would be from city news network, embracing parts of Montreal, the surrounding areas in conciliation and mediation.

Three Toughies, Well Versed In Union Matters, Trustees Appointed by Government

OTTAWA (CP)—Victor Leonard Dryer says he likes to know the facts, check the law—and then act.

That's what he did Wednesday night within hours of taking on probably the toughest assignment out by a federal government in recent years.

Bold and breezy, he stepped confidently into the chairmanship of the three-man board of trustees that has been given super-powers by Parliament to sweep lawlessness and corruption out of waterfront labor.

"There is a job to be done," he told reporters after an all-day flight to Ottawa from Vancouver, where he ascended to the bench of the British Columbia Supreme Court just three months ago.

"If the government wants me to take it, as far as I'm concerned that's the end of the matter. I have to do it."

The 52-year-old jurist's dark eyes flash when he talks. He has a polished, matter-of-fact air, a clean-cut face and dark, greying hair.

WORKED FOR UNIONS

Still fresh to the judicial bench, he hasn't forgotten what he used to be—a sharp, successful Vancouver lawyer who did a lot of work for trade unions in conciliation and mediation.

His clients as a lawyer included the giant Steelworkers union and the outcast Teamsters. And his adversaries in the court of law have included the Seafarers' International Union of Canada.

He met the SIU's pugnacious boss, Hal Chamberlain Banks, in 1960.

It was a legal confrontation—an examination for discovery in a Montreal law office during litigation involving the SIU and the Canadian Association of Marine Engineers, both of which are under the federal trusteeship put into law Wednesday.

He said the case was "settled" but declined further details. And he refused to say anything—good or bad—about Mr. Banks.

Working with Mr. Justice Dryer are Judge Rene Lippe, a cool, crisp magistrate from Montreal who hit the headlines recently with his successful mediation of a longshoremen's dispute that crippled St. Lawrence River shipping for almost two weeks, and soft-spoken Charles H. Millard, who came out of retirement as one of organized labor's elder statesmen to join the trustee board.

GOOD UNDER PRESSURE

Judge Lippe, 53, has a reputation in Quebec as a man who can iron out labor-management differences under the toughest pressure.

Friendly and approachable, he maps out words in response to questions, saying only what he wants to and no more.

Recently when he was approached to become one of the trustees, he retorted:

"Recently—"

Asked about his hobbies, he smiled and said:

"Fishing, hunting, travelling ..."

And as he walked away grinning, he said:

"... And meeting the press."

WAS ORGANIZER

Mr. Millard, 67, is a staunch unionist whose labor principles were hardened during the fiercely angry days when the Steelworkers union began organizing in Canada.

The national director of the Steelworkers, he guided the destiny of one of Canada's biggest unions. He played a role in the labor merger of 1956 that created the Canadian Labor Congress.

Twice, he was a CCF member of the Ontario legislature. In 1945, he resigned to join the union leadership in Canada, he had overseen for a senior post with the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions of United Nations of organized labor.

"I'm a labor consultant," he said on arrival in Ottawa. He take on the trusteeship job with two members of the Judiciary. "I've had practical experience."

New British PM Owes Post To Former Labor Peer

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Press Staff Writer

In one sense Britain's new Tory prime minister, a dyed-in-the-wool Tory if ever there was one, owes the post of premiership to a former Labor peer.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home is liable to disclaim his titles and make himself eligible for the House of Commons thanks to a proposal introduced at the last session of Parliament after a long fight by Anthony Wedgwood Benn.

Although numerous British premiers of the past have sat in the House of Lords, the overwhelming opinion is that it could not happen today because all real power now has been transferred to the House of Commons.

It is just about unanimous that former Prime Minister Macmillan would never have recommended Sir Alec unless there was a procedure for him to enter the Commons. As one left-wing commentator, Kingsley Martin, puts it:

"Ironically enough, Benn is personally responsible for making Home prime minister, for given Macmillan could not have selected a member of the House of Lords as premier."

BENN RELUCTANT

Benn, now Labor member for Bristol Southeast, unwillingly became the second Viscount Stansgate 10 years ago on the death of his father. The change interrupted a promising career as mons career and Benn was tagged the "reluctant peer"—he himself favored "persistent commoner."

Benn, of course, was not the first man to try to avoid the peerage—and thereby hangs another long in a chronicle filled with oddities.

Viscount Halifax, who turned out to be one of Sir Alec's main rivals for the succession, also sought to do... the "political ghetto," as he termed the House of Lords, after his father died in 1950. He Will Defence Minister Be Able to Unify Armed Forces?

OTTAWA (CP)—Will Defence Minister Paul Hellyer be able to unify the armed forces?

Two former defence ministers —the late Brooke Claxton, Liberal and George Pearkes, VC, Conservative—tried and failed.

Gen. Charles Foulkes, former chairman of the chiefs of staff committee, and Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of the general staff, have told the Commons defence committee that the only way integration can be carried out is by political decision from the top.

They said gradual integration —one branch of the services at a time—wouldn't work. Integration had to come from the top, not the bottom.

SOME EXAMPLES

Examples cited in duplication and triplication caused by rivalry among the services:

After the Second World War, each service insisted on buying its own type of blankets.

In 1950, the army and RCAF were waging a struggle for control of ground-to-air missiles. And two corps of the army—artillery and electrical and mechanical engineers — were waging the same struggle. The air force won eventually.

In the late 1950s, the RCAF ignored a chief of staff order to use trained army radar operators surplus to army requirements, recruited its own and took over years to train them.

The three services do talk to each other. But without a single administration it has been necessary to establish more than 100 tri-service committees at defence headquarters.

GROUPS WITHIN GROUPS

The committee system has reached the point, for example, where the joint telecommunications committee has subcommittees, one of them which has the title "joint telecommunications committee subcommittee of the joint telecommunications committee."

The services used to have a single communications link across Canada for all of them. Now each service has its own—necessitating committees to coordinate their work.

LODA Speaker in Panel Suggests Standard Flat Rate for Business Concerns

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A municipal engineer and a company president both warned an industrial and municipal relations conference here Wednesday that industry will shy away from districts which put heavy burdens on commercial ratepayers.

Michael D. Goldbrick, director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, Toronto, told delegates to the conference sponsored by the Canadian Development Association that reassessments by municipalities favored the residential taxpayer.

He said the unconditional grant and the equalization grant paid in 1961 to reduce the residential mill rate have increased the burden on business.

Mr. Goldbrick said industry pays far more attention to the tax climate as an area than to any immediate concessions when it is choosing a new location.

He suggested a standard flat rate be paid by all business concerns.

COULD DO MORE

M. R. Mallory, president of Mallory-Western Canada Ltd., Limited, Cobourg, Ont., said civic administrations could do more to create wealth by working more closely with industry.

He told delegates it does no good to keep juggling taxes from one ledger to another or from one level of government to another.

What is needed to meet the long-term problem, he said, is more wealth which could produce the taxes.

Mayor A. McLean Haig of Belleville told delegates new industry had never resulted in a reduction in taxes. Rather it tends to increase taxes because of the new development problems it brings.

He said taxation problems faced by both industry and the homeowner will never be properly settled until there is a thorough review by all three levels of government concerning the services for which they are responsible and the taxes they can collect.

J. Edward Davis, Peterborough assessment commissioner, said legislation being planned to license assessors and make them pass examinations should go a long way to removing the wide differences in assessments across the province.

Goon Squads Keeping Seamen In Line--Globe

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail quotes a former member of the Seafarers International Union (find) as saying that many union members would return to their ships in Toronto harbor if they were not afraid of being beaten up.

The newspapers the man, now a ship's officer, declined to be identified. He was quoted as saying a group of SIU union members were beaten up on a train carrying participants of a protest parade in Ottawa back to Toronto.

The Globe quotes the man as saying goon squads from Montreal are in Toronto to keep SIU members in line. Many wanted to go back to work "but like me they want to live and can't

BANCROFT :

Public School Men Teachers Name Officers

BANCROFT — District 4 of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation met in Bancroft Public School, Oct. 18. District 4 comprises Hastings and Prince Edward counties, along with a small portion of Northumberland.

At the morning session committees reports and business of the district were heard and discussed. All men present were enthusiastic in their support of the Federation making every effort to exercise a firm and undeniable control over the certification of its members. Praise of the manner in which the executive had handled Federation business in the district this past year was voiced by Tom Bedford of Trenton. The science in-service training course sponsored by District 4 held in Marmora last spring was only one of the major accomplishments of the executive. Mr. Bedford stated that the excellence of the course under the supervision of Mr. R. Hodges, Toronto Teachers' College, was a credit to the District and a tremendous service in increasing the professional development of all those teachers who took advantage of it. Plans for further work in this regard were the wish of the members and president Andrew Harris voiced agreement with this proposal.

The past year saw the first publication within District 4 of a newsletter designed to strengthen inter-branch communications and interest.

DINNER HELD

Dinner was served by the ladies of St. Paul's United Church and Mr. C. Marston, representative of the Bancroft-Faraday T.S.A. Public School Board.

The highlight of the day was an address by Mr. Davies. He discussed the problems which have arisen in the "Leadership Dispute" and described some possible consequences. The outcome of this dispute will likely affect every teacher and board in the province. Mr. Davies emphasized that the increased scope of Federation should be one in which the protective aspect, although important, should no longer be foremost. Rather, increased efforts should be channelled in the direction of further professional development. The Provincial Secretary stated that, at the beginning of his term in office 15 years ago, there were approximately 3,000 men teachers in Ontario, but, in 1963, this figure now stands at over 9,000.

A new executive for District 4 was elected: past president, Andrew Harris, Trenton; president, Ken Gillies, Marmora; 1st vice-president, Gary Stevenson, Bancroft; 2nd vice-president, Bob Millar, Coboconk; secretary-treasurer, Don Burke, Trenton.

U.S. to Chip Away at Its Troop Force in Europe

By HAROLD MORRISON

The biggest, fastest transatlantic airlift in history may signal the beginning of a gradual U.S. military retrenchment in Europe.

The U.S. is searching desperately for ways of reducing overseas spending to curb the continuing drain on its gold reserves. It also is seeking means to slow its rising defence outlays to curb the rise in the enormous national debt.

At the same time, the U.S. is aware that for its own security, it would be unwise to leave Russia or the European allies with the impression it intends a major military pull - back from Europe.

Whatever gradual troop reduction takes place undoubtedly would be accompanied by rising assurances that the U.S. intends to maintain its military pledges and commitments overseas.

The $30,000,000 Operation Big Lift is intended in part to provide those assurances. By the massive use of air transport, the U.S. is sending an army division of 15,500 men and a tactical air group of 1,500 men to exercises in West Germany and France in a total elapsed time of just three days.

However, concern arises from some European argument that if it comes to a nuclear showdown with Russia, the U.S. might hold back from a full nuclear exchange to save her own cities if Russia's missiles threaten only those of Europe.

The presence of massive U.S. forces overseas might better convince the Europeans that the U.S. would be more ready to risk full nuclear war to protect the lives of its soldiers there.

At present, the U.S. has about 410,000 men in Europe, including about 250,000 combat troops, mostly in West Germany. The Germans have openly and repeatedly sought assurances that these troops will not be removed.

This when Deputy Defence Secretary Roswell Gilpatric hinted during the weekend that reductions in overseas U.S. forces may take place, he hastily added that this would be done as far as possible on agreed North Atlantic policies.

State and defence officials later added that Gilpatric was thinking in terms of years rather than months in anticipating troop reductions.

But they indicated that in the meantime there will be a continuation of shifting away at the size of the forces in Europe, awaiting the day when the U.S. thinks the time is favorable for a major cut on the European frontier.

Remarks Man With Toupee Gets Real Tired of Hearing

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks a man with a new toupee gets tired of hearing:

"Well, hair today—gone tomorrow!"

"Here comes old Goldilocks himself."

"May we suggest, sir, that you shake a little salt on it occasionally? The resemblance to dandruff will give it that final natural touch."

"He's so absent-minded that some mornings he puts it on backward—and then I can't tell whether he's going or coming."

"I must say that Ronald has real savoir faire. When his toupee fell into the bowl in front of him at that Chinese restaurant, he didn't panic. He simply called the waiter over and told him: "I'm afraid there's been some mistake. I didn't order this bird's nest soup."

"Oh, don't feel so sorry for yourself. They say the first Queen Elizabeth was bald as an eagle and had to wear a wig a foot tall."

"I know it must itch terribly in this hot weather, Ronald, but for heaven's sake quit scratching. Everybody's watching."

"Don't sit too close to the electric fan, dear. Remember when it blew out the apartment window and landed in a tree, and you had to pay that little boy 50 cents to climb up and get it?"

"Sorry. I mussed it up, darling. I was just tidying the floor, and when I saw it lying there it gave me such a fright I hit it twice with the mop before I realized what it was."

"If it shrank, sir, I'm afraid it was your own fault. This model does not carry a drip-dry guarantee."

"Hi there, curly!"

"You must be particularly careful about combs, sir. Unfortunately, they prefer toupees to virgin stalk."

"Gee, fellow, I'm new in the office. I don't see why you have to fly off the handle when all I asked you was where there's a good barber around here."

"Yes, I shall I wrap it up—or will you wear it home?"

"Yes, it looks fine, Ronald. But my advice is to grow a beard. That would kinda balance it."

First Computer-Controlled Steel Strip Mill Displayed

By CHARLES C. CAIN

DETROIT (AP) — The press got its first look Tuesday at the first completely computer-controlled steel strip mill in the United States.

They saw huge 70,000-pound slabs of steel processed into smaller steel coils which are sent to auto factories and other steel users.

The unique mill, described by Great Lakes Steel Corporation as the only one of its kind in the world, is located in suburban River Rouge.

Basically, the computer system guides the huge slabs along from the moment they are rolled into the huge mill until they make their way through the almost half-mile long production line.

Officials of Great Lakes Steel declined to disclose the number of employees in the automated mill, as contrasted with the work crew in a comparable manually operated steel strip mill. They did admit the number was considerably less.

FEW WORKMEN ABOUT

Reporters noted that about 21 men assigned to the computer room and to operating rooms where they set production dials in accordance with the instructions relayed via the computer. A few maintenance workers were around and some workmen were available to do some jobs manually in case the computer failed.

BROTHELS COMPLAIN

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — More than 100 women representatives of brothels in Taipei petitioned the city tax bureau Wednesday to rescind the income taxes the establishments have to pay. The petitioners said they already were too heavily burdened by business and other taxes. The tax bureau said it would consider the matter.

These reasons why OLDSMOBILE F-85 is the price surprise of 1964 are required reading for every value-conscious new-car buyer in Canada

For a start, F-85 value is so much higher, and its price so much lower! You'd imagine the '64 F-85 would cost more. It looks better, rides better, goes better. You'd think that with all these improvements the price would have gone up. It didn't. It went down. Way down, because it's now being made in Canada to meet the growing Canadian demand.

Increased wheelbase is an important factor in the new Oldsmobile F-85. Wheelbase is now a full 115 inches to give you a smoother, steadier ride. The tread's wider, too, which does wonders for stability and cornering. And this year, the F-85 has the same type of frame, body mounts and rear suspension as the full-sized Oldsmobiles. That means you're getting big-car ride and comfort, with town-car convenience and handling. It's like having your cake and eating it, too!

Other cars may look roomier but F-85's dimensions compare favorably with the best. In fact, there's more front seat legroom in an F-85 than in most "luxury cars". It's great for 6-footers. Broad-shouldered types will cheer here: there's plenty more shoulder room and hiproom in the new F-85 because all the side windows and pillars are curved. Looks mighty good too. Oh yes, the car is also 10 inches longer this year, allowing more rear seat legroom and 30% more luggage space.

This engine saves like a 6 and goes like a V8; so, it's called a V6! Standard engine for all F-85's except the Cutlass series, is the Econ-O-Way V6. It takes a lot less space, it's a lot lighter and it's certainly no slouch when it comes to performance. It puts out 155 horsepower at 4400 rpm, on regular gasoline, and with a single carburetor. If you'd like a little more of a good thing, order the optional 230-hp Jetfire Rocket V8 or the 290-hp Cutlass V8.

The new Jetaway Transmission takes a totally new approach to acceleration. The Jetaway's variable-vane torque converter packs extra wallop between 30 and 50 mph at half throttle, without downshifting. That means you get extra acceleration without wasting a drop of gas! If you'd sooner shift for yourself, order the standard 3-speed Synchro-Mesh or the optional floor-mounted 4-speed Synchro-Mesh. Since both the Jetaway and the 4-speed are no much extra fun, they cost a little more.

A choice of nine different models is more than a lot of makes can boast. Olds F-85 is a complete car line, not just one lonesome low-priced model. And you can pick from three series: Standard, Deluxe and Cutlass, with a choice of coupes, sedans, station wagons and convertible body styles.

Remember, this is an Oldsmobile. F-85 is for people who want Oldsmobile's comfort, performance, luxury and value—in a smaller size. And that's exactly what you get in an F-85. After all, it's every inch an Oldsmobile! If you've been thinking about getting a '64, think about the '64 Olds F-85. Go to your local Oldsmobile dealer. Look at an F-85. Drive it. Compare it. You'll see that the Olds F-85 for '64 offers more car for less money!

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Eavesdroppers, they say, never hear well of themselves but in this case I was forced to "listen-in"—and I came away with a fantastic, (to me) account of how cricket is played.

It happened during that European junket with the McFarlands. I was seated at a table for three near the perimeter of the famous bar at Geneva, Switzerland, the hub of the world's air traffic.

Around us swirled the maelstrom of international intrigue, business, industry, society and tourism. The bartender was a balding bloke who spoke nine languages and Bowl-Mor English.

I sat with two definitely British types complete with bowlers and brollies. They looked like young executives, one I guessed being a Fleet Street sports journalist. They sipped gins and tonics and occasionally extracted "gaspers" from silver cigarette cases.

They spoke in clipped Bond Street accents. My blue blazer with Maple Leaf crest drew no more than a lower-lidded glance. They tolerated a blasted colonial —and that was all.

I could not help but overhear the conversation. After fifteen minutes of brain-racking I decided they were talking "cricket."

It went something like this . . . "Well . . . It took England 25 minutes to clean up the last two wickets. Statham had Solomon caught at gully off the first ball of his second over. Then Jone slashed him square and drove him straight for four before Trueman vindictively removed Gibb's leg stump."

" . . . Sobers took over from Tremayne after three overs and Brown pushing insipidly at an outswinger was dropped by Blue at second slip . . . Hall after five overs made way from Griffith who quickly took Kitch. He was out to a long half-volley, stabbing inhibitively with the bottom hand in control."

"Did you note Barrington? He batted like some chap with bee stings. Three times he backed at Griffith, twice for four, and in the same over he glanced and turned him square. In the next over he dabbed him, Adelaide-style for four more over the wicket-keeper's head. Dexter remained soothingly but the mood was on Barrington and soon he lost his off-stump."

A waiter who spoke main street English paused at the table. The chappies re-fuelled and Reggy—oh my right picked up the dropped conversation.

"Tremayne," he said, "after the commotion subsided, displayed a pretty leg-glance (who doesn't) and then was l.b.w. to Scot-Travers. At 49 for four the card-house, as it with the rumor of a whirlwind, was visibly tottering. Dexter, who had progressed by way of six circumspect singles should have gone, for he flicked irritably at Jones and was mercifully put at first slip . . . . "

"Dexter forced Gibbs away off the back foot to send up fifty for the partnership, but the over before Summers had let slip a gentle cut which, Dexter discernibly rattled flashed at a shortish one and was caught at the wicket."

" . . . Sharpe hit a full toss from Griffith past midoff for four and then reached out to steer a wide-halfvolley to the cover boundary. Dexter and Summers into the crowd and hysteria on the grass was momentarily stilled."

" . . . Summers running the ball away from the bat at brisk pace bowled to two slips but no gully, while Grist turning the ball appreciably from round the wicket had Summers at leg-slip and Worner at forward short leg."

And so on into the afternoon. I left the table with this one ringing in my un-English ears . . . . "Shone drove several tissues opulently through the covers but Truman preferring the soliloquy to the knockabout, helped an outswinger from Stone into Summers fostering claws at second slip. The next ball, a yorker sent Locke's middle stump cartwheeling. Stone kept like a trout and parsnels, cashbox and caps whirled in rainbows off delight."

That, mes amis, is a cricket match as reported by two British buffs. I left the airport "Oval" table in a daze, went to the bar and ordered a double gin, asked with a yorker and an outswinger. Two of these and your leg-stumps are wobbly.

Howe Great But Not Perfect-Rocket

By PAUL RINSTRAD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If winger Gordie Howe scores his big goal tonight, Maurice Richard won't do any cartwheels.

The Rocket concedes that Howe is a great hockey player, but also finds fault with the Detroit Red Wing ace.

Howe, in his 18th National Hockey League season, needs only one goal—his 544th—to tie the lifetime scoring mark compiled by Richard in regular season games during his 18-year career with Montreal Canadiens.

"But don't forget," said the Rocket Wednesday, "Howe has played in more than 1,100 games and I got my goals in 978 games."

"I think they should keep my record in the book just like they did with Babe Ruth when Roger Maris hit his 61 home runs in 162 games a few years ago."

Howe, still wearing a protective guard over a bruised ankle and wearing a skate with the ankle cut out, gets another chance tonight for the coveted goal before his hometown fans.

MEET THE HAWKS

The Wings meet the league-leading Chicago Black Hawks and a win would give them a share of first place. Chicago, with a 6-1 record in five starts, lost its only game, 5-3, in Detroit's home opener this season.

The Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs are tied with 3-2 records. In the only other game tonight, New York Rangers travel to Boston to play the last-place Bruins.

Richard, who retired in 1960, was outspoken Wednesday in his discussion of Howe.

He charged, among other things, that Howe isn't at his best when the chips are down, that he doesn't hustle as much as he could and that he is not the gentleman on skates that people believe.

"I don't remember him scoring many game-winning goals," said the Rocket. "To me it always looked as though he would even be a greater player if he hustled more."

CRITICIZES CONDUCT

On Howe's conduct on the ice: "He's a cleaner player than he used to be—but I saw him give out many dirty checks. I guess I gave out some dirty checks too. But it was because I wanted to retaliate."

The Rocket also feels Howe has had an edge because he hasn't been as prone to injury as Richard.

"I missed 169 games because of injuries. Howe has been luckier that way. If I hadn't been hurt so often I would have scored 100 more goals."

Richard, however, doesn't suggest Howe is a stumble-bum.

"He's a better all - round player than I was," said the Rocket.

HAS GOOD CHANCE

Howe, who has played 1,125 games, could get the milestone marker against the Hawks. He scored two against Chicago in their last meeting.

Montreal Canadiens, idle tonight, resume action Wednesday night in practice when forwards Billy Hicke and John Ferguson collided. Hicke went to hospital with an injured right wrist but there was no fracture.

At Toronto, bruising Bobby Baun was objecting to Billy Reay's description of him as the NHL's roughest player.

The Chicago coach was defending his own defenceman, haughty Howie Young, who Reay says, is a target for referees.

"He must have been misquoted," said Baun. "I only collected 65 minutes in the penalty box last season which indicates that I may be tough, but not rough."

Statistics Prove Rocket Erred

TORONTO (CP) — Official National Hockey League statistics do not agree with Maurice Richard's evaluation of Gordie Howe in a clutch situation.

Richard, quoted in New York Wednesday, said of the Detroit Red Wings ace:

"I don't remember him scoring many game-winning goals. To me it always looked as though he would even be a greater player if he hustled more."

Howe, however, holds the NHL record for game-winning goals, having scored 96 to Richard's 83.

Richard, who retired after 18 seasons with Montreal Canadiens, scored 544 goals in regular season games. Howe, in his 18th season, will be trying for No. 544 tonight when the Wings entertain Chicago Black Hawks.

Richard, however, holds the record for game-tying goals, 26 to Howe's 25. And the Rocket leads in powerplay goals, 155-136, and has scored 97 while his club was shorthanded compared to 15 by Howe.

Bears Edge Americans

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Hershey Bears built up an early four-goal cushion, then held off the battling Rochester Americans 5-4 in an American Hockey League game Wednesday night.

The Americans outshot Hershey 39-25 and only some great goal play by Ed Chadwick saved the Bears.

Chuck Hamilton, Dan Polisiani and Howie Yanosik each found the range for Hershey in the first period. Wayne Rivers made it 4-0 early in the next period.

However, the Americans struck back in the second period for two goals in 40 seconds. Jim Pappin got the first and Gerry Ehman the second.

Twice in the third period Rochester cut Hershey's lead to a single goal on tallies by Dick Gamble and Wally Boyer. But sandwiched between was a marker by Bill Sutton by Dick Dordy, which proved to be the winner.

HALFBACK IS OUT

HOUSTON (AP) — Buffalo Bills halfback Roger Kochman, who suffered a knee separation in Sunday's American League Football game with Houston Oilers, was confined to the intensive care ward of Methodist Hospital Wednesday. "He'll be able to walk," a physician said, "But I don't think he'll ever play again."

Add Luster To Injury List

Crippled Alouettes Meet Saskys

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders will be gunning for a playoff berth in they take on the Montreal Alouettes here tonight in a Canadian interlocking football league game.

The Western Conference when It may turn out to be easier than the Roughies anticipated. The Alouettes lost a fourth key player Wednesday when medical examinations showed that two-way end Marv Luster has torn ligaments in his left knee, an injury picked up last Saturday in the Als 27-21 loss in Ottawa. He will be lost for the season, along with defensive Bobby Jack Oliver and corner linebacker Jim Reynolds, injured earlier in the year.

Halfback Don Clark, also sidelined with a similar knee injury, hopped about lightly with the team at workouts Wednesday night, and may be ready for the playoffs.

But the hobbled Als will be presenting a shuffled lineup for the Regina game, although coach Jim Trimble expects to make it as rough as he can for the western visitors.

The Roughies need only one win in their next two games—they play the Argonauts in Toronto on Sunday—to clinch a play off berth in the west.

HAS TWO GAMES

Montreal also has only two games left to play but cannot catch the eastern conference front-runners, Ottawa and Hamilton, and are resigned to a third-place position. They play their final game of the regular schedule here Nov. 3 against the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Ottawa and Hamilton clash Saturday in Tiger town in a game that will decide first place while the loser will meet Montreal in a sudden-death playoff.

Roughies coach Bob Shaw will start the game with quarterback Ron Lancaster, while Trimble has indicated he will go along with Warren Rabb.

Yogi's Sole Aim-Win The Pennant

'I'm Ready'

The formal announcement of Yogi Berra's appointment as manager of New York Yankees is expected today. AP baseball writer Joe Reichler interviewed Berra on the subject of managing some months ago. He wrote a brief story at the time. Now he has dug out his notes to produce this detailed story on how Berra feels about managing.

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Yogi, how do you feel about managing some day?

"I've given a lot of thought to managing. But only in the big leagues. I wouldn't want to start in the minors. If I haven't been able to learn about managing in all the years I've been up here, I'll never learn.

"To manage, you have got to be able to get along with your players. I know I can do that. A manager has got to know how to handle pitchers. What do you think I've been doing all these years? I think any guy who has been a catcher for a long time like myself could be a manager.

"The catcher is closer to the plate than any other player on the team. The manager talks to him about pitching changes. He asks his advice. The catcher usually is in the huddle when the manager goes out to talk to the pitcher. He hears everything that goes on and if he has an ounce of sense in his head, he remembers these things.

"Why do you think so many catchers are managers and good ones too? It ain't no accident. Some of the best managers were catchers. Guys like Casale Mack, Wilbert Robinson, Mickey Cochrane, Paul Richards. Today we got guys like Birdie Tebbetts and Al Lopez, and Ralph Houk of the Yankees.

"I know some general managers believe you have to have minor league experience to manage in the majors. I say you don't. How can you learn to manage in the minors? You don't have no bench down there. You don't have enough pitchers to manoeuvre or even make changes when you think you ought to. You have no pinch hitters, no pinch runners, maybe one relief pitcher. The word for that is personnel, isn't it. Well, you ain't got none.

"Another thing. You don't have no writers traveling with the team. Maybe one. So what do you learn about public relations? And don't tell me a manager don't have to know about public relations. He's the team's best publicity man. The better he gets along with the writers and fans, the better it is for the club. Look at Casey Stengel. The writers love him. You don't think he don't bring a million dollars worth of publicity to his team?

"Now I ain't knocking minor league managers. Managing in the minors helps to a certain extent. You get to learn about the club but the purpose is different. All the minor league clubs are owned by the majors and they are interested only that you develop the kids.

"Of course, they want to win, too, and that's why a lot of managers get fired, I guess. Because it ain't easy to do both. But the main object in the minors is to develop the kids. The only object in the majors is to win the pennant.

"Me, I'm interested in only one thing, too. I want to win the pennant. As for being ready, I think I'm as ready as I'll ever be."

VANCOUVER (CP)—Alf. Aeneas Bell - Irving has called for a Vancouver athletic commission inquiry into alleged brutality in wrestling matches at exhibition gardens here.

Bell-Irving told city council 27 fans at a match Monday night signed a petition complaining of brutality after Toronto wrestler Whipper Billy Watson was knocked out by his opponent, The Great Zim.

Bell-Irving said fans told him Watson was carried from the ring and there was no doctor present to treat him.

Promoter Cliff Parker said Wednesday Bell-Irving's action was ridiculous. He said Watson was only stunned and quickly recovered in the dressing room.

Fog Delays Canada Cup Start

CP from Reuters-AP

VERSAILLES, France — A rolling fog held up the start of the 11th annual Canada Cup international golf tournament for a half hour today on the new Saint-Nom - la - Bretèche course, once part of the huge French estate of King Louis XIV.

The first team to tee off was Alexander Maculan and Klaus Nierlich of Austria in the 35-country blue-ribbon tournament in which the United States entry of Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus were rated the 3-to-1 favorites in unofficial betting.

Those who watched Palmer and Nicklaus practicing on the undulating par-72 course figured a fourth consecutive American win was a near-certainty.

Canada and Australia were second choices at 4 to 1. England, Scotland and Wales were bracketed together at 5 to 1 with South Africa rated at 6 to 1 and Spain and Japan 10 to 1.

Canada's hopes were pinned on Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Al Balding of Markham, Ont. Leonard, who won the individual trophy in 1954 and 1955, was making his eighth cup appearance, Balding his seventh.

FAVOR NICKLAUS

Nicklaus, 23 - year - old U.S. Masters and Professional Golfers Association champion, was the 5-to-4 favorite for the individual title.

Then came Palmer, who has earned more than $140,000 in golf this year, and Gary Player of South Africa at 3 to 1.

The Canada Cup goes to the lowest total score for two-man teams over 72 holes. The international Golf Tournament will be played today through Sunday.

Trophy is awarded to the best individual. Eighteen hole rounds

Argentina Grand Prix

Three Drivers Die In Crash

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Three drivers were killed and two persons were injured Wednesday in the first leg of the seventh annual International Tourism Grand Prix.

The grand prix annually is Argentina's most gruelling road race, lasting 11 days.

Horacio Villar of Buenos Aires, driving a Argentinean-made Peugeot 403 in the EEE category, overturned near the start of the day's leg and his co-pilot, Francisco C. Calvo, was killed. Villar suffered serious injuries.

The second accident happened only minutes later when an Argentina-made DeCarlo crashed, bounced around and then overturned, killing both racers in it. The dead were identified as Ricardo Grieben and Roberto Orizondo.

Julio Fernandez of Argentina was slightly injured and his Borgward Isabella heavily damaged near the start when he swerved to avoid a collision and hit a car struck a tree. There were reports of two more accidents in the hilly Carboba Province area but details were meager.

Juan Manuel Bordeu of Argentina won the 336.5-mile lap, travelling the distance in five hours, 23 minutes, nine seconds. He cut 40 minutes off the mark set a year ago by the two Swedish beauties, Ewy Rosqvist and Ursula Wirth. The girls were fourth this time.

Come, Come Are They That Bad?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States senator plans an investigation to determine why New York Mets and Houston Colts are such bad baseball teams.

Democratic Senator Philip A. Hart from Michigan said Wednesday it will be a "low pressure" inquiry into the "preservation" of major league baseball extends to its new teams.

Sen. Hart is chairman of the Senate antitrust and monopoly committee.

The subject will arise during a usually active baseball player trading period—sometime after the first of January—when his subcommittee takes a look at baseball's exempt status under the antitrust laws.

The business affairs of all other U.S. professional team sports are subject to antitrust regulation, but not baseball's. The subcommittee plans to inquire whether Congress should treat them all alike.

There has been grumbling by fans and some club managers meets that strong teams attend to stay strong, while weak ones tend to stay weak, because something always seems to block the perennial losers' attempts to acquire enough better players.

Eagles Get Guglielmi On Waivers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles hope to bolster their quarterback crops by picking up Ralph Guglielmi on waivers, according to officials of the National Football League team.

The Eagles may need an extra quarterback in their game Sunday with the Chicago Bears. Regular quarterback Sonny Jurgensen will miss that game, maybe more, with a shoulder injury. King Hill, the No. 2 quarterback may need relief—hence the interest in Guglielmi.

Guglielmi, a former Notre Dame star with seven years pro experience, recently was sold by The New York Giants to the San Francisco 49ers. He declined to report to the 49ers, saying he didn't want to be away from his insurance business in Washington.

TORONTO (CP) — Court Royal, a four-year-old filly carrying second high weight and the support of most of the 8,496 fans, fought off efforts of eight contenders or most of the mile distance then pulled away to win the $11,775 Maple Leaf Stakes with ease at Greenwood Race Track Wednesday.

With Jim Fitzsimmons riding, the filly drew off to win her second successive stake engagement of the season. Just two weeks ago the bay daughter of Chop Chop won the Nettie Stakes at Woodbine.

Roman Anna gamely tried to make up ground in the stretch but she couldn't and settled for second money. Breezy Answer was third.

Court Royal's victory was worth $6,775 and boosted her earnings for this season to $35,985.

Youth Stole 16-Foot Vault Pole

TORONTO (CP)—An unidentified 15 - year - old city youngster may someday become a great pole vaulter, but it's unlikely that he'll ever be a good thief.

When a 16-foot wood-and-steel pole used by McGill University vaulters George Elliott and Ed Higgins disappeared at an intercollegiate senior track meet here last Saturday, University of Toronto physical education instructor Urey Daniels decided to keep Varsity Stadium under surveillance.

It paid off Wednesday when he caught the youth removing the pole from its hiding place under the south stands.

"Perhaps I should have let him take the pole home," Daniels said. "I'm very curious as to how he would have gotten it aboard a street car."

Canadian Press Sports Editor

Teddy Morris agrees with experts who say that Ottawa Rough Riders wouldn't have gone very far in the Eastern Football Conference this year without Russ Jackson as quarterback. Teddy doesn't stop there.

"I'd say it's pretty definite that Russ is the best Canadian-born quarterback that pro football in this country has ever produced," he said this week. Teddy knows there may be a few folks around who will disagree violently with him and put in a plug for Joe Krol.

"But there's a point that people may not realize right now and that is that Joe was not a quarterback. He was a halfback, although he was a passer. I think that people who have read about Joe's exploits may have taken him as a quarter. He wasn't."

Teddy, a great halfback with Toronto Argonauts in the 1940s, has seen a lot of players over the last 30 years. And he coached Argonauts to three straight Grey Cup victories over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1945-46-47.

KROL WAS GREAT

It was Krol, who could do just about anything on a football field, who almost single - handedly ruined the Bombers in those years. He was a deadly passer, a good runner and better-than-average punter.

Argos won 28-0 in 1945 and Krol tossed two touchdown passes. In 1946, when the Toronto club won 29-6, he threw three touchdown passes, caught one from his sidekick, Royal Copeland, and kicked three converts. In 1947, he kicked three singles in the final five minutes to give Argonauts a heart-stopping 10-9 decision.

In 1952, at the age of 34, he played in his last Cup and, although he didn't score a point as Argonauts beat Edmonton Eskimos 21-11, he went out as the all-time top scorer in Cup play with 30 points. The mark still stands.

Morris, Argonauts' bird dog who has been seeking Canadian talent for the club for years, refuses to say which was the greater player—Krol or Jackson.

"Krol had more gifts. He was a good punter, he could run faster than Jackson and I think he could pass as well as Jackson. But Jackson sits in there to call the play. He has confidence and finesse and he's a real great one. His value to the Rough Riders is tremendous."

Which of these players was more valuable to his team?

"No one can say that.

"If Jackson gets hurt now with the Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats at the top of the Eastern standing, you would have to say that the Rough Riders would be definite underdogs in the playoffs without Jackson.

"We lost Krol for most of the 1949 season due to injuries and Argonauts didn't even make it in the Big Four playoffs that year.

"The value of Krol and Jackson to their respective clubs was great. But let somebody else compare them and say which is greatest."

Jackson could be a leading candidate as the outstanding Canadian player in the country this year. He might even be up there in the voting for the outstanding Canadian Football League player — Canadian or American.

Western Hockey

DENVER, Colo (CP) — The centreman is supposed to be the play-maker in hockey, but Gary Jarrett is making a case for left-wingers.

The young leftwinger set up three goals Wednesday night as Denver invaders battled through overtime to a 4-4 Western Hockey League tie with the visiting San Francisco Seals.

Duke Just Another Golf Buff

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PARIS (AP) — "Down in front!" yelled a spectator.

Sheepishly, the frail little man with the shock of white hair slipped off the seat of his shooting stick and bent down on the edge of the green.

"That's better," the spectator said in a loud voice.

Nobody paid much attention, although the little man who was the target of the spectator's barb once was the King of England.

The Duke of Windsor, who abdicated in 1936 for the love of a woman, is just another figure in the golf galleries following the Canada Cup and International trophy matches at the Saint-Nom-Labretreche Club on the outskirts of Paris.

NOT NOTICED

He passes almost unnoticed through the crowd, moving from tee to green.

"Pardon me," he says.

An irritated fan gives him an ugly look, and he passes on timidly, almost apologetically.

The Duke, an ardent fan and player, came out early Wednesday to watch U.S. stars Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus play a tune-up match with Gary Player and Retief Waltman of South Africa.

He wore a pair of brown corduroy trousers, a tan plaid sport coat with gold buttons, a short-sleeved sport shirt and a broad yellow tie with a wide knot.

He arrived unheralded, and about 30 minutes after the players had teed off.

"I saw the Duke out on the course asking directions — he looked lost," a bloncoated official reported in the big stone clubhouse.

"Goodness, we should send a golf cart out to him," another official said.

The duke declined use of the golf cart, but he accepted an invitation to move inside the ropes.

He carried a green walking stick and sat down while waiting for the players to putt.

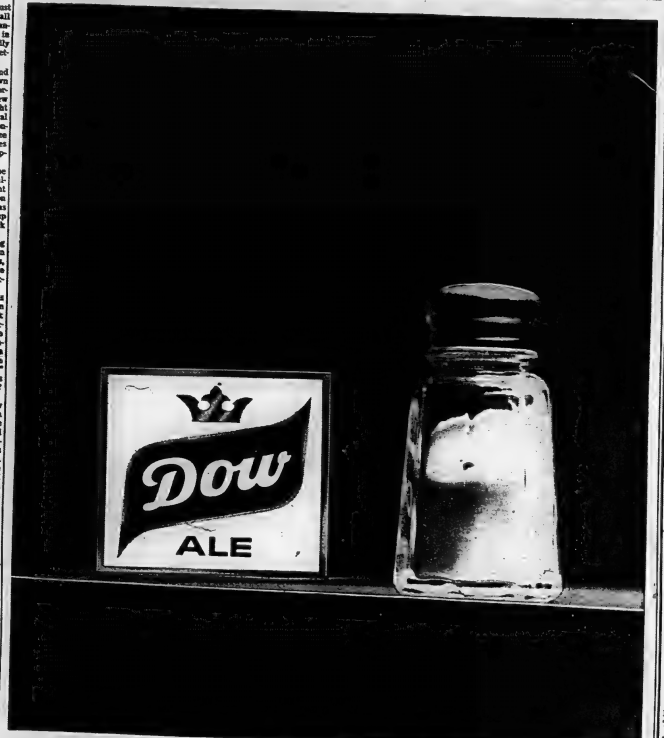
Now 68 years old, thin and wrinkled, he wore a worried expression.

He looked tired, but his interest seemed to perk up each time one of the golfers hit a good shot.

"Bravo," he was heard to murmur.

Later he was asked to pose with the golfers.

"What a wonderful opportunity this is," he said, acting like a youngster with a bright, new toy.



This One Wasn't From Chicago

REW, Pa. (AP)—Several teen-age boys were playing in a pickup football game in this McKean County community when Ken Woods, 16, broke into the clear and headed toward a touchdown.

The field was almost completely encompassed in darkness Tuesday as Woods dodged the defenders. Suddenly, a dark shadow appeared in his path. Woods sidestepped this last would-be tackler and raced into the end zone.

Then he looked more closely at the shadow. It was a 350-pound bear, a frequent visitor in Rew for several weeks.

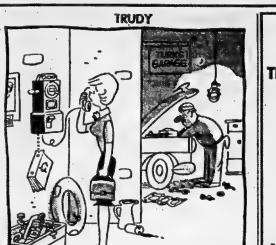
Home-Building During Winter Is Rewarding



Each year, an increasing number of Canadian builders are finding it advantageous to continue building houses throughout the winter. By avoiding winter shutdowns, the builder can retain the services of his key men, schedule completions more closely to market demands and generally improve his ability to make long-range plans. It also enables the builder to spread his overhead throughout a twelve-month period. Experts in the field of winter house building, maintain that with careful planning and using up-to-date winter building techniques, such building can be carried out with a relatively small increase in cost per unit. Moreover, it has been established that the quality of a house built during the winter by a reliable contractor using proper methods is equal in every respect to that of a unit built during the summer.

Despite these facts, records show that houses under construction at mid-winter in Canada are still some 45 percent less than in the peak building months of the summer. Increased house building activity in winter can be of major benefit not only to the industry but also to the entire community. This is particularly so because of the major role played by house building in our present-day society. Housing represents from 30 to 40 percent of the total volume of construction in an average year.

Increased winter house building helps reduce seasonal unemployment. This is very important when one considers the serious effect of seasonal unemployment on the economy of the country. In Canada, it is estimated that each winter there is a loss in wages and production of approximately 300 million dollars as a result of seasonal unemployment. Not only does this create a loss in production that can never be recovered but it also provides an unnecessary drain on the country's resources necessitated by unemployment insurance and other forms of assistance.

WORK COMPLICATED

Why then are more houses not built in winter? There are two main reasons. One is the misconception that winter construction is unduly expensive and complicated. The other is the fact that successful winter building techniques are only possible on large construction jobs. There is little evidence to support either of these views according to those experienced in the field of winter house building. These men contend that the quality of a winter house is much more dependent on the skill of the contractor than on the season in which it is built. There is mounting evidence throughout Canada that techniques of winter building can be applied successfully to all types of housing projects, providing the work is effectively planned. Indeed, if there is one single item that seems to hold the key to successful winter building, it is the vital question of planning.

New Federal Subsidy Plan Provides for $500 Payment For House Built in Winter

Prospective home owners in the Belleville area can benefit under the Federal government's Winter House Building Incentive Program.

Under this new federal government program — the Winter House Building Incentive Program — a direct payment of $500 may be made to the owner-builder or the first purchaser of a winter-built home.

The program was introduced to encourage people to consider buying a house built during the winter months or, if having a house built, to arrange to have work carried on during the winter.

The program will stimulate winter work in the building industry and create jobs during winter for thousands of building tradesmen — people who are hard hit by winter unemployment. This in turn means more activity for the manufacturers and suppliers of building materials, and a boost for the whole economy.

The $500 cash payment is offered as an incentive to start this chain reaction from which the whole country will benefit.

The payment may be applied against the cost of the house, or used for any other purpose.

It applies to single houses and to each unit in multiple residential buildings of not more than four units. For example, a four-unit building could qualify for a $2,000 incentive payment.

Canadian builders know how to build in the winter, and with modern techniques winter-built houses are as good, and sometimes better, than those built in the summer.

WHAT QUALIFIES

A winter-built house, under this program, means a single dwelling, or a multiple housing structure of not more than four units, on which the major part of the construction is completed during the period from December 1, 1963 to March 31, 1964.

Construction may proceed to the first floor joist stage before December 1. This means that the foundation and sub-flooring can be put in place before the really cold weather. The dwelling must be completed on or before March 31, except for outside painting, landscaping, and walks and driveways.

To qualify, dwellings must meet normal accepted standards for Canadian houses and must comply with local by-laws and provincial legislation. For instance, each dwelling unit must have four or more rooms and must contain adequate heating and sanitary facilities and a space for cooking, eating, living and sleeping.

You can receive the incentive payment if you have a residential building built for you by a contractor, providing it is built in the winter and meets the requirements of the program.

You can receive the incentive payment if you build your own house or act as your own contractor.

You can also receive the incentive payment if you are the first purchaser of a new winter-built house.

There will be houses on the market during the winter and spring constructed under the program.

MUST MAKE APPLICATION

First, an application for certification as a winter-built home must be made to the Special Services Branch, Department of Labour, Ottawa 4, either by the owner or by the builder. This step is essential. One cannot receive the incentive payment unless an application is made at the right time. If you are acting as your own contractor it will be your own responsibility to apply.

When the application is received the Department of Labor will arrange to have the building site inspected. This first inspection will be to see that the building has not advanced beyond the first floor joist stage, or the equivalent, before December 1st.

If any work is started on the house before December 1st, application must be made not later than November 10, 1963.

If work starts after December 1st, it should not be carried beyond the first floor joist stage until it has been inspected. Application should be made at least 15 days before the date on which it is desired the inspection be made.

In any case it will be to advantage to see that the application is made as soon as possible.

A final inspection will be made on or about March 31st to ensure that the building has been completed and that it meets the requirement of the program.

When the contractor has finished building or when a new house purchased qualifies under the program and it has been certified as a winter-built house, all that is necessary to get payment of the incentive is to apply to the Special Services Branch, Department of Labour, Ottawa 4, on a form that will be supplied.

This form will provide for a declaration to the effect that the purchaser is the first owner of the building. When this is received the payment will be mailed promptly.

POTASH LEADS WAY — Potash is a major factor in the rise of manufacturing production in Saskatchewan, a province for many years almost wholly dependent on agriculture. Saskatchewan has perhaps the world's largest deposits of high-grade potash ore — an estimated 500,000,000 tons. This is one of the big storage buildings at the Esterhazy mine of International Minerals & Chemical Corp. (Canada) Ltd. The building can hold 35,000 tons of finished product. (CP Photo)

POWER FOR INDUSTRY — This is the control room of Saskatchewan's new Squaw Rapids hydro-electric station which will have generating capacity of 201,000 kilowatts when the last of six units is installed early next year. The $53,000,000 project is a key development in the predominantly agricultural province's efforts to expand its industrial output and strike a better balance between farm and manufacturing production. New Saskatchewan Saga

Oh! What a Beautiful Mornin' Of Industry Dawns on Prairies

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan is becoming more than a province of farm communities dependent on the goodwill of nature for a healthy economy.

As industrial potential is being developed that will remove the power of nature to strike drastically at the province's annual production total by drought, frost or storm.

Steel skeletons rise as potash plants, helium plants, chemical plants and oil and gas producing centres multiply.

Twenty years ago, in a good crop year more than 80 per cent of the wealth produced in Saskatchewan came from agriculture. Today, more than half is from non-agricultural production.

"Other people are starting to realize that we are becoming real competitors for industry, and that we no longer are just a farming outfit," says Ross Brown, provincial industry and information minister.

POTASH SETS TREND

Between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 a year is being spent in Saskatchewan in public and private investment for expansion and replacement of industrial plants. Values of construction in 1962 was $402,000,000, compared with $182,000,000 only 10 years ago.

Value of manufacturing production last year was $305,000,000, compared with $250,000,000 in 1958.

A major factor is the birth of a potash industry in the last year.

"Potash could well mean to Saskatchewan what oil has meant in Alberta," Premier Woodrow Lloyd has said.

Potash was discovered in Saskatchewan by oil drilling crews some years ago, but no one got excited until it was realized in the mid-1950s that the province had perhaps the world's biggest deposits of high-grade potash ore — an estimated 300,000,000 tons.

$28 A TON

One plant now is mining 1,300,000 tons of potash a year and others are building or making plans.

There may be no limit to the amount of fertilizer - yielding potash that the world will require in the future. Potash now is worth about $20 a ton, and the investment in a plant may be as much as $60,000,000.

The province's oil industry, recovering from a slump following the 1957-58 boom, this year will produce up to 200,000 barrels a day for a possible annual yield of $150,000,000. Exploration work is proceeding at a great rate.

Natural gas production last year was almost 40,000,000,000 cubic feet, nearly 14 times the production in 1958.

A helium gas industry will be born soon as one company starts production at a plant near Swift Current. It will be the only plant in the free world, outside the United States, producing helium, which has many uses in military and space technology and research.

URANIUM IN ECLIPSE

The uranium industry, which at its peak in 1958 had production worth $59,000,000, is waiting for world markets to first again be ripe so more can be taken into hefty northern Saskatchewan reserves.

Sodium sulphate production, largely from two Crown-owned plants, has risen steadily to a value of $4,200,000. Copper production is holding steady at about $20,000,000 a year. Zinc production, however, is slowly declining, as is salt coal output.

The first stage of a chemical plant complex has been completed at Saskatoon and the Saskatchewan Industrial Chemical Company of Chicago is building another nearby. A chemical fertilizer plant is to be built at Regina.

STEEL AND TIMBER

The province has a scrap steel industry supporting one plant at Regina, with a production capacity of 100,000 tons a year of finished steel products including pipe. There are an estimated 100,000,000 tons of ore deep down in the Choiceland, Sask., area which may support more steel plants in future.

Vast timber reserves in northern Saskatchewan are hardly being touched, producing at present about 70,000,000 board feet a year. The government hopes a pulp mill can be established in three or four years. Overall value of forest products, however, has declined slightly.

Cement, clay products and sand and gravel contribute to the province's annual $240,000,000 mineral production, compared with less than $50,000,000 in 1962.

Natural gas and electricity distribution systems are being expanded to power the new plants. Hydro-electric developments such as the $53,000,000 Squaw Rapids project are underway.

And smaller industries employing 10 or 20 persons spices are multiplying.

Alderman Joseph Raycroft, chairman of the city council public works committee, has been named as chairman of the Belleville Winter Works Committee, and is leaving no stone unturned in creating as much interest as possible in winter employment.

And realizing that the municipal winter works program enables municipalities to get needed work done at a considerable saving in labor costs, the committee chairman, along with city engineer Wilbur Purcell is already lining up winter works projects for which approval will be sought.

TWO SEWER PROJECTS

This week approval is being asked for two sewer projects to be carried out during the winter months.

These include that portion of the Fahey trunk sewer which will be constructed after Nov. 1st. This sewer is now under construction by Beaver Construction and the work will extend into the winter months.

The other city project for which winter works approval is being sought is a series of smaller storm sewers in various parts of the city.

Estimated labor costs on the Fahey Street sanitary sewer which could be eligible for winter works subsidy of 75 per cent is $34,000 and on the storm sewer projects $5,000.

PLAN OTHER PROJECTS

Mr. Purcell stated that later in the year application will be made for approval of other winter works projects.

Many local home builders are offering winter-built homes to prospective customers, thereby taking advantage of the $500 subsidy on such construction being offered by the federal government.

This $500 saving is passed along to the purchaser of the winter-built home.

Average Cost of Funeral In U.S. Today Is $1,500

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The opening of Wednesday night's CBS Reports program on "The Great American Funeral" showed a shoe manufacturer demonstrating footgear made specially for the dead.

It was a bit grim and so were shots of caskets in mortuaries' sales rooms, but generally the program concerned itself with brisk and serious arguments on expensive, lavish funerals.

Narrator Robert Trout carefully emphasized that the program was involved not with the spiritual side but just "the business relationship between the people who make our funerals and the people who buy them." He noted the average cost of a funeral in the United States today is $1,500.

Heart of the program was a controversial best-selling book, The American Way of Death, by Jessica Mitford, who appeared to repeat some of her charges about undertakers' profits. Officers of morticians' and funeral directors' organizations also were interviewed. Their position was that the American public wants the kind of funerals undertakers are prepared to give them.

CHEAPER IN BRITAIN

Three clergymen appeared. With one exception they favored simple funerals rather than lavish undertaker style. Others in the company included Diana Wynyard as the mother and Sir Michael Redgrave as the king.

The National Theatre will be financed by a tax of one penny, £1,000,000 ($3,000,000), with an annual subsidy of £130,000 ($360,000.)

Peter O'Toole In Title Role Of Hamlet

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's long-stalled national theatre got off to a tremendous start Tuesday with a highly-imaginative production of Hamlet by the theatre's director, Sir Laurence Olivier, with Peter O'Toole in the title role.

Selwyn Lloyd, leader of the House of Commons, who as treasury chief approved the plans for the state - subsidized theatre group last year, was among an audience crowded with theatrical and social celebrities. They gathered at the Old Vic Playhouse, temporary home of the company until its permanent playhouse is built on London's south bank nearby.

The performance, which lasted nearly five hours with two intervals, was a triumph for Olivier. Sir Laurence has called Hamlet a permanent rebel . . . a dangerous outsider . . . often unpleasant and downright offensive."

O'Toole acted the part accordingly with much intelligence and with a touch of Irish wit. Others in the company included Diana Wynyard as the queen and Sir Michael Redgrave as the king.

AT THE BELLE — Anthony Quinn, right and Peter O'Toole, as Lawrence, in a scene from "Lawrence of Arabia", the most Honored Picture of All Time. Also starred in the 7 Academy Award Winner, including "Best Picture" now playing an unlimited engagement at the Belle Theatre, are distinguished artists, Alec Guinness, Jack Hawkins, Jose Ferrer, Anthony Quayle, Claude Rains and Arthur Kennedy. The film is in Panavision Technicolor.

AT THE PARK — Lassie leads two Canadian Mounted Police to a cabin in the woods in search for her young master Timmy in this scene from "Lassie's Great Adventure", a De Luxe Color production to be presented by 20th Century Fox at the Park Theatre starting tonight. It is the first feature length Lassie film in twelve years. The added feature stars Kent Taylor and Jeff Morrow in "Harbor Lights".

Gardner, Williams Discuss Places They Like to Live

By BOB THOMAS

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mex. (AP)—A famous face appeared just outside the restaurant window. It was Ava Gardner's.

"Is this place respectable, or can any bum come in?" she asked.

"Do join us, my dear," said Tennessee Williams. "You're absolutely welcome."

Ava joined the playwright and fellow diners. She claimed to be dressed disreputably, but no one complained. She wore a voluminous white serape-like robe and a bathing suit. She was barefoot.

"I've been waterskiing," she said, pinning up strands of her tousled hair. "Great fun, but I have a devil of a time getting my seat up out of the water."

Ava stayed for drinks and dinner and she and Williams discussed their favorite places in the world.

She said: "I would like to have homes in two places—London and Spain. Those would be my bases and the rest of the time I would travel. I'm a gypsy."

Williams mentioned his fondness for New Orleans, and she admitted it was one of the American cities that fascinated her. "New Orleans — and San Francisco," she said. "I'd like to have a little apartment in San Francisco so I could drop in any time. It's a marvellous city.

An old acquaintance asked whether she had lost her taste for Hollywood.

"Did I ever have any?" she replied, not without a note of bitterness.

She and Williams discussed her role in Night of the Iguana, which is filming here. He said he was writing a scene especially for her.

"It is something in which you will have to get your juices up, my dear," he instructed. "You can't hold back. You must give them hell."

"I will, I will," she vowed.

Haley Family in Alberta To Be Featured in Film

ATHABASCA, Alta. (CP) — Six members of the Steve Haley family will make their film debut this winter.

The Haley farm four miles west of this northern Alberta community will be featured in a National Film Board documentary comparing farm methods in different parts of Canada.

It was selected as an "average" Western Canadian operation. Farms in New Brunswick and Ontario also will be featured in the half-hour color film.

The Haleys aren't certain how their large and diversified farm was placed in the "average" category. It encompasses 2,000 acres of land, 1,100 seeded to grain; a feedlot for 500 head of cattle; about 400 head of swine and some sheep. In addition, Mr. Haley operates livestock buying stations in Athabasca, 90 miles north of Edmonton, and Colinton, with a turnover of about 6,000 swine and 2,500 cattle a year.

Mr. Haley said that with the exception of two extra men hired in the summer the farm is run by the family: Mrs. Haley, Gary, 12, Daryl, 10, Brenda, 7, and Darcy, 1.

The farm was started 45 years ago by Steve's father, John Haley, who still helps with some of the work.

USE AUTOMATION

Steve took over the management 10 years ago and now has the feedlot operation automated to a point where Gary and Daryl can easily feed all the animals.

The push of a button starts an auger which fills a hopper on a grain roller. Pushing the starter on a tractor puts the roller into operation and also augers the rolled grain into a wagon which is pulled alongside the feeders into which the feed is augered.

The haying operation also has been simplified to reduce manual labor. A baler throws bales into a wagon behind it. The full wagon then is towed to a corral where a hydraulic hoist on the front end lifts the box back, the endgate swings free and the bales drop out. A conveyor carries the bales to a hole in the roof of a feed shed where they are released onto a pile to be used as needed for feeding.

Mr. Haley said about 10 minutes of his farm's operation will be shown in the NFB film, even though the film crew shot for three weeks.

The documentary likely will be shown first on the CBC's Country Calendar this winter. It will also be made available to any groups or organizations wishing to use it and to other countries to show Canadian agricultural practices.

Betty Grable Still Makes Young Chorus Girls Stare

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Betty Grable's still got it.

The shapely blonde, a favorite pin-up queen of troops in the Second World War, recently completed a two-week engagement as Miss Adelaide in Guys and Dolls at Melodyland Theatre out by Disneyland.

The chorus girls in the show were all in the 18-23 age bracket and shapely as only chorus girls can be.

Betty makes her opening entrance in the midst of all this fresh, young talent.

But Betty, dressed in skin tight capri pants, even made the young chorus girls stare—and the bald-headed row started whistling and stamping its feet.

Later she did skimpy costume numbers with the same chorus girls—and not a one could top her figure. Facially, she looks great—as only Betty Grable can. So why isn't she doing movies? She was the movie box office queen for years.

"This is more fun," says Betty. "I'm not nothing more to prove in the movies.

"I spent half my life getting up at 5 a.m. to work out song and dance routines all day long and then collapse in bed at night—with only the makeup and hairdressing call to look forward to the next day.

"Now I work at night and sleep late in the mornings. To me, it's the greatest luxury in the world."

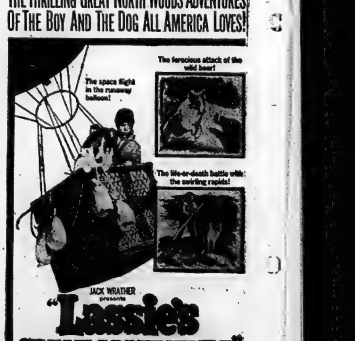
Betty, of course, is the perfect Miss Adelaide.

"When Bill Goetz first bid for the movie rights, he wanted me for the part—and Clark Gable as Sky Masterson. Then Sam Goldwyn outbid Bill and got the rights.

"He wanted to see me about the role one day but I couldn't make it because one of my dogs took ill.

"You know Sam, he couldn't take that for an excuse so I never did get to talk to him about the part.

"I played it eight months in Las Vegas—and now here. I love the role and I guess I'll be playing it again.



"But not with 5 a.m. makeup calls."

KARACHI (AP) — It has been a tough five years for Mohammad Ayub Khan since he seized the government and began trying to remake Pakistan.

This two-part article, where theoretically democratic government was replaced by military rule, has proven hard in rescue.

Ayub Khan finds solutions to the problems receding into the future, dragging him into the kinds of failings for which he condemned his parliamentary predecessors.

When he took off the uniform of a military leader and became president of a martial law regime Oct. 27, 1958, Ayub Khan set many things that needed changing.

Pakistan was politically bankrupt, no general elections having been held since independence from Britain in 1947. Corruption was rampant. The economy drifted while the population sank deeper in poverty.

RESEMBLES 1953

Ayub Khan's straightforward approach to the problems brought a period of high hopes but today the situation resembles that of 1953.

Massive problems are inherent in Pakistan's strange nature.

Some 85 per cent of its area with only one per cent of its population lies on the desert and mountainous edge of the Middle East. The rest is a long way away, across India, in the rainy delta lands of southeast Asia.

Between the two live over 100,000,000 people male to read, villagers know little of their government.

The average individual income of $71 a year has declined slightly in the last year rather than rising toward the prosperity Ayub Khan's regime set as major goals. Bad agricultural production gets the blame.

More than a dozen countries of population. The rise is officially estimated at 2.2 per cent but the planning commission thinks the rate might be as high as 2.6 per cent.

His long-range projections indicate Pakistan will have to run hard just to keep up with population growth, let alone hope to improve living standards.

Unemployment is up down in 1958 but now is back up.

Controversial Cancer Drug Has Been Sold

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Medical Association says it has evidence that the controversial cancer drug Krebiozen has been sold to a Canadian patient.

Dr. Stevan Durovic, discoverer of the serum, said he drew Ivy, Krebiozen's chief sponsor, have consistently denied that krebiozen has been sold.

An AMA spokesman said the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ruled several years ago that krebiozen cannot be sold in interstate commerce because since the laboratory where it is produced, the Pronak Laboratories, is not licensed to operate under the Biological Control Act. The serum, however, could be used and distributed.

This ruling and the alleged sale of the drug to a Canadian patient, pre - date the recent FDA ban on interstate shipment of krebiozen. The federal government banned krebiozen from interstate commerce last April after the drug failed to comply with FDA regulations regarding the distribution and use of new drugs.

The AMA spokesman said the AMA received a letter last June from a doctor in Alberta reporting use of krebiozen in the treatment of his cancer league's patients.

The Canadian doctor, who was identified only as Dr. Lee, wrote that the patient's family, over the protest of its physician, sought treatment for terminal cases of the patient's stomach cancer.

The AMA spokesman said the Canadian doctor reported that the family paid approximately $1,200 for the serum, which was administered over an eight-month period from January, 1962, until September, 1962. The client was admitted to hospital early in September and died Sept. 4.

The AMA says it has hospital records verifying the use of krebiozen, together with x-rays, which and Canadian customs forms verifying its sale.

Income Tax Explained

A column designed and written for the working persons, who are not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Department

Ex members of the armed services who have been in civilian employment during the year, often receive quite a shock, when they are notified by the Income Tax Department that they owe a balance of tax, when they were expecting a refund of their tax deductions.

While they were in the armed services their income tax if any was paid in full on each pay day, so when they received their discharge, no income tax was owing. When they become employed after their discharge they start all over again for taxation purposes.

They do not report on their 1963 income tax return as their military income that was received in the year. This being the case, they receive full tax exemption. They will also be allowed exemption for the number of days they served as a civilian. Most ex-servicemen have received exemption for the whole year.

To compute the exemption for the number of days, divide the exemption for the year by 365 days and then multiply by the number of days in the year after discharge. This same proration will apply to the $100 deducted for children if no medical expenses or charitable donations are claimed.

Any ex member of the armed services should show on the first return he files after becoming a civilian, the date of his discharge. If he does not show this, the return cannot be processed until the information is available.

While in the armed services any civilian income that may have been received should be reported direct to the military persons concerned who will arrange the tax on it for him.

Question 1 — I was discharged from the Army this year. When I file my income tax return have to show my army income and tax paid?

Answer — No. Report only your civilian income and take exemption for only that part of the year you were employed.

Question 2 — Why did the Income Tax Department reduce the $1000 exemption, in the year I was discharged from the RCAF.

Answer — As you only report on your return, the income received while you became a civilian, your $1000 exemption is reduced to cover that part of the year.

All letters of inquiry will be answered if a self addressed and stamped (5 cents) envelope is enclosed.

A bigger and better Hallowe'en Masquerade Dance will be held in the ANAF auditorium on Friday evening, Nov. 1st. It is understood that the entertainment chairman of both the Ladies' Auxiliary and Unit 201 are co-operating to make it one of the best dances of the year. There will be prizes for the various types of costumes, along with spot and door prizes. So let your hair down, Comrades, and make up a party of your friends and join in the mirth. It will be an evening to remember. More details in The Ontario Intelligencer next week.

The Remembrance Day banquet committee have things pretty well under control. A number of distinguished guests have been invited and the Dominion Command President of the ANAF Vets in Canada has been invited as guest speaker. He will address the Comrades and he always has things to say that are well worth while listening to. The Ladies' Auxiliary, bless them, will serve another of their wonderful dinners and entertainment chairman is busy lining up good entertainment for the evening. The tickets will be on sale next week at a cost of $1.50. There are only 100 of them so be sure to get yours early. Any veteran, irregardless of his affiliations, will be able to purchase a ticket while they last. The banquet will be held on Saturday, November 9, in the ANAF auditorium.

The sports chairman states that though the teams may not have won any trophies, they were not disgraced as there had to be playoffs in both darts and cribbage. It just was not their day, though and the teams were just nosed 'out. He and the competitors are unanimous in their tributes to the president, sports chairman and members of the 48th Old Boys' Association for their wonderful hospitality which helped assuage the disappointment felt by the many of returning empty handed. He hopes to be able to have some unit sports competitions in the near future and would welcome suggestions from the members as to what they would like to do.

ENJOYED VISIT

It was reported that the unit's old time secretary, Bert Wells, now hospitalized in Sunnybrook Hospital, was considered well enough to come to the sports meeting and meet and enjoy a visit with his old comrades. The members were very glad to see him and he told them that he was getting wonderful treatment at the hospital and expects to be able to return to his home in about a month but he will have to continue as an out-patient and return periodically to Sunnybrook for treatments. He still will be glad to get cards and letters from the members as he says he really misses the old gang and although correspondence is a poor substitute for the comradeship he has been used to it still makes him grateful to think he is not entirely forgotten. Here is his address again, 3 B West, Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto 12, so spare a few moments to drop him a line. Comrade Brenton remains about the same and Comrade MacKay is still not too good. Both are still in the Belleville General Hospital while "Warpy" O'Brien remains in the Kingston General Hospital and is hoping to get well enough to return home soon.

PLEASANT DUTY

Two very pleasant duties were performed over the week-end. On Friday evening Pres. Cecil C. Brown presented the ANAF annual bursary, presented to the son or daughter of a former veteran who is continuing further education, for high standing in grade 13, to Miss Nancy Knowlton of the Quinte Secondary School.

On Saturday evening 1st Vice-President Bill Morrison had the honor of performing the same agreeable task of presenting the bursary to Charles Steele of the Moira Secondary School. Both students were congratulated and best success for their continued success in their further education.

FEW IN NUMBERS

A disquieting piece of news has been received from Ottawa that interests opposed to the Centennial project of the proposed new memorial building to house the Books of Remembrance for those who gave their lives in the South African and Nile campaigns, World War II and the Korean conflict is being postponed indefinitely. While the first mentioned campaign veterans are very few in numbers now, there still are plenty of veterans of the later wars who should be able to voice a very strong protest at what could be considered an indignity to those comrades who gave their all in protecting the freedom of this great country of ours. It had been approved and recommended by both the present government and its predecessor, although there was always a minority who disapproved of the scheme. Now it appears that the project is in danger of being, if not cancelled, at least very much delayed. So all who are interested, which should be the vast majority of Canadians, should contact their local member of Parliament and request him to voice their protests at any suggestion that this very forthwhile plan should in any way be interfered with or delayed in any manner whatsoever.

This is all for this week, hoping that the above item will cause the members to give it serious thought and act accordingly.

Nevada Strips Sinatra of Gaming Rights

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Nevada authorities stripped Frank Sinatra of all his gaming licenses Tuesday but said he would be given until next spring to divest himself of his $3,000,000 interest in the Cal-Neva Lodge on the north shore of Lake Tahoe.

The commissioner took away Sinatra's state gaming licences at its meeting earlier in the day and approved the immediate sale of his $391,000 interest in the Sands Hotel-Casino in Las Vegas.

Sinatara's nine-per-cent interest in the Sands is being purchased by the Sands Corporation. Escrow will be closed on the deal by Jan. 3.

Sinatra's licence at the Cal-Neva also was revoked by the commission but the singer was allowed to retain his $500,000 half-interest in the gaming operation and his $2,000,000 interest in the real property there until he could find a buyer acceptable to the gaming commission.

Sinatra got into trouble with Nevada gaming authorities when he played host to Chicago underworld character Sam (Mooney) Giancca at the Cal-Neva in mid-July.

The gaming authorities issued a complaint to the commission giving Sinatra until Oct. 7 to answer. Instead of filing a notice of defence, Sinatra asked the commission to terminate all of his Nevada gambling licences.

Heat, Drought May Continue Another 3 Weeks

Speed up Funnelling Of Water Supplies

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A long-range weather outlook indicates that what has been called Ontario's worst drought since 1901 may last more than three weeks.

The outlook by the United States weather bureau extending to mid-November calls for much above normal temperatures and sub-normal precipitation throughout most of eastern North America.

A spokesman for the Dominion weather office in Toronto said that from the data his forecasters can determine there is no end in sight to the eight-week-long drought and heat wave which has seriously hit crops and livestock and has created a dangerous fire hazard in most of the province's forests.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart announced Thursday night that a six-man emergency committee has been set up to speed the funnelling of water supplies to drought-hit areas.

The committee, headed by Assistant deputy minister of agriculture W. E. Raitt, meets in Toronto today but is expected to move quickly to establish a special headquarters in London, Ont., hub of the hardest-hit section of the province.

Other committee members are Herb Crown, Director of the Agriculture Rehabilitation Development Act, vice-chairman; Dr. G. K. Martin, representing the department of health, Archie Watt, representing the Water Resources Commission; Robert Carey, representing the Federation of Agriculture and Mel Tibbet, representing the Ontario Farmers' Union.

Mr. Stewart said there had been no discussion of supplying government-owned Avro Arrow engines to subsidies for those farmers hit hardest by the drought. Subsidies would in effect penalize other farmers who had built extensive irrigation facilities, he indicated.

The agriculture minister said his department received offers of aid Thursday from public utilities commissions in London and St. Marys. Both offered to supply water free of charge to help ease their districts.

FARMERS 'SCARED'

Donald Graham, agricultural representative for Brant County said:

'Big Lift' Smooth in Peacetime; How Would It Have Gone in War?

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The massive airlift of 15,000 U.S. soldiers across the Atlantic has ended in resounding success. But a nagging question remains unanswered.

How would Operation Big Lift have fared under war conditions?

The last of 225 air force transport planes arrived at the rear guard of the 2nd Armored Division at Sembach Air Base Thursday night.

The elapsed time from the takeoff of the first jet transport from Fort Dix, N.J., to touchdown until the touch down of the tail end troop carrier in Germany was 63 hours and 20 minutes.

This was 36 minutes less than the best time that air force and army leaders had predicted for the transatlantic airlift. It was designed to impress NATO countries—and the Russians—with growing U.S. ability to send large reinforcements overseas quickly.

Except for a handful of plane diversions due to fog, the airlift was virtually perfect.

Weeks of detailed planning paid off as troops flowed to Europe's front line. The airlift crafted off on intricate schedules, set soldiers disembarked in calm order in West Germany and France and rolled off to dray their barracks and other heavy equipment from stockpiles.

As the division's tail rolled across the Atlantic, its head was getting ready to move from West German roads to a manoeuvre area close to East Germany's Iron Curtain border.

Next week, the 2nd Armored will try to repel a mock invasion from the Communist East.

But there were many sceptics, particularly among the West Germans. Some Americans had doubts, too.

Today's Chuckle

Don't be a yes man. When the boss says no, you say no, too.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Sunny, dry and very warm weather will continue over most of the province. However, cooler air is moving across the northern regions. Some cloudiness and a few scattered showers accompany the cooler air and this band of weather is expected to spread into central Ontario tonight.

Cancel Frigate Program

OTTAWA (CP)—A navy frigate program announced 18 months ago by the former Conservative government was cancelled Thursday by the Liberal administration.

The keel for the first of the eight frigates was to have been laid in December, 1964. Cancellation of the program came when about $500,000 had been spent on the $452,000,000 operation.

Defence Minister Hellyer indicated in his announcement to the Commons that the government thought the frigates were too costly and militarily unsound.

He added that studies are being carried out to determine the roles and tasks to be assigned to the Canadian navy and the most economical way of implementing them.

Opposition Churchill, former Conservative defence minister, said Mr. Hellyer had torpedoed the navy.

Within minutes of the announcement, Transport Minister Hellyer said he expected the three-year, $110,000,000 program of ship building for the transport department.

Included would be an $18,000,000 icebreaker, two Pacific weather ships, four ferries for the east coast, and 11 coast guard vessels of varying size.

CONVERT DESTROYERS

In another attempt to make up for the shipyard loss of the frigate program, Mr. Hellyer said the six RestIgouche class destroyers would be converted to carry helicopters after sea trials with helicopters by the destroyer Assiniboine are completed this winter.

The seven St. Laurent class destroyers, including the Assiniboine, are already being converted at a cost of about $22,000,000.

Mr. Hellyer said costs were a big factor in cancelling the frigate program. But other factors were also considered.

The frigate designs were designed to pack into one ship an anti-submarine capability, an air defence role, a fleet, and the capacity to carry and land a limited number of troops and light helicopters.

To get all this into one ship, it had become necessary to limit the capabilities of each field, compared with what could be with more specialized ships.

For anti-sub work, Mr. Hellyer said, the general-purpose utilities proved to be ineffective as the latest RCN anti-sub destroyers. These carried big helicopters with built in sensing and weapons-delivery systems. The frigates' light 'copter would be limited.

To provide air protection for the fleet, a new and equipment costing $100,000,000 would have to be provided under the frigate program. The next few years may see improved missiles that cost less in relation to effectiveness.

Want Province To Pay Most Of School Costs

HAMILTON (CP) — A taxation study committee of the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Association Thursday recommended that the Ontario government bear 80 per cent of elementary and secondary education costs in the province.

This was one of three points decided at a meeting of the committee which is seeking ways to ease and equalize the financial burden of education on municipal taxpayers.

Another point the committee broke off discussion with seven points still to consider. They will be reviewed Friday.

One of these is the extension of the school day to a possible 6½ hours. A panel would be set up to prepare boundaries for the new elementary schools.

The committee recommended that the province request additional funds from the federal government to a greater extent than the province now is doing.

Rescue Teams Make Contact With 7 of 50 German Miners

HANNOVER, Germany (Reuters) — Rescue teams drilling down into a flooded West German iron mine at nearby Lengede today broke through to an underground area where they made contact with seven of 39 missing miners.

There was no immediate report on the condition of the seven men, who were trapped Thursday when a torrent of water and mud from a broken reservoir surged through a pit.

No official theory of the cause of the accident has been advanced. But some local residents thought construction of a big highway approach near the reservoir may have weakened its shoreline.

Narrow shafts were being drilled in an effort to locate the men. Four drills were at work, and officials planned to enlarge the shaft in which contacts were located and bring up the men.

The seven men located today were 75 feet underground. It is planned to widen the shaft until it will take a rescue basket in which the men can be hauled to safety.

A statement by the mine owners said many of the men were believed trapped as deep as 130 feet. Drilling in that level "will take some hours," it said.

Meanwhile, the water level in the 330-foot-deep shaft has risen to the 300-foot level.

A stream of heavy trucks was driving up to the pithead with loads of dirt, dumping it into the 65-foot deep crater on the edge of the reservoir where a water broke into the mine.

Rescue workers were trying to block the hole and prevent more water from pouring in. They calculated that 4,000,000 cubic yards already have surged into the shaft.

About 79 miners escaped from the pit before the flood waters to the elevator shaft or slipping through connecting tunnels into a neighboring unused mine.

Production at Giant Ford Plant Crippled by Strike

OAKVILLE (CP) — Production at the giant Ford of Canada plant has been crippled by a wildcat walkout for the second time in two days during peak production of 1964 models.

Day-shift workers threw up picket lines at the Ford plant Thursday and by the time night-shift workers joined them most of the 5,000 production employees were involved.

The two walkouts were linked.

After the men returned from a two-day protest earlier this month over a failure to end long-standing work regulations and other grievances, company officials called in 90 of them for questioning.

Thursday it announced that 20 of the men will be suspended for three days, beginning this Monday, for their part in the Oct. 9-10 walkout.

Edward Bruce, president of Local 707 of the United Auto Workers (CLC), said he pleaded vainly for the men to return to work and was helpless now to end the unauthorized walkout.

He told the union members at a meeting that the company might take disciplinary action and that the union could not prevent it.

Many of the pickets blamed company photographers for observing company officials an idea of who had picketed during the earlier strike.

When three photographers showed on Thursday night, they were chased off and a third was surrounded by angry pickets. Police arrived on the scene and the photographer forced to give them his film, which was subsequently said not to be published, before he was freed.

Phil Lisson, Ford's industrial relations manager here, said the suspensions were handed out because the earlier walkout violated a contract now in force between the union and the company.

He described the first walkout as "shocking and unbelievable" because the collective agreement provides for orderly procedures by which grievances may be resolved or in the last resort taken to arbitration.

The company had sent letters to all employees last May warning that such disciplinary action might follow illegal work stoppages.

P. M. Arrives in Scotland To Challenge for Seat

EDINBURGH (CP)—Sir Alec Douglas-Home, Britain's prime minister, arrived in Scotland today for a challenge by anti-politicians and a television comic for a seat in Parliament.

Douglas-Home is the only prime minister in modern times to be the short of the House of Commons or Lords. To remedy this deficiency he is seeking Commons membership in the Highland district of Kinross and West Perth.

His campaign headquarters—and temporary seat of government—will be the Perthshire home of his friend Andrew Drummond-Moray.

Technicians moved scrambler phones into the ramshackle 19th-century house this morning in order that the new prime minister can keep in touch immediately if he wishes without all Scotland knowing.

Douglas-Home has told local Conservative managers he wants to fight a normal campaign. That calls for some set speeches in village squares and schoolrooms before polling day Nov. 7.

His opponents are more numerous than usual. They are a Labor candidate, Liberal, Independent Conservative, Scottish Nationalist, plus Tommy Rushton, a plump television performer who made his name with a cheerfully irreverent impersonation of Douglas-Home's stricken speech.

Rushton says he's in it to expose the backstairs method by which Douglas-Home was appointed premier, over the rival claims of Richard A. Butler, now foreign secretary. It will of course expose a lot of Rushton, too.

At the 1959 general election, the Conservative MP got 26,215 votes against 16,256 votes against Jo Grimond, the only other candidate.

The prime minister therefore looks to have a racing certainty. The locals dearly love an earl —which Douglas-Home was until he gave up his titles this year but in the absence of a peerage they'll settle happily for a hyphen.

Four Armed Men Believed After Coin Collection

TORONTO (CP)—Four armed men in Halloween masks tied up the wife and son of Samuel Bennett in their Toronto home Thursday night and ransacked the house in search of a coin collection.

They broke off with about $200.

Mr. Bennett had just left to visit his brother when the men forced their way into the house at 8:30 p.m. Mrs. Bennett and her son Franklin, 21.

Police believe they were seeking the Bennetts' brother, not knowing he died in Florida two weeks ago. The brother had died one of his valuable coin collection before he died.

Mr. Bennett, a semi-retired businessman, is a partner in the Westdale Hotel in Hamilton until early this year.

Shipping Begins To Move

By GEORGE FRAJKOR

MONTREAL (CP)—Members of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) voted overwhelmingly Thursday night to end their walkout that has tied up inland and coastal shipping since last Saturday.

They voted settlement only after Canadian SIU President Hal Banks assured them that other SIU members attended the union terms, terms that he said had been agreed to by the three-man board of trustees appointed by the federal government to take over five maritime unions.

Within hours of a meeting of 300 SIU members at Montreal, the union's headquarters seaman at Toronto and Thorold, Ont., had voted agreement with them and seamen's meetings at other Canadian ports were expected to do the same today.

The terms, Mr. Banks assured SIU members, are that the seamen will guarantee that the trustees do not interfere with SIU internal affairs; that SIU officers and constitution are not changed; that the trustees not occupy the SIU headquarters building; that the SIU and other unions under trusteeship not be allowed to tamper with SIU members; and that the SIU appoint a liaison officer to work with the trustees.

END WALKOUT

Mr. Banks had no comment after the meeting, but SIU rank-and-file members jubilantly telephoned their ships to announce the end of the walkout and to tell ships' officials companies they'd be back at work as soon as possible. Over 100 ships were forced into idleness by the walkout.

Although in January SIU members left all their ships until all members in SIU ports had voted, union plans to go back to work immediately.

Mr. Banks said after the Montreal meeting he had no comment to make on the trustees but confirmed there had been only about six votes against "whatever we discussed."

He said it would have to be announced "in the proper manner" at a press conference after he had been in touch with Ottawa.

Mr. Banks, sweating and rumpled was mobbed by SIU members as he left the meeting. They cheered loudly as he descended the stairs from the upper floor of the union hall and cried "Good going, chief" as he climbed into his white Cadillac convertible.

ASKS ACCEPT

Members said he recommended to them, in a 1½-hour speech, that they accept the trustees' terms of settlement.

"We'll walk out again if they don't," he said at Hal Banks," said some members emerging from the meeting. "We'll go along with them (the trustees) as long as we get a fair deal. That's all we are mobbed with, we'll wait off the ships again."

The members said Mr. Banks read them a written statement from Labor Minister Maclvor Haliburton following their interference in the SIU constitution.

They said Mr. Banks told them the trusteeship terms "fair and just men, from whom the SIU has nothing to fear" and that he felt the trustees would do a good job."

Lake freighters began to move almost immediately along the St. Lawrence Seaway after the Montreal vote.

'Urgent Task' Of Trustees Has Been Achieved

Officers of Five Unions Will Retain Their Posts

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The "urgent task" of the new federal maritime union trusteeship seemed achieved today as about 2,000 Canadian seamen moved back to strikebound ships.

But the second objective of "close internal study of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada and other unions" is just beginning, the three federal trustees indicated Thursday night.

This scrutiny will cover financial conduct, election of officials, and observance of the union constitutions plus other items while the Canada shipping inquiry report raised in the harsh indictment of the SIU and its president, Hal C. Banks of Montreal.

The investigation may "lead us to a number of conclusions," said the trusteeship chairman, Mr. Justice Victor L. Dryer, in one of his interviews with newsmen at a hard-hitting press conference Thursday night.

Besieged with queries about the trusteeship's next moves, he exercised extreme caution.

REMAIN IN OFFICE

Elected officers of the five trustee-held unions, including the controversial Mr. Banks, will remain in office to handle routine administration "until we decide otherwise," the Vancouver judge said.

The three-man trusteeship was not giving orders for the moment but "we have potential control."

The trusteeship's terms of reference, he emphasized, are laid out by Parliament.

The act provides fines of up to $10,000 plus jail sentences for persons, employers, unions or sailors—who obstruct the trusteeship.

Mr. Justice Dryer said the trustees' "urgent task" was to get striking SIU men back on ships and to that end the trustees had interviewed leaders of five unions Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Banks himself had "promised to co-operate . . . and we believe he will. We also believe it will bear fruit very shortly."

Within minutes, reports came from Montreal, Toronto, Fort William and Thorold that SIU seamen had voted to go back to the ships.

ASSESS IN WRITING

SIU members in Montreal quoted Mr. Banks as saying that assurances were given in writing by the trustees that the SIU would not be raided for membership by the other four unions nor would its bargaining terms be occupied.

Similar votes were expected

UN-Haters Mob Adlai Stevenson, Spit on Him, Hit Him With Sign

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — One anti-UN demonstrator spat on Adlai E. Stevenson, another banged him on the head with a sign and about 100 milled around him in a disorderly pro-test Thursday night.

The two incidents occurred after a United Nations day speech during which Stevenson was hit by two missiles—coins from 1,750 persons jamming the Municipal Auditorium in downtown Dallas. A front row heckler interrupted him at one point.

Police arrested two men in breaking up a brawl that swirled around a car in which Stevenson, the ambassador to the United Nations, left the auditorium.

He appeared startled but unhurt by the blow on his head. Police grabbed a woman carrying the sign.

"Don't arrest her—it could have been an accident," Stevenson said. Then he asked the woman: "What is wrong? Can Adlai Stevenson help you?"

The woman, who later identified herself to reporters as Mrs. Fredericka Vreeland of Dallas, snarled back: "If you don't know what's wrong, I don't know why. Everybody else does."

Stevenson turned and walked back to the platform. 47, told reporters she did not intend to hit him but someone jostled her arm as she pushed her placard close for the ambassador to look.

The sign asked: "Adlai, who elected you?"

Several demonstrators told reporters they were members of a conservative organization called Young Americans for Freedom. Others identified themselves as Cubans in "Alpha 66," a group of revolutionary

Ginny Aims Full Fury At Carolina

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Hurricane Ginny aimed the full fury of her 85-mile-an-hour winds at the Carolinas today and hurricane warnings were issued from Charleston to Cape Fear, N.C.

Coastal residents were told to take immediate precautions against dangerous winds, destructive tides and heavy flooding.

Hurricane-force winds were expected to start pounding the Charleston area in the afternoon, spreading northward along the coast the rest of the day.

With ample warnings, most residents in low-lying areas already were prepared to evacuate.

At 6 a.m. EDT, when hurricane warnings were issued, Ginny was 100 miles south of Charleston, centred near latitude 31.5 north, longitude 79.7 west.

Italy Travelling Rocky Road Politically, Economically

By ALLAN JACKS

ROME (AP)—Italy is travelling a rocky road, both politically and economically. A resurgent Communist party is waiting patiently on the sidelines to take advantage of the situation.

For the present the party and its experienced leaders seem content to watch deteriorating conditions and save their big guns—strikes and riots—for the future.

With summer vacations over, the so-called stop-gap government of Premier Giuseppe Leone has announced a semi-austerity program providing for cutbacks in government spending, reduction of imports, higher taxes on luxury items and other measures.

In announcing the program the government warned that the economy was showing "symptoms of imbalance which, if not offset, could compromise the continuity of the development of the economy."

POLITICS CONFUSED

Italian politics was left in a turmoil by the 14-month, left-leaning government of Amintore Fanfani. The government was defeated last April in an election in which the Communists made as astonishing showing.

The Reds polled 25 per cent of the vote, Fanfani's Christian Democrats, who have governed Italy since the Second World War and could secure only half the votes, polled only 38 per cent. The rest of the ballots were split among six other parties.

During the same 14 months Italy's economic boom began to falter. Prices have been spiraling for months.

Some Italians, and foreign observers, blame circumstances as much as Fanfani for these price rises and other problems. Full employment, for the first time in Italy's history, and general prosperity have had inflationary effects.

Whatever the cause, politicians have been debating the merits and demerits of Fanfani's experimental "opening to the left," the ideological formula under which he ran the government with the support of the country's bright pink Socialist Party.

BLAME FANFANI

The formula in general and Fanfani's nationalization of the power industry in particular are widely blamed both for inflation and for a stock market dive that has wiped out billion stocks by 37 per cent since Fanfani took office.

The Leone government was formed as a post-election "stop-gap" to handle routine business until views and positions, particularly the Christian Democrats and Socialists, could settle into a pattern which will form the sort of working coalition.

Five months after the election, internal disputes are no nearer solution and efforts to resolve them are exhausting politicians who should be attending to national rather than party problems.

There appear to be only two possible solutions to the political crisis—new elections or a reopening to the left, a new coalition government with Socialist support for participation.

Elections might result in further Communist gains at the polls or could be rendered unlikely.

The most usual prediction: A reopening to the left—but without Fanfani.

Chamber Declines To Sponsor Course

Belleville Chamber of Commerce yesterday turned town a request from the Department of Education that the Chamber sponsor a series of lectures on business management, retailing and business records. A letter from the Department suggested the courses might be held in the city during the end of the year, if the Chamber was will g to co-operate.

The letter could conflict though, with a ten-week management course being planned by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, to begin during January, and with other courses in operation or planned by the Jaycees. Because of the conflict, the Department's letter will be considered at the next Junior Chamber for consideration, the Chamber of Commerce directors decided.

P. R. Workshop For Red Cross Opens in City

Delegates representing the Canadian Red Cross Society met in the Prince Edward Suite of the Quinte Hotel this morning for their annual Eastern Ontario Regional Public Relations Workshop.

The workshop opened with a problem solving session in which the delegates present, r ... several listed problems, on which they held five minute discussion periods and attempting to come up with a solution to overcome these obstacles.

The workshop was chaired by Captain E. C. Hopkins, chairman of Public Relations Committee, Ontario Division, Toronto.

Guest speaker Phil Stone, executive vice-president of Radio Station CHUM, Toronto, who gave an outline of what the news media were looking for and how members of the Canadian Red Cross Society could help radio, newspaper and television in telling the public what their local red cross organization was doing within the community.

Mr. Stone was introduced by president of the local Red Cross Society, Newton Thompson, and thanked by the local public relations chairman, Gordon Anderson.

The workshop was to continue following the noon hour recess at which time campaign chairman Clive Tisdale of Toronto was to address the group.

Door-to-Door Sale Cancelled By Jaycees

Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce cancelled plans, yesterday, for a door-to-door sale of Christmas tree lights, planned to begin Nov. 15. The sale, planned for the last week, was to have raised money for Jaycee projects in the city.

Discussing the plans yesterday, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce directors agreed, the planned campaign would be detrimental to local merchants who had already ordered stock for the Christmas season. It was not part of the Chamber of Commerce program, or of the Jaycees' program, the directors decided to compete with private business.

A motion proposed by Walter Elliott and seconded by the directors commended the Jaycees' initiative, but disagreed with the proposed sale and asked the Jaycees to reconsider their plans.

At a meeting later in the afternoon, the Jaycees' executive agreed to scrap plans for the sale, and operate a turkey shoot instead. Plans for the turkey shoot have not been made, but the event will probably be held in late November, according to Jaycee spokesman, Don Burr.

Chamber Directors Feel Industrial Commission Should Pay More for Service

Four hundred dollars a month is not enough to cover the Belleville Industrial Commission's share of the cost of running the Industrial Commission of Commerce office, the Chamber directors decided yesterday. The Chamber office has been handling Industrial Commission business, and the Chamber of Commerce manager has been speaking, according to the Chamber, more than half his time on Industrial Commission work. The Chamber agrees that the Industrial Commission duties should have first call on the Chamber manager's time, but the directors feel the Industrial Commission should pay more for the service.

The discussion yesterday was a continuation of a wrangle that began more than a year ago. Yesterday, it continued over the City Manager's duties as the combined duties of the office.

NO ACTION TAKEN

No action will be taken yet on the report though, until after the civic elections planned for December. The Chamber wants to wait for the new city council, because of the possibility that it would disapprove moves approved now, by the present council.

Another possibility being considered is that the new assessment may, according to the city manager, provide the Industrial Commission with a budget increase of up to $4,000 which would give the Commission a total budget of about $16,000. This is dependent on Council's approval.

LEASE RUNNING OUT

The Chamber also discussed the factor that the lease on the Chamber office, rented at $125 a month, will be running out next May. Considering the possibility of an increase in the rent at that time, the Chamber discussed purchase of its own property for office.

Final decision on the City Manager's report: that the Industrial Commission shall move first to ask for it, and that Industrial Commission should be the first to command on it. The Chamber directors put it aside for consideration at a later meeting.

Lingham Lake Reservoir May Have to Be Closed

Unless fall rains are received soon over the Moira River watershed, flow from the Lingham Lake reservoir, 30 miles north of Madoc may have to be closed off completely.

Since late summer flow through the control dam at Lingham Lake has been set at 45 cubic feet per second minute, but lake level has now been reduced so drastically that it may be necessary to cut flow completely to assure against total freezing of fish.

Mr. Graham Bell, chairman of the water control advisory committee of the Moira Authority, said he visited the lake on Saturday and reported the lake level at the dam was down to 13½ feet.

To reduce the outflow he closed the gate valve to allow only 12 cubic feet of water per second.

REDUCE DOWN FLOW

This will materially reduce the down river flow below the dam and will affect the operation of the grist mill at Queensboro which relies to a great extent on waterpower.

Mr. Bell said that when the lake drops one more foot the outflow will have to be cut completely to guard against winter kill of fish.

In order to compensate for the reduced flow from Lingham Lake, Mr. Bell said Jim Taylor, district forester at Tweed will be approached to see if it is possible to open the dam at the outlet of Skootamatta Lake.

Lack of rain throughout the district has made the woods north of Madoc tinder dry according to Mr. Bell. The dry conditions put the woods in a particularly dangerous condition with respect to forest fires, he said.

Roman Pickpockets Reaping Harvest From Visiting Bishops

ROME (AP)—The "borsaioli" of Rome would be hurt if anything should come of a Brazilian prelate's suggestion that Roman Catholic bishops give up their rings and crosses.

A borsaioli is a pickpocket, and these thin fingers have been doing their best to find loose-fitting episcopal rings, and pectoral crosses weakly connected to chains, among the 2,300 prelates attending the Vatican ecumenical council.

While no official figures are available, at least a dozen rings and crosses have been stolen.

"I go around with one hand against my chest and the other in my pocket," said an African bishop.

OPPOSES TITLES

Auxiliary Archbishop Helder Pessoa Camara of Rio de Janeiro has said the Catholic hierarchy would do well to rid itself of expensive rings, crosses, limousines, and titles of "eminence" (for a cardinal) and "excellency" (for an archbishop or bishop). Nothing does more to separate the clergy from the people—especially the poor—than signs of opulence, he said.

Rome's borsaioli operate with a different motivation, but their goal is identical—separating the bishops from their crosses and rings.

One trick is to stop a bishop in a crowd, take his right hand and murmur "his excellenza" (your excellency) while blessing the bishop's ring in homage.

If the ring is loose, it can disappear before the prelate realizes it is gone.

Episcopal rings and crosses vary in value from a few dollars to several hundred.

Want Lookout Over Island

The question of ownership of a patch of land beside the "Devil's Elbow" on Dundas St. W. was raised yesterday by Belleville Chamber of Commerce directors. J. D. Tennant was brought up the suggestion that if the city owns, or can obtain, the land, it would make an ideal location for a look-out, for tourists, over Zwick's Island and the Bay of Quinte.

The suggestion followed mention of Belleville hotelman Ernest Kackell's hopes for a "Historian Village" on the island park. Mr. Templeman suggested the site, whether the village idea goes through or not, as "a place where you can stop off and see something."

A letter, asking about ownership of the land and suggesting the boulevard idea will be sent to city council, the directors decided.

Demonstration Team Will Train Regiment

Demonstration squads from five Canadian Army Regular Force units will tour Ontario this winter as part of the new emphasis being placed on Militia corps and tactics training.

The squads, numbering between ten and twelve highly skilled, professional soldiers from two Canadian Infantry Brigade Groups will stage 48 demonstrations in 32 Ontario cities and towns.

Major General George Kitching, General Officer Commanding, Central Command, said the demonstrations will aid in the re-introduction of the basic military arts into the militia training program.

For the past few years, militia training has been devoted almost totally to National Survival. Changing conditions, said the General, have brought about a need "to revive and update the militiaman's ability to use his weapons and equipment under field conditions."

The armored corps demonstration team will be drawn from the 8th Canadian Hussars (Princess Louise's) from Camp Petawawa, and the artillery team from 4 Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Camp Petawawa. Infantry demonstration teams will come from 1 Canadian Guards at Camp Picton, 2 Canadian Guards at Camp Petawawa, and The 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, London.

In each location the teams will put on two-hour demonstrations of weapons, equipment, instruction and tactics to the troop and platoon level. They will utilize small-bore rifles, blank-cloth model exercises. They will also assist militia units in establishing their own demonstration squads, for continued local area training.

One of the demonstration squads will visit the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment at the armouries here on Monday, November 4th.

Chamber Refuses Endorsation of Assoc. Petition

Belleville Chamber of Commerce refused, yesterday, to endorse a petition from the Bay Bay Tourist Association to the Minister of Lands and Forests, asking that commercial fishermen be barred from Bay Bay.

The petition, which had been signed by tourist operators and cottagers in the area and tourist operators in Napanee, and endorsed by the Quinte Tourist Region, claims that the nets of the commercial fishermen operating in the bay annoy sports fishermen. The tourist group thinks the bay will be more popular with tourists if commercial fishing is done in the area are cancelled.

"Sounds to me like an attempt to deprive the fishermen of their right to make a living," commented J. D. Templeman. "I don't think we should endorse it without hearing the other side of the story," he added.

PROBLEM OF DEPT.

Norman Sills commented that the fishing was the Department of Lands and Forests problem, that they knew both sides of the story and suggested that the Department be allowed to handle the matter with no pressure from the Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber president Ben Corke conceded that tourists in Bay Bay mean more business for Belleville merchants, but he added that the commercial fishermen's point of view deserved respect.

A motion was passed to the effect that the Chamber of Commerce had sympathy with the tourist group's problems, but would not endorse the petition.

New Organ Will Be Dedicated At Kingston

On November 1st, the large new organ of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, recently built by the English firm of Hill, Norman and Beard Ltd., London, will be officially dedicated by the Bishop of Ontario, the Right Reverend Kenneth C. Evans, D.D.

The Dedication Recital will be played by Mr. Kenneth Meek, Bac. Mus., organist and Master of Choristers, Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal. Mr. Meek will be assisted by St. George's Cathedral choir under the direction of George N. Maybee, FRSCM, Master of Choristers.

Kenneth Meek, born in England and educated in Canada, enjoys a noted reputation as a leading Canadian recital organist, composer and head of the organ department at McGill University.

The Kingston program will include in addition to works by Bach, Langlais, Francis Dupre and a first performance of a commissioned work by the Canadian composer Dr. Graham George of Kingston and Queen's University.

The Cathedral choir will be heard in works by Sir William Harris, Sir Charles Stanford and Dr. Healey Willan.

No tickets are required and there is no admission charge. A collection will be taken. The public is invited to hear one of the largest and finest modern pipe organs in Eastern Canada.

Subscriptions For Sign $125 Shy of Cost

Three hundred and seventy-five dollars of the $500 cost of a proposed sign, to list local industries, on the passenger platform at the C.N.R. station has been subscribed so far, Junior Chamber of Commerce spokesman Don Burr told directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce yesterday. The sign is intended as a public listing of Belleville's manufacturing ability, for the benefit of local and travelling businessmen.

But subscriptions for the sign are still $125 short of the cost, and the industries being asked to make up the balance lack interest, Mr. Burr told the Chamber directors. He asked the Chamber's advice on further moves. The Chamber decided to invite Mr. Burr to attend the next meeting of the Manufacturer's section of the Chamber, where he can present the problem directly to the manufacturers.

Problems of National Unity Have Increased Under Liberal Govt. YPC Told

Confederation has reached a critical crossroads and the problems of national unity have increased with the return to power of the federal Liberal party.

Thus an audience of Young Progressive Conservatives were warned in Belleville last night.

The warning came from Del O'Brien, Ontario YPC president as he spoke to a meeting of local party youth at the Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. O'Brien said the concepts of national unity envisioned by the Fathers of Confederation "should never be forgotten because right now at this juncture, in 1963, it is under constant fire and criticism."

"And I, for one, believe it can go on living long after 1963," he added.

Later, in a string of critical volleys aimed at federal Liberal ranks, he charged that since the Pearson administration took over in Ottawa "the problem of national unity has been compounded."

Quebec's Premier Lesage, he claimed, "is completely at odds with the federal government and there seems to be no possibility of rapprochement between them."

FALLING OUT OF FAVOR CLAIM

Accusing the government of showing "incurable impudence in the exercise of power," Mr. O'Brien added:

"I don't think a government has ever fallen out of favor as quickly as this government at the moment."

Caustically referring to Finance Minister Walter Gordon as "the last minute wizard," he claimed that the nation's fiscal stability had gravely suffered since the introduction of the Liberal budget.

"Since the Liberals have gone back to power there has been a disastrous setback, since Mr. Gordon introduced his fiscal nightmare," he continued so far, called the budget — last June."

Despite vaunted betterment of Canadian-U.S. relations, the Ottawa government had no influence with Washington. Recent financial and trade curbs imposed by the U.S. without warning "showed complete disrespect for the government at Ottawa.

SAYS PRESS CRITICAL

Mr. O'Brien said nearly 70 per cent of the Canadian press is owned by "well-known" Liberals. Yet, it is significant that much press comment now is critical of the Liberal party.

But, he said, the Liberals had been "very, very cruel and unkind in the election."

"When they sowed the seeds of malicious mis-statement they can only hope to reap the whirlwind."

Conservatism as a political philosophy is now resurgent throughout the Western world. Even university professors, who developed scholastically during the socialist upswing of the 1930s "more than ever (they now) are espousing pragmatic, practical Conservatism."

"There is a wave of Conservatism around the world — and you are in tune with the times," he told the YPCs.

Mr. O'Brien was introduced by John Bailey, thanked by Jennifer Bussie.

RUSS BAGS DUCK

MOSCOW (AP)—A wild duck banded in the United States has been shot by a Soviet military officer near Siberia's Lake Xanal. Krasnaya Zvezda reported Friday. The band has been turned over to the Soviet government and presumably will be forwarded to Washington. The duck's breed was not revealed.

Society Plans Another Walking Tour of City

The Hastings County Historical Society is planning another walking tour of Belleville, starting from the Museum this Sunday at 3 p.m. Many of the city's oldest buildings have recently been swept away in the name of progress, or through accident, but Front St. still remains a kind of museum of Irish century fashions. The tour will cover Front St. from Campbell St. north to Ashley St. where they may be remnants of Meyers' original 1790 mill, with side excursions into the Footbridge area and a glimpse of the hotel around which Victoria Ave had to log when it was laid out in 1816. An early fire hall below the upper bridge and the K. of C.'s handsome hall, are points of interest.

Returning by way of Great St. James St., where there is a fine stone corner house of 1840 the party will proceed up Church St. to the Museum again for coffee and slides, finishing about 4 p.m.

Cross-Canada Survey

Most Universities Report Record Enrolment This Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's halls of learning are bulging at the brief seams again as most universities report record enrolment for the 1963-64 year.

In a continuation of the trend of recent years, more students are in attendance at every institution except where enrolment is deliberately held down. Almost all report crowding in varying degree.

"Each year is a record for us," says President Hugh Saunders of the University of Manitoba. That is the trend generally.

Tuition fees are up in several institutions, but most of them have held the line this year. No significant changes in students' living costs are reported in a school-opening Cross - Canada survey by The Canadian Press.

Reasons for the continuing college-population explosion — m u s h r o o m i n g beyond the bounds of crystal - ball statisticians — differ around the country. Factors include the present growth of population, a greater awareness of the value of a degree in getting a job and, in some cases, easing of entrance requirements.

HIGHER STANDARDS

On the other hand, some became more selective. Acadia University at Wolfville, N.S. tightened up to avoid overcrowding but came up with 1,300—including 25 Chinese students—compared with 913 last year.

Memorial University at St. John's, Nfld., fought it and the crowding problem beaten for several years when it moved into a new $20,000,000 campus two years ago but now finds itself congested with registration up by 300 to 2,300.

Memorial's student growth—almost doubled in three years—is ascribed to a general improvement in Newfoundland's pre-college facilities and heavy provincial government subsidization of teaching courses. Half the enrolees are taking education courses.

The trend elsewhere is for arts and science to predominate, in that order. Engineering runs third, on the upward cycle again after a slump around a decade ago.

However, preference varies from campus to campus. Regina leads at the University of Waterloo at Kitchener. Psychology and philosophy courses are most popular at young Laurentian University at Sudbury. University of British Columbia has 1,000 persons enrolled for its steadily growing Russian class—largest in Canada.

McMaster at Hamilton started a course in Italian to count towards a degree this year. Enrolment of 20 was double what was expected.

In another innovation this year, Sir George Williams at Montreal started teaching some of its courses such as economics in French. But by and large no startling changes in curricula are reported.

PENALIZE FAILURES

A new practice undertaken at the University of Manitoba will penalize students repeating a course flunked the previous year. There will be a one-third surcharge on the fee for the failed course—believed the first of its kind in Canada.

Where fees have been increased, the boosts generally range between $25 and $80 on a year's tuition. As samples, Loyola at Montreal lifted science by $30 to $430 while arts and commerce went up by $70 to $410.

The University of Montreal will m a k e 12,000 students jacked up fees by an average $75. Humanities now costs $450 and medicine $800.

But the big universities of Toronto and British Columbia, with enrolment bodies of 19,600 and 14,720 respectively, kept charges the same as last year.

Toronto was one of those reporting it was crowded but not overcrowded—about the general view across Canada. "We keep building to keep pace with expansion," a spokesman said.

High Cost of Credit

Andre Laurin is an unpopular man among some groups in Quebec and across the country, these days. He is the former department store director who has turned a spotlight on Quebec loan companies. And he does not mince words.

Speaking of one practice he says, "This is illegal, and practised by most small finance companies." Of other laws he says, "remember that finance companies that respect the law are rare."

And Mr. Laurin does not restrict his hard words to the finance companies. It is significant that the Saguenay Bar Association decided not to sue after he called lawyers "the biggest robbers in the region" and Mr. Laurin even kicks some of the medical profession for sharp practices.

The remarks are interesting, but not revealing to anyone who has heard of the results of the Ontario government's inquiry into the cost of consumer credit. But the reasons for Mr. Laurin's crusade are important.

Stumbling families lost in debt, he says, are a drag on the whole community in which they live. He points to the cost of welfare, and he adds that such families are usually unable to buy anything because their whole income is tied up in paying off debts.

He says these families channel at least 30 per cent of their buying power into the hands of loan companies and away from production sources, and this contributes to unemployment.

Mr. Laurin's work is especially important in Quebec, where the unemployment rate is the highest in the country, because $185,000,000 per year leaves the province to pay interest on debts. The debtors, in other words, are bleeding the whole province to pay off their debts.

Usurers who lead inexperienced people into debt, and keep them there, have been a part of society for centuries. As the world grows more complex, and society is more and more organized, however, it should be possible to eliminate them. Andre Laurin seems to be making a fairly good start on the project.

Questionable Policy

The Big Three have agreed on a partial ban on nuclear tests.

Underground tests are exempt from the ban, because it is doubtful whether there is any way of detecting them without on-spot inspections and because Russia will not agree to such inspections, regarding them as spying.

Some nations are not satisfied with this limited ban.

Eight non-aligned nations have framed a resolution which they will attempt to submit to the United Nations General Assembly. The resolution calls on the Big Three to forego underground tests.

Why? Would the world be any safer if such tests were abandoned?

It might. There is a danger that these tests may help scientists to devise some antimissile missile—and if either the U.S. or Russia believes that it is on the verge of developing effective protection against nuclear retaliation there will be those who will urge that it strike first.

In other words, peace depends on a balance of power. Anything which disturbs it—whether it be a new and effective defence against missiles or the ability to destroy retaliatory power which might result if the U.S. knew the location of all Russia's missile bases as the result of inspections —would be a threat to world peace.

But that does not mean that extension of the existing ban is desirable. Indeed, quite the reverse may be the case. Because, it is likely to revive the quarrel over inspection, the proposal for the ban's extension at this time appears unfortunate.

Russia and the U.S. have managed to reach an agreement which protects mankind from an increase in radioactive fallout because of tests in the atmosphere. Underground tests will not increase such fallout.

Besides eliminating the fallout danger, the test ban, as long as it exists, also provides a useful example of intelligent compromise. Why risk spoiling it so soon after its birth?

Much earlier than other European peoples, the English learned the noble and difficult art of living together in crowded cities and of leaving each other alone. As individuals, they have reached near perfection in this field; but why should these nice and rather tolerant people have only discovered how to live together and not how to work together?—Richard Jokel, London correspondent of the Dutch newspaper, Het Vrije Volk.

Great Lakes Problems

Ship-Shore News

Canada's Great Lakes are still relatively unexplored according to Dr. G. B. Langford, director of the Great Lakes Institute, University of Toronto. The Great Lakes Institute was organized three years ago with the objective to study the biological, physical and chemical conditions in these bodies of fresh water.

The Porte Dauphine, a floating laboratory, was leased by the Institute by the Department of Transport and is spear - heading the investigations. To date much valuable information has been obtained. But a lot of questions still are unanswered.

There is, for instance, an area at the bottom of Lake Erie with a lack of dissolved oxygen. The experts are baffled. One possible answer: Organic matter pollution by the lake is swept into this one area and absorbs the oxygen.

Although most reference books list the greatest depth of Lake Erie as 210 feet, it's believed to be much deeper.

It seems that the lake has been filling with sediment for centuries, with sediments washed into it from the upper lakes and streams and rivers. In the eastern basin, sediment deposits 400 feet thick now are believed to exist.

Lake Erie, with an average depth of only 62 feet, is a troublesome body of water. During an easterly gale, water dashes from one end of the lake to the west end, reducing the amount of water flowing over Niagara Falls and creating a drop-off in electrical power generated by the hydro plant.

This forces the Hydro - Electric Power Commission of Ontario to switch to steam. Other hydraulic power plants — or even from thermal stations — to make up the flow over Niagara is increased.

One way to alert electrical engineers on potential power demands would be to provide proper meteorological forecasts for the Great Lakes.

There are no weather ships on this inland body of water to report observations to meteorologists so that accurate forecasts can be made.

The GLI made a start on filling the weather-reporting gaps in 1961. The Institute constructed and installed six observation towers in Lake Ontario, Lake Erie and Lake Huron.

Another matter of pressing concern being studied by the Institute is extensive water pollution.

Ships continue to pollute the Great Lakes by dumping oversboard all sludge, ordure and garbage. The problem has been aggravated since the St. Lawrence Seaway opened, the lake is so much of the world's shipping.

One suggestion for eliminating pollution by ships entering the St. Lawrence Seaway is to provide them with a garbage and oil sludge discharge tank. After using it during Great Lakes voyages the ship would leave the tank on departure.

The major difficulty is the detection of pollution culprits. There is little chance of seeing a ship discharge offensive matter, even when it is scores of miles out on the more closely reaches of the Great Lakes, especially at night. The Federal Government operates one ship, based at Sorel, Que., during the navigation season, that patrols the St. Lawrence Seaway.

An experimental aerial antipollution surveillance system was started last summer. The Department of Transport operates helicopters patrols from Cornwall Lawrence from Kingston to beyond Quebec in the navigation season to watch for such dumping ships. A patrol along Toronto's lakefront operates daily.

Algae continue to conglomerate. The green seaweed - like algae becomes a big problem in sheltered bays. Squalls dislodge it from rocks — and it is blown ashore, to rot and smell.

Detergents and inorganic fertilizers also encourage algal growth. It is impossible to break down detergents in sewage treatment plants, these pass into the lakes and help feed algae.

The poll fertilizers are swept from farm meadows and from irrigation ditches by summer storms and end up as algae food — and in our water supply.

Legal Aid Inadequate

Hamilton Spectator

A fundamental freedom of every Canadian is "the right of the individual to equality before the law and the protection of the law."

In principle, these glowing words from the Bill of Rights contain great strength. But, in practice, they have only half-meaning.

The reason is to be found in the utterly inadequate system of legal representation available to the citizen who stands trial in a court of the land.

There are many excellent lawyers in Ontario. All of them contribute time under the Legal Aid plan without payment, but their services are mainly available to those in a position to pay. What of those citizens who cannot afford such counsel? What of those who are entitled to a fair share of justice.

The bitter truth is that many Canadians, because of financial limitation, enter a courtroom and chief equipped to defend themselves. New comers to Canada, struggling with a language still confusing to unknown words, try to work with untrained barristers seeking convictions for the Crown.

Ontario has had a so-called Legal Aid plan for about 12 years. Not so long ago, it appeared in a Toronto courtroom and was shocked at the exercising one of the freedoms contained in the Bill of Rights. The accused appeared in court five times and on each occasion repeated his request. Finally, at the end of the fifth time — which the man had spent in jail as a result of the repeated remands — the court agreed to give his services free under the Legal Aid Plan.

In such cases, he briefs may go to junior members of the bar. The lawyers are often too busy acting for clients who pay.

What Ontario urgently needs is a legal aid system similar to that of Britain, where lawyers are paid out of the public purse.

The United Kingdom's legal aid fund, which has been operating in its present form since 1949, is administered by the Law Society. It helps the individual after satisfying a magistrate that he is unable to pay full legal fees. A defendant may select any solicitor. A scale of fees covers various types of offence, and lawyers are paid directly from the fund. A defendant, depending on the amount he can afford, repays a percentage of the legal fee to the fund if he is unable to pay anything, the defence is free.

The British system ensures that any person, genuinely unable to afford counsel, is represented in court.

It helps to ensure that justice be done.

Patriotic Tummy Aches

Brockville Recorder and Times

The history of colonialism is full of tales of unfortunate government officers and missionaries; police officers and medical men, explorers and soldiers of fortune, who — strong and solitary Europeans that they are — have been obliged to consume dishes laid before them by native peoples, and to refuse which is discourteous.

In Weekend Magazine Dr. Richard Donovan of Oshawa describes his experiences in Afghanistan where he worked with Unesco, the world-wide medical relief organization established by the late Dr. Tom Dooley. Although there are many Americans, Europeans, Germans and Communist-bloc citizens providing various kinds of assistance in Afghanistan, Dr. Donovan observes: "We Canadians were proud of the fact that our cooking and digestives invited regularly to ordinary Afghan homes."

There's a distinction, however, for which they paid dearly, since it inevitably resulted in bouts of dysentery.

"You can't visit an Afghan house and refuse their food," Donovan says. "If you get so bad at one point that we drew up a 'duty roster' and took turns accepting invitations to spread the load."

The restrictions on the sale of alcoholic beverages which went into effect in Canada last autumn will be substantially unchanged apparently into the second year beginning Nov. 1, for there has been no indication the government plans any alteration of policy, informed sources stated today.

The original wartime alcoholic beverage order, announced last December by Prime Minister Mackenzie King but retroactive to November 1, provided that sales of beer during the year ended October 31, 1943, must be cut to 90 per cent of sales in the previous 12 months; wine sales were cut to 90 per cent and spirits to 70 per cent. The order was to be in effect until November 1, 1943 — but last month it was amended by inserting: "and any year thereafter during continuation of the present war."

Mr. R. A. Elliott of Deloro has been appointed general chairman of the Hastings County Fifth Victory Loan, it is announced from campaign headquarters in Toronto. Mr. Elliott is General Manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Ltd., and has taken part in previous campaigns. Mr. Elliott's appointment to head the county organization was made recently when it was found that because of business responsibility and ill health, it would be impossible for Mr. J. B. Boyce to continue his former capacity. During the Fourth Victory Loan last spring, Mr. Boyce headed the county committee when the largest amount of money ever raised in Hastings was subscribed during the three week drive.

To Your Good Health

Crash Diets Are Known As "Modified Starvation"

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What's your opinion of crash diets when people go into the hospital and consume only coffee, tea, bouillon and vitamins. Even under a doctor's care, isn't this dangerous? The dieters lose from 10 to 12 pounds a week. — Mrs. B. J. T.

That sort of regimen is not what I call a crash diet. It's controlled starvation!

To me, a crash diet is a quickie diet that lets you lose enough in a week so that you can fit into a snug dress for Susie's wedding. Nearly 100 percent of the time, such a crash dieter then regains the lost weight by going right back to former eating habits.

Possibly we could call these crash diets "modified" starvation.

People who go to a hospital and reduce calorie intake to almost nothing are in a somewhat different category.

They are usually extremely obese and have been unable to stop eating — even though they are so heavy that it is an extreme menace to their health.

After a few days of starvation, they lose their appetites, and do not suffer hunger pangs. They are under regular tests and continuous observation, and if their body chemistry becomes dangerously deranged, it can be corrected. With such watchfulness, this method is not dangerous, although it could be perceived by someone skilled in such a form of cheating. The diet undeniably does not last more than about 10 days.

Such vigorous (and expensive) methods are not necessary for the person who wants to lose a little, or even for the average fat person. This "hospital starvation" is for one in drastic need of reducing.

Such a dieter learns (or we hope we do, at least) that he doesn't need to eat as an emotional release — and this is the important factor involved in most cases of extreme obesity.

If the patient really learns this in the hospital, then there is at least the groundwork for beginning a moderately low calorie diet and sticking to it.

Doubtless people who are only moderately overweight could, if they tried to keep the price, resort to these hospital starvation programs from time to time. But don't you think it's better to learn how to keep your weight down, kind of having it fluctuate and incidentally, alternately stretch and unstretch the skin?

The fundamental part of any reducing program is — or certainly ought to be — to teach a person how to avoid getting fat again.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about gout, its causes, preventives and remedies? I need a drier climate help! — V. F. R.

Gout is the result of excessive accumulation of uric acid in the system. Remedies and preventives are two drugs, colchicine and probenecid. Both of these results are obtained, but you need your doctor's supervision to get the right combination and quantity of either drug. Climate probably has little to do with gout.

Note to M. M.: I doubt that a homosexuality is "inborn into" a person, but rather is the result of psychological influences, perhaps starting at very early age. Since all of us have varying dominance of "male" and "female" characteristics, especially as regards hormone balance, I suppose this may be a contributing factor. However, I don't take my views as authoritative.

I don't consider myself an expert on the subject.

What Goes to Make a Man Extraordinary

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A strange and rather wonderful paradox answered to me the other day, while riding up eighteen flights in a crowded elevator. As I looked at the passengers around me, it seemed suddenly plain that what we call the "extraordinary man" is really the ordinary man.

By "extraordinary," I am not talking in terms of any special talent or prowess, but in terms of character, of rock-bottom decency, of the kind of man that we immediately recognize as a sign of strength, not of weakness.

Such people are extremely rare, which is why we term them extraordinary. But it is also the feeling that these few are the "ordinary" people, and we many are the "extraordinary" ones — even though in numbers we far outweigh them.

What do I mean by this odd statement? To understand it, consider the common cold. For the human system, a cold is not an unusual thing, an abnormal thing, an "extraordinary" thing, if you will. A person is not wholly himself all the time, if he were what he is meant to be, he would never get a cold. A cold is not a "normal" thing for men to have.

Now, this abnormal condition is something that almost everyone has at one time or another. Only a handful of people never have a cold. This, of course, makes them "extraordinary" — when, in point of fact, they are ordinary and we millions who get colds are abnormal. It is not a matter of numbers or statistics, but of departures from a norm.

It seems to me that the moral and psychic and emotional norm for man is to be what we call "cold" — that is, to be like those few individuals who immediately impress us with their decency and largeness of spirit. The only thing extraordinary about them is their ordinariness, which makes them so rare, valuable and noteworthy.

They are what we ought to be, are meant to be, and could be. They represent the human being somehow uncontaminated by the infectious fear that plagues the rest of us, more or less painfully. They show us what it is like not to have a cold in the soul, and we know instinctively that they, and not we, represent the basic form for man's being.

We struggle along with our self-created burdens, our vanities, our self-pitying antipathies and our resentments; and through all this, we think of ourselves as quite "ordinary" people. Perhaps it is worth considering for a moment whether we are the extraordinary ones, sniffing and blowing through life — and they are so unusual in so much what man was designed for, as to seem freakishly remote from us.

He Went Out And Got Order

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

Amid the jubilation and the pats-on-the-back following announcement of the Canadian-Russian wheat agreement which will mean $30 million in Canada's primary producers, there appeared one note of caution in a valuable lesson.

Mr. Eugene Grecmiel, president of Delta Flour Mills Limited, Vancouver, got a slice of the wheat deal—300,000 bushels, worth a million. The lesson we refer to is contained in the fact that if Mr. Grecmiel were not backed by small operator, hadn't been an aggressive and determined business man, he would have been out of luck.

Canadian business and industry in general would be left out of Mr. Grecmiel's book. There is a great and inviting field for Canada's exports overseas, providing businessmen don't always depend on government agencies to go out and seek and solicit a market for their products.

According to Mr. Grecmiel, the major milling companies, electrified into action by the wheat flour manna so suddenly thrust on Canada, weren't much interested in the meagre quantities getting a piece of this business.

Mr. Grecmiel hopped a plane to Ottawa after wiring the Russian negotiators an offer. After 10 days of negotiations with the Russian delegation, he got an order. His Vancouver mill will turn out some of flour over the next 10 months for shipment to the Soviet. This order will keep at least 100 men busy.

Mr. Grecmiel could have turned away and cried into his porridge; or he could have wired a sizzling supplication to his member of Parliament. He chose to stand on his own feet, and that's really what free enterprise is all about.

26 Are Fined $2,280 for Selling Tickets

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A total of $2,280 in fines was imposed Thursday on 26 persons who pleaded guilty to charges of disposing of Irish Sweepstakes lottery tickets laid following recent police investigations stretching from Toronto to Chatham.

The fines ranged from $300 imposed on a London widow to $30 on a father of 15.

Charges against 12 more persons have still to be dealt with.

The charged included nine women. Five of the 38 are from southern Ontario centres outside London.

Mrs. Jean McClafferty of London was fined $200 or two months in jail. Magistrate Donald R. Menzies said she was extensively involved in the ticket operation.

The father of 15 is Thomas Decomme of London, who told the court his wife is expecting their 16th child. He was given an alternative of 10 days in jail.

THREE FINED $200

Fines of $200 were levied against three Londoners. Another Londoner and William Elgin Foster of Chatham, who was charged jointly with Mrs. McClafferty, were fined $100 each.

Fines of $30 each were levied against 19 persons, all of them Londoners except Alfred Vincent Costello of Goderich.

Adjourned to Oct. 31 and Nov. 5-7 were the cases of 10 persons, including Mrs. Rosina Ferlito of Toronto who faces four charges, and James Gallagher of Sarnia.

Bench warrants were issued against Earl Emerson Knott of Nfldestown, whose counsel told the court he was in California, and Arthur Challis of London, whom police said is confined to hospital. The warrants are to be executed at the discretion of the Crown.

All 38 were charged with both disposing and selling the tickets, but the practice followed Thursday was for the latter charge to be withdrawn after a plea of guilty to the former.

Most Fascinating Car In Early Days of Motoring Reliable Stanley Steamer

DETROIT (AP)—One of the most fascinating cars in the early days of North American motoring was the Stanley Steamer.

It chugged its way into the attention of the motoring public in 1897 and remained in production until 1925.

Through the years, stories about the Stanley grew in number and detail and the cars became almost legendary chariots of great speed and beauty.

Against this background, a retired Boston banker has made a new appraisal of the Stanley car which was developed by his father and his uncle.

He is Raymond W. Stanley, who retired recently as an executive of the First National Bank of Boston. His father, F. E. Stanley, designed the first Stanley Steamer in 1897. Two years later, he and his brother, F. O. Stanley, formed the Stanley Steamer Company.

Other companies were in the steam car business at that time, in fact, steam cars were far more numerous and more accepted then than were gasoline buggies.

ANYTHING FOR FUEL

The main value of the Stanley and other steamers was that they were a silent, smooth running machine which needed only water and anything that would burn as fuel.

The steamers had their shortcomings. It sometimes took as much as half an hour to get boiler pressure to start. There were all kinds of valves to set and keep clean. The cars needed a vast amount of water and filling stations were few and far between.

There were many stories of explosions and fiery accidents. Many f them were untrue, but they led the public to turn from the steam engine to the internal combustion gasoline engine.

Stanley confirmed that his father's car set a world speed record of 127.659 miles an hour on a test run at Ormond Beach, Fla., in 1906. This was the first time any man ever travelled two miles in less than a minute. The brothers resolved to try another run in 1907.

SKY NEW HIGH

Stories of that day told how the red Stanley racer hit a speed of 197 miles an hour as it roared down the Ormond beachline Jan. 25, 1907.

The Stanley brothers sold their firm and retired in 1917.

What happened to the steam car? Other companies made them successfully. There were such names as a White, a Mac-Donald, a Detroit, a Coats (which lasted into the 1920s) and the Doble which was built until the 1930s. One of the final blows to the steam car was the invention of the self-starter for the gasoline engine.

The steam car then drifted out of production and became a well-remembered relic of motoring.

Turn London Hotel Salon Into Small Supermarket To Show Canadian Goods

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP)—A group of Canadian food producers have turned a London hotel salon into a pint-sized supermarket and it's enough to make the average British housewife think she's in Wonderland.

The Canadian Food Fair is the first step in a campaign to launch the products of 17 leading Canadian manufacturers in the British market.

Items to puzzle the English mom when they appear on the grocers' shelves include Manitoba wild rice, ready-to-use pie fillings in eight flavors, frozen pastry shells, pie dough and coconut cream pies and complete kits for making spaghetti and meat sauce.

But perhaps the most puzzling of all will be the jars of yellow wax beans, a vegetable unknown in Britain.

BEANS FACE FIGHT

Another bean drawing lots of attention — the humble navy bean — also is a stranger to these parts. But it will be up against stiff competition in the lab's famed "sweet shops," stocked with an seemingly endless variety of delicacies and inexpensive candy.

Two old English favorites, transported to Canada years ago, return with a new world look—the honored steak - and - kidney pie, frozen and ready for the oven, and Chelsea buns, also frozen and hardly recognizable in their glamorous cellophane wrap.

A number of Canadian products, notably apple juice and other tinned goods, honey and a large range of pickles and other condiments, already are established on the British market.

But it's an uphill grind all the way. British housewives being notoriously loyal to old, familiar brands.

"The average British housewife works on a slimmer budget, than does the Canadian shopper," said a spokesman for Canadian Food Brokers Limited who are handling the campaign. "There is nothing fickle about her and she is less adventuresome when it comes to trying new ideas and new products."

OFFER SAMPLES

Because of this, a number of firms plan—when practicable—to offer free samples when the products come on the market later this year.

There also are several basic differences in the English and Canadian approach to shopping with which manufacturers have to contend in trying to sell their goods here.

First, thousands of British homes have only refrigerators and many others have small models with no freezing compartment. And the English woman usually does her shopping on foot—even the big supermarkets have no parking lots.

Because of these two factors, she does her shopping three or four times a week and likes to buy in small quantities. Usually she has to pass up, perhaps reluctantly, most of the frozen foods.

And the heavy, difficult-to-store "giant economy size" holds little attraction for her.

East German Seaman in Bid For Asylum Taken Into Custody

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A young East German seaman in a bid for political asylum was in Canadian custody today after RCMP boarded his vessel and removed him.

Hans Joachim Dost, 19, was beaten by fellow crew members when he tried to defect on his own Monday from the 500-ton Bertolt Brecht.

Dost was rescued Thursday after 36 minutes sealed off the ship on the St. John's waterfront. While most of the officers watched from cars Insp. H. C. Russel, another Mountie and Immigration officer, Cpl. Costa boarded and mustered the crew.

He was identified by a night watchman at the pier as the person who had approached him Monday asking to see police but was dragged back to his ship by four crewmates before RCMP could arrive.

ASKS ASYLUM

Under the Immigration Act an RCMP officer or an official of the immigration department may muster—assemble for inspection—the crew of a foreign ship docked in Canada. Then any member of the crew may speak to Canadian authorities and Dost did, requesting asylum.

Dost likely will be taken to Halifax for an inquiry into his application.

Series of Rest Areas on 401 Planned Tourist Meet Told

Tourist Regions Were Wedded 'For Education'

MADOC — The marriage of the Hastings and Land O'Lakes tourist areas may not be permanent, John Savigny of the Land O'Lakes area told the Hastings and Land O'Lakes Regional executive last night. The Land O'Lakes area came into the arrangement on a two-year-trial basis, he said, for an education. Later, it may decide to break loose and go it alone. There is no immediate prospect of a divorce though. Mr. Savigny explained the situation to explain his argument for continuation of separate brochures for the two areas. The Regional executive had discussed a single brochure for the region, for the coming year.

The executive decided on separate brochures, but the two areas will join forces for a flyer to be inserted in brochures for both areas, and to be distributed, possibly, in place of the two brochures at sportsmen's shows. The flyer would be cheaper than the two chures, and the succes of participation in the shows might be more accurately gauged if interested tourists have to write for full brochures, the executive decided.

The flyer will carry a map of the region, some information, and no advertising, the executive decided. Brochures for both areas will be "Hastings and Land O'Lakes Tourist Region", with the area's name as a subhead.

The executive decided to apply for the same location as it held last year at the sportsmen's Show in Toronto. Last year's location, just inside the door of one of the main buildings, was one of the best available in the show.

Seeks Support

MADOC—The tourist trade is the biggest single business in southeastern Ontario, according to the Eastern Ontario Coordinating Council of Tourist Regions, and the council wants the Ontario government to recognize the fact. More important than recognition though, the council wants support, the Hastings and Land O'Lakes Region executive was told last night in a letter from the council. Until the support is forthcoming from the provincial government, the letter added, it must come from the individual regions, to the tune 925 each for the time being to cover mailing and office expenses. The Hastings and Land O'Lakes Region is one of seven in the council's area.

It May Cost Less to Trade Your TV

Many television receivers that are 4 years old or more are definitely in need of a general overhaul to put them in tip top operating condition. This could run from $60.00 to $100.00, depending on the condition of the picture tube.

Many customers feel that it is more economical to trade their old TV set for a brand new, the 1964 model at Booth Radio and Television Limited for as low as $49.00. These sets are fully guaranteed and are delivered in factory-sealed cartons—and are serviced free by Booth's own factory-trained technicians.

Why not drop in today to Booth Radio and Television Limited, 170 Front Street (Opposite the City Hall) and take advantage of this wonderful trade-in value.

You may even buy on Booth's own budget plan with no outside finance and low monthly payments. If you can't drop in, phone us at WO 8-5785 for further information.

MADOC — A $1,675 mystery was cleared up last night at the meeting of the Hastings and Land O'Lakes Tourist Region executive. Early in the meeting, Reginald Hyatt, Region treasurer, took the look at the cheque and relaxed. He had been wondering for some time, he told the executive, how the bank's books showed $1,000 more in the Region's account than his own books show. Mr. Hyatt's books tell the story of the cheques subtracted from the total.

BANKS ACCUSATION

With discussion of the Tourist Information booths on the agenda, Jim Holt of Madoc commented that some of the people manning the booths last year in the booth at the Land O'Lakes Region. Pressed for time, he said, they tended to be discourteous to out of queries by recommending their home areas, which they know. Gordon Savigny suggested a map of the area might be included on next year's brochures.

During the discussion, Al Woods of the Provincial Department of Travel and Publicity mentioned the department's plans for a series of radio spots, each 601. Spaced at 48-mile intervals, half-way between the service centres, these spots will be non-commercial, small parks, he said. Maps of the surrounding area might be included on bulletin boards in such rest areas, he suggested.

But whatever action is to be taken in future, the cheque had been held up long enough, the executive decided. It has been mailed now, and the Region's and the bank's books can agree again.

Want Boundary Between Tourist Regions Changed

MADOC — The Hastings and Land O'Lakes Tourist Region executive last night reconsidered, and again rejected, a proposal by the Madawaska Valley Tourist Region for a sign at the regional common boundary on Highway 62. Reason for the rejection was the same as that last time, several years ago —the Hastings and Land O'Lakes Region is not satisfied with the boundary. The proposed sign would be well within the area served by the local region, the executive decided.

Grant McKittrick, region president, read the executive a letter he had received from the executive of the Madawaska Valley Region. The letter mentioned the previous proposal, said the rejection of the proposal had been "unprecedented", and suggested that Mr. McKittrick, as the new president, proceed with the sign.

The reply agreed on by the executive refers the Madawaska Valley Region executive to the previous answer, and it adds that action is being taken to have the official boundaries changed. Until the action has succeeded or failed, the executive decided, it would be well to signs at the disputed boundary.

WHAT IS MEANT BY THE WORDS

"COMPARE TO"

A new gimmick has appeared on the retail advertising horizon, the phrase "compare to". This has come into being as a result of advertisers being afraid of lawsuits as a result of posting down illegitimate "regular" prices. When you see "Compare to" remember it only means that you are at liberty to compare the advertised article to one at a higher price. It does not necessarily mean that the article is worth more or is regularly sold for more than the advertised price. Just another "gimmick" that we do not like to employ.

Heat, Drought

summed up the feelings of his counterparts when he said: "For the first time in their lives, our farmers are really scared."

Granville, 23 fires were raging across the province and officials have warned that one cigarette butt could set off a major holocaust.

Weather conditions in the province's contrasted sharply from those a year ago.

Nearly an inch of snow fell on outlying areas of Metropolitan Toronto in 1962 but Thursday the high was 71, the highest for the day since records started in 1840. The previous record, 70, stood since 1890.

The weather bureau predicts it will be slightly cooler during the weekend but temperatures will above normal.

Temperatures have been running 17 degrees above the October average throughout the province.

The warm weather has been caused by a flow of warm air from the southwestern United States.

BREAK HIGH MARKS

Temperature records were broken in at least eight municipalities Thursday. The highest was Hamilton recorded was 72 at both Ottawa and Timmins—and the lowest was 69 at Trenton.

While the weather has been a curse to many farmers it has been a blessing to fruit growers, who say warm, sunny weather has done wonders for their crops.

Here is the picture in various regions:

Hamilton—H. W. Buck, agricultural representative for Wentworth County, said there is no possibility the weather conditions will lower beef prices because farmers, instead of turning the winter feed for the cattle because of dried up pastures, may decide to slaughter them.

Sudbury—Two aircraft patrolling forests and a Canso amphibian have been in operation to fight five forest fires. Water level is the lowest in memory.

Chatham — Corn producers turned away from two grain elevators because stacks of wet corn have started to heat and mold. Corn normally can be stored for several days before this condition develops.

Oakville — Nine-alarm grass fires during the last 20 days.

Kitchener—R. K. Pequegnat, water commissioner, said the drought will affect the city's water supply next summer. 'We are pumping water that fell last year," he said.

Cornwall — Fifty volunteers fighting a 2,000-acre fire which officials said was deliberately set.

Essex County—Officials called in an appeal for postponement Sunday's opening of the pheasant season until conditions improve. Condition of crops and bushland has been described as scorched and streams and ponds have evaporated.

Woodstock—Wilfred Bishop, secretary of the Oxford Federation of Agriculture, said he believes fall seeding for next year has been damaged. "With a dry summer next year, we could look for a poor hay crop and that could be a very, very serious situation."

CHEER ARTIST

MOSCOW (AP)—Ivri Gitlis, an Israeli violinist, was applauded so long and so loud in Moscow Conservatory Thursday night that he had to play eight encores to quiet the audience. Gitlis was the first Israeli to play in Russia as part of a cultural exchange program since the little state was created 15 years ago. This was his last concert of a three-week tour.

Ann Landers

Ann Answers Writer Who Begrudges Annual Taxes

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I earn a substantial salary but I had to float a loan to send our second son to college this year. Why? Because we Americans are being taxed out of our pockets' minds.

Last night my wife and I sat down and figured out what percentage of our combined dollars (she works, too) go for taxes of one sort or another. Starting with federal income taxes we went straight through state taxes, city taxes, sales taxes, gasoline taxes, amusement taxes, transportation taxes, cigarettes taxes, and liquor taxes. My strength is taxed just thinking about it.

Remember those "emergency war time taxes" they slapped on us in 1942? Well, my pocketbook doesn't know the war is over.

You seem like a nice, sensible woman, Ann Landers, will you please tell me what we are getting for the billions we are handing over to Uncle Sam without a whimper? — THE GUY NEXT DOOR.

DEAR GUY — You are getting police protection, fire protection, postal service, excellent roads, beautiful parks, schools for your children, libraries, art galleries, paved streets, purified water, welfare services, defence in time of war, free elections and the privilege of living in a country where there is no taxation without representation.

If you'd like to leave please be aware that thousands of people in other countries are eager to come to America and they would cheerfully take your place at the tax window.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last week we had as guests a college classmate, her husband and their two sons, ages 13 and 8. I had not seen Penny for 15 years but we've kept in touch with Christmas letters and pictures.

We had a delightful time but after they left my husband and I had a long talk and we can't decide what to do. Penny's 8-year old is a bright, considerate boy with lovely manners and a sunny disposition. His 13-year-old is surly, destructive, and unquestionably subnormal. Penny told me he is a difficult child and has always been "slow."

In my opinion this boy should be in a school for retarded children. Although he has a bad temper he is not a menace to society but I shudder to think of him driving a car in three years.

The question is, should I write my friend and suggest special help for him? I'm sure she and her husband do not want to face the truth and therefore, they don't see it. — WALKING ON EGGS.

DEAR WALKING — Don't write to your friend with any suggestions.

You may be sure the teachers and principal are aware of the boy's limitations. They are in a better position to evaluate and to suggest special help if it is needed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a girl 14 years old who has a problem I can't talk over with my mother because she is the problem.

Yesterday I walked into the kitchen and I caught her reading a letter which my sister had received from her boy friend.

I asked mom why she was reading my sister's mail. She got mad and said, "Because I don't trust her and a mother has the right to know what's going on." Is she right or wrong? — DISAPPOINTED 14.

DEAR 14 — She's wrong. A mother who must snoop will never know what's going on because her children will find out and therefore, they don't see it. — WALKING ON EGGS.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 30c in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Shipping

whose 45-ship fleet is the largest on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence system, said CSL vessels "are moving everywhere," with SIU crews.

Capt. E. F. Misener, general manager of Scott Misener Steamships Limited, said one of the line's freighters had a full SIU crew within hours of the Montreal vote, and was moving from anchorage in Montreal to an elevator slip to be unloaded of its grain cargo. Three others were to move upstream Friday.

The SIU contract, called to protest the government's proposed imposition of trusteeship on the maritime unions, has had its main effects on shipments of grain from the Lakehead to St. Lawrence.

Elevators were nearly full at Montreal, Quebec and Trois-Rivieres and ocean shipping was not affected by the walkout, so the SIU vote will not have much effect on shipments of Canadian grain to Russia. Some 60,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour are scheduled to move through St. Lawrence ports before the first closing, usually the second week of December.

ONE UNAFFECTED

However, any prolonging of the walkout could have depleted the elevators as ocean ships steadily took grain out and few from the Lakehead brought it in. Only Upper Lakes Shipping Limited, which is a grain line signed with the rival Canadian Maritime Union (CLC), was not affected by the SIU walkout. The Toronto - based company runs 12 ships.

The union back-to-work vote came just after the government had promised "full protection" to any SIU men willing to go back and after some of the 22 companies had already begun to try to hire men through the National Employment Service.

Prime Minister Pearson, in Montreal for a speech to the United Nations Association, interrupted his address to announce that the SIU had just voted to return to work and he added he felt that was the result "of firmness and patience."

Seamen emerging from the Montreal meeting said they felt they had no choice.

"You can't fight the government," said one.

Labor Minister MacEachen had termed the walkout illegal. Scott Misener Steamships Limited said early Thursday it had no intention of violating any part of the compulsory agreement with the SIU, but if the SIU hiring halls didn't supply crews it was privileged to hire them from the National Employment Service."

Indians Regard Breast-Feeding Natural Act

REGINA (CP)—The confusion of Indians entering white society is hardly surprising in view of the double standards by which they often have to adjust, a National Indian Council official said Thursday.

W. I. C. Wuttunee of Calgary, head of the all-Indian NIC and a delegat to the fourth annual convention of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, said "so-called white society regards breast-feeding of infants in public as unsuitable but at the same time permits huge roadside billboards displaying scantily-clad women advertising underwear.

Mr. Wuttunee said in an interview that Indian mothers regard breast-feeding as a natural act. It is regarded as a form of giving to people renowned for generosity.

INNOCENT DISREGARD

"The Indian mother breast-feeds as the occasion warrants, in innocent disregard of family, friends or bystanders," he said.

"Those in cities promptly adjust to the dictates of white society, but you will forgive them if they smile quietly to themselves on seeing boardings or advertisements of scantily-clad women promoting underwear or brassieres.

"This is but one of the many confusions which face the Indian in the bewildering task of coping with affluentness. He is straddling two worlds—the old one which is vanishing and the new one which declines to accept him on his own terms."

More than 150 delegates were here Thursday for the opening of the Indian-Eskimo Association's three-day convention. The association draws membership from among Indians and Eskimos and persons of all races in Canada and Eskimos to modern urban life.

GET SECOND CROP

BRANT, N.Y. (AP)—The unseasonably warm fall weather has produced a second healthy crop of spring strawberries on some farms in this area near Lake Erie. One farm reported Friday it had taken nearly 400 quarts of the berries in market. "We've about four acres of strawberries that are as fresh and pretty as they were in the spring," said Lee Justesman at the crop harvest last June," a spokesman said.

from other Ontario and Quebec locals and from the Maritimes. The west coast had not been affected.

This result came in the first full day of the fledgling trusteeship's existence.

Labor Minister MacEachen limited his comment on the back-to-work vote to the statement that he was pleased.

Return of seamen, if extended to other ports, would end a possibility of 28 Great Lakes shipping companies moving to recruit seamen through the National Employment Service.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Mr. Justice Dryer's statements to press conference questions—careful as they were—indicated that the trusteeship will move promptly but methodically into a detailed investigation of the SIU and other unrise unions.

But reporters prodding for confirmation of suggestions that the trustees would use their powers for immediate union control went away disappointed.

The trusteeship headquarters will move to Montreal where the SIU also has its headquarters—possibly today, Mr. Justice Dryer said.

The trustees Thursday interviewed Mr. Banks, who arrived in his white Cadillac; President William Smith of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers; President Jack Staples of the Canadian Maritime Union; President Richard Gravès of the National Association of Marine Engineers, and Eastern Secretary Victor Barry of the Canadian Marine Service Guild.

Only the SIU had previously withheld endorsation of the trusteeship measure. The other four unions had accepted it as an essential move towards cleaning up violence and corruption in waterfront labor.

READS STATEMENT

Mr. Justice Dryer first read a brief press conference statement that had been cleared with the unions and said he and his colleagues "can assured each union leader of the trustees' desire to "preserve free trade unionism."

There was no intention to interfere with existing internal or external union action other than to satisfy provisions of the act establishing the trusteeship—a measure supported in principle by all house of commons parties.

The existing union officers would be left in charge until further action was indicated.

Did that mean that Mr. Banks would remain in charge?

"I don't think I should answer that," said the judge, who was elevated to the British Columbia Supreme Court three months ago. He had been a labor lawyer previously.

Nor would he say whether he considered the SIU a free trade union—a subject on which the federal inquiry report by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver gave a stinging negative opinion.

Taxes, Licences For Motor Car Average $115

OTTAWA (CP) — It cost an average of $115 in provincial taxes and licences to operate a motor vehicle in Canada last year or 1.8 per cent more than in 1961.

The heaviest average cost was in New Brunswick, where the figure was $130. It was lightest in the Yukon and the Northwest Territories at $68.

Reporting these figures today, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said provincial and territorial governments revenues from motive fuel taxes and the licensing of vehicles, drivers and dealers yielded an estimated $665,400,000 in 1962, an increase of 11 per cent from $636,600,000 in 1961.

Of the 1962 total, some $475,540,000 or 71.5 per cent was derived from taxes on motive fuel and $189,125,000 or 28.4 per cent from registrations and public service fees of motor vehicles, including trailers.

Revenue from drivers' and chauffeurs' licences totalled $8,253,000, and $2,702,000, respectively, to account for 1.6 per cent of the total.

The average cost of taxes and licences to run a motor vehicle, in Ontario was $116, a dollar more than in 1961.

Ontario's 1962 revenue from motor vehicles registrations, motive fuel taxes and other related revenues was $252,900,000 compared with 1961's $244,362,000.

'Austria Waltzes Again' Holds Capacity Audience Spellbound

By A. HENDERSON

"Last evening at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium, which was filled to capacity with lovers of adventure and faraway places, the Kiwanis Club presented its 11th annual World Adventure Series travelogue, "Austria Waltzes Again" with Carl H. Thomsen as photographer and narrator.

Mr. Thomsen, who was introduced by the president of the Club, Mr. Ralph Graham, is a native son of Los Angeles, California, a graduate of Berkley College of Aviation, France, and an honorary member of the Tourist Council of British Columbia. He has won many honors winning first place over 362 other contestants. He constructed and flew his first aeroplane.

To date he has produced eight full-length films which include that of "Alaska" and "Italy and Sardinia." Mr. Thomsen is a perfectionist; for instance in his "Glaciers of Alaska," took approximately six years of close-up viewing of the Kelp Goose in the cove. One of the outstanding features of his travelogues is the accompaniment of the native music recorded on the spot. Mrs. Thomsen, who usually accompanies him, has charge of this part of the feature.

AUSTRIA'S PEOPLE

In opening his narrative, Mr. Thomsen mentioned that Austria was the least expensive country of Europe; that it was the home of some of the world's greatest composers, Strauss, Lotz and others; that its people which are 90 per cent Roman Catholic are tolerant, honest, courteous; lovers of natural beauty, and of the finest music, one of the most popular being the song "The Blue Danube," named after the second longest river in Europe, beginning in a tiny stream and stretching out for 750 miles. On its blue waters many boats may be seen, and along the banks tall castles guard its people. Russian streamers also ply its waters.

Vienna, the capital, has many beauties, which include lovely parks resulting in gorgeous flowers, and ornate fountains.

The making of beautiful needlepoint, which is most intricate, sometimes requiring the use of magnifying glass to do tiny stitches in, and the copying from colored pictures is carefully explained to the minutest detail. Here, too, there are found the manufacture of tiny figurines, also lovely works of art, as shown in the Kunsthistorisches Museum Art Collection; another lovely view was that of the Cluny Museum of Maria Theresa. Also shown were the bed in which Napoleon's son died at the age of 21 years; the porcelain factory where artists work on little pieces of art, which would sell here for around $200.

WHITE HORSES

There were scenes of folk dancing in an "Opera Ball" with its fairy-like ballet dancers; lovely purses made from the needlepoint with much care being shown in the choosing of the right frame to contain it, and the completed article, picturesque Alpine village; autumn along the Danube; the many colorful parades, but the one captivating picture was that of the famous white horses of Fiber, as shown in their graceful waltzing, and other intricate stepping, all to music. The colorful riders in red and gold-trimmed coats, white satin breeches, and black riding boots. Mr. Thomsen pointed out that each day of the week these horses are trained, but on Sunday they display what they have learned. Also that the little foals are born black, but in due course, become as snow-white as their parents.

The second part of the travelogue consisted of the village of Rust, and the city of Salzburg, the home of music, and the birthplace of Professor Archer's famous "Marionettes." Rust is the home of the storks, which build their nests on the chimney tops, lambals and feed their young.

INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT

Other scenes of great interest were the underground shopping centre; the international airport at Vienna where planes come in from Egypt, Turkey, Russia, and other European cities, the Belvedere Palace where the Austrian State treaty was signed in 1955, the gathering of the grapes for wine; winter skiing down the mountainous slopes at breathless speed, shooting the rapids in Kayaks; the cock fight, and the burning rapes, and lastly, the completion of a most colorful and delightful travelogue.

WEDDINGS

SMITH — PHILLIPS

A lovely autumn wedding took place in St. Andrew's United Church on Saturday, October 19th when Irene Viola Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Phillips of Marmora became the bride of Raymond Francis Roy Smith, son of Mrs. Clifford Smith of Madoc and the late Mr. Smith.

A panel of embroidery extended down the front of the skirt, with a large bow at the back with long streamers. A finger-tip length bridal veil of silk illusion fastened from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a white Bible, crested with white satin heart roses and satin streamers knotted with rosebuds.

MUIR — YEALLAND

Tall standards of large white mums, white gladioli and American Beauty roses formed the setting in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, October 12, for a lovely autumn wedding, when Sharon Helen Yealland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Yealland, Belleville, was united in marriage to Greer Harold Muir, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Muir, Belleville.

Rev. Harry M. Davis officiated at the double-ring ceremony. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, rendered traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional gown of frost white peau de faille. The scooped neckline and long tapering sleeves emphasized the minute waist which was embraced by a wide band of Venetia lace. Unpressed pleats fell gracefully by a chapel train. Her pearl trimmed scalloped edged veil of silk illusion fell from a coronet of pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of Bronzed Autumn Leaves, American Beauty roses and trailing ivy.

Miss Dianne Duffy as maid of honor and bridesmaids, Miss Margaret Alyea and Mrs. H. J. Arens, sister of the bridegroom, were gowned alike in silk brocade in a shade of American Beauty cerise. Bell shaped skirts and fitted bodices included separate fascination jackets. Their headdresses of rose shaped petals and circular veils were centred with pearl-lined stamens. They wore matching shoes and carried crescent bouquets of white mums.

The groomsman was Mr. Robert Spankenberg, while the ushers were Mr. Barry Quirt and Mr. Brian Yealland, brother of the bride.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's table was attractively appointed with white damask cloth, white candles in silver candelabra, centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with lily-of-the-valley, tiny red sweetheart roses and ivy and ringed above the base with tulle intermingled with red roses. The bride's mother received the guests wearing an afternoon dress of brown wool with flattering bodice of chantilly lace in the same color, matching accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a dress of beige tweed, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids.

For the wedding trip to the United States, the bride chose a winter white travel coat trimmed with Norwegian lynx over a gold afternoon dress, velvet hat in brown and a corsage of bronze and gold mums.

Guests attended from Toronto, Oakville, Scarborough, Port Hope, Brighton, Peterborough and Belleville.

Delegates for the Trent Valley area convention to be held the end of October were named, and will represent the Quinte Branch Women's Institute at that event.

The conveners for education in charge of the program were Mrs. R. G. Denyes and Mrs. E. Sandercock. The motto "Wise minds grow like savings account — put a little into it every day," was given by Mrs. E. Denyes, who gave a number of interesting points in this respect. She closed her remarks with a poem on education.

A panel discussion followed with Mrs. Denyes, Mrs. A. Mitchell and Miss Lynne Tutty as panelists. Miss Tutty who is a niece of Mrs. Drury Denyes of Belleville also spoke briefly concerning the schools in England which proved most interesting.

The meeting closed in the usual manner and a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses and lunch committee, Mrs. Sandercock, Mrs. Denyes, Mrs. C. Gras and Miss A. Docter, at which time a social hour was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Greer Harold Muir are shown leaving Bridge Street United Church after their wedding on October 12th. The bride is the former Sharon Helen Yealland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Yealland of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold John Muir of Belleville.

One 3 to 3½-lb. frying chicken (or cut-up chicken), ½ cup butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon celery seed (or ½ teaspoon celery salt), 1 teaspoon paprika, 1½ teaspoons salt.

Mix together in a paper bag the flour, pepper, mustard, celery seed or celery salt, paprika, and salt. Cut chicken into serving pieces or use cut-up chicken and shake in bag to coat with flour mixture. In a shallow baking dish, large enough to hold the chicken in one layer, melt the butter or margarine. Arrange chicken pieces in dish, turn them over once in the butter to coat both sides. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. uncovered, for 1¼ hours, turning once. Remove chicken to preheated serving platter. Place roasting pan over low heat and to the brown sediment and butter in bottom add 4 tablespoons flour and stir to scrape sediment from bottom and blend thoroughly. Stir in 2 cups hot water (some of which could be the water drained from potatoes before mashing) and stir until thick. Do not strain this gravy. Pass at table to serve on mashed potatoes.

ONE-CRUST DEEP APPLE PIE:

Fill a deep 9" pie plate with thinly sliced Gravenstein apples, using about 6½ to 8 cups, sprinkling 2-3 cup sugar mixed with ¼ teaspoon each nutmeg and salt between the layers of apples. Dot with 1 tablespoon butter. Cover with Pastry (for 1-crust apple pie): One and one-quarter cups sifted pastry or all-purpose flour, 1-3 cup shortening, 2½ tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 or 1½ tablespoons ice cold water. Add salt to flour and cut shortening and butter in with pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle with water, tossing with fork until flour is barely dampened. Press into ball between palms. Roll out on lightly floured board, gashing generously at center. Cut edge of pie plate with ¼" overhang at edge. Push overhanging pastry neatly under and pinch edges between floured thumb and finger to flute. Glaze top, if desired, by brushing with mixture of 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 deg. and bake 35 to 40 minutes longer or until apples are soft. Serve with wedges of Cheddar cheese.

Artificial Eye CNIB Clinic To Be Held at Kingston

The Hastings County Advisory Board to the CNIB met at the home of Alderman and Mrs. George Wishart on Monday evening. Mr. N. M. Sprague, Chairman, presided.

Mr. J. R. Blackbourn, Campaign Treasurer gave his report of the 1963 Hastings County Campaign to date. Results have been most encouraging with increases being noted in all canvasses throughout the area. In Belleville the CNIB is a participating agency of the United Appeal and it is hoped that it too will show an increase this year so that there need be no curtailment of the work.

Mrs. G. Wishart gave her report of the annual meeting of the Board of Governors of Quinte St. Lawrence Hall in Kingston, the resident home for 25 blind occupants, three of whom come from this area. Work on the new elevator is progressing satisfactorily and this will be a great help to the elderly occupants.

WHITE CANE CLUB

Mrs. H. Rollins reported on the activities of the Belleville White Cane Club. Meetings are held twice monthly and are made possible through the assistance of the Kinettes and Kiwanis Queens who supply refreshments and the Lions Club of Belleville and Trenton and the Rotarians in Trenton who supply transportation. Members of the Club enjoy bowling every week during the winter. A News Chronicle is published in both Braille and ordinary type monthly, edited by Arlie Scott and Clarence Morris. Several members enjoy ceramic classes and others knit bandages for leprosariums in Korea and India. The Club entered a car in the Belleville United Appeal parade.

Miss Elinor Roblin gave her report on the financial assistance given. Services include the repair of radio and talking machines, supplying fiberglass white canes, a Braille clock and wrist watch as well as clothing and milk where needed. Rehabilitation training was given in Kingston to a newly blind person.

GIVE GUIDANCE

Mr. P. Timmins, Field Secretary and his assistant, Mr. D. Wilson visits made to many registered members of the CNIB in the County, of whom there are 127 at the present time. Many derive help and guidance from these two gentlemen as they seek to bring inspiration and cheer to those who are often worried and perplexed.

Forty-two eye cases have been serviced in this past quarter. This includes treatments, glasses and artificial eyes. It was noted that an Artificial Eye Clinic will be held periodically at Quinte St. Lawrence Hall in Kingston with a doctor coming out from Toronto. This will be a great help to those living in the area and will cut down transportation costs considerably.

SUPPORTS HEALTH UNIT

The Field Secretaries have spoken in the Secondary Schools of Belleville and Trenton and throughout the County stressing the importance of the care of Eyes and Sight Preservation. This Board wishes to go on record as supporting the drive to inaugurate a Health Unit in the County. Early diagnosis of eye trouble is so important.

The Christmas party for the blind, sponsored by the Belleville Rotary Club will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on December 17th.

A committee of Messrs. G. Wishart, H. J. Frid and J. R. Blackbourn was appointed to interview several suggested nominees to fill existing Advisory Board vacancies.

The hostess served lunch following the conclusion of the meeting.

Question: I was maid of honor at the wedding of my best friend five years ago. She and her husband are giving a small supper party to celebrate their wooden anniversary. Only the original wedding group, as well as their husbands and wives, are being invited. Everyone will probably bring something that's wooden, but I know that my friend has been eyeing a set of hand-painted imported salad plates, and I'm sure she'd appreciate them more than another salad bowl. Would it be correct to give a gift in a material other than that traditionally specified for a given year? — Mrs. B. H., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: Anniversary presents usually conform to the list devised for each year — wood for the fifth, tin for the tenth, etc. Pottery or china, according to tradition, aren't given until the ninth anniversary, but if your friend has her heart set on salad plates now, why wait four years? Actually, such a list is meant only as a guide to give such anniversary some special importance and it's not necessary to follow it to the letter to be correct.

Question: My husband's on the committee for a dinner his club is giving. Dress is optional and, while members of the committee and club officers will be in dinner jackets and black tie, the majority of the members probably will wear business suits. Suits attire won't be uniform, I'm confused about what to wear, and I certainly don't want to overdress. Could you advise me about this? — Mrs. B. S., Boston, Mass.

Answer: Since most of the women will be wearing afternoon or cocktail dresses, a short dressy suit will be correct — would be the best bet so you don't feel overdressed in relation to the others. At the same time, you would be dressed in the proper degree of formality to correspond with your husband's attire.

Young Couple Given Shower

CENTENARY—A number of relatives and friends met in Centenary church hall on Monday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Holton who were recently married. Bruce has grown up at Centenary and is an active member of Centenary United Church. Leona is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lukx Weagand of R.R. No. 7 Belleville. They have built a new house on the 3rd concession and are making their home at Centenary.

Some young men of the community gave them a rousing charivari after which a program was enjoyed. Mr. Elwin Hart acted as chairman. A sing song was led by Mr. Hart, Mrs. R. Harder gave a reading, Mrs. R. Nobes sang a solo accompanied at the piano by Miss Marilyn Nobes. Mrs. Ted Aikens and Mr. Keith Johnston both gave readings, Mrs. P. Sutherland gave two readings. Vernon Christie played a selection on his guitar.

Miss Helen Hart read the address and Mr. R. Nobes and Mr. D. Douglas presented them with a lovely chair from the community. They also received other gifts from friends. Bruce thanked everyone for their kindness and hoped everyone would come and see them. Lunch was served by the ladies.

Two Couples Celebrate 25th Anniversaries

RAWDON — Mr. Ronald Heath of Guelph entertained his parents Mr. and Mrs. William Heath, his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown and Mrs. Harry Heath, also Mrs. Thomas Laycock on October 5th at the same time Miss Donalda Heath of Picton entertained her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Heath and her grandmothers Mrs. Roy Heath, Belleville and Mrs. Roy Walker, Campbellford. The guests enjoyed a special banquet at the Skyview hotel in Havelock. Following dinner the group journeyed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown where they were tendered a surprise party with Mr. and Mrs. Glen Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Don Walker and family and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elliott in attendance. The program was centred around a selection of pictures shown by members of the group. Ronald Heath showed pictures of his recent trip to Victoria, B.C. and his trip this summer with the Sure-gain company in Toronto.

Donalda Heath showed views of her graduation as a nurse from Belleville General Hospital, and the induction service of her mother at the Eastern Star ceremonies in Marmora. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Heath gave an interesting travelogue of their trip this summer to England and Scotland.

At the close of the scenic program Ronald and Donalda made the presentation of the various gifts to their parents, and the recipients voiced their appreciative thanks. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown furnished a decorated anniversary cake and this was cut and served with dainty refreshments and coffee.

Ronald Heath is a student at Guelph Agricultura College, and Miss Donalda Heath is a public nurse in Prince Edward County. Rawdon friends extend congratulations to both couples on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversaries.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I was maid of honor at the wedding of my best friend five years ago. She and her husband are giving a small supper party to celebrate their wooden anniversary. Only the original wedding group, as well as their husbands and wives, are being invited. Everyone will probably bring something that's wooden, but I know that my friend has been eyeing a set of hand-painted imported salad plates, and I'm sure she'd appreciate them more than another salad bowl. Would it be correct to give a gift in a material other than that traditionally specified for a given year? — Mrs. B. H., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: Anniversary presents usually conform to the list devised for each year — wood for the fifth, tin for the tenth, etc Pottery or china, according to tradition, aren't given until the ninth anniversary, but if your friend has been on a salad plates now, why wait four years? Actually, such a list is meant only as a guide to give each anniversary some special importance and it's not necessary to follow it to the letter to be correct.

Question: My husband's on the committee for a dinner his club is giving. Dress is optional and, while members of the committee and club officers will be in dinner jackets and black ties, the majority of the members probably will wear business suits. Since attire can't be uniform, I'm confused about what to wear, and I certainly don't want to overdress. Can you advise me about this? — Mrs. B. S., Boston, Mass.

Answer: Since most of the women will be wearing afternoon or cocktail dresses, a short dinner dress — not too decollete — would be the best bet so you don't feel overdressed in relation to the others. At the same time, you would be dressed in the proper degree of formality to correspond with your husband's attire.

U. C. W. Form Evening Group

THOMASBURG — A meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Joyce Latchford recently with the purpose of seeing how many ladies would be interested in forming an evening group of U.C.W. There were 14 ladies present.

Mrs. Ruth Seekings acted as chairman and opened the meeting with prayer and gave a short address of welcomed and explanation. Mrs. Latchford was in charge of devotions and gave the theme "Shine as Lights".

Mrs. Marion Morton, past president of the afternoon group spoke to the gathering on U.C.W. and conducted the nominations and election with the following officers elected: president — Mrs. Ruth Seekings; vice-president — Mrs. Mildred Preston; secretary — Mrs. Ruth Edgar, and treasurer, Mrs. Joyce Latchford.

Announcements were given and items of business discussed. It was decided to hold the meetings the fourth Wednesday evening of each month. Mrs. Lillian McTaggart gave an interesting and humorous reading, after which the meeting closed and a social half hour was spent.

CAMPBELLFORD

Will Interview Applicants For Constables in Toronto

CAMPBELLFORD — Members of the town council met in committee of the whole for about an hour Wednesday night, prior to the holding of a special meeting to deal with police and other matters.

During the meeting in committee, council discussed salaries, working conditions and other matters relating to the police department, and considered recommendations made by a commissioner of the Ontario Police Commission earlier in the week. The committee decided to recommend to council that the town police force should consist of three constables and a chief and that a car to be used as a police cruiser should be purchased.

The members went into regular session at about 8.40 p.m. and decided to accept the offer of Ontario Police Commissioners Tom Graham and W. H. Clark to sit in on interviews and assist the police committee in their final selection of officers for the town police force.

On motion, it was decided that a delegation to comprise as many members of the police committee as could attend, the town clerk, the chief of police and the mayor should travel to Toronto next Monday to meet with the two police commissioners at which time applicants for the job of constable would be held.

The group will meet at a Toronto hotel on Monday next to hold the interviews, as all of the remaining applicants to be interviewed are from an area west of Toronto.

ALL INT 7ED

Mayor Morley W. Tanner agreed that any other members of council who could do so, and wished to do so, should attend the interviews.

The group will report to the regular meeting of council to be held on the evening of October 28. The regular meeting of council, normally scheduled for November 4, was moved ahead to October 28 three weeks ago when it was found that several members of council would be absent to attend the deer hunt.

Council also discussed the purchase of a police cruiser for the police force. It was decided that rather than call tenders immediately, the specifications for a police cruiser would be gone into thoroughly by council, so that tenders for a vehicle suitably equipped could be called. The tenders will likely be authorized at the October 28 meeting.

More than 30 applications for the position of constable were received by the town when advertisements were placed several weeks ago. The positions became open when one constable was suspended from the force and another resigned last month.

Of the applicants to be interviewed, almost all have at least five years police experience, some with the OPP.

May Double Insurance Rates

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government is almost certain to order a review of hospital insurance rates shortly with the possibility of nearly doubling them, a senior government official said Thursday.

Earlier this week the 1962 report of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission showed the government had to shell out $47,300,000 to make up the deficit not covered by the $91,800,000 paid in premiums and the federal government contribution of $114,200,000.

The OHSC has increased its average per diem grants to hospitals in the province from $18 in 1960 to $21.30 this year.

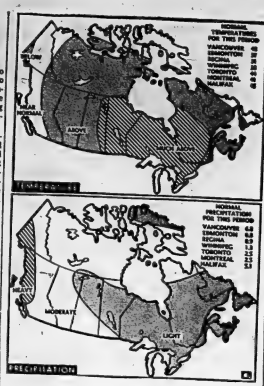
Early in 1960 former premier Leslie Frost promised the rate structure would not be changed for three years. This was reaffirmed by Premier John Robarts. The three-year period is nearly up.

Speculation has it that the monthly rate of $2.10 for single persons and $4.25 for families would have to be almost doubled.

Judge Jails And Fines Nine Leaders

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A judge sentenced to jail and fined nine leaders of the St. Louis Committee of Racial Equality Thursday for violating a court injunction prohibiting them from interfering with business at a St. Louis bank.

Among those sentenced by Circuit Judge Michael J. Scott were William L. Clay, St. Louis alderman, and Charles Oldham, former national chairman of C.O.R.E. Oldham is the only white; the others sentenced are Negroes.



Scott was to pass judgment today against 10 others who demonstrated at the Jefferson Bank and Trust Company. One of them is James Peake, a white paraplegic recently fired as a field representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The demonstrators claimed the bank discriminated against Negroes in hiring policies.

Clay and Robert Curtis were given 270-day jail terms and $1,000 fines. Oldham and his wife, Marian, were given 60-day sentences. Oldham was fined $1,000 and his wife $500.

Scott also sentenced Norman Seay and Raymond Howard Jr., a C.O.R.E. lawyer, each to 60-day jail terms and $500 fines.

Rev. Charles Perkins drew a 180-day sentence and $500 fine. Herman Thompson was given 60 days and fined $500 and Lucien Richards got 90 days and a $500 fine.

The St. Louis Court of Appeals refused bail for the nine. Defence lawyers said appeals will be taken as far as U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

Winnipeg Goldeye Said To Be in Short Supply

WINNIPEG (CP)—If you're planning on having a breakfast of famous Winnipeg goldeye, you may have to pay as much as it would normally cost for a feast of the rare, gormandized sturgeon.

The reason is there aren't many of the goldeye available, and no one seems to know why.

Most of the fish, made famous on Canada's trans-continental railway trains, now don't even come from Manitoba, but rather from Clare Lake in northern Alberta or from Ontario's Sandy Lake.

But even these sources have dried up and forced distributors to start rationing goldeye among their favorite clients.

Where Clare Lake normally produces between 100,000 and 200,000 pounds a year, this year it is expected to give up less than a quarter of that amount.

One supplier suggests that flooding of the lake "spread the fish all over everywhere."

Sandy Lake, normally a producer of about 60,000 pounds, also is "way down," says Manitoba Fisheries Director Bert Kooyman.

But while commercial operators fear this drought may spell the end of the goldeye, Mr. Kooyman and his associates say they're not afraid.

"It's a periodic thing we just can't explain. I don't believe it's anything like the end of the goldeye. But they may be in short supply for a year.

"There's no doubt the supply is down this year but these things go in cycles. It may well be that for a year or two the young fish just didn't make it. But they'll be back."

In the meantime, producers suggest they won't be able to supply the fish beyond Christmas.

Yacht Club To Extend Dock, Clubhouse

PICTON—Plans for improvement of the Yacht Club house and extension of the docks, along with possible dredging in the harbor, were among matters discussed at the annual meeting of Prince Edward Yacht Club, Wednesday night. These plans are in keeping with reports presented by various committee heads which revealed that the club is providing an ever increasing service. An indication was the visit of 389 yachts this year compared to 239 the year before. A 100 foot of wharf planned will provide much needed docking space.

Commodore Jack Hartwick referred to the growing popularity of the club and what it means to town and district. Tribute to the memory of the late Barry Anderson, secretary for some years, was marked by a period of silence.

Tribute was paid to the long service of Herb Dawbney when he was presented with a large photo of the Sea Bird with an insert photo of himself.

Treasurer's report by William Drew revealed a good year. Don Duffy reported for the house committee and canteen. Neil Love thanked steward Alfred and Mrs. King for a wonderful job. Dr. Robert Clapp thanked the O.E.S. for a bountiful chicken supper.

Prince Edward Yacht Club is well known and appreciated, said Jack Fawkes in telling of a cruise on which he flew the PEYC burgee.

It was suggested that a ladies' committee be formed.

Recent Speeches by Leaders Have Thawed Icy Relations Between North, S. Ireland

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—After 41 barren years of brooding about partition, there are faint signals that both the Republic of Ireland (Eire) and Northern Ireland are beginning to look beyond that baneful question to the prospect of co-operation in boosting the prosperity of Ireland as a whole.

The signals are admittedly faint but recent speeches by leaders of both areas have thawed the hitherto icy relations between the two countries.

Although they have not yet spoken face to face, they have at least aimed enough friendly words in each other's direction for a London journal, The Economist, to interpret it as heralding "a new and hopeful phase in the unhappy relations between unionist Ulster and republican Ireland."

The rapprochement between Southern Premier Sean Lemass and Northern Leader Terence O'Neill came last July, when Lemass made a speech in Tralee offering Northern Ireland economic co - operation, right away and a guarantee of her constitutional rights in any future move towards unity.

Capt. O'Neill took two months to reply to this. When he did he surprised the Southerners by praising Lemass warmly for his initiative and by linking himself with Lemass' "patriotism" in trying to improve economic conditions throughout Ireland.

At the same time he stressed that any improvement in economic relations would largely depend on the Eire government's willingness to stamp out the last traces of subversive activity in the Irish Republican Army and generally to cease thinking in terms of an end to partition.

But the tone of the speech was sufficiently warm to prompt Lemass the following day to suggest economic talks "at any level and without political preconditions."

BITTER HERITAGE

This latter plea is significant indeed when one remembers how past exchanges between the two governments have been so riddled with political pinpricks that it seemed as if no amount of economic necessity could ever break down the bitterness accumulated through four decades.

Capt. O'Neill for his part agreed to the idea of discussions provided politics were left out, and observers now get a strong impression that there is a genuine desire on both sides to reach what The Economist calls "an ideological truce."

It remains to be seen whether any practical steps will result when the two premiers return from their respective October trips to North America; trips which though unconnected with any national mission are also felt in Dublin and Belfast to be part of a fresh "wind-of-change" outlook.

RETURNS CALL

Sean Lemass is making a visit to Washington to pay a return call on President Kennedy, whose sentimental journey to Ireland last June itself gave a massive fillip to Southern Irish morale.

Capt. O'Neill, on his way to a World Bank meeting in Washington, took time off to visit Ottawa, where he had informal talks with Prime Minister Pearson.

Keenly Commonwealth-minded, this 48-year-old descendant of one of the old Irish kings is known to favor closer trade and industrial links with Canada—an attitude shared in Dublin. Both North and South also have a mutual interest in luring new world tourists to Ireland.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Chesney of Ottawa spent a couple of days recently at the Porter Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Porter of Detroit, Michigan who have been at the Porter home for a couple of weeks have returned home.

A congregational meeting of Thomasburg United Church took place in the school on October 17, when plans for the rebuilding of the church were discussed. Ways and means of raising money for the project was one big item also the building material and type of construction.

Mr. Arthur Brough and Mr. Victor Ward are patients in the Belleville General Hospital. The condition of Mrs. Margaret Geen who is also a patient in the same institution is somewhat improved.

Several members of Crescent Rebekah Lodge and the Thomasburg I.O.O.F. Lodge attended the presentation of the grand chivalry awards held at Quinte Secondary School on October 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Vance spent Sunday in Renfrew visiting with Mr. and Mrs. H. Flower and family. Mrs. Flower is the former Betty Vance of Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Thompson, Anne and Brian of Wellington, were Sunday afternoon guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Thompson.

Master Philip Seekings seven-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Seekings is progressing favorably in the Belleville General Hospital following an emergency appendectomy, on Monday evening.

Fluctuations in Wholesale Price of Sugar to Continue Until Agreement Established

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—Wild fluctuations in the wholesale price of sugar will continue until a new international quota agreement is established, says a London broker.

The spokesman for Czarnikow, Limited, biggest of the six brokerages controlling the London price, says a tight supply situation will keep prices hovering around their current high levels.

World sugar production has always varied from year to year because sugar cane and beet root are easily influenced by weather conditions. Consumption, on the other hand, has maintained a slow but steady increase.

A long-term view of the situation can be seen from figures provided by the International Sugar Council. Since 1951-52 production has risen by 52 per cent—to 54,000,000 short tons a year from 33,000,00t.

Meanwhile consumption, prompted by higher standards of living and development of the Russian market, has risen by 60 per cent—to 52,000,000 short tons from 32,000,000. The current gap between supply and demand has been filled by stockpiles which have sunk considerably in the last two years.

BIG REDUCTION

The sugar council says there has been a 35-per cent reduction in reserves in North America, South America, Eastern and Western Europe, India and China. Stocks in Africa have increased slightly and those in Australia have stayed about the same.

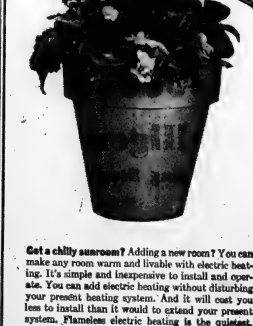
Over-all stockpiles are estimated at 9,445,000 tons compared with 17,236,000 in 1961—a level, says the council, "which in time could endanger sugar distribution even if there are certain invisible stocks available."

The gap between supply and demand has grown more acute recently because of two poor crops in Europe and the political situation in Cuba. Production this year was three per cent below last year's crop and 5,500,000 tons below the record yield in 1960-61.

Movement of sugar on the free world market is dependent on price development, sugar policy in individual countries and the judgment of big concerns. Uncertainty about supply has led to some dramatic price variations.

Spot prices on the London market, which influences New York and Montreal, are decided at a morning meeting of brokers operating on information received each day. Last May the price rose to £101 a ton, highest since 1920, then dropped to £31 in August and now has risen to about £80 a ton.

Brokers here scorn any suggestion of large-scale speculation but The Financial Times says there might have been attempts to force the market down when prices were high last May. Thus the resulting low level was not an accurate reflection of the supply-and-demand situation.



Most likely large industrial buyers held off when prices were falling between May and August then started purchasing with a rush when prices soared. With reserves low and the expectation of only an average crop, sugar will continue to be scarce next year and prices will remain about their present level. But the Czarnikow spokesman adds:

"There will always be the possibility of fluctuations until the International Sugar Agreement, which Cuba broke in November, 1961, gets some teeth into it.

"Russia and China have increased their consumption but Cuba oversold herself in 1961 and since then hasn't been able to meet the demands she created there."

The sugar council says the agreement, minus economic provisions, has been extended and Britain says it is ready to work out a new quota system. If it fails, the agreement will expire altogether.

Son Had Speech Problems

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I was quite amazed to find a letter from you. I still can't get over the interest you take in people.

You asked about the books I found most useful for my boy, who was having speech difficulties. Well, a speech teacher was at the hospital for a few weeks, and she helped him very much. He is a good student and does his lessons well.

Everyone says he is improving and people who could not make out a thing he said are now able to understand. The teacher told me that with a year's training he will be all right.

She did better than I could have. The child has more try in him when it is a teacher. I am listing for you the names of the books he uses in school. — PLEASED MOTHER.

DEAR PLEASED — Then we're both pleased. Nobody should give up on a child who is having speech troubles. I'll pass on your ideas and the names of helpful books to anyone who writes in.

DEAR DORIS — I was wondering if you could tell me what kind of cream and powder to use to sort of camouflage an ugly scar on my chin caused from being scalded when I was a child? It used to be red but as I get older it is sort of light brown. I have a medium complexion.

I have thought of plastic surgery. But I have lived with this scar for 60 years so may as well let it go. — BROWN SCAR.

DEAR BROWN SCAR — Now there are creams that coat such blemishes well; greaseless, flesh colored pancake-types which you can smooth over the spot, with practice, so that it is hardly seen.

I am sending you the names of three good ones. I agree that the situation does not call for plastic surgery.

DEAR DORIS — I'll be 15 in November. I'm five foot six and weigh 173 pounds. I have been trying to lose weight for a long time but I guess I just don't have enough will power. Could you tell me something that could help my awful will power? — WEAK KNEED.

DEAR WEAK — Right now you hold your future in your hand. Not only looks, but health are threatened by your this-time-it-doesn't-count attitude. Promise yourself a new dress if you lose 15 pounds by Christmas. And count calories, keeping track in a little notebook. Who are you fooling when you reach for that rich dessert?

To UNHAPPY GIRL — There's no law making you give up your baby. That's your decision. I am sending you my article "Unwed Mothers and Their Babies", which explains how our child care agencies in Canada can help you with this dilemma.

DEAR DORIS — Recently I went out with a guy but found he was married but separated. I like him a lot. My aunt said I'm throwing my life away by seeing him. But believe me he is one wonderful guy, and I think we could make a go of it.

My father is very strict. My time to be in is ten or ten-thirty. I was in trouble once but got back my name. Please tell me if I'm wrong about whether I should be able to stay out till at least eleven or twelve o'clock.

I know whatever you say will be right and I'll try to follow your answer. I am 18. — A WORRIED FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND — Believe your aunt and your father. Your guy is too old, too experienced, too much married, to bring you anything but heartache.

And be glad your Dad makes some rules for your protection. When you show more maturity there'll be concessions.

Confidential to A FOOL WHO WILL PAY. — Other girls have indeed made the same mistake with a boy they thought they loved. Your best friendly help is to be found at the Children's Aid Society of Belleville, Hastings County and Trenton, 65 Moira Street West, Belleville. Yes, I do think you should tell the father of your unborn child what is about to happen. This letter came from an unidentified reader of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer.

Common Market Defeat Called 'Interruption'

LONDON (Reuters) — The speech from the throne proroguing parliament said today that Britain's unsuccessful bid to enter the European Common Market was only an "interruption."

The speech was addressed to both houses of Parliament and read by the House of Lords by Lord Dilhorne, who as Lord Chancellor is Britain's chief judicial officer.

The Queen was not able to deliver the speech—formally winding up the last session of Parliament—because she is expecting a baby in the new year.

The speech said Britain was continuing to work for wider European unity and would step up help to developing countries.

The government was "encouraged" by the partial nuclear test ban treaty and hoped the agreement "will be followed by others helping to reduce international tension."

Turning to the Common Market talks, the speech said: "My government deeply regrettes the interruption of the negotiations for the accession of the United Kingdom to the treaties of Paris and Rome.

"They have continued to work for a wider European unity. They have proposed that the work of the Western European Union and the Council of Europe should be further developed and have continued their efforts to strengthen the European Free Trade Association."

Sunday School Lesson

Way of the Christians

By ROY L. SMITH

It is one of the misfortunes of Christianity that it has come to be taken for granted. Originally it was a revolutionary movement. The sudden appearance of communism in Russia, in 1917, was no more of a shock to the world than was the appearance of the Christian Church of the first century.

Because of the fact that the white nations of Europe have, until the last two decades, dominated the economic, political, and scientific worlds of the world, and because those same nations were at least nominally "Christian," our modern confrontation with communism has become revolutionary in every sense of the word.

Christianity spread like a contagion through the ancient Roman world, so that within the space of no more than half a century it was said that there was city of as many as 5,000 population, anywhere on the Empire, that did not include in its citizenship at least one small cell of Christians.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 27: "Christian Love." 1 Corinthians 11:2 through 13:13.

One of the most surprising facts in all of history is that there was allowed to grow up, under the very nose of the empire, a movement that was destined to overthrow Caesar, and inaugurate an entirely different kind of life in the world.

And the strangest fact of all is that the Romans seemed to be oblivious first, to the fact that the Christians were multiplying, and, second, that there was something about Christianity that threatened the empire with death.

Had there been an enterprising newspaper in that day, and had there been trained reporters such as modern journalism has produced, the Christian movement would have been known to all the world within the space of no more than two decades following the death of Jesus.

PEOPLE OF THE WAY

In the course of his writing and preaching the Apostle Paul referred to the Christians as "the people of the way." By this he meant something much more significant than that they were a new organization, or a novel cult. The life of the Roman Empire teemed with religious cults that taught "new philosophies." But the Christian Church was different, in the sense that Christians lived differently.

Among the Romans the man who was honored was the hardfisted, aggressive, imperious, oftentimes brutal individual who rode over the plain people. Compassion was esteemed to be an indication of both individual and national weakness. Justice was a rough, punishment was severe, and weakness was a crime.

Into the mainstream of Roman life Paul undertook to thrust the doctrine of love, as the representation of the hard core of Jesus' teachings.

One of the reasons the Romans never understood the Christians was because they never fought back, they did not "reckbe up their wrongs, they did not consider for the sake of their own advancement, they did not indulge in any self-pity, they held no grudges and sought no revenge.

All this, and more, made them a puzzle to the rowdy Romans. Beginning with Pontius Pilate, and continuing until the time of the Holy Roman Empire, no Roman Caesar ever understood either the Church or the Christians. Their way of living was seemingly without explanation.

IT IS STILL STRANGE

The truly Christian way is still a bewildering way of meeting life's world.

On the bus beside me in Austria one day there sat a man who spoke excellent English, and who seemed to enjoy the company of an American. It was not long, of course, until we were discussing world affairs.

"There is one thing about you Americans I never have been able to understand," he said. "Just as soon as the guns stop firing you show up with medical supplies, food, and working capital to assist your enemies in getting back on their feet. If you are willing to spend such huge sums for winning the war, why do you spend more funds to put your enemies into working condition again?"

The Christian doctrine of love is a bit odd, but wherever it has really been tried, it works.

Chrysler's Quick Recovery Plotted by Accountant Joining Firm Six Years Ago

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corporation's phenomenal recovery, which is likely to result in a second 2-for-1 stock split and doubling of dividends within less than a year, was plotted by a 44-year-old accountant who went on the automaker's payroll only six years ago.

He is Lynn A. Townsend, who took over as president of Chrysler July 26, 1961. It then was wobbling, beset by internal dissension, and plagued by lawsuits and a loss of $15,700,000 in the preceding six months.

Townsend runs what industrialists call "a tight shop." He trimmed 7,000 jobs out of middle-management and reorganized at the top. He wrought a quick switch from red to black ink as auto sales began accelerating toward the record-busting levels of this year.

Townsend joined Chrysler in 1957 as controller. He was promoted from administrative vice-president when L. L. (Tex) Colbert was named as president and board chairman four years later.

Chrysler directors, noting a profit of $100,000,000 in the first nine months of this year, decided in New York Thursday to propose a new 2-for-1 stock split and to continue a 25-cent quarterly dividend afterward. Stockholders will vote on it Dec. 17.

The company's shares started with an upward rush on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday. When the day's trading had ended, Chrysler was up $9.75 to $80.75 on sales of 257,900 shares.

Chrysler was in turmoil when Townsend took over. First, a conflict of interest case, de-forced out William C. Newberg as president and Colbert, who had advanced to chairman, assumed the presidency also.

Criticism of his handling of the conflict of interest case, declining sales and losses brought about Colbert's stepping out and into chairmanship of Chrysler of Canada. Suits by dissatisfied stockholders were pending in both state and federal courts.

Within a year, Townsend reversed Chrysler's trend.

Chrysler's penetration of the total U.S. auto market had dropped from 15.8 per cent in 1951 to a low of 8.5. Townsend moved the percentage up to 9.6 and now at 12.

The directors, who split the stock 2-for-1 last April, voted Thursday to recommend the same split again.

Firm Recalls Liver Paste From Market

MONTREAL (CP) — Delicious Food Products Limited announced Thursday it is recalling its liver paste from the market immediately because of a federal health department report that a death in Montreal had been linked to poisoned liver paste. The company's product sells under the trade name Paragon.

In a prepared statement, the company said it firmly believes that it is premature to link its products directly with the case of food poisoning.

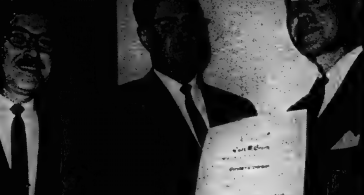
The statement said the manufacturer of the paste has always been carried out at the plant under the supervision of a federal health inspector, who checked the raw materials and premises.

WARNS HOUSEWIVES

In Ottawa Wednesday, the federal health department warned housewives to check their cupboards for cans of Paragon brand liver paste. The department said the contaminated can had been found in Montreal and that its officials were trying to trace supplies for sale in other parts of Canada.

The department said Delicious Food Products was being ordered to recall all cans now on store shelves or in stockrooms.

The victim of the poisoning was identified as Jean Paquette, 17, but his 15-year-old brother was also stricken but was given antibotulism vaccine and was reported progressing satisfactorily.



NEW YORK (AP)—A botulism death in Canada from canned liver paste has set New York City health department inspectors on a hunt for the liver product here.

Botulism is the disease which recently caused the deaths of at least four, and possibly eight, persons in Tennessee, Alabama and Michigan who had eaten smoked whitefish. It also caused the deaths last March of two Detroit women who had eaten canned tuna.

The New York City health department announced Thursday that 220 cases of Paragon liver paste bought from Canada had been sold to 5 firms in the New York borough of Queens.

Another shipment of Montreal paste went to the Epicure Club of Union, N.J., the department said, and was labelled "Epicure" brand.

Botulism is a rare disease, discovered in 1934, which has caused only about a half-dozen known deaths before this year.

Many Police Departments Should Be Replaced by OPP To Better Service, Is Claim

OTTAWA (CP)—Judge R. J. Macdonald, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, has told the annual meeting of the Association of Ontario Counties that there are too many small and ineffectual police departments in the province.

They should be replaced by the provincial police, he said Thursday. The problem was, however, that the OPP was too undermanned to take on the extra responsibilities.

He said the only alternative was to have larger county police forces and amalgamations of existing local police departments.

He told the representatives of 132 Ontario counties that "the handwriting is on the wall," and advised that they "make haste before the present incidence of organized crime is not repeated here."

Judge Macdonald said there were 208 municipalities in Ontario with police forces of fewer than nine men. Of these, 26 municipalities responsible for their own policing, 26 per cent had only one constable.

The judge said the small police forces were inefficient because men were not trained properly, there was a lack of uniformity in promotion policies, pay was too low to attract highly-qualified men, and the constables had too many driving offences. He called for "amalgamation where geographically feasible."

Opponents for OPP policing had to be turned down in many cases because the provincial force itself was understaffed. "Some think we need another 1,000 men," he said.

There also were some cases where municipalities were against having provincial policing on the grounds it was purely local autonomy. "But we must see that the police in this province are at least as well organized as the crime syndicates," Judge continued.

Judge Macdonald was followed by J. A. Graham, deputy minister of reform institutions for Ontario, who said the principle of amalgamation should be carried to full facilities.

He said there were 33 obsolete jails in the province.

"Is it practical to build 33 new ones when one large one will do?" he asked.

UN Faces Host of Problems, No Easy Solutions in Sight

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United Nations enters its 19th year facing a host of problems for which no easy solutions are in sight.

Questions of world disarmament, apartheid in South Africa, international conflicts, internal financial crises, parliaments over representation—these are but a few of the problems facing a world body.

Yet, UN and world leaders have said that the 18th birthday of the UN is probably the brightest in its history. Perhaps the principal reason is the fact that the UN is so heavily burdened in more and more nations turn to it.

OPTIMISM TODAY

The 18th session of the General Assembly now in progress at New York, has proceeded amid stress on realization of international tensions and a spirit of optimism arising largely from the signing of the partial nuclear test-ban treaty.

There is general agreement among those who have observed the UN during these 18 stormy cold war years that there has never been a more cordial East-West relationship. There is agreement too, however, that so far the change has been mainly in climate, but this has been sufficient to give encouragement.

There have been other changes over the years which also have given encouragement as the UN grew from its original 51 members in 1945 to today's 110 including 33 from Africa which had only four members among the original 51.

One of these is the decline of the role played by the 11-member Security Council, where the Soviet Union has often wielded its power of veto with paralyzing effect, and the increase in the prestige of the General Assembly, where no veto power exists.

Another is the broadening role of the secretary-general from that of administrator to that of executive who not only carries out peace-keeping missions but sometimes initiates them.

And another is the expansion of the UN peace-keeping role to include the use of UN military forces—a step first taken under initiative of Canada in 1956 during the Suez crisis and repeated in 1960 in The Congo.

UN TEETH

The latter has given the UN its teeth, although it has also given the UN its main reason for financial crisis as the Soviet bloc, France and other states have refused to pay their share of the cost of such forces.

In UN Day messages, leaders of the UN and its member nations said they find cause for hope in the future in spite of the many problems. Much of this hope is based on the UN playing a bigger and more effective role in settling disputes between nations.

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada said in a UN Day message:

"We in Canada have full confidence that the UN will play an effective and leading role in the search for solutions to these complex problems. We believe that (the United Nations) has the capacity to respond to these challenges and that it should be provided with the means to do so."

Confidence in the UN, such as that expressed by Martin, is credited in part to increase effectiveness as an instrument for promoting world peace.

Also, the new nations which are bringing their problems before the UN for settlement in such confidence is growing.

Went Into Debt To Prepare for 'New Messiah'

CHELTENHAM, England (Reuters)—A Canadian-born ice cream salesman told a bankruptcy court here Thursday he went into debt to prepare for the "new messiah" his wife claimed she would bear.

John Steele, 47, once a well-known Toronto resident, said his wife claimed she had "spiritually married" George Adamski and had been told by an angel she was expecting the "new messiah."

Adamski, 73, is known as an author of radio and television plays under her maiden name Steele, formerly of Toronto.

It was then they moved to England and Adamski joined their home near here at a cost of £13,000 ($39,000) "to make it fit for the new messiah," Steele said.

Adamski and his wife, formerly of Spirit River, Alta., was writing plays at the time and hoped to have the same success in England as she had in Canada and America, she told the Canadian Woman of the Year by the literary world.

Mr. Adamski was born in September of last year. It was a girl.

Fixed Date For Easter Is Favored

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ecumenical council could decide to put the Roman Catholic Church on record as willing to accept a fixed date for Easter and a new universal calendar.

The cardinals, patriarches, archbishops and bishops attending the assembly—by a vote of 2,020 to 4, with one null ballot —agreed the council should declare it does not oppose a new universal calendar, providing other Christian churches accept it and providing it retains a seven-day week, including Sunday.

By a vote of 2,053 to 9, with one null ballot, the council fathers declared themselves favorable to fixing the date of Easter on the same Sunday each year.

Vatican sources say the church has no plans to go ahead with a fixed Easter. The calendar or fixing the Easter date, they say, would be considered simply wants to show it has no religious objection to—and actually favors—the decisions of civil authorities of the world want in the way of calendar reform.

How to Roll With the Tax Punch Explained to Local Life Underwriters Assoc.

Benjamin Franklin was the author nearly two centuries ago of the words "In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes."

The space age has arrived and his statement is more true than ever, said Reginald L. Kayler, LL.B., C.L.U., Executive Director and General Counsel, Life Underwriters' Association, as he addressed some 200 members and their guests at a public relations dinner at the Hotel Quinte on Thursday night.

The dinner was sponsored by the Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters' Association.

Mr. Kayler chose as his subject, "How to Roll With The Tax Punch."

Mr. Kayler said, "Of the two, taxes and death, death is much simpler. It happens only once, it is easily recognized, and it is final. Taxes, on the other hand, bite many times and in many forms; they are sometimes hidden, always painful, persist most of your lifetime and frequently linger for many years after you are dead. Thus there has developed a constant struggle between the two main classes of our society, the taxing authorities and the taxpayers. The struggle is growing and constitutes a deadly serious matter in the lives of many people."

PROTECT INCOME

"You have now entered the ring. The bell sounds and the fight is on. The first punch you will get is the left jab. This is a frequent punch and not a killer punch, but it is persistent - it will keep you off balance and set you up for a bigger maker if you are not careful. So, protect your income as much as possible. How can I do this you may ask? There are several ways to slip the income tax jab.

"Put as much of your income as you can into a registered pension plan. You may go as high as $1,500 per year free of income tax, at least for the present. Consider also the fact that you have to start now to save something for the final round in the economic battle of life or you will never make it," commented Mr. Kayler.

"Perhaps you don't have access to a registered pension plan because you are self employed or you are a professional man. You can accomplish much the same thing through a "do-it-yourself" registered retirement savings plan. You can put 10 percent of your earnings, but not more than $2,500 per year, into the registered savings plan."

"This method of meeting the income tax punch is within the ability of almost everyone. Now that you are getting in a few counter punches, let us work on another jab. It is worth it. The years pass by and you keep on being successful in spite of the income tax left jab.

"Watch for a change of pace. As you move into the retirement years, the left jab starts to come in a little lower down, you drop your guard and boom, in comes the crashing right cross, and you land flat on the canvas. This is the estate tax punch."

"What it really doesn't have to happen this way," continued Mr. Kayler, "there are some steps you can make to prepare a defence against this final onslaught. First, there is the trust will, by which you can avoid the tax on the second succession and have your estate eventually passed from your widow to your children without additional tax. There are of course some important technical details that must be handled properly to make these arrangements work. These and other items make it clear that you need to employ the combined services of your lawyer, life underwriter, trust officer all in many more your accountant and your banker".

In closing Mr. Kayler remarked, "if there is any comfort in all this I think it shows that the tax game is a serious one, but it can be fun. I think it is clear also that if you are going to have a maximum success and come out on the winning side, you will need to have some able second men in your corner throughout the fight. Listen to what they tell you, keep your guard up and keep punching."

Berber Rebels Join Battle With Invaders

ALGIERS (AP) — The leader of Algeria's tough Berber rebels headed a Moslem Algerian Movement of resistance today after rallying to President Ahmed Ben Bella's call for a united front against Morocco.

Ben Bella's announcement that Berber chieftain Col. Mohand Ou El Hadj had agreed to end his anti-government guerrilla campaign and join in battling Morocco was coupled with an Algerian claim that Moroccan troops were in retreat along the battlefront. The Moroccans denied the claim.

The government's Algiers radio reported early today Ou El Hadj had left his hideaway in the Kabylie mountains with a select band of his fierce tribesmen for the desert outpost of Hassi Beida, centre of the border fighting.

"From now on there is only one Algeria," Ben Bella said in an emblonial radio speech announcing the pledge of Berber support after a secret meeting. Ou El Hadj, one of Algeria's most experienced and respected soldiers, commanded the Kabylie guerrillas against the French during the seven-year Algerian independence war. He was discharged from the army by Ben Bella last month after he supported the political opposition. Ait Ahmed in a campaign against Ben Bella's one - man government.

SOUGHT REFUGE

Ou El Hadj's veteran guerrillas, many of whom fought against the French, took to the mountains two weeks ago after government troops occupied several of their strongholds.

From their hideouts they have waged a hit-and-run guerrilla campaign against government forces. They ambushed and killed at least six men in the last 10 days and constituted the biggest internal threat to Ben Bella's rule.

The Algerian government said its powerful Algerian offensive last Tuesday in the Hassi Beida area, about 900 miles southwest of Algiers, took the Moroccan troops by surprise and forced them to retreat with heavy losses.

The Algerian announcement said that by Thursday morning Ben Bella troops had withdrawn 11 miles from their original advance positions.

In the Moroccan command headquarters at Marrakech, a spokesman said Moroccan Algerian attacks but claimed the Moroccans "continued to hold their positions."

A Moroccan spokesman told reporters fighting ended at dawn Thursday after the American had captured 35 Algerians. He said one Moroccan was killed and two were wounded.

High Blood Pressure Boosts Risk of Heart Attack But Can Be Controlled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — High blood pressure generally boosts the risk of getting a heart attack, but your food habits and heredity apparently can raise or lower those odds, heart researchers said Thursday.

Striking differences turned up in studies of Apache Indians in Arizona and nearly 6,000 men in Brooklyn, N.Y., they told the American Heart Association's council on arteriosclerosis.

About one - fourth of the Apaches were found to have high blood pressure, but the Apaches' death rate from heart disease was between is 2½ times lower than that of the general U.S. population, said Dr. Nathan J. Clifford of Ventura, Calif.

This could be due to hereditary resistance or to the fact that the Apaches eat less animal and saturated fats which tend to raise cholesterol levels of the blood, he said.

The Apaches have smaller amounts of blood cholesterol—a fatty material involved in plugging up heart arteries—than most other North Americans do, Dr. Clifford said.

In Brooklyn, Dr. David Spain found that men with high blood pressure run three times the risk of heart attacks during the next 30 to 50 years than with normal pressure. After age 50, the odds were 2 to 1 higher for those with high pressure.

For men with elevated pressure plus elevated cholesterol in the odds went to five, compared to men with normal pressure and cholesterol be said.

The heart disease rate was among men who were overweight as well as having high blood pressure and diabetes, he said. The combination of factors brought greater danger.

But men who were simply overweight and otherwise normal did not have increased susceptibility to heart attack.

"This is not a green light for men to go eat fat," Dr. Spain remarked. "The excess pounds are bad if a heart attack does come along."

For reassurance, medical experts commented that modern drugs can in many cases reduce elevated blood pressure to normal and keep it there.

Teamsters Union Speeding Up Its Political Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters union is speeding up its political drive.

Teamsters President James R. Hoffa, opponent of President Kennedy and Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy and no particular friend of either the Democratic or Republican parties, wants to weld his 1,700,000-member union into the biggest bloc the United States political action bloc.

DRIVE — Democratic Republican Independent Voter Education—is celebrating its fourth anniversary this month by getting into high gear for the 1964 presidential elections.

The man shifting the gears is Sidney Zagri, Hoffa's suave, Harvard-educated political expert who says the aim of DRIVE is to build a truly effective operation in electing our friends and defeating our enemies."

The Teamsters, largest labor union in the world, "represent more than 5,000,000 men to be organize," Zagri said in an interview. "So we hold the balance in almost any election in the nation."

Zagri, the organizational brains behind DRIVE in addition to his lobbying duties in Washington, has been bringing Teamsters' wives by the busloads for political education seminars.

BE INFORMED

"We do not seek to tell our people how to vote but how to become properly informed so as to vote intelligently on a self-interest basis," said Zagri.

Self - interest for the Teamsters means battling such legislation as the Landrum-Griffin Act of 1959, which requires financial reports from unions, publication of union bylaws and outlaws "hot cargo" contracts in which the Teamsters could refuse to handle goods manufactured by a strikebound company.

Its ex - authority, representatives Robert Griffin (Rep., Mich.) and Phil Landrum (Dem. Ga.), have been dropping some strong hints that even stiffer labor legislation is needed to close "loopholes" in federal labor laws.

CCF Govt. and Liberals Feud Over Pace of Industrial Development in Province

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP)—The pace of industrial development in Saskatchewan is the subject of a long-standing feud between the CCF government and the Liberals, major opposition party.

The Liberals claim that new industry is afraid to come to Saskatchewan because the government is pro-labor and anti-management; that the government condemns businessmen for making profits and holds over industry exorbitant taxes and "the threat of expropriation."

CCF spokesmen reply that the government is doing all possible to attract industry, including developing power and natural gas distribution and production facilities, and setting up joint industry-advisory boards; that they are not interested in expropriating any industries.

They say the Crown corporations that have been set up in Saskatchewan have played a major role in economic development, and were established in areas in which private industry had shown no interest.

The CCF accuses the Liberals of frightening away industry by creating a cool political climate and spreading misinformation about government policies.

SAYS GROWTH STUNTED

Liberal Opposition Leader Ross Thatcher set out his party's position during the last legislature session.

"We believe," he said, "that private initiative and individual enterprise can accomplish more than socialism. It is the unpleasant but unmistakable fact that Saskatchewan is continuing to lag behind other provinces in economic growth.

"The stunted growth and economic ailing of the province in two decades in Saskatchewan have been primarily caused by the theories and actions of the socialist government. They stand for government ownership of the means of production."

Industry Minister Russ Brown replied in a recent interview:

"Outside this province I have met only ridicule of Thatcher's position. He is the spokesman for a limited group with limited mentality. We can compete very successfully with other provinces for new industry."

CHOOSE STATISTICS

Mr. Brown agrees that Saskatchewan has not developed at the same industrial potential as Alberta, but says that Alberta has not developed the potential of Texas. Alberta got a head start in the important oil industry, he says, and companies naturally tended for years to go to Alberta.

Both sides use statistics to bolster their arguments.

The CCF says mineral production in the province has gone up 900 per cent in the 20 years they've been in power.

The government says between 1946 and 1960 net value of non-farm production has quintupled —a rate of increase second-highest among Canadian provinces. The Liberals reply that Saskatchewan started with much less non-farm production than other provinces in 1944.

The CCF says the rates of increase in the 1944-60 period in electrical power and manufacturing value were second-highest in Canada.

The Liberals say investment in manufacturing is a reliable indicator of private development. In 1962, they say, intended investments in manufacturing were $15,600,000 in Saskatchewan; $35,200,000 in Manitoba and $72,800,000 in Alberta.

The 1961 value of manufactured products shipped from Saskatchewan factories was $945,700,000. In Manitoba it was $770,500,000 and in Alberta $920,100,000.

Both sides agree there is industrial development in Saskatchewan. The argument is about whether it is fast enough.

INDUSTRY COMES TO GRAIN BELT — Industrial development continues to be the subject of political controversy in Saskatchewan — the Liberals saying the province lags because industry fears the CCF government; the administration accusing the Liberals of frightening away manufacturers by misrepresenting government policy. Graph shows gross value of manufactured products from $258,931,778 in 1952 to $365,675,000 in 1962.

Lions Club Origin Topic At Meeting

The club was host to a number of prospective members and Miss Marie Crosson provided music for the dinner which was followed by a sing-song.

Mr. Bradley compared the origin and growth of international Lionism to that of the International Red Cross founded by Florence Nightingale following the Crimean War. The beginnings of each grew from a recognized social need to which devoted individuals, inspired by love of their fellow men, devoted time, energy and thought to the correction of unsatisfactory social conditions. A need existed so a want was met.

The speaker stressed that the service which each can be rendered to man are those which live in the hearts of men rather than those perpetuated by expensive sculptured monuments.

His was introduced by Ray Sharpe and thanked on behalf of the club by Robert Thompson.

Morley M. Tanner was presented with a Key Members' button in recognition of new members brought into the club. U.S. Rejects Castro's Moves For More Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has no choice but to maintain its present economic measures against Cuba so long as the Fidel Castro government follows its aggressive course, the state department said Wednesday.

In a long and bitter statement, the department rejected moves by the Castro regime for an easing of economic pressures which Premier Castro claims have caused the loss of more lives than hurricane Flora.

At the same time, Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey, who read the statement, said further investigation of the sinking of the U.S.-owned ore ship S. T. Lois indicates several jet fighters presumed to be Cuban were involved in the attacks shortly after Tuesday midnight.

McCloskey said the investigation has not yet been completed but that a protest will be filed with the Swiss embassy in Havana.

McCloskey said the immediate offer of relief from the American Red Cross after hurricane Flora battered Cuba was in the best humanitarian tradition.

Castro chose to reject this humanitarian offer as hypocritical and rejected any aid from United States.

Castro in weekend broadcasts from Havana advanced human suffering from the storm as an argument for lifting of the U.S. economic embargo.

Chinese Woman Will Return To Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Louie Yoot - Sam, 31-year-old Chinese who left her Canadian son in Ottawa when she was deported to Hong Kong in 1961, will return to Canada Sunday, Nov. 3.

An immigration department official said Wednesday that Mrs. Yoot, her husband and two sons in Hong Kong have been issued visas after meeting requirements of immigration regulations and have completed air travel arrangements.

Ottawa merchant Harry Toy, father of Mrs. Louie, said his family is jubilant over the decision of Immigration Minister Favreau to permit his daughter to return to Ottawa with her husband and two sons to be united with the Canadian son, Donald, born in Ottawa in August, 1958.

Mrs. Louie entered Canada on non-immigrant visa in December, 1957, to visit her father. She gave birth to a son the following August and the child automatically became a Canadian citizen.

After the birth she sought to have herself declared a legally-landed immigrant. Her application was rejected on grounds that she was a member of a class of persons prohibited entry to Canada at that time. The deportation order did not apply to her Canadian child.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hunters beware!

October is the most dangerous month for hunters, say officials of the British Columbia government game department.

Statistics show many of the accidents that will come to the province's 130,000 or more hunters this year will occur during October.

And this October is considered even more hazardous than usual, because warm weather has left leaves still on many trees in hunting areas. This cutting down of a hunter's field of vision almost invariably results in other hunters being mistaken for moving game.

Most big-game hunting is done between September and December.

The danger to hunters at this time of year was emphasized by the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs when it launched Hunter Safety Week at the beginning of October.

STRESS VISIBLE GARB

One of the federation's biggest campaigns has been to get hunters to wear "highly visible clothing." The recommended color is a fluorescent blaze orange.

"Many hunters say they don't want to wear these bright colors because the animals will spot them right off," said a federation spokesman.

"This is just not true. Big game cannot identify color. Birds can spot the color, that's true; but not big game."

The fluorescent blaze orange was favored for hunters by a survey of optometric associations in North America.

The accident rate among hunters in British Columbia has been going down in recent years and the federation gives credit to a series of safety campaigns by various organizations, government and private.

EDUCATION HELPS

The rate now is about 2.5 per 10,000 hunters. "And many of these accidents happen to the person carrying the gun—not to another hunter," says the federation.

The answer in such cases obviously is education in handling of guns and the spokesman said this has been going on for some time.

But for October, the safety emphasis is on the stalking of game.

"All hunters should hunt defensively," said the federation.

"They should wear bright clothing when hunting big game and remember the basic rule of good gun-handling: Be sure of what you shoot."

Hall. The lucky draw was won by Mrs. Sager. Lunch was served and social time spent. Next euchre will be convened by Mrs. Fred Mitchell and Mrs. Douglas Atkins.

Moose Reach Peak of Antler Growth Around Eight Years

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont.© (CP)—That moose with the magnificent antlers probably isn't the battle-scarred old warrior you think he is.

In fact, he's probably a fledgling by comparison when it comes to counting the number of seasons he's managed to dodge a hunter's bullet.

Moose, like old men losing their teeth, lose the bony growth that bedecks them with massive antlers in their prime as old age stiffens their muscles, says Norman Patrick, biologist here with the Ontario lands and forests department.

Once moose have reached the peak of their development there is a decline in the vigor of the animal and this is reflected in antler growth."

Moose, which grow new antlers each year, reach their prime around eight years. A normal antler at this age spans 60 inches from left tip to right tip, rubbed shiny and smooth from constant polishing.

Old age comes around 13 years and as it encroaches, antlers diminish in length and span. Gnarled and with fewer points, they thicken at the base and become heavier—a considerable burden for a hunter who regretfully bags an old one.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Mr. Lawrence "Yogi" Berra rounds out a trinumvirate of comedy-makers who have been giving baseball many verbal silliesnes since the Queen's English Caesar.

Yogi joins the immortal Casey and the Doughty Dizzy in the upstart "Murderer's Row." And he is the third star in the cast of "How to Succeed in Baseball Without a College Degree."

YOGI BERRA

The squat stockily-built Bronx Bombers will bring back the color to the Yankee dugout that has been so sorely missing since "Ole Case" was fired and quiet-spoken Ralph Houk took over the driver's seat of Gotham's baseball Cadillac

Berra is one of the most popular players in the Yankee family. He is a clown at times—but then everybody loves a clown. He has a delightful sense of humor and his pleasantry, while not the running-fire mixed-up verbiage of a Stengel or the ear-splitting hillbilly "cracking" of Dizzy Dean, is proof that he never received a graduation parchment from Harvard or Yale.

Berra, one of the game's outstanding catchers and more recently an outfielder and coach, to say nothing of his prowess at the plate, plays to win—and loves to win.

The last time I saw Yogi was in Yankee Stadium when he "coughed" Don Larsen in that historic perfect game against the then Brooklyn Dodgers.

Up in the press box you could feel it coming. The fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings rolled by with Larsen without benefit of windup mowing down the Ebbet's Field performers in monotonous style.

Came the ninth and the tension descended on the Stadium like the morning overcoat-pall in Prague. You could feel it even in the frenzied rooting of the Dodger fans calling for a hit. It was spasmodic cheering when Red Rolfe and even the hard-boiled Flatbush Faithful fans were inwardly calling for the impossible.

Two more Dodger batters hit the dust. Squatting tensely behind the plate, Yogi gave Larsen the signals. Two strikes—then the big one. Sportswriters and radio-TV types held their breath.

Then the thunderous roar as Larsen sent the third man down and the first perfect world series game went into the records.

Yogi leaped high into the air. He threw his glove and mask and raced out to meet Larsen. He straddled him with a waist-high scissors hold and practically rode him to the dugout, the centre of a maelstrom of howling Yankees.

The Sir Lawrence of the Yankee Arabia has been the subject of many colorful stories. And he knows enough to laugh at himself when the occasion warrants. Like the time when he was awarded a handsome mantel clock and was walking out of the hotel with it in his arm when a drunk stumbled against him.

The lush hoisted up and leered. He saw the clock and blurted: "Holyhell doucha wear a wrist watch like the rest of us?"

On another occasion Yogi was asked if a batter ever hit a ball over the centre field barrier in Yankee Stadium.

Berra never batted an eye. "Sure," he said, "we've gotta catcher who can do it whenever he likes."

"That I'd like to see," said the friend. "You will," said Yogi.

So he picked up a fungo bat, walked to within a hundred feet of the barrier and started driving baseballs over the wall.

With all his clowning, Berra is known around both baseball circuits as a shrewd diamond operator. And he learned more than quips from his millionaire ex-boss, Casey Stengel. His extra-curricular activities include making money. And he has been a big success at that.

So next year the Bomber buffs will be zipping for Yogi and the Yanks. It would be a nice thing for the stocky catcher to win a world series the first time out. But then, domestic Dodger pitching, it could make a "Pearl-Berra" out of the popular Yogi.

Thief Stole 1,224 Golf Balls

BRANTFORD (CP) — If this thief is a golfer, he can tour the fairways quite a few times before he has to start worrying again about losing a ball in the rough or slicing one into a water trap.

Second Shutout For Plante ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Wings, Hawks Tie; Blues Blank Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What Boston Bruins need to stay in the running for National Hockey League honors is a lot more scoring power on the forward line.

The league's perennial cellar-dwellers have played 180 per cent of their 70 regular season games without winning any.

Their best performances was in their opening game, when they tied the visiting Montreal Canadiens 4-4.

Since then, they have scored four goals in six games.

They were shut out for the third time Thursday night, and Jacques Plante picked up his second shutout of the season as the visiting New York Rangers won 3-0.

Plante stayed in the game although shaken up early in the third period by Boston's Bobby Leiter.

Leiter, who drew a charging penalty on the play, checked the attacked Ranger goaltender and knocked him backward into his net.

LAT MOTHONLESS

Plante lay motionless for a moment and got up slowly, holding his right side.

The New York goals were scored by veteran defenceman Harry Howell and right winger Howie Glover.

Howell scored from 20 feet out in the first period, while both teams were a man short. He took a return pass from Phil Goyette and slapped the puck past Boston defenceman Ed Johnston with 15 seconds left to play in the period.

Glover's insurance goal came in the third period while Johnston was still banned from Fontyne's shot. Glover's slapshot landed just under the crossbar w hil e the Boston goalie was falling.

In Detroit, the visiting Chicago Black Hawks entered a 2-2 tie to retain first place in the standings.

The Red Wings, winners of the earlier encounter between the two clubs, were leading 2-0 on goals by Alex Faulkner of Bishop's Falls, Nfld., with the game half over.

Then Bill Hay interspeted a Detroit pass and scored unassisted in the second period with a backhand shot past Terry Sawchuk.

Glenn Maki netted the tying goal at 11:27 of the third period.

Faulkner, who has scored half of his 18 career goals against Chicago, put the Wings ahead 1-0 at the 5-minute mark of the first period, backhanding Ron Ingram's rebound past Chicago goalie Glenn Hall.

His second goal came midway in the second period, when he took a pass out of the corner from Bruce MacGregor and scored from 15 feet out.

The league-leading Hawks continue on the road this weekend, visiting Montreal Saturday and New York Sunday.

New York visits Toronto for Saturday's other game.

Sunday, Montreal visits Detroit and Toronto plays at Boston.

Cy Young Award Goes To Koufax

BOSTON (AP)—Strikeout sensation Sandy Koufax—the Los Angeles Dodgers lefthander who almost lost a finger and his baseball career a year ago—is the first unanimous Cy Young Award winner as the major outstanding pitcher. Koufax took all 20 votes cast by the designated committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

A circulatory ailment hit Koufax's pitching hand in July 1962, costing the Dodgers his services and ultimately the pennant.

Doctors subsequently revealed Koufax came perilously close to losing the finger by amputation before the condition suddenly improved.

The 27-year-old hurler responded by leading the Dodgers to the world championship in 1963 with a brilliant 25-5 won-lost record and a National League record 306 strikeouts in 311 innings. His 1.88 earned-run average was the lowest in both leagues.

Gaels Seek Fourth Win in Row

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's University Golden Gaels, beginning to show the form expected of them, will try for their fourth successive victory Saturday when they play McGill University Redmen in Kingston.

The other intercollegiate senior football league game has second - place University of Western Ontario Mustangs playing winless University of Toronto Blues in Toronto.

With all - star fullback Jim Young returning to form, the Gaels showed last week in Montreal why they were pre-season choices to win the league title easily.

Playing at home, the Gaels will be heavy favorites over McGill, which has won only one game in three—a narrow 25-24 victory over the Blues in Toronto.

"Interdepart" League Is Ready to Go

"There is no doubt" remarked ink-stained publicity manager Don Woods, of the Ontario Intelligencer hockey club, "that our club will come home with the championship this year."

"We have the finest collection of pucksavers that ever committed a typographical error. They've been training hard on midnight snacks, mid-morning sandwiches and mid-afternoon sleeping periods."

The newspaper club rounds out the four-team loop that is the Interdepartmental Hockey League this season.

Other clubs are the Police Department, Public Works and Public Utilities. The Fire Department, because of shift commitments could not enter a team this season.

The schedule calls for all games to be played Monday nights between eight and ten o'clock. The league opens December 4.

Ont. Intell. coach Lyle Thompson said between swigs of pablum that his team is ready. An innovation is alarm clocks placed in the dressing room — just in case.

Mick, Ford Want to Be Pro Golfers

Petes Win, Marlies Draw

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Petes can take over first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League tonight with a win over Oshawa Generals at Trenton.

Petes edged Niagara Falls Flyers 3-1 Thursday night while first - place Toronto Marlboros were held to a 6-6 tie by last-place Hamilton Red Wings.

In the only other game, third-place Montreal Junior Canadiens defeated Kitchener Rangers 7-3 in Montreal.

Daye Kartio sparked the Peterborough attack, scoring twice. Don Herriman got the other marker.

Dave Armstrong got Niagara Falls' only goal.

Hamilton rightwinger John Gaffon scored with a minute and 27 seconds remaining to give Red Wings their tie and first point of the season after five games. It was his second goal.

Real Lemieux, Nick Libett, Peter Mahovlich and Bart Crashley shared the balance of the Hamilton scoring.

COUNTER TWICE

Andre Champagne scored twice for Toronto and assisted on two others. Other Marlboro scorers were Peter Stemkowski, Wayne Carleton, Paul Laurent and Ray Winterstein.

Four power-play goals by Canadiens were too much for the lowly Rangers to overcome.

Jacques Lemaire led the attack for Montreal with four goals, three in the last period. Yvon Cournoyer and Bob Charlebois each scored once and had three assists. Mike Hyndman was the other Canadien scorer.

Gary Sabourin, Tommy Miller, Randy Legge, Sandy Fitzpatrick and Ken Gratton were Ranger scorers.

WFC Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated Montreal Alouettes 32-20 Thursday night in a Canadian Football League interlocking game at Montreal to win the third and final playoff spot in the Western Conference, but the win left the Western Conference's scoring race unchanged.

No member of the Saskatchewan team is among the top ten in the scoring race.

Winnipeg's George Fleming leads the race with 117 points.

The leaders:

	TD	C	FG	E	Pts
Fleming, W	7	20	15	10	117
Kempf, B.C.	0	33	22	4	103
Robinson, Ed	0	35	13	3	101

Funston, W	9	0	0	0	54
Mitchell, E	9	11	11	3	47

Forget the first 12 games of the season. The Eastern Football Conference champion will probably be decided Saturday in Hamilton.

The Tiger-Cats will meet the visiting Ottawa Rough Riders, with the victors clinching a bye into the league finals. All other games involving eastern teams now are meaningless in the standings.

One of these was played Thursday night, when Saskatchewan Roughriders defeated Montreal Alouettes 33-20 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game in Montreal, clinching a playoff spot in the Western Conference.

The third-place Als will play the loser of the Ottawa-Hamilton game in a modea - death semi-final a week after the regular schedule ends next weekend.

This weekend, the only other eastern action has Saskatchewan travelling to Toronto Sunday for a game against the hapless Argonauts — a game of purely academic interest in the East.

In the big game in Hamilton Saturday, two of the co-leaders, although each team will have one more game to play, a winner will be assured of first place.

Even if the teams are tied at the end of the 14-game schedule, first place will go to whichever team has won the season's series between the two. In previous play, Hamilton won 20-16 at home and Ottawa won 28-27, also at home.

However, a tie Saturday could prolong the race. Then if both teams win or both lose the following week, Hamilton would finish first on the basis of points scored in games between the two, Hamilton already has a 47-46 edge.

But the Ticats should be favored. They play at home and Ottawa will probably have three regulars unable to dress. Tackle Moe Racine and halfbacks Don Derrick and Ernie White all have knee injuries.

The Saskatchewan win mathematically eliminated Winnipeg Blue Bombers, last year's Grey Cup champions, in the first time the Bombers have missed the playoffs in 14 years.

Roughrider touchdowns were scored by halfbacks Hugh Campbell and Ray Purdin, and Dick Cohee, quarterback Ron Lancaster and fullback George Reed. Frank Tripucka converted the last two.

Dave Hoppmann, Gina Bertetta and George Dixon scored Montreal touchdowns, with Bertetta converting two.

NEVIN IS OUT

TORONTO (CP) — Right-winger Bob Nevin, in hospital for treatment of a severe bone bruise on his right foot, suffered last Sunday in Detroit, will not play in Toronto's weekend games, he said Thursday. His place will be taken by veteran Ron Stewart.

Yogi Picks Yanks .64 Champs

Took Pay Cut

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, regarded as one of the greatest clutch hitters in baseball during his playing days, faces the stiffest challenge of his life as manager of the proud New York Yankees.

The 38-year-old wonder will have a lot of things going for him when he assumes command but he will find that all his popularity and reputation as a star and durable performer will help little if he fails to produce a pennant winner.

The Yankees have a pennant-winning tradition. Since 1921 they have won 28 pennants and 20 world championships. Under the guidance of Casey Stengel and Ralph Houk, Berra's immediate predecessors, the Yankees have won 13 pennants in 15 years. Stengel won 10 of 12 and Houk three of three.

Those are big shoes Berra is stepping into. Consequently, it came as somewhat of surprise when co-owner Dan Topping announced Thursday that Berra had agreed to only a one-year contract.

PICKS YANKEES

The youthful Yogi didn't make it any easier for himself when he practically picked the Yankees to win the pennant in 1964.

Among the questions asked of him at a press conference Thursday was which was the club to beat for the pennant.

"Our club," he replied promptly. "I think our team will be terrific. We should be even better than last year. We have a young club with young pitchers who should be better because of a year's experience and we are bringing up several outstanding prospects from our farm system."

Berra insisted the one year idea was his own. "I feel if I can't do the job, I don't want it. I want to get a taste of it for one year. If I find I can't manage I'll quit. If I find that I could, I'll stick around a little bit. I hope."

ACCEPTS CUT

So eager was Berra for the job he accepted a cut in salary. His contract calls for $35,000, the same sum paid to Stengel and Houk in their first year of managing. Yogi, as a player-coach last season, earned $40,000. His top salary during the years he was winning Most Valuable Player awards was around $53,000.

"I feel if I am not capable of managing, I don't deserve a big salary," he said. "Besides, it wasn't such a big cut."

Berra's biggest problem may be the handling of teammates who have been his pals for years. Yogi has an easy-going disposition and likes everybody. There are times when a manager has to get tough and crack down.

Quinte Edges PECI 19-14

By ROBERT SNETJELLA

The Quinte seniors won a 19-14 come-from-behind victory over Picton in the last game of the season for both teams in Bay of Quinte COSSA play yesterday afternoon.

After a few plays Quinte was forced into punting, but the pass-back went over the punter's head and Picton jumped on the loose ball on the Quinte one yard line. On the next play George Shaffer of Picton, went over for the touchdown. Bob Brown kicked the convert.

After a series of punts Joe Rabel recovered a Picton fumble for Quinte. On the next play, however, Quinte fumbled and Brant of Picton grabbed the loose ball, but on the very next play Picton fumbled again and Bob Lake recovered for Quinte.

Quinte was forced to punt and the Picton quarterback threw to Jim Rorabeck for a 55-yard touchdown play.

A nice 40-yard run by Richard Eves of Quinte was nullified by a penalty. For the rest of the half punts were traded.

In the second half Quinte drove 80 yards for a major; the key play of which was a 30-yard pass play to Bruce Symons. Eves ran over for the touchdown.

Late in the third quarter Mike Morton of Quinte blocked a Picton punt and ran 35 yards for a touchdown. With a quarter left in the game Quinte had pulled within two points of Picton.

With a few minutes left in the game Richard Eves completed a 50-yard drive by Quinte by going over for his second touchdown. The convert was good.

Picton tried desperately to score but after getting two first downs gave up the ball when Quinte intercepted passes and Quinte controlled the ball for the remaining minute of play. Mike Morton was outstanding for Quinte.

The Quinte Juniors won a one-sided 35-7 victory over Picton. Scoring majors for Quinte were Eric Emerson, Jim Prindle, Jim Parks and Ted Lessels. Picton's lone touchdown was scored by Dave Strachan.

Wrestlers Safer In The Ring

VANCOUVER (CP) — Take it from promoter Cliff Parker —his wrestlers are safer in the ring than they are with the fans.

Parker, commenting on a charge that brutality was used in a Monday night match here, said Thursday the wrestlers "never get hurt bad, except when they tangle with a fan."

He said the walk to the showers through the crowd following a match has felled more wrestlers than battles on the mat.

He cited these examples:

Gene Khinski required 13 stitches after being knifed in the back last year, the Outlaw was stabbed in the side with a pencil little more than years ago, and Hardboiled Haggerty was sidelined for eight months when he broke an arm defending himself against a chair-wielding Chilliwack, B.C., fan.

Ald. Ameas Bell-Irving has called for an investigation into the brutality charge. Twenty-seven fans signed a petition after Whipper Billy Watson was knocked out in a match with the Great Zim.

BCI Seniors Win Over Napanee

By BOB WILLIAMS

Belleville Collegiate Institute's senior gridders rolled past Napanee high school in a Quinte COSSA game at Napanee yesterday. The score was 22-0.

The city squad took an early lead when L. Adams went over for the first major score, converted by V. Miller.

B. Hallam upped the count when he crossed the Napanee goal-line on a quarterback sneak.

R. Walsh went over for the third and final BCI touchdown with Adams kicking the convert point.

Adams booted two rouge points to round out the scoring.

The BCI junior team won their first game of the season in a closely-fought 8-6 tussle.

The loss relegated Napanee to second place in the standing and gave the Trenton high school youngsters undisputed possession of top slot.

SIGNS PRO CONTRACT

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minneapolis Bruins of the Central Professional Hockey League on Thursday signed 20-year-old defenceman Joe Watson of Smithers, B.C., to a professional contract. Watson played hockey at Estevan, Sask., last year.

No Proper Facilities For More

Canada 4-Pro-Team Country--Campbell

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, says the whole concept of professional hockey in Canada is changing. The change will benefit the game, he said.

Campbell made the remark when asked in an interview about the scarcity of pro teams in Canada.

Only four operate at present: Toronto and Montreal in the NHL, Quebec Aces in the American Hockey League and Vancouver in the Western Hockey League.

With games with 22 pro teams operating in the United States.

Campbell said the size of most Canadian cities and towns, their geographic location, and the lack of dollar-and-human impose nearly insurmountable problems for a professional operation.

SEES NO CHANGE

He sees little likelihood that this will ever change.

In the east, only Toronto, Montreal, Quebec City and possibly Sudbury, have facilities for pro hockey, he said. Of these, only Toronto and Montreal "could ever hope to handle an NHL franchise."

In the west, major cities like Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina, Edmonton and Calgary are "geographically isolated" — too far apart—to render any kind of pro hockey scheme economical.

These cities, and many smaller centres, had various flings with pro hockey, successful for a brief s p e l l, unsuccessful most times.

"In all these cases, they were fly-by-night operations," Campbell said. None offered any type of stability.

For a period after the Second World War, hockey interest was at a peak, then began to wane as "people found so many other things to take their attention."

KILLED BY TV

Televising of NHL games on a national network killed whatever pro clubs remained. But, says Campbell, nation-wide TV only "hastened their departure." He believes they would have folded anyway.

Now, NHL teams, jogged by Campbell and his staff, have abandoned the idea of acquiring a mass of players in the hopes of acquiring a few really good ones.

Scouting is more intense, selection sharper so that Campbell now says "we have never been in a better position then today in the matter of player personnel."

A real evolution in this changing hockey picture, says Campbell, was the establishment this year of the Central Professional Hockey League. This is strictly a player development league, sponsored by all six NHL teams and not dependent on box-office receipts for its life. It operates in five United States cities—St. Paul, Omaha, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, and St. Louis.

Tulsa will join next year as a Toronto Maple Leafs farm team.

FORERUNNER FOLDED

The forerunner of this kind of league was the Eastern Professional Hockey League, with mostly Canadian teams such as Ottawa-Hull, Sault Ste. Marie, Kingston and others, which folded last year.

"We discovered that you cannot integrate a player development league with box-office," Campbell said. The CPHL represents the "really first year we have been successful in putting this concept to work."

U.S. cities were acquired for this experiment because they had tremendous drawing potential, excellent rink facilities and were not affected by a national hockey television network.

"If we can start out new again," said Campbell, "the CPHL could possibly be operating in Canada."

"But, of course," he added grimly, "That's impossible."

Draw Even With Palmer, Nicklaus

Balding, Leonard Share Top In Cup Golf

BP from AP-Reuters

VERSAILLES, France — Al Balding's hot putter which produced five straight birdies and a brilliant 67 in the Canada Cup golf matches has shown Britain that the Canadians here deserve some of their attention, too.

Balding, the veteran from Markham, Ont., and Stan Leonard of Vancouver finished with a six-under-par 136 to tie Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer of the United States for the team championship after 18 holes Thursday.

Leonard and Palmer each shot 69s and Nicklaus turned in another 67 over the par-72 Saint-Nom-la-Bretche course where a crowd of 5,000 went wild and food and drink ran out.

Until Thursday, golf as a spectator sport had never caught on in France and the recent French Open drew only 500 fans.

Obviously, the magic crowd-pulling power of Palmer and Nicklaus, the greatest money-winning sports figures spread to France in a way that left French officials admitting "frank astonishment."

AS HOT AS YANKS

Most of the huge gallery followed the American Thursday although the Canadians were just as hot. In fact, Balding as well as Nicklaus had the second-best rounds and the Canadian's 31 on the home nine was the best nine-hole score of the day.

That was when Balding's putter began to steam. He fired a 34 on the front nine, the same as Leonard, and began to click off his birdies from the 12th through 16th holes inclusive. In fact, he had only one putt from the 12th to the 17th holes.

Still the crowd, the biggest ever in the history of French golf, favored the Americans.

"We've been trying for years to make golf popular over here," Sandy Bertrand, a member of the organizing committee, said. "Now we've succeeded, thanks to Palmer and Nicklaus."

"Yesterday we ran out of food and drink. We had to close down the restaurants because the crowd just ate and drank us out."

Dozens more stewards are being drafted for the remaining three days of play.

From Tiddly-Winks To Octopus Hunt

Vancouver Grey Cup Wacky!

VANCOUVER (CP) — On the week of Nov. 24-30 in Vancouver there will be:

The national tiddly - winks competition;

A spear-fishing competition and a giant octopus hunt;

A fishing derby, tennis tournament, junior tattoo, bonspiel, symposium on football injuries and possibly a sailing dinghy race.

There will also be a mammoth parade and a football game.

The football game, the eastwest Canadian championship for the Grey Cup Saturday, Nov. 30, is the cause of it all.

"The idea," says Alderman Frank Baker, head of the Grey Cup week special events committee, "is to prove we're a year-round, live-wire city, with lots of outdoor sports while the rest of Canada is shuddering under two feet of snow."

Harold Merilees, managing director of the Vancouver Tourist Bureau, says the object of the festivities is to fit the Grey Cup week and to give them plenty to do once they are here.

Jack Pain, general chairman of the committees, said 15,000 hotel rooms are being held in reserve for Grey Cup visitors. He estimated that the visitors will spend $1,500,000

Almost 80 units have already signed up to enter the Saturday Grey Cup parade.

Quarter Fractures Hand

Starr-less Packers Meet Colts

GREEN BAY, Wis. (CP)—Green Bay Packers, defending champions of the National Football League, will be going against Baltimore Colts Sunday with reserve quarterback John Roach filling in for the injured key man, Bart Starr.

The Packers, tied with Chicago Bears for leadership of the NFL's Western Division with a 5-1 record, suffered a blow to their hopes of a third straight title when Starr fractured his right hand in Packers' 30-27 victory over St. Louis Cardinals last Sunday.

Early this week doctors announced that Starr will be out of action "for a couple of weeks," throwing the burden on Roach, who in league play this season has completed two out of seven passes for 33 yards and has had three passes intercepted.

Coach Vince Lombardi said: "I have every confidence in John. He's far from a rookie. He's played considerable for us and he knows our system."

However, the betting is that if Starr's injury keeps him out longer than the anticipated two weeks the Packers probably will look outside for a replacement.

Roach, a former Southern Methodist star who began his pro career as a defensive back, said he is ready to take over.

EFC Scoring Leaders

Montreal halfback George Dixon scored a touchdown as the Alouettes lost 23-20 to Saskatchewan Roughriders Thursday, giving him a share of the Eastern Football Conference individual scoring lead.

Dixon's six points gave him 66 for the season, tying him with halfback Dick Shatto of Toronto Argonauts. Both have 11 touchdowns.

Two Ottawa Rough Riders—tackle and place kicker Moe Racine and fullback Dave Thelen—follow with 57 and 54 points respectively.

Rudolph Leads Fresno Open

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Mason Rudolph blasted in six birdie putts of 10 feet or longer and carded a 68 for the lead Thursday after the first round of the $25,000 Fresno open golf tournament.

Rudolph, who ranks 19th on the 1963 PGA money-making list, has birdies on four of the first six holes. He added two more on the back nine, and finished with a 33-34—68 over the 7,181-yard, par 36-36—72 San Joaquin Country Club.

He was two strokes ahead of Tommy Aaron.

Canadians George Knudson and Al Johnston each had 71s. Knudson, of Toronto, fired a 37 and a 34, while Johnston, of Montreal, shot 35-36. Five other players also ended up at 71.

Deadlocked with Knudson and Johnston for third were Chick Evans, Buster Cupit, Roger Ginsberg, Bill Casper and Jack Rule Jr.

Moira Blanks Brighton HS

By CARSON McLAUGHLAN

Moira Trojans romped to their fourth straight Quinte COSSA senior victory yesterday whitewashing Brighton H.S. by a 40-0 score.

The hard-hitting Trojans struck early, Bill Lang scoring a touchdown after a few minutes of play. Brighton was forced to kick on downs.

After regaining the ball Ian Glen hit B. McMartin for the second major of the game. Some fine blocking helped this T.D.

In the second quarter the ball changed hands many times. A pitch-out to Lang set up a beautiful pass run play to C. Milligan for a 40-yard T.D. Lang hit three for three in the convert department to give Moira a 21-0 lead at the half.

In the third quarter both teams fought hard to control the ball. Moira intercepted a pass on Brighton's 20-yard line. A play later Ron Faulkner was over the goal line for a T.D. Lang made the point after good to give Moira a 28-0 lead at the end of the 3rd quarter.

In the final quarter I. Glen showed he could run as well as pass by running for two majors. The Trojans a 20-yard end sweep. His second T.D. was a 50-yard pass play to end the scoring. The Brighton team missed so the final score was 40-0.

Moira's defence played a good game again by holding Brighton scoreless.

PEKING (Reuters)—The Chinese Communist foreign ministry Thursday night declared in a statement "the stain of affairs in which United States imperialism continues to use the United Nations as a tool to push its policies of aggression and war is not to be tolerated." Advent of Movie Company Does Little to Change Scene

By BOB THOMAS

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP)—There is no digit dialing in this sun-drenched resort town. There are no dial telephones. There is no television, either.

The lack of such modern nuisances—plus reasonable prices, excellent fishing and hunting, and stunning scenery — have made Puerto Vallarta a treasured hideaway for a small but growing band of tourists.

Tennessee W i l l i a m s says: "This place has the same unspoiled beauty that Acapulco had 20 years ago."

That Puerto Vallarta will go the commercial way of Acapulco is the fear of its fond admirers. The first big hotel, the Posada Vallarta with 150 rooms, is scheduled to open next month.

Much attention is being focused here with the shooting of the Nine Night of Iguana, starring Richard Burton, Ava Gardner, Deborah Kerr, Sue Lyon and Grayson Hall. Many stars have read, Burton's sometime co-star, Elizabeth Taylor, has accompanied him here.

LITTLE CHANGED

At this early stage it appears that the advent of the movie company has done little to change the local scene. The citizens seem to pay scant heed to the famous visitors.

It has not been a wholesale invasion, as when the Mutiny on the Bounty troupe descended on Tahiti to lavish its millions. No acts had to be built in town. Most of the crew was recruited from the craftsmen of Mexico City.

Puerto Vallarta is likely to survive The Night of the Iguana. Whether it will also survive the coming onslaught of tourists remains to be seen.

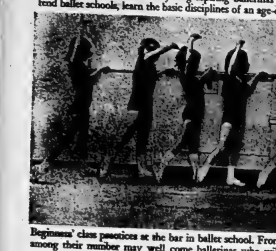
Young Canadians Up On Their Toes

Canada-Wide Boom in Budding Ballerinas



Across Canada thousands of young aspiring ballerinas attend ballet schools, learn the basic disciplines of an age-old art. Advanced student, above, illustrates formal ballet stance to juniors.

As the last golden leaves of autumn float lightly to earth, scores of ballet schools across Canada get down full lilting swing. From split-level bungalows, apartment buildings, farm-houses and subdivisions, in cities and towns from Newfoundland to British Columbia, young-sters from thousands of Canadian families attend weekly ballet classes. Doting parents, looking on fondly from the sidelines, watch hopefully for signs that their small daughter may be among the gifted few of Canada's 2,000,000 five to fourteen year-old girls who develop the poise and twinkling toes of a budding ballerina. For little girls themselves, ballet lessons are long hours spent trying to look as if they really were made of sugar and spice and all things nice. Exercising in leggy groups, wearing leotards or frilly ballerina skirts, posturing in front of full-length mirrors—few little girls can resist the magic of the ballet class and its centuries-old enhancement of youthful grace.

NATIONAL FILM BOARD PHOTOSTORY

Jane Mogg, 12, at left, chats with Victoria Pulkkinen, also 12. Last year both girls were among four young Canadians selected to dance with visiting Russian Bolshoi Ballet.

Beginners' class practices at the bar in ballet school. From among their number may well come ballerinas who will dance with Canadian and international ballet companies for tomorrow's audiences.

Constant rehearsing in the recreation room of her Ottawa home has helped advance ballet student Jane Mogg, above.

Families of ballet pupils enjoy watching progress of theirs — Show 100 Added Guaranteed Workmanship. daughters during weekly sessions at dancing academy.

Engineer Claims Heated Sand More Effective

PEMBROKE (CP) — Rex Rhodes, Pembroke's engineering director, said Thursday his tests have convinced him that heated sand alone is more effective in treating winter roads than a cold mixture of sand, calcium and salt.

Mr. Rhodes said he conducted tests Thursday at the town quarry, using a five-year-old asphalt mixer to heat sand to a temperature of 150 degrees Fahrenheit. The mixer produced eight tons of heated sand an hour and Mr. Rhodes said a larger plant could produce 20 tons an hour.

"The idea is that we could store hot sand in trucks overnight, in readiness for an ice storm. During the day, we would heat it as required."

The sand alone would cut down on damage to cars, carpets and clothing caused by the calcium-salt mixture normally applied to roads in the winter.

Eerie music plays in the background. A strip of moonlight shines through the crescent window on the sleeping figure on the bed. But wait. . .something is coming through the window. Bright eyes shine with cunning fury. Gnarled fingers follow. . .they reach the windowsill with sharp claws. It is — the Monster!

Several hoarse voices call to the sleeping girl. But she does nothing more than stir uneasily in her sleep, unaware that a movie audience is trying to save her.

We'll draw the curtain on this scene. You have a rough idea of what follows anyway. (The Monster trips on his shoelace and wakes up Burt Lancaster in the next room.)

Now we can anyone explain one thing for me: what strange quirk sends us merrily into a movie houses where scientists invent monsters, bats fly everywhere and the wind always howls and ghouls lurk everywhere?

Fifteen teen-age friends denied very vigorously to me this week that they would ever be caught dead (now, that's appropriate), in a horror movie. Were they all telling the truth?

Thousands will thrill this month to the epics as The Old Dark House, 13 Frightened Girls, Curse of the Amazon, The Mad Magician, The Haunting Wall of Noise, The Blood of the Demon, and The Curse of Frankenstein.

The advertisements dare you to sit through one performance and not scream. I'm sure you sleep will be impossible for 48 hours. They promise cold, shuddering horror that will lift every hair on your head.

BATS

Would any healthy person want to be scared out of his wits? I asked a psychologist whether watching bats on a movie screen is any sign of bats in the belfry.

"Certainly not," he replied. "Personally, I never miss a Frankenstein movie on late TV. You don't? Next you'll tell me you don't feel sorry for that poor monster. Imagine being in his shoes."

Why, I asked, do people go to horror movies?

"It's a little bit like driving fast," said the psychologist. "Some people like to drive fast just to see what it's like, to see how far they can go without anything happening."

"Well, the fellow or girl who sits through a horror movie expects to be frightened, an emotion which can happen in a movie theatre without anything happening to you.

"Look at the people who line up for a ride on a roller-coaster despite the fact they will be screaming and holding on to each other for dear life a few moments later. They are looking for the same thrill."

Does the fact that many thousands of people seem to need a good fright mean anything, I asked. Is it a sign of the times? Did previous generations find it fun to have holding hands with a ghost?

"You'd never ask that if you'd seen the fine old films made about Dracula and his vampire bats decades ago," said the psychologist. "Frankly, I thought they topped anything produced these days."

I would urge your readers," he added to find a book entitled "Frankenstein, or the Modern Prometheus to learn how the story of Frankenstein started.

"The original story was made up by Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, the wife of the English poet, to pass a few rainy days during a trip to Switzerland in 1816. She later wrote it down, and launched the legend.

"Read it," he added, "and you'll get a different idea of the monster. After all, he didn't ask to be created. And he's only anti-social because no one understands him. A simple psychological problem."

I left the psychologist muttering about therapy he'd prescribe for the monster. In case you're interested in the book, it's published by Collier Books and costs 65 cents.

WEREWOLF — Teen-Age Canada today discusses whether or not it is worthwhile seeing the horror and scare movies that are so rampant at movies today.

'Mysterious and Forbidding' Way Visitor Summed up Trip to Deadman's Valley

EDMONTON (CP)—The stories of a lost Indian tribe who attacked white prospectors in the Nahanni River valley have long been discounted. But three army officers who spent their vacation in the area know now why it's such a fertile spot for myth to spring up.

"Mysterious and forbidding," was the way Maj. F. R. Kaye of Edmonton summed up on his return from Deadman's Valley (popularly known to outsiders as Headless Valley) in the Northwest Territories 700 miles northwest of Edmonton.

"It was just dead quiet in the place—too quiet," said Maj. Kaye. "I think what caused it was the lack of animals or birds."

Maj. Kaye, Capt. T. R. Palfrey of Fort Nelson, B.C., and Maj. C. M McLeod of Calgary saw only one sign of life during their two-day stay in the 600-mile-long Nahanni area—a set of moose tracks.

They travelled from Mile 955 on the Alaska Highway near Fort Nelson 400 miles up the Muskwa, Fort Nelson, Liard and Nahanni rivers into the mysterious valley. They saw plenty of game during the trip—until they entered the valley itself.

"I think if I had to stay there long, I'd start spending a lot of time looking over my shoulder," said Maj. Kaye. "You always have the feeling someone's watching you."

LAUGHING MOOSE

The trip was made in a large, flat-bottomed river boat owned by Capt. Palfrey.

Maj. Kaye described the Nahanni as "a dangerous river—not one you can fool around with." The boat almost capsized at George's Ripples a mile south of the valley.

"And after we had all that trouble there was an old cow moose standing by the shore and I'd swear she was laughing at us."

They started the trip with 150 gallons of fuel and when they finished they had two gallons of gas and three bottles of Scotch." They never did reach their intended destination, the 300-foot-high Victoria Falls, but plan another trip next summer with "a little more gas and a more powerful motor so we can get up there a little faster."

Over the years many stories have been told about Nahanni Valley. Legend says 13 white men disappeared in the valley where riverbanks tower 3,000 feet above the river surfaces and plants, unusual for an area so far north, bloom in the lush vegetation of a gardener's dream.

VILE ODOR

Indians are said to shun the valley (some say it's because of the strange stories told by the white man) and reports are heard from time to time of skeletons being found without heads, frequently with a poke of gold nearby.

The strangest deaths have occurred in the general area, scene of them murder, others suicide, there is talk of many others unexplained, but no lost band of Indians has ever been found.

They have sound reasons for staying away, in fact. For aside from any fears planted by the white man's stories, the valley is difficult to reach over rugged terrain, there is little for man in many more accessible areas and the sulphur springs give it a vile odor.

NEW TROUBLE LOOMS ON GREAT LAKES

Persons Tagged As Security Risk Will Be Heard

New Policy Announced By Prime Minister

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has introduced procedures to review cases in which members of the forces or federal employees become tagged as security risks.

Prime Minister Pearson announced the new policy to the Commons Friday night, saying that henceforth such persons will be told of the accusations against them and given a chance to tell their side of the story to a secret board of review.

But he added that the security of the nation precludes the establishment of any quasi-judicial tribunal such as has been suggested by the New Democratic Party.

The NDP urged the setting up of such a body after the celebrated Knott case last June. Gordon Knott, a RAF Corporal, B.C., took, was dismissed from the navy as a security risk on the basis of false information received by RCMP.

After NDP members raised a row in the Commons, the justice department ordered a new investigation which turned up the fact that Justice Minister Chevrier made a public apology to young Knott and ordered the Knott security file destroyed.

REJECTS CONTENTION

Mr. Pearson and Justice Minister Chevrier, who replied on the prime minister's statements, also rejected an NDP argument that persons should not be branded as security risks because of the beliefs or activities of relatives.

In sensitive security jobs, people related to known subversives were liable to be subjected to pressure to pass on secret data.

Those with relatives living in countries behind the Iron Curtain were particularly open to terrible emotional pressures.

Knott was listed as a security risk because his mother was said to be a Communist. It turned out it was not his uncle, but another man of the same name.

Mr. Pearson said the board of review will consist of members drawn from the civil service, quasi judicial. This panel is composed of government officials and private citizens, of which study reports from the RCMP on suspected security risks.

TELLS PROCEDURE

This procedure will apply;

1. The suspect will be informed in writing of the allegations against him and be invited to refute them personally in an interview with the competent head of his department or agency.

2. The board of review will examine all the facts and hear the suspect's story, to ensure

Being Hit On the Shins Says U. S.

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Assistant Commerce Secretary, Richard Holton said Friday Canada's scheme to boost automotive exports by remitting tariffs on imports "will color our negotiations with the Canadians on other trade matters."

The American said in an interview the United States is aware that Canada wants concessions from the U.S. on certain commodities but in view of the automobile plan, "we will have to temper our sympathy because in a sense we are being kicked on the shins."

He said consideration is being given to the question whether U.S. "contravailing" duties could be applied to offset the Canadian export plan.

A treasury department official explained contravailing duties must be applied on imports if there is a legal determination

Labor Minister MacEachen said he made no commitment to Hal C. Banks that Banks would be allowed to stay as president of the Seafarers' Union.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Mr. Banks appears to be still the pampered pet of Liberal governments.

Paul Martineau (PC — Pontiac - Temiscamingue) warned that changes in the tax structure are most urgently needed by the nation's economy.

Prime Minister Pearson said a new review board will take a second look at all cases in which persons are judged to be poor security risks.

Heart Patients Should Be Wary, Liquor Makes Heart Work Harder

LOS ANGELES (A) — Hard liquor can make the heart work harder.

This is true in dogs, at least, whether they took their booze pure ethyl alcohol or in bourbon, two heart researchers reported today.

The alcohol effect was described to the American Heart Association by Drs. Ismail U. Degerli and Watts R. Webb of the University of Mississippi Medical Centre.

It's long been thought, they said, that alcohol helped the heart by dilating coronary arteries which bring blood to the heart muscle tissue itself. This expansion of arteries is thought to help get more of blood to a damaged heart.

But the tests with dogs do not bear this out, they said.

When the animals were given alcohol, their hearts pumped out more blood by working harder. At the same time, the flow of blood through the coronary arteries decreased, and this meant the heart muscle was receiving less oxygen while it was doing more work.

Dief Faces Party

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker meets the executive officers of his party today in Round One in his fight to recover unity and victory for it in the next election.

The executive — about 120 strong — is meeting primarily to review internal party machinery and set the date for an annual general meeting next year. Mr. Diefenbaker's continued leadership will be subject to a confidence vote in the annual meeting, which also will deal with party platform.

Party informants said there may be a battle in the closed executive meeting on the date and place for the general meeting, one of the last items on the day's agenda.

Those within the party eager to have a quick succession to Mr. Diefenbaker—though they say the latter has named a candidate—would like the meeting to be held as soon as possible, preferably in Eastern Canada.

WANT IN WEST

Mr. Diefenbaker's supporters are expected to feel that a meeting in Western Canada should be held, and that it would be safe to delay it to the late spring.

Mr. Diefenbaker himself, an informant said, would like the meeting in January and has not decided whether it should be in the East or West.

Since the party's defeat in the April general election, Mr. Diefenbaker's personal support has been concentrated in Western Canada and is reflected in the Prairie Conservative membership in the Commons.

One Prairie MP said Friday that within the last month there has been evidence of a swing back to Mr. Diefenbaker among Conservatives in other parts of Canada.

SEES THREE FACTORS

He attributed this to three factors:

1. Realization there is no single leading candidate to succeed "the chief."

2. Disappointment in his performance both in the Commons and at political meetings outside the House after the last-days that naturally followed his defeat.

3. Indications that the new Liberal government is having much the same trouble mastering the problems that beset the Conservatives when they were in power.

After addressing the executive of the national party before their luncheon adjournment, Mr. Diefenbaker left to fly to Winnipeg for a speech tonight to the Manitoba Progressive Conservative Association. He will return to Ottawa Sunday.

Smoked Fish From Lakes May Be Poison

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration Friday urged housewives to destroy any smoked fish products they may have under refrigeration unless it is known the product did not come from fish caught in the Great Lakes or processed in Great Lakes area plants.

Canned fish products are not involved, the FDA said.

The smoked fish products involved are those that are packaged in sealed plastic wrappers or sold in bulk without any package or wrapper, the FDA explained.

In the other hotel, an organization called the National Health Federation is holding a National Congress on Health Monopoly—to reply and rebut the AMA and FDA.

At the quackery congress, Annis Friday called Krebiozen as "one of the greatest frauds of the 20th century."

Blame Porcupine for Deaths Of Two Girls Near Denbigh

KALADAR (Staff) — A porcupine may have cost the lives of two teenage girls as their car crashed into a rockcut four miles south of Denbigh last night.

This is the way Provincial Police retraced the story in the deaths of Marsha Lynne O'Brien, 19, and Chris Bogart, 18, both of Tweed.

About 8.45 p.m. last night both girls were travelling south on Highway 41. The O'Brien girl was at the wheel of the 1959 Volkswagen. Suddenly police believe, a porcupine on the road was picked out by the headlights. The driver swerved to avoid it — and lost control of the car. It rolled over and hit a rock cut. Both girls were reported killed instantly as the car was wrecked on impact.

Duel Over Krebiozen Value As Cancer Drug Is Raging

WASHINGTON (A) — A verbal duel over Krebiozen's value as a cancer drug has erupted from a cold war over medical quackery.

Despite a decision by federal authorities that the serum is worthless, Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Krebiozen sponsor, Friday night challenged the president of the American Medical Association to a debate on the drug.

Dr. Edward Annis, AMA president, declined, saying he would not provide a platform for what he called "any proponent of a fraud."

The challenge is tied to two Krebiozen meetings in Washington hotels some two miles apart.

In one, the AMA and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration are sponsoring the second National Congress on Medical Quackery—its announced purpose to focus public attention on quacks.

In the other hotel, an organization called the National Health Federation is holding a National Congress on Health Monopoly—to reply and rebut the AMA and FDA.

At the quackery congress, Annis Friday called Krebiozen as "one of the greatest frauds of the 20th century."

In a telegram to Annis, Ivy denied that Krebiozen is a fraud and claimed scientific confirmation that it is effective in treating cancer.

While speakers at the federation's meeting assailed the AMA and FDA, there was no direct exchange.

However, in a speech to the quackery congress, FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick cited court records involving a number of federation officials, including its president and founder Fred J. Hart.

The court cases all involved fines or prison terms for activities arising out of such things as misbranding vitamins and food products, distributing so-called medical devices, and a so-called cancer remedy, Laetrile said.

It was the FDA that labelled Krebiozen ineffective against cancer.

CONTROL LIQUID FIRE

BOSTON (AP)—A river of liquid fire poured out of a railroad chemical tank car Friday, endangering a crowded industrial, residential and school area in suburban Brighton. Fast firefighter action controlled it with slight damage. Four men were burned. The fire broke out in 10,000 gallons of ethyl acetate.

24-Hour Rain Is Needed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Water continued to be trucked to drought-ravaged farms in southwestern Ontario Friday but an agricultural official at Chatham predicted it would be a losing battle.

Trucked-in water could do little or no good, a spokesman at the Chatham agricultural representative's office said, because not enough of it could be supplied.

Only a 24-hour rain could help the situation, he said.

But the best the weatherman could promise was a few showers for the northern part of the province.

For the rest of Ontario — baked by the worst drought since 1901—sunny and warm weather with a few cloudy intervals was predicted for today.

POURS INTO WELL—GONE

One farmer in the Alderton area, 15 miles north of London, had 10,000 gallons of water hauled to his farm and poured into a well. He talked to the truck driver a few minutes, went to turn on his pump and found the well had absorbed and his well dry again.

Information on where to get polyethylene lining for receiving ponds and wells to prevent water from seeping out is being provided by farmers.

Water was hauled by 5,000-gallon milk trucks and other available transportation. Emergency water supply stations were set up in agricultural representatives' centres in London, Petrolia, Clinton, Woodstock, Stratford and Brantford.

"Hundreds of thousands of gallons of water" are being delivered daily to stricken farms, said H. F. Crown, vice-chairman of a six-man emergency committee named Tuesday by the Ontario government.

UNFIT TO DRINK

The water is generally unsuitable for drinking he added, and warned against using railroad cars or trucks which normally carry oil or chemical products.

"We might create a worse problem than we're trying to solve," he said.

K. E. Lantz, assistant deputy minister of agriculture and chairman of the drought committee, said public health is a prime consideration in transporting and storing water.

Meanwhile Fire Chief Fess said it was co-operating Friday with Canadian National Railways in providing a water supply to carry at least 200,000 gallons of water to drought-stricken areas.

Hensall village, near London, had to stop supplying water to six or seven farmers in the area after its own supply got low. The village had been giving 5,000 to 7,000 gallons a week.

The Ontario winter wheat crop, worth about $30,000,000, was reported near to ruin because of lack of rain.

Fruit growers said the dry weather has done wonders in ripening their crops.

Thirty-two forest fires were burning under control in the province Friday, 10 of them in the North Bay area. And the Six Nations Indian reserve, located near Brantford on the square miles of parched woodland, was living in fear of a major fire.

Accused Denied Slaying Widow

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Arnold Pruner, 32, of nearby Spencerville denied having anything to do with the slaying of a Crystal Rock widow, a provincial police inspector testified Friday before an Ontario Supreme Court jury.

Insp. L. R. Gartner of Toronto told of interviewing Pruner and questioning him about the slaying last March 28 of Mrs. Geneva Parker. Pruner is charged with capital murder.

The case continues.

Canadian Ships Being Picketed In U.S. Ports

Trustees Say No Deal Made With Hal Banks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Picketing of a Canadian grain vessel in Superior, Wis., was halted by a temporary court injunction Friday night, but there were indications that picketing would spread to other major United States ports in protest against the Canadian government's trusteeship over five maritime unions.

The actions followed on the heels of a return to work by members of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL-CIO-Ind.) on Canadian ships after a week-long walkout protesting the trusteeship.

Al Tanner, vice-president of the SIU of North America (AFL-CIO) said in Detroit that a program for the picketing of Canadian ships entering major Great Lakes ports in the U.S. went into effect Friday.

The Canadian government trusteeship is the same as actions against labor unions taken by Hitler and Mussolini," said Mr. Tanner. "And Canada is only a few miles away."

COULD BE TOTAL

The statement recalled a warning Oct. 9 by Canadian Labor Minister Allan MacEachen. He told Parliament when the new trusteeship legislation was first introduced that there might be a "total boycott" against Canadian ships in U.S. ports.

The situation could "grow worse before it gets better," he said then.

In Superior court Friday, four members of the Great Lakes district of the SIU suspended picketing of the J. N. McWatters after being served with the injunction. The court order was secured by lawyers for Scott Misener Steamships Limited of Port Colborne, Ont., owners of the ship.

The pickets carried signs, one of which read: "Der fuehrer MacEachen has placed Canadian seamen in captivity, following in Hitler's footsteps."

A spokesman for the Douglas County sheriff's department said he expected loading of the ship to be resumed today.

But in Buffalo, N.Y., members of the SIU planned a demonstration today against the Algosteel, owned by a Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., company. The ship is loaded with Labrador ore for Bethlehem Steel Company.

"We're not picketing as such," Mr. Tanner said. "We're only trying to let the American labor movement know of the position of Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and AFL-CIO President George Meany with respect to this trusteeship."

USE PICKET BOATS

Mr. Tanner said picket boats would be used in the various demonstrations and SIU men also would patrol docks to carry the union's story to other union members.

He said the protest would last "indefinitely."

Meanwhile, the three federal

$96 Million Deficit In Six Months

OTTAWA (CP)—A budgetary deficit of $96,400,000 in the first half of the current fiscal year was reported Friday night in Finance Minister Gordon's monthly statement on the state of his treasury.

Nearly half of the April-September deficit on government operations was incurred in the month of September, when the government went $46,500,000 into the red.

A year ago there was a $67,600,000 deficit for the first half of the 1962-63 fiscal year, and a $61,400,000 deficit in September, 1962.

The six-month deficit compares with Mr. Gordon's June 13 budget forecast of a $536,000,000 deficit for the full 1963-64 year—a figure that was boosted to $653,000,000 by his July 8 changes in the budget. Government expenditures usually rise sharply at the end of each fiscal year in March.

The report showed that rising revenues this year have been outpaced by the increase in spending.

REVENUES RISE

Budgetary revenues in the six months April - September were $2,982,300,000 compared to $2,845,200,000 a year earlier. Budgetary expenditures rose to $2,978,700,000 from $3,912,300,000.

The report also showed a six-month deficit in the old age security fund—not included in the budgetary accounts—of $10,700,000 compared with $21,800,000 a year earlier.

The fund, financed by special earmarked taxes, is the source of old age pensions paid in all

Kidnapped Michigan Girl, Aged 5, Found Alive and Well in Ditch

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A five-year-old blonde girl who was kidnapped from her mother's parked car Friday night was found alive and apparently unharmed today, sheriff's deputies said.

Officers said Michelle Moran was found in a ditch a few miles east of here by a truck driver. They said the child was "wet but apparently unharmed."

Michelle, who lives in neighboring East Lansing, was abducted from her mother's car at a busy shopping centre as her mother watched in horror. He told police she was taken by a bespectacled, dark complexioned young man.

She was found today as some 200 police and civilian searchers planned to search a 25-square-mile area dotted with woods and swamps.

Police said it was not immediately determined whether the girl had been molested. She was taken to hospital for examination.

Michelle, a tiny blonde, was snatched from the car of her mother, Mrs. Donna Moran, by a slender stranger.

Must Keep All Functions Of Society Before Public Red Cross Workshop Told

In addressing the Eastern Ontario Regional Public Relations Workshop at the Hotel Quinte on Friday Phil Stone, Toronto, Vice-President of Radio Station CHUM, Toronto, said that the public relations officer's most important job was to keep the functions of his local organization, always before the public through the radio station, television station and the local newspaper.

"Do not telephone your news items into the three news media", he said, "but rather, take it in personally and get to know the people in these various medias that you will be in contact with. From one that knows", he continued, "these people are much too busy to take all this information over the telephone, and consequently if the information is taken this way, mistakes are likely to arise." The same is true when you want these people to report on your activities. Go to these people personally and give them the information as to where it is being held, when and at what time etc."

Another important factor is that you should bring these people to your meeting's and let them see what is going on within your local organization. A great deal of work is involved as far as these people are concerned to give you the publicity you are looking for, both in the newspaper field as well as radio. In some of the larger centres, it makes your copy will go through seven, eight, even as many as nine different people before it is put over the air by radio or TV and the same is true with your newspaper. You should always remember to take your copy to these various people, typed if possible, double spaced, and above all the original copy not the carbon, as it is almost impossible to read. "I have received carbon-type copy, and I know what a frustrating task it is to figure it out."

"In conclusion," said Mr. Stone, "that is, what you do is what you get."

The speaker was introduced by president of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Newton Thompson and thanked on behalf of those present by public relations chairman of the local society, Mr. Gordon Anderson.

Following the luncheon recess the workshop was addressed by Mr. Clive Tisdale, campaign chairman, Ontario Division; assistant director of public relations, Toronto.

FOUR REQUIREMENTS

The speaker said there were four requirements for a successful campaign, "courage, division of responsibility, follow through, which is a very vital aspect and organization. The need for organization cannot be over emphasized," he stressed.

Mr. Tisdale went on to explain the pros and cons of the United Appeal and separate campaigning. "It is important that you become aware of what is going on, on the other side of the fence," he stated, "and to determine whether or not the type of campaign you are presently involved in is the right one".

"There are three types of campaigning," continued the speaker. "There are seven Metro Toronto branches carrying out fund raising projects with the Toronto United Appeal. I feel this group must be classed as a separate unit. The second type is made up of all other branches raising funds through a community chest campaign and the third type is the separate appeal."

BY BRANCHES

"Out of the 162 branches in the Province of Ontario," Mr. Tisdale went on to say, "127 of them are engaged in separate appeals and 35 outside of the seven Toronto branches are engaged in the United Appeal or Community Chest."

Mr. Tisdale stressed the importance that the Red Cross Society should identify themselves with and have representation on the United Appeal Boards etc. "The United Appeal must work shoulder to shoulder with its affiliates," he said.

"There should also be joint planning between the Red Cross Association and the United Appeal," he continued. "There should be joint public relations with the Red Cross and United Appeal are both at public interest in the Red Cross which should be presented to the United Appeal, which is not being submitted."

HAS STORY TO TELL

"The Red Cross has a good story to tell and should be told 12 months of the year". In closing the speaker remarked, "If you have strong leadership you will have a successful campaign."

Following Mr Tisdale's remarks, a special panel discussion was held concerning the problems of the Canadian Red Cross during world war one. This statement was made by the chairman, Capt. Ed Hopkins who said, "If it is true our wars were sold and that they were fought for, but they were not sold by the Canadian Red Cross Society."

Further panel remarks were put before the chairman and in turn each discussed.

Get Official Receipt From Canvassers

The Santa Claus Parade Committee stated that it has come to their attention that unauthorized persons are soliciting funds for the Santa Claus parade.

The parade committee wishes to advise the citizens of Belleville that all canvassers connected with the Santa Claus Parade will produce signed identification, and give an official receipt for donations. You are asked to request this identification when approached for assistance.

Y's Activity

The Y.M.C.A. Swinging "Y's" is a group of square dancers that meet every Friday night from seven until nine, to inspire fellowship between the boys and girls from the 10 to 14 age group.

Modern square dancing was introduced into the "Y" activities in February of 1963. This type of square dancing differs from the traditional in that it is done very smoothly and is taught through basic movements that become more intricate as the dance progresses.

In May of 1963 the group was invited to the RCAF Station's children's dance group, where they met new friends and had an evening of dancing and fun. It is hoped in the near future to have other groups invited here.

The membership now stands at 40 and it is hoped that the number will increase.

A beginners group is held on Saturday afternoon from 1.30 to 3.30. There are several openings for boys and it is hoped that there will be a good showing for this class.

The children have a great deal of fun and at the same time learn how to dance.

Special Work Sessions Now In Progress

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville have once again undertaken the task of distributing toys to needy children for Christmas. The assistance of all Kiwanis members is required. The project is now under way at the Kiwanis Centre and special work sessions are being held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings under the leadership of Kiwanis Bryan Bradley, Don Rose and Don Finkle.

Members of the Kiwanis Club undertake this job each year of mending broken toys to be given to less fortunate children at Christmas time.

Old Newspapers At Workshop

The examination of several very early newspapers highlighted Monday evening's workshop at the Hastings County Museum.

These papers dated back to 1834 and revealed much about early life in Belleville and area. The Museum is eagerly invited for the location of other early local papers and anyone knowing the whereabouts of any early local newspapers (especially before 1867) is asked to contact Gerald Boyce at WO 8-3022.

On Monday evening, the Museum is holding another workshop at which interested persons are invited to attend. The workshop begins at 8 o'clock and is followed by a social half hour. Workers with copies of Mikel's "City of Belleville History" are asked to bring them.

Ratepayers Learn Monday What Assessments to Be As Result of Re-Appraisal

City letter carriers on Monday will be delivering an additional 20,000 pieces of mail as new assessment notices are put out from city hall advising local property owners of their assessments for 1964.

Ordinarily there is nothing unusual about assessment notices but this difference this year is that owners are being advised of new values arrived at as result of the re-assessment program carried out in the city during the past three years.

Generally speaking these new assessment values will be approximately three times the amounts on which owners have been paying taxes. And in some instances, where assessments have been low, the increase will be even greater.

It was to correct this "out of line" situation that the re-assessment program was ordered by city council.

FIRST IN 40 YEARS

City Assessment Commissioner G. Leighton Thompson, points out that it is more than 20 years since a re-assessment of properties was last carried out.

Since then, however, assessment values have been unchanged except for the value of lands and some buildings. As a result irregularities have arisen but in many instances are not carrying a fair share of the tax load.

It was to correct these inequalities that the re-assessment was done.

Since the re-assessment program was started there has been considerable publicity about what property owners might expect, but Mr. Thompson, himself pointed out it was only natural to expect owners will feel alarmed when they find assessments raised by three times former amounts.

But, of course, this doesn't mean taxes will be raised to be increased three times.

In fact, unless the city requires more money than was raised by way of taxes this year, the 1964 rate will be only one third of this year's rate of 91.9 mills — or about 30 mills for residential properties.

NEAR ACTUAL VALUE

Under the new system all properties will be assessed at close to actual value. That before alarmed property owners lay siege to city hall in protest, Mr. Thompson pointed out that the letter accompanying the mailed assessment notices be read very carefully.

This letter explains the re-assessment and the reason for it. It also points out that if a property owner considers that the assessment department's white is responsible for taxes and that any increase in taxes next year due to the re-appraisal alone, will be where assessment has been out of line with other assessments in the city.

Mr. Thompson said his department would welcome any complaints or enquiries, but pointed out that the assessment department could not hope to handle them all at one time.

So persons with legitimate complaints are asked to take note of the ward in which they live and visit city hall on the dates listed and during the hours noted.

CAN SEE ROLL

Complainants will not be shown owners' appraisal cards (they are department property) but they are entitled to know their land and building assessment roll to compare their own assessment with that on their neighbors' properties or other similar property.

According to the assessment act, sales value, rental value, costs of replacement, present use, location, and "any other circumstances affecting the value," must be taken into consideration when making an assessment.

Mr. Thompson points out that the market value is not always a good barometer.

For instance there is the matter of location and personal choice which might prompt a buyer to pay more for a house in one location that he would in another.

As a result general sales values give a true picture.

VALUE LAND FIRST

In making assessment, land values are put first, according to a specified rate per foot for certain areas.

Buildings then are assessed, according to department tables predicated on about three-quarters of present day values.

Then a rental capitalization figure is considered, this figure with others before tampering replacement values either up or down.

A re-assessment program is a big job which is usually done by firms making a business in this type of work.

But the re-assessment just completed in Belleville was done by the city assessment office staff—which at the same time kept up with regular year to year assessments.

Every building in the city was measured, typed, inspected inside and out, classified and physical and economic depreciation given where warranted.

Lands were depreciated where necessary for topography, and obsolescence allowed where certain circumstances may affect the value.

TOOK THREE YEARS

It took the city hall assessment office three years to complete the new assessments on the 13,000 properties in the city.

But it seems an assessing job is never actually completed.

"Maintenance of the new assessment will be a continuous operation," Mr. Thompson said.

But each year's assessment rolls on file are up to date always subject to review and can be discussed with assessment department officials at any time.

"I would like to express thanks on behalf of myself and my staff for the co-operation received during the re-assessment program," said Mr. Thompson.

Belleville Boy Congratulated by Hospital Board

James Currie Hepburn, administrative assistant of the Oshawa General Hospital, was congratulated by the hospital board on his admission to the American College of Hospital Administrators.

Mr. Hepburn is the son of Mrs. Colin F. Hepburn of 329 Charles Street in this city.

The college, now in its 30th year, was founded for the purpose of providing recognition to men and women who are doing outstanding work in their professional careers as hospital administrators.

Cheese Exchange

Thirty eight and one eighth cents for white, and 38¾ cents for colored, were the average prices per milk pound on the local cheese exchange this week.

A total of 3,503 specials, 10,675 regular and 12,707 square cheese was offered on the exchange.

Heat-treated cheese was quoted at one cent per pound less for white and at 37 11-16 cents for colored.

Construction Roundup

Percy Hoddle of R.R. 3, Trenton, and the five-man crew he has tearing down the old Masonic Hall on Victoria Ave., are finding more work than they might have expected. The building has two roofs and two ceilings. The second roof raised the peak about ten feet, and was apparently put on about 50 years ago. Inside, the second ceiling is about ten feet above the floor, put in by the Moose Lodge when they took over, apparently to save heat. The original church ceiling was about 20 feet up. Late this week, the building was back to its original state, with the back addition down and the up per roof off. The job, nearly four weeks old now, should be through about the end of next week, Hoddle says.

Out at Quinte Secondary School, Jim Adams reports the architects, Bennett and Rieder of Toronto, will be inspecting November first. Sirotek, meanwhile, moved their site office away Friday morning.

At the new Bell Telephone office on Pinnacle St., George Seames of Carr-Bruist has the bottom 16 feet of the 35-foot south wall poured now. Poured, reinforced concrete floors will be keyed in later, he says.

Up where Honest Joe's used to be, Mario Panaro and his General Contracting crew have the south wall up to its full two-floor height, the back wall almost finished and the second floor laid over two of the three stores. Next week, he says, steel will be up over the second floor of the two-storey part, and over the single storey section. Frost wall will be glass brick.

Ben Comeau, running the Beaver crew on Fahey Street sewer, has about 2,000 feet of the 24-inch tile laid. Above 500 feet to go, then he starts work on Tracey St. Dan Cross is powderman on the job, and Ben says he's been using about 70 tubes of tricite a day. Lots of rock up there, it seems.

Back taken from the hole along the Fahey St. job is being crushed right on the site, by a crusher owned by Fred Rickwell of Tamworth and run by Joe Deschene of Eldorado, and dumped right back as bedding for the pipe.

On North Front St. the Beaver group finished laying sewer pipe south from Tracey St. during the past week, and are almost finished the section north from Tracey St. Equipment on the north section may be back in use by Monday of next week, Hoddle says.

Walter T. Elliott is his own contractor for the new Elliott Motors building on North Front Street. Work started Monday, under foreman Jim Brooks and footings for the 60-foot service shop in the Sidelight—digging equipment is two Allis Chalmers industrial tractors, complete with hydraulic back hoes and loaders. Elliott just happens to be brother to the owner.

The job will cost about $190,000, cover a total of 23,000 square feet, and contain, with offices and showroom, will be three floors high, with single floor service shop in the A body shop will be added later, but right now is at present location will keep operating until then. Finished and equipped, the new building is next April.

Sam Goodman himself spent Thursday up at the new motel Begg and Daigle of Toronto are building at the 401, Front and the 401. Public section of the motel is covered in steel, and most of the rooms are up to two-storey height. Two floors make better looking motels, Sam says.

Across the river, the North-east Access Road is almost finished now. Bert Fitzgibbon says his trucks have dumped 3,250 yards of gravel so far (straight from the pit) gravel and 4,700 tons of granular A (crushed stone) on the base course. After it is paved, (McFarland's will start and finish the paving job in late fall, according to Mac White), there are another 1,000 tons of gravel to go along the shoulders. Both Fitzgibbon and McFarland's are working under contract from Lightfoot on the 3,250 foot road.

Jim Lightfoot says his crew on Wallbridge Road north of Dundas Township will start digging and laying sewer pipe on Monday. So far, they've just finished 1,000 feet of 24-inch In West Park Village, a crew is about half done a contract 1,000 feet of 24-inch tile-fairy sewer, 2,800 feet of storm sewer and 4,300 feet of watermain.

Out-of-town, Lightfoot crews last week finished a short city way siding near Gananoque, and are now pouring the dock on a new bridge south of Stirling. Odds and ends during the week include a sports track at M.S.S. and a start on a scale pit and some sewers for Hinds and Dench, in Trenton.

Bill Cook of Black Diamond said last night that McAlpine, of Toronto, shirt Moodie on a $225,000 addition to the Black Diamond plant.

A Bell Telephone crew started during the week to pull lines through existing underground conduit on Station St. main office on Bridge St. to the end of James St., and down James and along Dundas through the new conduit to the bay. Meanwhile, an overhead line has already been run to Massaga almost to Mountain View. The Inspiration crew that laid the conduit packed up during the week, and is now working in Brockville.

And over at city hall, building inspector Grant Stickle has been issuing a permit a day during the past week.

Gas stations are the big news since city council decided to issue more licenses.

Canvass Half Completed, United Appeal Has Received $30,000 of $85,000 Needed

With an estimated 47 per cent of the general canvass completed, $30,000 of the $85,000 objective of the United Appeal campaign has been turned in to the fund coffers, a spokesman said this morning.

This is not by any means the total amount donated by residents, since a number of canvassers have not turned in their receipts.

General campaign chairman Norman Keith today issued an appeal to any and all canvassers who have not submitted their collections.

"It is very necessary that we have all the funds that have been donated in the Appeal exchequer so that we know where we stand objective-wise" said Mr. Keith.

"I want to please turn in their donations" said the chairman. "It is very important and very necessary that we have the fund all monies collected to date".

The $30,000 in cash and pledges turned in to date represents only seven per cent of the canvass objective. But the United Appeal is not getting the response from the general public it anticipated, Mr. Keith pointed out.

GIVE TWO MINUTES

There isn't a lot you and you and your wife can do in two minutes. You'll need that much time to put the carbon in your typewriter, get a drink of water or clean your tools.

But there are ways that can make two minutes precious.

Two minutes — less than one-tenth of one per cent of the time you give to your job: each minute valued at a few cents only. Add them up two minutes, five days a week, fifty weeks a year, just about one working day.

GIVE UNITED WAY

Now look at it another way What you earn in two minutes multiplied by 250 and pledged the United Way does a world lot way to feed, clothe and shelter an orphan, put a way, get the old on the right track, bring some cheer to an old man or woman, keep a troubled family together and make your community a better place all around.

You can do an awful lot when you put your earnings of two minutes each day to work in The Big Push and where services that are appealing to you once a year the United Way.

You could run a community centre, or look after the children of a sick mother or shelter an abandoned child. You could counsel a family or teach a cripple to walk. You haven't got the time? Well, But the voluntary social services in Belleville can do it for you, with what you can earn and put enough to keep them going, improving and meeting the never-ending need of the people who with some help can often help themselves.

It will do a great deal of good to you and your community if you give your earnings for two minutes a day to those who need your help the United Way.

Church Groups Will Mark Anniversaries

TRENTON — Two Trenton church groups will mark anniversaries by special services next month.

Celebrating the 88th anniversary of the dedication of the church will be the congregation at King St. United. The church was dedicated in 1877 as "The New Canada Methodist Church", and since then has been known as Trenton West Methodist Church, the Wesley Methodist Church, King Street Methodist Church, and finally, after the union of methodist and presbyterian churches in Canada, by its present name. The anniversary services will be held on Sunday, Nov. 17.

The Salvation Army Corps in Trenton will hold services to mark its 79th anniversary on Saturday, Nov. 2, Sunday, Nov. 10 and Monday, Nov. 11. Guest speaker at the Monday service will be Col. Reagh, third in army command for Canada and Cpt. William Brown will be returning to town for the services on Saturday and Sunday.

Children Ready To Collect For UNICEF

TRENTON — This year's Hallowe'en UNICEF committee has now completed plans for the big night, Thursday, Oct. 31. Committee members are Walter Scott, treasurer, Bernard Fox, Mrs. W. E. Patrick, Mrs. R. H. Smitherin, Mrs. J. P. Downs, and Mrs. Ernest Magnus.

The children will collect their containers from 25 depots around town. Locations of depots will be given out at school. All children will be asked to have their collections back to the depot, by 8.30 p.m. This request, it is hoped, will ensure that no children will be out too late after dark, and that with collections in by the 8.30 deadline is eligible to place his or her name in the lucky draw. A prize has been donated.

UNICEF pennies collected, will go to supply necessities of life for children in underprivileged lands.

Mrs. UNICEF committee hopes that householders will remember to keep a supply of change on hand for the wee ghosts and goblins, who are unselfishly giving up other pleasures to assist children less fortunate than they are.

Humane Society Will Receive Group's Warrant

TRENTON — Tuesday, Nov. 5, at 7:30 p.m., Mrs. Hilda Jones, charter president of the Trenton Humane Society will receive the group's official warrant from Tom Hughes, executive member of Ann Ontario society. The ceremony will be held in the town hall, over the police station, and the public have been invited to attend.

The warrant will give the local society power to step in anywhere in the Trenton area, where misuse of animals is apparent. Founded on July 4 of this year, the Trenton society has already been instrumental in correcting conditions in several instances.

Membership in the local organization has grown to 40, since its founding.

HAD RURAL DINNER

Trenton Lions transfered to Carman Thursday night for a rural dinner in the United Church, catered by the Carman United Churchwomen.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Donald McCurdy, a sales' representative for Ontario Hydro at Belleville. In the course of his address, Mr. McCurdy covered statistically to the Trenton club members that they were paying less for hydro service than customers in most other Ontario centres.

Many Detours Help to Slow Traffic Flow

TRENTON — East-bound motorists, bus drivers and truck drivers have been asked to use Bay Street, to bypass the construction site on Dundas St. East, between Sidney St. and Campbell St. West-bound traffic, from the Belleville direction, will continue to use the Heber St. detour.

On Dundas St. E., a storm sewer is being installed and a sanitary sewer replaced. When re-construction of the street has started, repairs to the sanitary sewer was not thought necessary. However, once the road is torn up, it will be used to replace the sewer because apparent. The work will take approximately six month, town engineer Eric Aldersey said Friday and the detours will be in effect until the work is completed. Once the sewers are installed, the roadbed must be torn up, fill put in, and the street paved with asphalt.

Meanwhile, motorists, (etc.) in west Trenton are detouring too. Dufferin Ave. is cut off between Dundas St. W. and McGill St. Storm and sanitary sewers are being installed on several streets. Vehicles proceeding east or west in the construction site area are asked to detour by way of McLellan Ave.

Difficult Task Completed

Belleville property owners will soon be receiving 1964 assessment notices.

This year these notices will receive close scrutiny. They will not be merely a confirmation of past judgments on property values. Instead they will represent the result of a reappraisal of these values.

These assessments will, in the main, be higher than those in effect in the past. This does not mean that taxes will be higher. Taxes depend not on assessment alone but also on the tax rate. With assessment three-fold what it was, the tax rate should decline by approximately 66 per cent.

Although the assessments will be higher, they do not pretend to represent actual market value of properties, the price which could be obtained when a willing buyer meets a willing seller. Sales value is only one of several factors which the assessor is required to take into consideration when fixing assessment.

The re-assessment was undertaken because it was felt—and we are sure accurately—that past assessments were out of line on comparable properties. The present produce changes and these should be reflected in assessments. Though a department may try to keep pace with changes as they occur, it is inevitable that with the passing of time the overall balance will be destroyed. Then re-assessment is necessary.

The need for such re-assessment became plainly evident in most Ontario municipalities in the years immediately following the end of the war. Like many other municipalities, Belleville sought outside help in this task, which J. P. Coombs directed.

This most recent re-assessment was carried out by the regular staff of the city's assessment department, building on the foundation which Mr. Coombs and his associates provided and following the principles laid down by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs at the time when re-assessment problems were general and in the years since.

Assessment Commissioner Leighton Thompson and members of his department deserve congratulations for their ability to undertake a project of this nature without outside help.

Though not competent to say we necessarily approve the new assessment structure. We lack both the knowledge and the information at present on which to base any judgment of the results. These will be tested, no doubt, before the Court of Revision, and quite possibly in appeals from that court to the courts.

The important thing, though, is that a genuine effort has been made to produce an equity of assessment between different sections of the city, between districts which have been built up at widely differing times.

Until and unless some evidence to the contrary is produced, we think Belleville citizens are justified in expecting that the re-assessment will achieve, in large measure at least, its objective of providing a just basis on which to levy a uniform tax rate.

Discretionary

U.S. Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon has appealed to the House of Representatives ways and means committee to approve the proposed foreign securities tax of 15 per cent.

He has emphasized the fact that the exemption which would be granted Canadian securities would be limited, since President Kennedy would have discretionary powers to declare the exemption null and void if the exempt borrowings exceeded "prudent limits."

It may strike some Canadians this discretionary power will place in the hands of the U.S. administration a powerful weapon which it can use in a variety of ways—for instance in its protests against the Canadian plan to increase the output of automotive parts in Canada.

It would be rather cynical to think cynicism does not seem to be incompatible with Secretary Dillon's temperament. For instance, he said, the tax proposal by itself had drastically reduced the sale of foreign securities in the U.S. Even during discussion the bill was "playing a key role in reducing the outflow of capital." He appeared to have neglected to add the provisions of the bill, if approved, would be retroactive. It would be strange, indeed, if the threat of a retroactive tax did not produce effects similar to those expected of the tax itself.

Diefenbaker Battle Stations Ready For Grass Versus Brass War

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Back in character again, John Diefenbaker, the Old Warrior, is carrying the fight to the enemy in the Conservative' own still-troubled camp.

The party rebels . . . and some managed to remain in the wreckage when the dust had settled after last winter's "Palace Revolution" that brought disaster and defeat . . . aren't going to find it easy to complete the "dump Diefenbaker" coup d'etat they had planned for the coming Conservative convention.

They calculated — and if they did not, things should have — that the political armchiefs might just have worked out — that a single voice of violent dissent in any vote of confidence in the Diefenbaker leadership at next January's party pow-wow, would have finished the examination that began in the back-room Cabinet conspiracy just a year ago.

When a party leader goes before the faithful at a convention, it is traditional that he be given this vote of confidence.

And it must be unanimous.

Even with the conspirators lurking in the background of last January's convention here, and talk of a "leadership vote" where on the floor, there was not one rebel who had what it takes to step up to the mikes when "Dief the Chief," as they called him then, was given that traditional endorsation.

MR. CHAIRMAN

They waited until the pro-Diefenbaker delegates in all gone home and then they cloaked in for what they thought was the kill.

They managed to kill only the Conservative Government as the result of their efforts to take it relatively simple to fly the Liberals to ride back to victory and to reassemble the shattered ranks of the Diefenbaker Cabinet and a party torn by dissension.

But "Dief the Chief" survived.

The leaders of the Palace Revolution were either politically eunuchs or dead in the political slaughter of the Conservatives in the election.

A number of Mr. Dief's old captains — former Cabinet colleagues Mike Starr of Labor, Monty Montgomery of Health and Welfare, Gordon Churchill of Defence, George Nowlan of Finance, Alvin Hamilton of Agriculture and a corporal's guard of other loyalists — rallied around Mr. Dief, but back-bench-full of almost fanatically devoted Prairie partisans.

But, once again, it would take just one voice . . . just one rebel at the mike to mention hall next January, shouting "No," or even "Yes, but," before the traditional vote of confidence in Dief's leadership was proposed . . . to finally destroy him.

The required traditional unanimity then would be impossible. It would be an open declaration of party civil war, and even although — as is always certain — the rebels would be but a small, if bitter and certainly destructive minority, the leadership would be lost forever.

The mystique, that most necessary quality of strong leadership, would be missing, dissolved in the ashes of the defection of the supposedly loyal.

IN THE OPEN

There would be no way to prevent it, because while to stop the one destructive voice of revolt from being heard.

It has to be open to all the delegates, and even the toughest chairman can hold out only so long from shrouding anybody who grabs a microphone and bellows, repeatedly for recognition from the platform.

But now Dief, foxy old political Grandpa that he is, has singled out the rebels.

He has lumped them all in what he plainly considers the strange alliance within the party which would, as he says, attempt to "take over" the party.

So he has singled them out.

Isolated them.

No longer will they be able, posing as loyal party members, as ordinary delegates doing their duty, to form a cabal behind his next January.

That element of surprise — the element against the supposedly loyal - - has been removed.

They won't be able to ambush him.

For in advance he has served notice that he knows what they are planning. . . . and so when they stand up, they will be branded in the convention hall as surviving members of that own government in that astounding act of cabinet harikari last winter.

He has now moved so that he can fight them openly, and when - - or if - - they show their faces on the convention floor next January, he will be able to level that accusing index finger at them, scorning them for whatever kind of political vipers he chooses to call them.

GRASS, NOT BRASS

The best defence is often the the attack, and in few situations could this be better strategy than now.

For Dief, back in the old fond and familiar role of "Fighting John Diefenbaker," skewers Enemy in this way as a pack of plotters, a few power-hungry party brass hats, and in advance rallies the faithful, in the name of loyalty, to his side.

And instead of waiting patiently and silent, for his enemies to move against him at the convention, with an attack on his leadership, in advance he has laid his job on the line.

So the gloves again are off.

"Dief" has sounded the call to arms for the Grass in the January showdown with the Brass.

Calling up old times, he has said, and with feeling . . . "As in the past . . . it is the election . . . to have a vote of confidence placed before the national electorate, and soon as it will be, of the grass roots of both the party and the country."

It may be last January all over again . . . with the Prairie partisans stalking that convention hall, as they later prowled the corridors of Parliament . . . hunting as they put it . . . "to get us a brace of barons from Bay Street."

For Dief and his captains in the Commons, and the great majority of the backbench MPs remain convinced that a party "rebels" who plot to lay him politically low . . . comprise only a small, tight-knit group of Tory Brass Hats headquartered in Toronto.

So once more unto the breach with the Grass vs the Brass on Bay Street against Main Street.

Are Taming Outdoor Life

Dallas News

It's saddening to note that Americans aren't the only ones trying to tame the rugged outdoor life. Indeed, Newsletter reports that Europe's highest mountain can now be climbed by almost anybody.

The breath-taking view from Mont Blanc can be enjoyed without risking life or limb, thanks to a new cablecar and elevator system in the heart of the mountain.

The sheik of Bahrain, an avid angler, has devised an even more luxurious way to rough it. The sheik's new $200,000 yacht has a closed-circuit television which allows him to watch the fruits of his fishing rods astern while he sits in the air-conditioned comfort of his stateroom.

It may be that the sheik's method of angling is overdoing it a little bit. It would be simpler and cheaper for him just to hire someone to go fishing for him. That way he would not even have to leave his palace.

Worst Trait of Cancer Is That It Can Spread

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is skin cancer and its causes? Can a person get too much sun tan? — J. H. E. C.

Cancer is a disease that scares most people. It is a condition which results when the cells making up a certain structure of the body begin to multiply to fast.

The body, you see, consists of microscopically small cells. Whether bone, blood, skin, or various types of flesh, all are made up of cells. Each of these is a very tiny organism. As long as we live, these cells are continuously wearing out and being discarded. When one wears out, another cell divides, and the two new ones grow to normal size.

If cells, for reasons still unknown, suddenly start to divide and to grow into new large ones, and to do so without regard as to whether this is necessary to replace a dead cell, then we have "cancer". That is why, in all simple words, it is neoplasa. (However, not all growths or tumors are cancerous.)

Eventually so many cells appear that there is not enough nourishment to support them. That is when the voracious cancer cells start robbing the healthy ones of the body.

The worst trait of cancer — is that it can spread. It is from that once begun, it can spread.

A "benign tumor" doesn't spread. A malignant one, or cancer, does. So unless the cancer is removed by surgery, or destroyed by X-ray treatment, its growth continues until finally it overwhelms some vital organ of the body.

In that sense, skin cancer is like any other cancer — malignancy of the bone, liver, the stomach, or various organs.

But, and this is important, skin cancer is located where you can see it. The "sore that does not heal" can be removed, and that the second of life provided, of course, removal is before it has spread too far.

We don't know what causes cancer. If we did, we probably could find a way to prevent it. We know that constant irritation is one contributing cause. Thus a lugged, sharp tooth. We know that various chemical irritants, over a period of time, will result in the tissues. We know that people who spend a great deal of time under the hot sun are more likely to develop skin cancer; therefore, too much sun can be a factor. (This doesn't mean that a moderate amount of sunshine is bad. It isn't; it's good.) But chimneys, sailors and such outdoor people, after many years, are more likely to develop skin cancer than those who don't get so much sun.

Dear Dr. Molner: My grandson, now a year old, is unable to sit alone and has everything in his hands. One specialist diagnosed the condition as brain damage caused by birth trauma. Is there any help for such a child? — G. M. S.

"Cerebral palsy damage is difficult in most cases. Instead it becomes a matter of training a child within his capabilities, or, in other instances, of determining whether he should be placed in a "home" or hospital. In this particular case, I doubt whether there is need for institutionalization or the doctor would have advised it. But parents should be urged to stimulate whatever may be necessary.

Note to Mrs. E. W.: I can't foretell your health, but your own doctor can give you some informed guidance. There is no reason, however, to assume that arthritis will be made worse by the wearing again.

Why Condemn Man for Title?

Hamilton Spectator

"When Adam delved and Eve span,
Who was then the gentleman?"

It was a different day, incredibly different, the day John Ball preached his fiery denunciations of inequalities between wealth and degraded poverty in England. It was late in the fourteenth century when the conscience of men was outraged by the whip of privilege and the populace it subdued. It was a type of "class warfare" and violence the British have usually forestalled by intelligent compromise in modern times.

At no time has there been a more remarkable adjustment in a short space of time than that tempering great divisions in the wealth since the end of the Second World War. It couldn't help but think of this when the Earl of Home was finally chosen the other day to take over the leadership of the battered Tory party. There was an outcry, and quite a phrill one in some quarters, about the Earl's title and what it means, this "exquisite anachronism", a role that should belong more properly to a commoner. He is the first peer in fact to be chosen since the Marquis of Salisbury in the last century. Of course the Earl will have to renounce his title.

What puzzles us is that the Earl of Home, whose ancestors can be honorably traced down into the chronicles of British, and her struggles, should be stigmatized merely because he is an aristocrat. Certainly what he character nor his courage nor his morals nor his ethics, nor his competence with his fellow men, should be considered as inevitably linked with the humblest citizen's, but does he automatically have to be written off as less worthy?

Democracy has turned a curious somersault. In an acid rejection of class privilege it has set up a hardened symbol of class stigma. A man is better because he is born in a hovel or hills or by a forebear's service to his country. We think there is messy logic here and not a few traps and paradoxes. Men of privilege are often, in fact, in a better position to realize the blandishments of cheap fame and temporary gain by virtue of their independence.

Is any name more illustrious of the forms of the "black satanic mills" than that of Lord Shaftesbury? Even today, the House of Lords has a large proportion of members who started life with nothing and the Labor party has some of its staunchest members among aristocrats who have left home.

The curse, or who should care? The aristocracy can be a tiresome one. English rules are less obnoxious than the "big men" or "executive" neuroses of the Americans.

The Earl of Home may have a lot of traits that do not appeal to the people of England. We don't see what they have to do with the man his virtues, with the fact that he is a peer. The voters choose in the end. We can have a lot of things in the democratic system. Surely the capacity to think should not be destroyed by an obsession with labels that do not. And even the most violent opponent of the Establishment would surely agree — mean anything much by themselves.

Rural Areas Have Slums

Windsor Star

Urban people think of slums in terms of run-down city areas where poor people live in even more depressing surroundings. Rural areas also have their slums, though these may seem less appalling because they are scattered.

Hon. Alvin Hamilton, former minister of agriculture, says there are 100,000 farm families living in conditions which, if they were in towns would be regarded as slums. Most are in Quebec and the Maritimes with others in Ontario and Alberta.

Most are on land which, in modern terms, cannot support a family decently. It is marginal soil and most of it should be back in bush. The people on it cannot afford to make a proper living. They haven't enough money to buy modern machinery, fertilizers, etc. How have they enough money to buy good land elsewhere. They just struggle and trying to make an existence. Their homes, and other buildings, all too often are a disgrace. They cannot afford proper education for their children.

Most of these "farmers" may be inferior in the sense they could not operate a good farm anywhere. There are exceptions. Most came from the same poverty stock which has flourished on better land.

We don't think subsidies are the answer to the problem. It simply would be subsidizing inefficient operations. It would be better if the people left farms for poor land and help them get started, if they have the ability and initiative, on better land.

Scholarships, Prizes, Diplomas Presented at BCIVS Graduation

By A. HENDERSON

"Yet all experience is an arch Wherethro' gleams that untravelled

World whose margin fades forever

And forever as I move."

So said Alfred Tennyson.

Last evening in Belleville's Collegiate auditorium a host of eager-eyed young people stood beneath their "arch" of graduation viewing that untravelled world into which they were about to enter, with mingled feelings of anticipation and trepidation.

The stage background behind them was one of beauty. Tall white clusters of roses interspaced and yellow chrysanthemums backed by ferns adorned either end, while in the centre huge Commercial 'mums in muted shades of yellow, and russet almost hid from view the long desk with its trophies, its diplomas, its many awards and certificates, while over all, the school band provided music suited to the 'tempo of the occasion.

The processional, headed by members of the School Board and teaching staff wended its way to the platform, and the graduates, some two, to receive appointed places in the auditorium—which was jam-packed with many standing at the rear.

PRINCIPAL'S REMARKS

Following the hymn, "Lord, Speak to Me That I May Speak" in Living Echoes of Thy Tone," and the invocation by the Rev. H. J. MacPherson, minister of Tabernacle United Church, the principal Mr. E. A. Orr, gave a brief summary in which he outlined the work accomplished, of which he was justly especially proud of the 60 students, who would receive their honor graduation diplomas as denoting the completion of the grade 13 course. He also mentioned what were engaged in doing: 55 are continuing their education in one form or another; 27 of these attending evening university; 15 at Teachers' College; six in schools of nursing, training to become nurses and the rest in various other institutions of learning.

Mr. Orr gave a brief financial statement dealing with the scholarship awards presented during the six years. Since five years ago $3,600 had been awarded in scholarships and prizes; then, two ago the awards totalled $6,695 and this year $11,100.

Aside from the academic side of teaching there are athletes with ten winning B's for all-round proficiency. Other activities include music, drama, public speaking; literary efforts deserved; and club activities.

EXTENDS APPRECIATION

Mr. Orr also extended heartfelt appreciation to those who had helped in the success of the graduates, including the Bay of Quinte High School Board and its advisory Vocational Committee, who provided the facilities, the teaching staff, and the policies of the educational program; to the outside individuals and organizations which have assisted by making available the many scholarships, prizes and donors standing in the garden who have been a credit to themselves; to their parents; to the school, wishing them the best kind of success and happiness as they continue through life.

Mr. R. E. Portt brought greetings from the High School Board, to the young graduates, advising them that when picking their life's work, that they pick something they like — "there will be no success unless you are happy in your field of work. Choose one vocation in which you will be happy, for unless you are happy, there will be no success."

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, the Rev W. F. Bannister, D.D. pastor of Chalmers United Church, Kingston, and a graduate of Queen's, also a lecturer in Practical Theology, who received his DD degree from Queen's University, was introduced by Mr. G. A. Shaver. Mr. Bannister addressed the graduating class from two texts as a foundation for his message: one from Paul's letter to Timothy and Visitup him to "Stir up the gift that is in thee." and the other from Lord Alfred Tennyson's advice to Queen Victoria, "Be loyal to the Royal in thyself."

"You consist of two parts, the mind and the soul. The mind refers to the seat of learning, the soul to the spiritual part which connects with God. The mind, unless used, becomes rusty. It becomes cluttered up with useless material in the cheap reading — John Ruskin stated: 'If you read this, you cannot read that.' If your quest is for the cheap thing, you have lost all desire for the things that are of value, that count."

IMPORTANT ATTITUDES

"You must have important attitudes; a mind soon deteriorates; it must be used and stilled. Charles Hall, one of a company of 45 young people, succeeded in freeing aluminum while the others failed because he kept his eyes on the goal; he had faithful in his endeavor. The Delco system was invented by a farm boy, Charles Pepperin, who forged ahead steadfastly looking to the achievement. Sloan became head of General Motors in the United States.

KIN WITH GOD

"The soul is that which makes you kin with Almighty God—because it is the never dying part of you. Sir Arthur Wellesley, Duke of Wellington, said: 'Education without God is worthless, dangerous and educated devil.' (Dr. Bannister remarked in an aside, "there are lots of them—in high places'.)

"You must have a real goal in life. Jesus said: 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.' Put God first in the place, do not look back, because you cannot plow straight furrows if you keep your eyes on the supreme God which leads to the kingdom of God."

In closing, Dr. Bannister emphasized again Paul's instruction, "Stir up the gift that is in you," and Lord Tennyson's word to Queen Victoria, "Be loyal to the Royal in you."

John Anderson, on behalf of the graduating class, extended appreciation to Dr. Bannister for his good and inspiring address.

During the evening three solos were rendered by Mrs. Ivan Parliament, who sang three solos by David Tempier, both of whom were accompanied at the piano by Mr. Clifford Tempier.

The valedictory was given by Alan Slavin, which appears elsewhere in this issue.

The many diplomas, certificates, scholarships and prizes are as follows:

'Learn to Accept Change' Urges BCI Valedictorian

Following is the valedictory address given by Alan Slavin 1963 honor graduate, at the graduation exercises of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School held last night.

"Most of the valedictory addresses that I have heard seem to have had one common theme. Each of them has looked back with nostalgia over the wonderful years of yesterday, the 'hallowed halls' of Dingleberry High, and sorrowfully lamented having to part with the dear old alma mater, queen of educational institutions.

"But I am not lamenting my leaving B.C.I. I am glad to be able to say that I have gone; that I have left the old school for good. And it is the same with any one of last year's graduating class, or any I have spoken. And it is the way it should be, and must be.

"Sure, we all enjoyed ourselves here; we had a 'whale' of a time, but we have accomplish something really worthwhile in the process. But we do not hope to leave or want to go back. We have spent our quota of years here, B.C.I. has done its part for us and can do no more. Her work is done and if we were to look backward we would be fixed instead of forward with expectation and hope, we would be admitting that we had failed ourselves, but our school as well, and failed to somewhere along the line. Just as a child who is tied too tightly to his mother's apron strings will never be able to attain maturity, so a student who is too attached to his constant environment of school life takes longer to become effective in his life beyond the school, be it in taking his place in the community or in the working world. For the child is tied to his mother's apron strings, not so much by his own wishes as by his mother's that he will waste a useful life a thing else. He knows no life but the sheltered one that he has known since birth, and, being unprepared for a change, feels no desire to leave his nest and cast out on his own.

NO APRON STRINGS

"I think our academic mother has succeeded in her task for if we trembled on the edge of the nest, it was anticipation and not fear that made us do so. We have eternal ties with B.C.I., but they are not apron strings.

"Now we are branching out into a wider world. But the same principles are inherent in us; we still must face the danger of becoming so attached to what we have left that we forget that we resent anyone's trying to change it. We bear evidence here that change is not to be shunned. Someone says that the only thing better than a mercy Branch. Won by Janet Downey. Presented by Mr. C. A. Gay.

Valiere Wrightmeyer Esty Award of $10. For highest standing in Grade XI Agriculture. Won by Ricky Layses. Presented by Miss Leona Riggs.

Grade XII Agriculture Award of $15. Donated by the Glen Roy Creamery Limited. Workers Award for highest standing in Grade IX Agriculture. Won by Ross Mc-Donald. Presented by Mr. Donald McNevin.

Keystte Club Trophy. To the outstanding athlete of the graduating year. Awarded to Sheryl Drydale. Presented by Janet Miller, Secretary, Keystte Club.

ALAN SLAVIN

too' still pervades the south. Our papers quote the whites as saying that they 'have always had segregation, why should the present change it in Georgia is now!' From our nice all-seeing perch up here in Canada, we realize that integration is a change that must come about eventually, in the process of bettering the world, and that those wishing to stay with the old way of segregation are merely beating their heads against the old brick wall of social evolution. But we realize this because we are farsighted enough to see the good in such changes. And yet, just December, Belleville voted against fluoridation of its water supply, even though a committee of dentists in the city openly supported it. Yet, I know why it was voted down. Anyone could tell you it was because it would increase taxes slightly, or because of some ignorance of fact on the part of the voters. And this last point is not just my opinion. It is the actually know of a man who confused fluorine with chlorine, 'didn't want his water purified like a swimming pool.' Now you and I realize that his argument was ridiculous. Everyone in Belleville knows that the local drinking water frequently not only smells but also tastes of it (it came from a swimming pool, and would not possibly be any worse.

RESENTED CHARGE

"Seriously though, the real reason why fluoridation was defeated in Belleville was the people's resentment, our resentment, to change. We sense actually believed that he would be losing money through taxes was not really reality but that he spent would reap him dollars saved in dental bills as well as health and life. We are slow to lieved this, then it was merely because he had decided beforehand, that he was going to vote no. Someone says that the only thing better than a mercy is a boy, and soon we are in the middle of a chorus crying out 'change, change, change' at any age, and anything else which the papers report is changing the world is also cried out for by those who are so unwilling to change with it.

"We fall, in the southern states, several people were killed merely because of this resentment to change. The general attitude of 'my father hated Negroes and his father before him, so I am going to hate them

THE BLACK CANYON

"Suggestions have been made that, if Colorado, so rich in mountains and canyons could give the Black Canyon to some deserving state like Kansas, the site might be better appreciated."

—Susan Marsh.

That evening, we reached Gunnison, (famous for its perpetual Salida after lunch) just in time to obtain the last available cabin of The Hershey Motels, which caters to fisherman and hunters, ideally situated beside the Gunnison River.

This placid, even tempered river passes by our enchanting picture-window like a perpetual, silver-blue conveyor's belt, winding out of a forest, peacefully framed by high misty mountains to find itself just here bordered with painful versions of so-called fishing shacks.

Sheltered and nicely spaced out on a hill in this tree-shaded town is a State College, and on the outskirts is a large supermarket. Since ours is a housekeeping cabin, we decided to indulge and prepare our own dinner.

Over coffee cups, we became host to our proprietor (his striking office door has stylized stained glass; he's owner of a glass factory), who describes "river floats" that are regularly arranged to take tourists into remote areas of the Gunnison River.

"Visitors are warned not to go alone; it's too dangerous. Though the river's source is just northeast from here and finally joins the Colorado River at Grand Junction, very few have attempted to traverse the entire 50-mile river course," he continues, "the most popular trips now are old ones that are having revived by jeeps — for sightseeing."

"Jeeps?"

"Yes, guest ranches all over the state are now adding Tours-by-Jeep expeditions to their list of activities. Jeep clubs are springing up all over Colorado, and we sponsor special events which they call (in autumn) Colorado Jeep-ends or Jeepcades. There're even breakfast rides and sunset picnics with steaks broiled by the trail side. Really, its a great way to see the Rockies."

"But, why did this start?"

"You see, the travellers of yesterday who took these stagecoach routes were bound for gold fields, boom towns and frontier homes; today, travellers seek tourist streams, forest lakes, wildlife haunts, two-mile high vantage points. Recently I went on a jeep party up 14,000 feet, with the trail dropping 2,000 feet in nine miles. Of course one's much more likely to see a mountain lion, elk, black bear, or mountain sheep on jeep trail country."

"It really seems like an excellent idea."

"Yes, after lying nearly abandoned for 30 years the old stagecoach route, wagontrails, logging roads, narrowgauge railroad beds in this state are coming back to use. Coloradans and visitors alike are rediscovering the Old West by Jeep."

Our guest puts down his cup and stands to take his leave saying:

"Of course, there're some places even a Jeep cannot follow," and his eyes glance at the river, "take the Gunnison; it defies the jeep just as it did the Indians who hunted along it, the Spanish who explored it, or the "beaver men" led by a French Canadian, Roubideux, yes, even the military expeditions during the expansion of the west. One, Captain John W. Gunnison for whom the river was named, searched for a coast to coast route for a railroad, and declared it had impossible barriers."

"Seems so hard to believe. . ."

"If you've a chance, stop and see the Gunnison at the Black Canyon." were our guest's parting words. But contentedly we sat watching the moon disappear behind a high mountain. Now the river could only be heard, murmuring, instead of seen, its serenity lay as a spell over us; bald and lingered, even as we drove some sixty miles away the next morning.—The Black Canyon? What was it? It'd completely left our thoughts, when, suddenly upon seeing a sign "See the Black Canyon — here", and remembering, we did so!

We parked and got out of the car, to walk over to where we expected to see the river — to find ourselves looking at it a third of a mile straight downward. From below it appeared as a minute silver thread twisting its way through mass of pinnacled rocks which stood straight up, within and apart from the 10 mile canyon walls. These rocks, through the ages, the river has worn and sheered its ways through the earth hard preCambrian core.

A guide is saying: "Except at midday, the bottom of this incredible gorge is shrouded in gloomy mist. Sprinkle a name 'Black Canyon' particularly appropriate. Note that in places the rims of the canyon are only 40 feet apart."

It is so awesome, it paralyses us. To think that sparkling remote thong of silver down there was once the calm stream that so murmuringly passed our cabin last night. Our guest and Captain Gunnison were right; it certainly has barriers that are insurmountable.

Then a surprising thing happens: gradually, I endure a very syre the fearful depths of the Black Canyon of the Gunnison River change from a look of terror to one of sheer beauty and wonder.

A Lift for Living

Evil Wears Many Disguises While Luring Man Into Sin

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Halloween will soon be upon us. Children in weird costumes and wearing frightening masks will prowl through their darkened streets as they march to the porches of their neighbors demanding a treat and threatening a trick if some goodies are not given, possibly by a householder who is delighted to be blackmailed into giving vast scores of cookies, doughnuts, fruit and candy and unload these treasures upon make - believe devils, ghosts, witches, wolves and beats knowing full well that beneath fierce appearances hides the harmless souls of little children. After all, the threatened trick would likely be but the scraping of a window.

The approach of real evil is usually the exact opposite of that made by Halloween pranksters. Rarely does it come to us appearing worse than they really are. Some, in fact, are little angel looking like the devil. But evil usually makes its approach looking angelic. As the Apostle Paul wrote to the Church at Corinth (II Corinthians xi: 14), "Satan himself transformeth as an angel of light." This is the customary way that evil edges into our lives. It comes to us disguised as goodness.

EASILY RESISTED

Bold, hare-faced evils are easily resisted. They advertise themselves with great banners inscribed, "Murder", "Theft" and or "Depravity." They march upon us openly with the rolling of drums and the flashing of weapons, shooting their hostility. When vice and crime make such an open, brazen, bold appearance they are not charming. They then hardly tempt us at all. Physical evil is seldom attractive. Not many of us would in meanness pinch a baby, even if its extreme irritation at us will brutally trip a crippled neighbor, no matter how offensive he may appear to us, and if ever the temptation to be so hateful ever comes our way most of us can see that it is the enemy of our spirit. We either fight it or flee from it. So with other gross vices and sins. Only a small percentage of people are seriously tempted to commit armed robbery or murder. Such sins are still news. They make headlines because they are uncommon. Such evils announce themselves as outrageously wrong, and we easily shun them.

But most evils hide their real nature. The devil seldom looks like the devil. If evil should get at our door looking like the traditional picture of the devil, ugly, hot, cruel, with a long tail and split hooves, we would never invite evil into our lives. But evil comes with a gracious smile, looking like an old friend carrying greetings from old acquaintances. It is courteous, suave, congenial. So we open the door and invite it in, give it the most comfortable chair in the house, a seat at the dinner table, a bed for the night, and beg it to "make as soon as possible for a longer stay. And, thus, evil creeps in. Satan is never so kindly it always returns, bringing other evils with it to enjoy our hospitality.

LURED INTO WICKEDNESS

A minister must frequently deal with people who have been lured into wickedness, who are overwhelmed with disappointment in themselves and honestly regretful of moral lapse. They mournfully lament, "I never guessed this could happen to me!" Of course they would not have fallen so far if the evil had looked like the devil. But last looks like love. Adultery looks like a mere infatuation. Cheating looks like shrewdness. Greed for money looks like "a good head for business." Gambling looks like venturesomeness. Pleasure-madness looks like "enjoyment of life." Malice and hate look like righteous indignation.

Conformity to the wishes of the crowd almost always appears to be right. Even though we may temptation to agree to what "the gang" is doing as cowardly conformity, we may easily succumb. Temptation is conformity. It comes to us looking like kind sociability and agreeableness. We then, hold back our own clear words that bespeak our own solid convictions so that we do not offend. We tend to think, talk, act, and even dress alike. And we have become such "yes men" that we may yet transform "the land of the free and the home of the brave" into the "Land of Nod." But the habit of conformity seems harmless. We timidly say "Yes" when every one else is saying "yes" because conviction looks like cold, warm-hearted friendliness, and moral shyness is called "a desire for harmony."

TOUGH WITH OURSELVES

What shall we do about the temptations that come to us disguised as friends? How how is evil unmasked? By our being mercilessly tough with ourselves! We must not permit ourselves no clever rationalizations. We must seek to know the truth in the true nature of our desires and motives. Call them by their right names their sometimes unlovely, ugly names.

Again, the temptation as the opponent that discloses to us what we are. We, weak or strong, as fire tests the metals, tests thrown upon R. Fire is a servator, burning paper, consuming cloth, converting water to steam, purifying, hardening and tempering iron. So temptation, under its disguises, is a revealer of what we are.

Moreover temptation's various masks we can see the opponent that, by testing us, helps us to develop into what we ought to be, as the boxer's rough sparring partner helps him to become a better boxer and as the burdens we are reluctant to lift make us stronger and better prepared for still other burdens.

When evil's angelic mask is removed evil is seen to be our opponent, and not our innocent, good friend. But in God's great providence even our enemy is made to serve our spiritual welfare as revealer and strengthener, if we will have it so.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

MAIL CALL

Question: My parents were divorced when I was a little girl and, while I've lived with my mother and grandmother, I've spent vacations with my father whom recently married. Last year, I've asked my father to give me away when I'm married in a few months, and my mother and stepfather approve of this decision. My father also will attend the reception. He won't know many of the guests, and I was wondering if it would be proper if he stood in the receiving line. Also, should he be seated at the same table as my mother and stepfather? R.E.

Answer: Since your father is not host, he does not stand in the receiving line, or even receive informally with your stepfather. A relative may be designated to introduce him to those he does not know, as befitting his status of an honored guest. As far as seating arrangements are concerned, he is given a place of honor at one of the guest tables, but does not sit at the parents' table.

Question: When can a tea, when should guests be served? Should the hostess wait until a few guests gather, or is it permissible to start serving as soon as the first guest walks in the door? I'm to be hostess at a tea in the near future and would appreciate knowing how to handle arriving guests. Mrs. C. V., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: Guests are served as soon as they arrive. If friends are doing the pouring, the hostess directs her guests to the tea table, where they are helped to tea or coffee and make a selection among the sandwiches and cakes offered. Guests then sit anywhere they choose and converse with those nearby. They're pretty much on their own and the hostess doesn't have to do too much shepherding of guests at a fairly large tea.

If the hostess, herself, is presiding at the tea table, she greets guests from behind the tea things and asks how they prefer their brew. Guests then sit nearby and chat with the hostess and others present as the cool conversers with those nearby. They're pretty much on their own and the hostess doesn't have to do too much shepherding of guests at a fairly large tea.

QUESTION:

. . . . Do you have a foolproof recipe for raspberry . filled oatmeal turnovers? I've made several attempts, all disastrous, as far as appearance is concerned. I have trouble handling the dough — it falls apart and I end up just sandwiching two pieces of dough together with jam. They have a sentimental attachment for me as my mother bought them at a corner pastry store and I've wanted them ever since but my frugal nature rebels at paying the price for them — Audrey C.

ANSWER:

Luckily I have!

RASPBERRY TURNOVERS:

1 cup sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 3 cup quick-cooking rolled oats, uncooked, ¼ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons water, ½ teaspoon almond extract (optional). Filling: about ¾ cup raspberry jam.

Sift together flour and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Mix in rolled oats and sugar. Add water and almond extract, mixing lightly. Knead dough 4 or 5 strokes until it just holds together. Roll out to ⅛" thickness. Cut in 4" rounds. Place 1 teaspoon jam on each circle. Fold over and seal edges by pressing with tines of a fork. Prick to allow escape of steam. Bake on ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes until edges are delicately browned. Makes 12 turnovers.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Grilled Lamb Chops; Minted Peach Halves; Spinach and Mushrooms; Savory Onions with Cheese Sauce (see Wednesday); Pineapple Cake Pudding (see Monday); Tea.

QUESTION:

My 5-year-old daughter has many food allergies, as well as other types, and would love to have me make cookies for her. However, she can have no eggs, chocolate, nuts, orange juice, tea, cocoa, many other things, so shortbread is the only kind I have ever been able to give her. I find it hard to come by most relevant allergies so if you know of any recipe for cookies, squares or cake without these ingredients (especially eggs) I would appreciate them — Helen W.

ANSWER:

Please see above recipe for raspberry turnovers. I think your daughter will enjoy and tolerate these.

PEEK-A-BOO COOKIES (eggless):

2¼ cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup shortening, room temperature, ½ cup water, 2¼ cups quick-cooking rolled oats, uncooked, ½ cup jelly or jam.

Sift together flour, soda and salt into bowl. Add sugar, shortening and water. Beat until smooth, about 2 minutes. Fold in rolled oats. Sprinkle a bread board generously with icing sugar. Roll dough very thin. Cut with cookie cutter. Cut a design in half the cookies. Place plain cookies on lightly greased baking sheet. Top with ½ teaspoon jelly and cover with a designed cookie, lightly pressing edges together. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 3½ dozen cookies.

CWL Meeting Hears Report On Convention

After reports of the standing committees had been read, the president of St. Michael's Parish Council of the Catholic Women's League, Mrs. J. R. Rashotte called on Mrs. H. Brown to introduce Mrs. L. Smith and Miss Gail Walker (Miss United Appeal) who each gave a brief talk on the need for generously subscribing to this worthwhile cause.

Mrs. Brown as citizenship and immigration convener spoke briefly on the Civic Action committee of the Catholic Women's League of Belleville being a new agency in the United Appeal. She asked that canvassers explain to donors that they were giving to 13 agencies and to encourage them to pledge a monthly amount. It was reported that all funds given in the Civic Action committee go into a separate treasury to be used only for the welfare and character building projects which amounted to $3,400 last year.

The new nursery convener will be Mrs. B. A. Collins and anyone interested in helping on the nursery committee is requested to contact her. It was noted that 13 members attended the regular meeting at Marmora.

POLICE RESOLUTIONS

Mrs. Paul Kelly read the policy resolutions adopted by the 62nd annual national convention of the C.W.L. held recently in Calgary, Alberta. The theme of this convention was "The Revitalization of the Catholic Home". It was worthwhile out by a rather interesting innovation by the use of five forums.

The first "Catholics and their community" urged women to combine their community service such as P.T.A., the John Howard Society, the United Appeal and their community activities. Second was the "Assistance in forming Christian social attitudes in all Canadians". This stressed the need to understand national issues and to participate fully in world-wide socialization by discussing national problems such as Civil Liberties, Canadian culture and bicultural basis.

Third was, "Social issues in programs which are the concern of everyone in provinces and discovered where anti-Semitism was discussed. Fourth dealt with the "The C.W.L.'s contribution at international level" when preconceived ideas of other parts of the world and reprehensible ignorance all around by west was deplored. Canadians show ignorance of other cultures and their problems. The revitalization of the Christian social order at this level belongs to the laity. A fourth plea was made for international understanding and brotherhood. The fifth was "What priority do social action programs and projects have at Parish Circle of C.W.L." which note that members are mandated by the papal encyclicals to learn and to act on the social teaching of the church. With the parish as the base organization it is logical that the C.W.L. should carry on social work.

CHRISTIAN RESPONSIBILITY

The league creeds call "for acceptance of the responsibility of Christian citizenship and personal godliness. One has to want to provide food, clothing and shelter for people on the other side of the world and recognize their human rights. Delegates were urged to prepare themselves for a more active part in public affairs by study and by being co-operative with other groups.

The national president, Mrs. Stevens was presented with the Canadian Career Society certificate of merit for the tremendous contribution of the C.W.L. across Canada to the C.C. Society for many years. This is the fourth time this award has been bestowed in Canada.

Miss Catherine Maund entertained with piano selections. As a tangible appreciation of her fine performance, Mrs. J. Farrel presented her with a gift.

Tea was served by Mrs. Gooding and her committee.

Spain's Plain May Have Rain But Sun Coast Has the Gold

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

TORREMOLINOS, Spain — Up on the plain of Spain, where the rain stayed mainly for a few days of our visit, the land is as barren and rocky as the setting for a Hollywood western. It was easy to see why conquistador types wanted to own it, probably in search of green as well as gold.

But they needn't have gone so far. Down here on the Sun Coast they have both, and the rain is mostly scattershots. The yellow stuff is being imported in bagfuls by both jet set tourists and the hotel builders who always precede or follow them. The result is a Miami-on-the-Mediterranean under construction. Its end may be a Gold Coast that will make Florida's look like Capa Cod by comparison.

Once tourists spent their time poking around 14th Century castles in Spain. Today many of them pop out of TWA's jets less than 24 hours out of New York, grab their golf clubs, and head straight for the 20th Century castles of Ferdinand and Isabella's day: Materials still are hauled on the backs of burros.

The Costa del Sol is full of such odd contrasts. Marbella is a fine example. Its modern white hotels and villas and its true character — a sleepy old Moorish community with donkey carts in the streets and whitewashed stone houses piled high around a castle.

The coast's long string of white beaches is reminiscent of Florida's early years. But there you look to the north and see the Sierra Nevadas, glowering from their distant heights. Or you come around a bend in the road and glimpse the remains of a Moorish watchtower from which long - forgotten Arabs peered out to sea in search of long forgotten enemies.

You pass flashing new hotels like the Atalaya Park, which will open soon under American Jamalca, then through timeless towns such as Estepona, where the fishing boats in the harbor have spotlights to rout out the fishermen. Cypsies, goats and donkeys swaying under piles of melons or straw past by the village-cloistered yards of pastel villas.

And in Torremolinos they have the same sort of sea-side cabana bull rings to build —what else? — a hotel.

ENTERTAKING VIEW

On a clear day the Rock of Gibraltar, a monstrous prehistoric sentinel at the portmouth, is visible from Marbella, forty miles away. We pass San Roque, a picturesque hilltop village and are then we have our first breath taking view of the complex of harbor, industries and city that sprawls around and over the world's greatest natural fortress.

The traffic and bustle increases as we past through La Linea. The land lines the shore where gleaming white cruise ships and freighters cluster. Tortuous streets bedecked with hotels, apartment houses, barracks and blockhouses of military emplacements climb the side of the rock. A series of gates and passport controls, and then, wonder of wonder, we are in the Empire

The Duke of Cambridge's Own, short pants, pith helmets, the whole bit.

We listened for our first sound of British and Her Majesty's Customs and Immigration, but what to our wondering ears should emerge from under the mustaches and bobby-hats but more Spanish. It was our first hint and in one of the most curious cultural clashes/mashes in the world.

Gibraltar has been British for nearly two and a half centuries, which doesn't change in the least the fact that it adjoins Spain. Its citizens have names like Shepard Capurro (a sightseeing operator) and most speak fluent British-accented English as well as Spanish. Any number of Spanish families have been British subjects for generations.

A GREAT POINT

As a great port — a free one for shoppers at that — Gibraltar has a cosmopolitan spirit personality that gives it the quality of Hong Kong, Curacao, Tangier and London's east end all rolled into one tight ball of war — or rock.

Its teeming narrow main street, known both as Main St. and Calle Real, is crammed with duty-free shops and exotic curio shops run by the East Indians who find their ways to Gibraltar as a result of Britain's the chance to sell ivory, silk and brocades.

The Indians dispense bitter and sherry side by side, the shops close for siesta from one to three hours, and typical of a yellow Andalusian horse buggies vie with limousine taxi cabs for the transportation honors. Harry's Tralalgar Bar stands in the shadow of an ancient Moorish wall.

The road climbing the rock is as precarious as it sleep as it looks, but the trip is worth it. From the pinnacle of Europa Point, the mountains of Morocco are clearly visible across the Straits. Down the slopes of the rock, past the villas and garden terraces, radar stations and motor pools, almost straight down, Barbary ape climb over the harbor and city make for a view not likely to be forgotten.

New Collegiate Technical Wing Officially Opened

PICTON — Prince Edward Collegiate was the scene for many hundred people Friday night for the official opening of the new Technical wing.

Although it has been open since the fall term, various types of work had continued and some equipment is yet to be purchased.

The addition was designed to accommodate 240 students, and altogether the student population is 1,100.

Cost of the construction, architect fees and equipment is $1,106,853.00, paid for by the Federal government 75 per cent and the Provincial government 25 per cent.

The wing necessitated changes in the school so that all are joined. In the section built in 1954, at a cost of a million dollars, a male change was added, a new gymnasium built, the cafeteria enlarged, a boiler room built, two offices added.

Official opening saw Miss Gladys R. Munnings, assistant-superintendent of Education in Ontario, perform the ceremony.

She is a native of Belleville. Also taking part were Principal John Syrett, Technical director Douglas Baker and P.C.I. Board chairman Gordon L. Bell.

A plaque was presented to the school by Page and Steele, architects.

Students acted as guides to explain the new set-up.

The school is open this Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4 for public inspection.

The courses offered in the new Science, Technology and Trading branches are given in eight different teaching areas, seven shops and one laboratory.

There is a modernly equipped machine shop, auto mechanics shop (both the envy of any garage), electrical shop, carpentry shop, occupational shops for both boys and girls, drafting rooms. In addition to the above, there is an industrial chemistry lab and a business machine room, but located in the original section.

The collegiate has a notable feature in its closed TV circuit. There are seven TV receivers, five classrooms, with sound systems operating in conjunction with them.

School board members feel fortunate in securing the new wing without cost, since it would have been necessary to have built an addition for regular classes under the usual grant system.

BACK IN PRISON

VANCOUVER (CP)—Burglar Bill is back in prison. Wilfred Atcheson, 62, who acquired the name for his 25 convictions for various offences since 1930, recently received two years for passing a forged cheque.

Being Hit

by Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon that this law is applicable. The official said the matter now is before the treasury's general counsel.

CAN IMPOSE DUTY

Under this 1930 law, the U.S. can impose an extra duty on certain imported articles if it is determined that the commodities bear an import subsidy in the country of origin.

Canadian authorities maintain that no subsidy is involved in the Canadian automobile scheme. They also maintain that the U.S. contravenling duties legislation is inconsistent with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Under the Canadian scheme which goes into operation Nov. 1, the Canadian government will remit duties on imports of automotive vehicles and parts on that portion which is equivalent to increased exports. The expressed aim is to push exports to $10,800,000 or $200,000,000 a year.

Holton said he is "very sorry to see the Canadians take this action."

He agreed with Robert McNeil, deputy minister of commerce secretary for trade policy, who concluded that the Canadian plan "is not a blatant violation of the legal commitments of GATT, though it appears to be a breach in the spirit of the accord."

He added:

"Nevertheless this Canadian plan has raised a great deal of concern here. It could cause a lot more concern if it spread to other Canadian exports and was adopted by other countries.

"We may not be able to set up a specific case against the Canadian plan but I am sure that there would be few trade issues between the two countries in the future in which the auto plan would not be remembered."

In a formal statement made in reply to inquiries, the commerce department said it will keep a close watch on trade with Canada in automobiles and automobile parts.

The department said it is hopeful of an early opportunity for further talks with Canadian officials on the plan.

Kidnapped

was at his home in Grand Rapids, Mich., police said. Detectives said Moran, employed by a Grand Rapids industrial firm, contended there he had no knowledge of the abduction.

Michele's brother, Frank, 8, gave this account:

The man, described as about 25, and wearing glasses, parked his car about six spaces from the Moran auto at a shopping centre. He walked to the Moran car, leaned his head inside, and told Michelle: "Come here."

Michelle and Frank huddled together on the back seat as the man opened the door.

The stranger then slapped Michelle. She lay down on the seat and tried to hide behind two shopping bags.

"He got inside the car and pulled her arm and made her get outside with him," Frank said.

As he led her toward his car, the man's manner changed. He called gently to Michelle, Frank said.

Frank waited for his mother to return with Lisa and Christina. Frank said he didn't leave the car because his mother had warned him not to.

U. S. Will Continue South African Trade

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States served notice Friday it does not intend to break off trade or other relations with South Africa as demanded by African critics of that country's race segregation policies.

Francis T. P. Plimpton, a deputy leader of the U.S. delegation, reminded the UN assembly's special political committee that the United States has agreed to curb arms sales to South Africa after Dec. 31. But he called for continued talks and stepped up communications with South Africa in a continued effort to influence it to change its policies.

BEARS RAID HIVES

BURY, Que. (CP)—Two black bears, a 300-pound male and a 275-pound female, gobbled more than 150 pounds of honey and did some $250 damage to Osborne Quinn's beehives before Quinn, 43, and his 19-year-old son Dale shot them. The Quinns also shot two huge male bears after a similar raid on the hives in 1961.

3. The board will then recommend to the minister concerned the dismissal or retention of the employee.

4. The minister will make the final decision and a recommendation to the cabinet.

Members of the board of review will not include the deputy minister who first investigated the case.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Chevrier said the new system will strike a better balance between the preservation of national security and individual freedom.

EXPRESS DOUBTS

The announcement was welcomed by opposition spokesmen, although Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) expressed doubts that a government board could provide sufficient safeguards against injustice.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that a justice of the Supreme Court of Canada or the president of the Exchequer Court of Canada be named chairman of the board or review to give it more independence.

The former prime minister said certain loyal government employees must be dismissed because the defects of character that make them vulnerable to blackmail by Soviet spies. These agents recruited most of their contacts among homosexuals.

"In the time I was prime minister, I do not recall any case in which the activating reason for participation (in espionage) by the individual was for monetary gain," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The security issues arose as the commons began consideration of justice department estimates for 1963-64.

How to Remove Wrinkles

By DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — Have you an exercise to take out wrinkles from the cheek bones and on the cheek generally? — NOT SO YOUNG.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR NOT SO — My sheet on "A Delaying Action for Wrinkles" can help —and is on its way to you. But along with exercises and skin care must go a more serene approach to life, or you'll frown the wrinkles right back in while you're smoothing them out!

• • •

DEAR DORIS — What on earth do you do with a woman who thinks she has never done wrong and leads her own kids to believe she was mother's little angel?

She wants to be out in the lamplight all the time and all prim and proper, and her daughter looks like Cinderella, and is treated like dirt just by her mother.

This Cinderella is 17 and is not allowed a boy friend, no make-up, and she can't even wear the shoes young girls wear today. If she goes off her mother's path, then mother goes to the teacher and tells how Cinderella is so disobedient to her; so then Cindy has the teacher down her neck. Then mother is in her glory again, as she has struck another blow on her daughter.

This daughter, I believe, is adopted. Is there any way she can find out her own true history? This, I believe, is bothering her, as her mother has given her some wrong impressions. — COUNTRY WOMAN.

DEAR COUNTRY WOMAN — Sounds too much like The Ugly Stepmother to be endured. I'd guess this youngster was adopted to satisfy the mother's ego; said mother is determined the child will not outshine her.

So she belittles and insults her, instead of being her staunch and loyal friend. Cinderella needs a Prince Charming — or rather a person who will give her the understanding she lacks. Since you obviously care what happens to her, discuss this, as well as her worry about parenthood, with the worker in your child care agency.

aged 70 and over, and it's expected to go deeper into the red this year. The pension was increased this month to $75 a month from $65, and a tax increase to help finance this won't take effect until Jan. 1.

The increase in budgetary revenues has been sparked by higher collections in most of the major tax fields except import duties.

INCOME TAXES UP

For the April-September period, personal income taxes rose to $908,000,000 from $877,000,000 a year earlier and corporation income taxes were up to $638,700,000 from $618,600,000. Sales tax collections rose to $421,100,000 from $398,200,000.

But import duty revenues for the six months dropped to $375,300,000 from $388,700,000.

Defence department expenditures for the period declined to $709,300,000 from $742,600,000.

Major increases in spending were for public debt charges, at $305,300,000 compared with $486,800,000, and transport department expenditures which rose to $167,300,000 from $131,800,000.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED H. WILSON

INTRIGUING BLUE JAYS

Strangely enough, most wild birds, as they human beings or birds, are often very unlike in character. This is certainly true of the jay family. Canada jays, those friends or enemies (depending upon how you look at it) of the northern bushlands, are noted for their boldness. Many tales are told of how they steal eatables (and sometimes non-eatables) from the camp kitchens and even off the tables from under the men's noses. On the contrary, blue jays are particularly scary, though they put on a bold front by shouting. Perhaps this is due to an inferiority complex.

Blue jays have lived in our neighborhood for many years, and the present parents were no doubt brought up in the same territory. At all events, they are not as timid as the majority of their kind because they are becoming accustomed to the eccentricities of people. Three households are now feeding them, two of which keep up the hospitality the year round.

This summer, whether or not there were originally the usual number of four to six youngsters only two ever appeared at any of the feeding stations with their parents. One is noisy and bold-mannered, the other quiet and sensible. We named them Jimmie and Judy.

We always know when Jimmie is on the way to the feeding tray. At first we hear his harsh calls faintly, then they grow louder, and presently he arrives like a whirlwind on the nearby birch tree where he always stops to make sure the chipmunk has not eaten up all his favorite sunflower seeds. In a moment we hear a thud as he lands on the feeding tray.

But Judy's arrival is cautious. If we happen to be looking, we may see her coming around the corner of the house, stopping stealthily now and again. Otherwise, the first we know of her is the thud (which she evidently cannot avoid) of her landing. And if she sees one of us through the window she barely lands before she is off again, as silently as she came.

The table manners of the blue jays leave much to be desired. One would think they had been starved. They grab and stuff, lifting up their heads with every swallow. The sunflower seeds they hold firmly with their feet and whack with their strong bills to open and remove the kernel. But whatever you think of their bad manners, their hearts is hard to beat.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Monday, November 4th. is the day of the Great Exodus.

A rifle-armed army will invade the northern fastnesses of the wily deer. For some time now in attics and wherever hunters store their gear, the red shirts, caps and other woodsmen clothing are being hauled out of the mothballs.

"This Old Gang of Mine" is making plans. Hunting lodges are being readied. Rifles are being oiled and made ready for the trigger fingers. Some northern resorts, I'm told, are "staying open" to accommodate hunting parties from the hinterlands and metropolitan centres.

Deer-wise, the conditions are good. Bill Whitfield of the Tweed headquarters of the Lands and Forests Department tells me the bucks and does wintered well last year and there was little or no mortality in the herds.

Bill predicted that this year's hunt would or could be as good as that of a year ago but with this contingent—that the proper hunting weather conditions prevail.

And at the moment the "proper hunting conditions" in the northern forest areas are as prevalent as fur-coats at a nudist convention.

In fact they are so far from or near perfection that a number of people have contacted the Department asking if the opening date has or will be postponed due to the fire hazard that at present is "away out and beyond."

"Thus far," Mr. Whitfield said via telephone, "no changes have been made in the opening dates of deer or moose. The forest bottoms are tinder-dry and forest rangers are more or less holding their breaths and keeping fingers crossed."

But much can happen in a week. If weather conditions not change there is a possibility that the government will delay the opening dates.

This is readily understandable. With the forest ready to explode into a flaming holocaust at the whiff of a hunter celebrant's breath, timberlands damage could reach a record high.

And the influx of thousands of hunters would add to the hazard. Even with the greatest care and caution exercised by the nimrods there are bound to be some who would fall by the precaution wayside and the result would be disastrous.

Under existing conditions it would take only one carelessly left camp-fire; a lone burning cigarette or cigar or a flaming match tossed out a car window to turn the north country timberlands into a flaming inferno.

Sane-thinking hunters will agree. The great majority who hunt deer for the sport of the thing and the hoped-for venison or moose steaks dinners would I believe, go along with an opening date postponement because of the hazards and dangers involved.

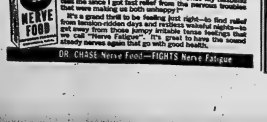
But then there are the few "Good-time Charlies", who seize upon the opportunity to go shunting merely for the celebrative part of the outing. For a lot of these riff-to-ting Omar Khayams paraphrase the Rubaiyat's classic with "A can of beans, a jug of wine . . . beside us in the wilderness is paradise."

As a reminder, the deer season, as of now, officially opens on November 4 through November 16, inclusive, north of Nagbor 7 Highway, south of Number 7 and north of Nipissing Two Highway the season opens November 4th to November 9th, inclusive.

The moose season north of Number 7 only, opens November 4 to November 16. It is noted that only the holder of a moose licence may hunt or kill a moose.

Archer Wins Over Carter

NEW YORK (AP)—Jabbing Joey Archer scored his seventh straight victory and the most important of his career Friday night. It was a split decision over top-ranking middleweight Rubin Carter in a close, spirited 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.



Carter was a 2-to-1 favorite. Archer weighed 161 to Carter's 158.

A crowd of 8,592, which paid $36,417 for the first non-televised show in the garden in seven months, roared throughout the interesting match of boxer against puncher.

There were no knockdowns, although the fierce looking Carter staggered the slick boxing New Yorker with a left hook to the jaw in the last 15 seconds of the final round.

Riders, Ticats Now Playing 'Big One'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With nothing else to root for during the Eastern Football Conference season, Toronto Argonaut fans can at least be thankful they have Dick Shatto.

Shatto, one of the few bright spots in a dismal Argonaut season, remains the main focal point for a Canadian Football League interlocking contest with Saskatchewan Roughriders in Toronto Sunday.

The big game of the weekend, however, was scheduled today in Hamilton, where the Tiger-Cats played Ottawa Rough Riders in a game to decide first place.

The winner of the game between the four-team league's cheerleaders would clinch the title. A tie game, however, would prolong the suspense until the schedule windup next weekend.

Shatto has 11 touchdowns this season for 66 points, almost half of the Toronto total of 136 in 12 games. This lies him for the league lead with George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes, and Shatto has an extra game to play.

LEADS AS RECEIVED

And, in addition to being in front of the position to lead the league in scoring, Shatto is a shoo-in to be the leading pass receiver—both on the year and in Big Four history.

He has caught 52 this year, a head of 15 over speedy flanker Whit Tucker of Ottawa Rough Riders, for 363 yards.

He also has 378 receptions since his Toronto career began in 1954, only one shy of the record total held by Red O'Quinn former end with Montreal and now general manager of Rough Riders.

In Western Canada, Edmonton Eskimos are still looking for their first victory in the Western Football Conference opponent this season.

Eskimos, crippled with injuries, faced Calgary Stampeders, who have even more ailments, at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium tonight in the first of two weekend WFC games. British Columbia Lions visit Blue Bombers in Winnipeg Sunday.

Eskimos, who have lost 10 games to WFC opponents, haven't many players left to shuffle but coach Eagle Keys plans several changes.

Stampeders' injury list includes: Quarterback Eagle Day—bruised kidney; safety Harry Wiley; defensive end Ron Payne offensive end Conrad Hilsher.

The Winnipeg-B.C. battle—first WFC contest ever held in the Manitoba city on Sunday—will feature a face-to-face bid for the league scoring title. Bombers' George Fleming has 117 pounds, 14 more than Lions' Peter Kempf. The Lions' flanker also will be out to improve on his record 22 field goals this season.

Leafs Hosts To Rangers

Hawks, Canadiens Clash Tonight

By HARVEN HOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

How much of a factor is goaltending in the National Hockey League?

Let's take a look at goaltending in the current NHL season from a slightly different viewpoint: Shots on goal by the other fellow.

Based on 17 games played so far, the records show it really isn't necessary to outshoot the opposition, provided you have the goaltending to back up whatever attack you can muster.

HAWKS ATOP LEAGUE

Chicago Black Hawks and their all-star goalie Glenn Hall, for example, top the standings with four wins and a tie in six games. Yet they have outshot the other clubs only twice while salvaging one sawoff.

On the other hand, Montreal Canadiens have piled up an edge in shots in all five of their games. They lie fifth in the standings with two wins and a tie.

This is not to be construed as a knock against Gump Worsley, the goalie Montreal acquired in the seven-player swap with New York Rangers last June.

Coach Toe Blake has not faulted the Gumper for the club's slow start. But he hasn't tossed any accolades his way either.

The Canadiens, incidentally, lead the league offensively with an average of 44 shots a game. Boston's impotent Bruins, winless in seven starts, are at the other end of the scale with an average of 26.

Other clubs and their averages: Detroit (37); Toronto (36); Chicago (36); New York (35).

PEPPER OLD PAL

A 39-shot barrage against New York and their old friend Jacques Plante inflated the average of the Canadiens in an early game.

The schedule proffers five games this weekend. The Hawks and Canadiens go at it tonight in Montreal while the Rangers tangle with the Maple Leafs in Toronto.

Sunday night, it's Montreal at Detroit, Toronto at Boston and Chicago at New York.

80,000 To See Bonecrushing Battle

Jim Brown Versus Sam Huff?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York's desperate Giants, trailing by two games in their bid for a third straight conference title, will shoot the works Sunday on the pitching arm of Y. A. Tittle in the battle against Jim Brown and his unbeaten Cleveland Brown teammates.

An expected crowd of 84,000 frantic fans will be rooting for the Browns to repeat their 35-24 triumph of two weeks ago in Yankee Stadium when Brown ran wild for three touchdowns and 209 yards in running and pass catching.

If high - scoring Cleveland chalks up its seventh win at the halfway mark of the 14-game National Football League season, Giants can be counted out of the race.

Both teams are relatively healthy for the game, although Cleveland has a patched up linebacking corps. Regular right linebacker Galen Fiss probably will miss the contest. Two other linebackers, Mike Lucci and Sam Tidmore have been placed on the injured reserve list.

DO OR DIE

Baltimore Colts have also approached the do-or-die point.

Baltimore must beat Green Bay Packers to stay in the race in the NFL's Western Conference where Packers and Chicago Bears share the lead at 5-1.

Baltimore has a chance to find out just how good Packers are without their regular quarterback, Bart Starr, who is out with a broken hand. John Roach inherits Starr's job. Colts outplayed Green Bay twice last year but lost both games and were beaten 31-20 three weeks ago.

Philadelphia Eagles limp into Chicago to meet Bears, still smarting after an upset by San Francisco 49ers Eagles must make their stand without injured quarterback Sonny Jurgensen.

Frank Tarkenton of Minnesota Vikings won't have to contend with Joe Schmidt, Detroit's fierce middle linebacker, in their game at Detroit. Schmidt is out for perhaps a month with a dislocated shoulder.

In other games St. Louis Cardinals meet Washington Redskins at Washington, Dallas Cowboys encounter the Steelers at Pittsburgh and San Francisco tangles with Los Angeles Rams.

Canada Stroke Behind In Cup Golf

South Africa Leads

CP from AP-Reuters

VERSAILLES, France — Al Balding of Brixham, Ont., and Stan Leonard of Vancouver provided a smaller dose of their par-busting game at the half-way point of the Canada Cup golf matches, but were still in the thick of the ding-dong battle today.

For the first time in the tournament that began Thursday on the new par-72 Saint-Nom-la-Breteche course, some of the crowd of more than 3,000 followed the Canadians who were just one stroke off the pace set by South Africa for team honors after 36 holes.

In the individual competition, Balding and popular South African Gary Player were tied for the lead with 138—six under par.

Player and his little known partner, Retief Waltman, were the surprise of the tournament as they took the team lead with a total of 277.

One stroke behind with 278 were three teams—Balding and Leonard; Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer of the United States and Sebastian Miguel and Ramon Sota of Spain.

Players from 33 countries played one round today and another one on Sunday to decide the team and individual titles. Canada has never won the team crown in 12 previous Canada Cup matches, but Leonard took the individual title twice—in 1956 and 1959.

The South Africans had been 10-to-1 longshots in the tournament, but with their showing Friday they now are 3-to-1 favorites along with the Canadians and the Americans while Spain is 4 to 1.

Waltman, a pudgy player, said all he had been hearing ever since he came to Paris was that the Canada Cup matches would be strictly a Nicklaus-Palmer show. It hasn't turned out that way.

Waltman shrugged off talk that the Americans still would take the top honors and said "no matter how well the Americans are playing, I'm sure we can take them."

Waltman said he had learned a tremendous amount by playing with Player in the Canada Cup.

"The Americans have a great advantage over some others because they have the tremendous ability to relax between shots and maintain their steely concentration when actually making the shot. Gary has got this ability, too. He's helped to build me up mentally.

"There were times when I was going to make a move to score. Gary has emphasized all the time that you must play to win. That's what I'm doing this time."

Yah Just Can't Win, Phil, M'Lad

MONTREAL (CP) — Now it turns out that the different players had collected four assists in one period of National Hockey League play before New York's Phil Goyette performed the feat against Boston last Sunday night.

Hockey historians turned up similar marks by Joe Carveth of Detroit and Phil Watson of Montreal, both in 1944, immediately after the New York-Boston game.

The NHL's publicity office said Friday a check of the records also shows four assists in one period for Buddy O'Connor of Montreal in 1942, Doug Bentley of Chicago in 1943, Bill Mosienko of Chicago in 1945 and Montreal defenceman J. C. Tremblay last season.

Beards' Home Now Car Boneyard

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The baseball park where the Bearded Babe Ruth and his bearded teammates of once drew overflow crowds may soon become a graveyard for automobiles.

The park belongs to the House of David, a religious cult which was started in 1906 and once had 1,500 members. It now has fewer than 100.

The once-famous House of David semi-professional baseball team halted operations in the early 1950s.

The squad, which ran up huge winning records against the best professional and semi-pro teams in the 1920s and 1930s, was led by player-manager Doc Tally — the Bearded Babe Ruth.

Tally pitched more than 400 games during his 29-season career and never lost more than seven games a season.

Tally died in 1950 at the age of 54.

Seniors Get Shaky Start

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, which for the last few years has been teetering precariously on the brink of extinction, got off to a shaky 1963-64 opening on two fronts Friday night.

Two games, involving spanking new entries, were played at Welland and Guelph, while the other, scheduled for Woodstock, was cancelled due to a breakdown in the ice-making machine.

The hometown Burlooks swamped Port Colborne Sailors 9-2 while Oakville Dukes ruined Guelph Regals' home opener by scoring a 5-3 win.

The OHA, which lost its two top teams from last season when Chatham Maroons and Windsor Bulldogs decided to join the International League, has been plagued in the past with cancellations and team dropouts.

Friday night's cancelled game between Galt and Woodstock was rescheduled for Nov. 1 following the ice-machine breakdown.

SET TWO GAMES

Only two weekend games are scheduled. Tonight Guelph travels to Galt and Sunday Welland plays at Oakville.

The Oakville - Guelph game provided a thrilling contest for 2,300 fans as Dukes rallied with four-goals in the third period to gain the victory.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Prince Van B., a five-year-old gelding owned and driven by Clarence Lockhart of Collingwood, set a track record at the Western Fair Raceway Friday night by running the mile in 2:05.8 in a handicap trot. The previous record of 2:06.2 was set two years ago by Wee Irish.

Lockhart bought the gelding for $1,500 after the spring racing season here. So far this season, Prince Van B. has earned $4,562.

Mighty Lady L, driven by owner John Lester of Forest, returned $11.30 to win when she won the secondary feature of the meet, a pace, in 2:06. It was her second consecutive win.

Directors Accept Ford Offer

Bays Lions For $6 Million

DETROIT (AP) — William Clay Ford's offer to buy the Detroit Lions for $6,000,000 was accepted Friday by the National Football League club's board of directors. Final approval is required from the 144 stockholders of the Detroit Football Company.

The Lions' 13 directors voted unanimously to recommend that stockholders accept Ford's proposal. The stockholders are to give their decision at a meeting Nov. 22.

Ford a member of the Ford automotive family, made his offer to the directors in a surprise move Oct. 17. He has been president of the Lions since 1961.

Ford's offer was made before a portentous athletic team.

Ford's terms were that he become sole owner.

On that basis, the club's 144 stockholders would split the $6,000,000 on the basis of their per-share holdings.

There are an estimated 23,000 shares. Each stockholder is limited under the club's bylaws to a maximum of four per cent of the shares. Ford himself owns two per cent.

The current Lions were purchased for $165,000 in 1948 from Detroiter Nelson Fred Mandell of Chicago.

The club has estimated its tangible assets, including cash and stock and bonds, at $1,500,000.

The Lions, with only a 3-4 won-lost record, have been a paying proposition. Stockholders have received a five-per-cent dividend annually since 1953.

DOUBLE'S BIG AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP)—The Aqueduct daily double soared past the $1,000 mark for the second time this week and the fifth time of the New York season Friday when Kitty Quick and Exposure combined for a $1,586.40 return.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Editor

Years ago, when the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada ruled amateur athletes and sports with a mighty fist — and this even included players in the Big Four football union—its annual meetings invariably were explosive. The AAU had tremendous power and it exercised it.

But its hold gradually loosened and now it is boss of such fringe sports as fencing, wrestling and weightlifting, along with track and field, a pastime that has been showing signs in the past couple of years of becoming a big spectator sport in this country. Swimming broke away from the union years ago and rules its own roost.

In recent years the annual get-togethers have been pretty routine. There have been internal squabbles, but nothing really serious.

Next month, the 70th annual meeting will be held in Winnipeg. The three-day affair starts on Thursday, Nov. 7, and a brush-cut young man will be decisively raise a furore. He is Dave Steen, a 21-year-old native of Burnaby, B.C., with great potential as a shot-putter of world class.

CHARGED CHEATING

Steen had some uncomplimentary things to say about the AAU and some of its officials in Maclean's magazine earlier this month. He certainly didn't win much among the union unpaid, who work to keep amateur sport alive in Canada.

The article didn't mention names but quotes Steen as saying he has seen cheating on record forms, judges "witnessing" events they hadn't attended, that track and field is "run by a bunch of old fuds" and "some of the old rot flag-ers." He once lost a Canadian record, he said, because "the head official told me through an alcoholic haze that I had to forfeit my three javelin throws. I'd started to move in the throwing circle."

There were other charges. And the AAU plans to look into the whole thing.

The union has set up a committee to investigate the charges and these will be aired at Winnipeg.

"He may appear at the Winnipeg session, if at all possible," one highly placed official said this week.

"We can only hope he'll be available so that we can find out about all of these charges. This matter is of great concern to the AAU."

The official, who declined use of his name, said "I hope he or hasn't talked himself out of a place on the Olympic team" in Tokyo next October. "It is hard to say what the repercussions will be.

"A person must be more than a good athlete to compete for Canada in such international sports as Olympic Games. He must be a good ambassador for Canada."

Western Hockey

Leo Labine, a colorful character when he toiled in the National Hockey League, is still providing thrills.

The veteran forward potted an overtime goal Friday night to give Los Angeles Blades a 3-4 win over Vancouver Canucks. In other Western Hockey League games Friday afternoon, former senior ace Ken Laufman, scored the winner as Portland Buckaroos dumped Seattle Totems 2-1.

Rookie Maurice Ollebro, playing his first professional game, scored a goal for the winners and Norm Johnson scored two.

The Canucks led 4-1 early in the third period, finally sent it into overtime after Johnson's second goal had pushed the Blades ahead—on a goal by Gord Vertefeuille.

Labine's winner came only 59 seconds after overtime started. Arnie Schmautz with Captain Jim Powers scored four minutes apart in the second period to set up Laufman's winner.

Bears Clip Punchless Clippers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers reached the Calder Cup playoffs in their inaugural American Hockey League season last year by winning 15 of their last 16 games.

At the rate they are going now, the Clippers will be too far behind to pull off a stirring stretch drive.

Baltimore has only one victory and one tie to show for eight starts, after Sunday's 3-2 Friday night to Hershey Bears. The punchless Clippers have scored only 16 goals, for an average of two per game — lowest in the league.

Hershey Bears, Baltimore's bitterest rivals last season, won the contest on Bruce Cline's second-period goal and took over first place in the Eastern Division of the AHL, one point ahead of Providence Reds and Quebec Aces.

Petes Rally, Tie Oshawa

By THE CANADIAN RESS

Peterborough Petes moved into a first-place tie with Toronto Marlboros in the Central Hockey Association Junior A League Friday night, but required a third-period rally to gain a 4-4 tie with Oshawa Generals at Trenton.

Meanwhile, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines Black Hawks blasted the Flyers 6-1 to create a two-way tie for third place.

The Petes found themselves behind 3-0 before eight minutes had elapsed and were forced to struggle all the way.

Bobby Orr, Rod Zaine, Bob Marentette and Bill Little shared the scoring for Oshawa while Peterborough's marksmen were Mike Redmond, Dan Sharp, Ron Naud and Danny Grant.

Captain Larry Mavety and Brian McDonald led the Hawks with two goals while singles went to Dennis Hull and Ken Hodge.

Bill Goldworthy, with the opening goal of the game, was Niagara Falls' scorer.

A full slate of games is scheduled Saturday. Peterborough travels to Montreal for a game against the third-place junior Canadiens while Oshawa has only two points behind the Petes and Toronto.

Oshawa plays the Marlboros in Toronto, Hamilton travels to Kitchener and St. Catharines is host to Niagara Falls.

The Petes, Flyers and Generals all have 20 points, Kitchener follows with two and Hamilton is in last place with one point.

The Saints came marching in Friday night in the Central Professional Hockey League.

St. Paul Rangers gained a piece of first place and St. Louis Braves scored their first win in eight games.

Rangers moved into a tie with undefeated Omaha by scoring a 5-3 victory over third-place Minneapolis Braves 4-1, while Braves took over fourth place by virtue of Indianapolis Capitols into the cellar with a 3-1 triumph over the Capitols.

Paul Gaetz, Rangers' top marksmen with two goals while Bob Cunningham and Gary Hall split singles. Bill Robbins got the lone goal for Bruins.

Braves exploded for three goals in the last three minutes in the third period at St. Louis.

Al Caron scored twice to spearhead the losers. Roger Lafreniere missed on a penalty shot for Indianapolis.

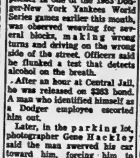
Podres Faces Drunk Charges



LOS ANGELES (AP)—Pitcher Johnny Podres of Los Angeles Dodgers, out with exotic dancer Tania Dawn in the early hours of the morning, was charged Friday with drunken driving. After he was booked and released, newspaper men complained the man who drove him away almost ran them down.

Police said Podres, winning pitcher in one of the 1963 Dodger-New York Yankees World Series games earlier this month, was observed weaving for several blocks, making wrong turns and driving on the wrong side of the street. Officers said he flunked a test that detects alcohol on the breath.

After an hour at Central Jail, he was released on $250 bond. A man who identified himself as a Dodger employee escorted him out.

Later, in the parking lot, photographer Gene Harley said the man swerved his car toward him, forcing him to jump behind a post to avoid being hit. Another photographer said his car was narrowly missed.

AT THE BELLE—Alec Guinness as he appears in "Lawrence of Arabia," shooting over Libby Glenn on Thursday at the Belle Theatre. Also starring are Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Jose Ferrer, Anthony Quayle, Claude Rains and Arthur Kennedy. Alec O'Toole plays Lawrence in the youth scenes in super Panavision Technicolor.

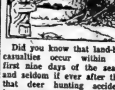
No Excuse for Gun Accidents

By Richard Alden Knight

This fall, you will read one of the usual reports in your daily paper: Father of Two Injured in Hunting Accident. Without reading past the headline, you immediately know the following facts about the shooter, the man who lowered the boom.



To begin with, he was male, had a hunting licence and was over 20 years old. He had been hunting in excess of three years and on the day of the accident, he was not under the influence of alcohol or drugs. He and his nearby-departed friend were hunting a small game and the accident occurred between the hours of 1.30 - 4.30 in the afternoon. The weapon used was a shotgun and its discharge was unintentional. The accident happened on a day when conditions were absolutely clear and the victim was standing from 11-50 yards from the shooter. Chances are 1 in 5 that the victim will not survive.

NO EXCUSE WHATSOEVER

Several years ago, I was deer hunting with a group in a mountain area. We had slogged through a heavy swamp and had returned to our truck to go elsewhere. We stood by the truck waiting for the last member of the party to arrive. When he finally showed up, he was in a hurry. Explaining his tardiness, he began levering rounds out of his carbine while carefully pointing it at the ground. The second levering action discharged the weapon and the heavy slug into the ice and dirt about 14 inches from my toes.

There was a stiff silence for an instant and then this man's best friend, who happened to be with the party, cleared his throat, reached over and took the rifle, and then slapped his buddy flush across the mouth with the back of his hand. Without a word, he walked over to the ditch, removed the remainder of the shells and then returned the empty weapon to his crushed companion without comment. What could have happened was averted only by chance rather than good judgment.

Statistics reveal far more than assumption. Did you know that opening day is responsible for 41 per cent of the land bird casualties, 24 per cent of the deer casualties, 21 per cent of other big game casualties, 20 per cent of the waterfowl casualties and yet only 15 per cent of the small game casualties? In actuality, you are safer hunting rabbits on opening day than you are going pheasant shooting!

Did you know that land-bird casualties occur within the first nine days of the season but that deer hunting accidents happen during the first ten days and other big game accidents within the first 15 days? Waterfowl casualties happen in the first 25 days of the season, but the biggest statistic of them all, small game hunting (40 per cent of the overall casualties in the nation) has its accidents spread out over the first 48 days of the season.

PERMISSIVE ATTITUDE

If we were to attempt to pinpoint the one thing which engenders the tragic sequence of events preceding a hunting accident, it would have to be the permissive attitude far too many of us adopt about lack of scrupulous gun manners within our own shooting circles. We tend to forgive an errant muzzle or a careless move without comment. By doing this, we do not strike at the heart of the hunting accident . . . the man with the gun in his hand who unthinkingly is walking a one-way street towards trouble.

There is a gun writer of my acquaintance who should never be allowed to pick up a weapon. Rather than be taken to serious task for his complete disregard of life and limb of others as well as himself, he is tolerated, watched and accepted. I shot with this gentleman only once, told him that he was a blithering idiot and should never be allowed in the field and have never shot with him since. Daily, I expect to see the news story about him. It hasn't happened yet, but it will.

Perhaps the most careful group in the world of shooting and shooters are the competitive shots. Put a group on a trap or skeet field, on a small or big bore range or on a handgun course and they become the most strict adherents to the principles of gun handling safety in existence today. To be sure, these same men off by themselves do get careless at times, but nothing can instill shooting manners and gun handling into a gunner faster.

DON'T OVERLOOK THE OBVIOUS

This same principle should apply to every hunting party in this country. We all know that liquor and guns do not mix, yet we allow or have allowed a member of the party to drink during the course of a day afield. We all know that a mumie should never cross a party, loaded or empty, at any time, but we still allow it to happen within our own group without comment. If we continue to overlook the obvious, the unforeseen should come as no surprise.

Earlier, I made the statement that there is no excuse for a hunting accident. There is not! If your safety was knocked off in the brush, it happened because you were not checking it constantly for condition. If a twig ragged your trigger in the process and the gun did discharge, it should have gone off harmlessly pointed away from the party. Gun malfunctions, a rarity indeed in these days of quality control, should never be an excuse. The plain and simple fact is that no weapon is dangerous until it is pointed at someone. Then it becomes lethal!

Safety discipline has to begin somewhere. What better spot than with you and your shooting companions this season? Stop being passive on gun mismanagement and start living safely in the field. That next mistake could be your last one!

Much Human Travail Occupies Network Hours

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This may well go down in history as U.S. television's season of agony. Never within the memory of this viewer has so much human travail occupied the nighttime network hours. It's enough to make the afternoon soap operas picket in protest.

Let's take an average recent week.

Saturday night The Defenders can always be counted on for humans in trouble — this time an American businessman in a Russian prison.

Sunday starts with Lassie's heart - tug; June Lockhart's truck was teetering over a precipice.

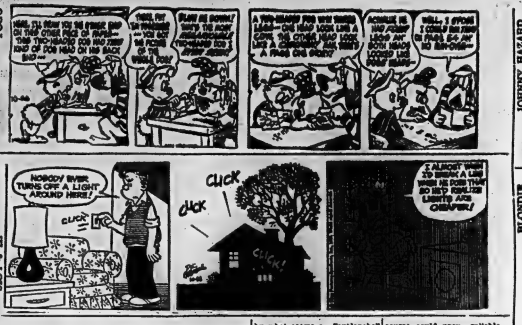
Monday brings us East Side, West Side, one of the most agony-minded of the newcomers.

HITS JACKPOT

Tuesday hit the jackpot with a German prison camp escape on Combat and a cheating science student on Mr. Novak.

Wednesday offered a CBS report on funerals, an ex-convict trying to go straight on The Virginian, a dying boy whose father wouldn't allow an operation on Ben Casey.

Thursday had Dr. Kildare, of course, with its operating room tension and a doctor whose dedication to duty ruins his life.



Friday seems to be the night for murder, though sometimes in a light-hearted way.

Agony is not new to television, but never has it been offered with so much variation and profusion.

KIDNAPS GIRL

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A five-year-old girl was abducted from her mother's car here Friday night by a man who dragged her to his auto and sped away. The girl, Michelle Moran, of nearby East Lansing, had been left in the family car with her brother, Frank, 8, in a shopping centre parking lot by their mother, Mrs. Donna Moran.

THIS BY-LAW shall come into force and effect on the 21st day of October, 1963 and a true copy shall be forwarded forthwith to the Ontario Intelligencer as the City Council's official newspaper.

70 Charged With Failing To Buy Tags

CAMPBELLFORD—A total of more than 70 persons charged with failing to obtain 1963 tags for dogs they own or harbor have settled their cases here during the past few weeks.

The charges were laid under the town's controversial dog by-law. Each person was fined $5. and $3. costs and were told to obtain the dog tag.

Appearing as medical doctor, T. K. Hackett appeared before magistrate R. B. Baxter in answer to a summons under the by-law charging he had failed to obtain a tag for his St. Bernard. Dr. Hackett said he was registering an objection to bring to the attention of the court and the public the unfairness of the by-law, Saying he did not purchase a tag. Doctor Hackett agreed with the magistrate that he should enter a plea of guilty, and said "As you have already pleaded for me, it remains only for me to explain why I am here", which he proceeded to do.

Dr. Hackett said that under the by-law, the town was quite lenient with itself in that the by-law stated an owner or harborer will obtain a dog tag while the town may provide a dog catcher and a pound in which dogs are to be kept, when picked up for running at large during certain times of the year.

He said the purchase of a tag for a dog represented a tax on dogs, and that as a dog lover felt dog owners were being discriminated against in that the town did not require taxes to be paid on cats or canaries or other pets.

He stated that citizens had a right to expect and did in fact receive police protection for protection for taxes they paid, but such was not the case under the dog by-law, merely the presented a penalty persons must pay.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter, after listening to Dr. Hackett said that he could only judge the case according to the terms of the by-law, and as he admitted he did not purchase a tag for his pet, he was fined the usual $5. and $3. costs.

Tells of Life With Brigade In Europe

CAMPBELLFORD — At the regular meeting of the Lions club here Wednesday, Captain William Rothwell of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and principal of Bridge Street public school, gave an addressed the members, telling them about life with the Canadian Brigade in Europe.

Captain Rothwell spent the past summer attached to the Canadian Brigade as one of eight Canadians selected to put on operation and supervise a Community Recreational Program for dependants of Canadian servicemen stationed in Germany.

Mr. Rothwell showed color slides of areas in which the Brigade is stationed, as well as pictures of the Rhineland, Holland, Paris and Switzerland. The talk was rich with anecdotes on social customs and historical backgrounds of the places he visited.

Lion Leith Cree introduced the speaker. He was thanked by Collin Collins.

Belinda Is First Prize In Raffle - - Father Objects

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter Belinda who is 18 belongs to a club. There are 28 members, all high school girls between 15 and 18 years of age. They do some interesting things and raise money for good causes. My husband and I always thought it was a worthwhile group.

Last night our daughter told us that they are planning a raffle. The tickets will sell for 50c apiece. The first prize is a date with Belinda — all expenses paid. My husband was absolutely horrified. He said we daughter of his is going to sell her time like a you-know-what. Frankly, I thought it was a rather ingenious idea and saw nothing wrong with it.

Belinda was terribly disappointed. She thought it was a high honor to have been selected as the "prize." We have decided to leave it up to you. Is it immoral as my husband says? Or is he being square and old-fashioned as my daughter says? — TWO AGAINST ONE.

DEAR MOTHER — Sorry dear, but I just evened the odds. Novel? Yes. But speaking strictly as a mother I wouldn't want my daughter raffled off as if she were a hewpie doll at a tentshow. Since the girls seem to be so full of novel ideas, let them think of something else.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A few days ago one of the women in the office mentioned that she had a fairly expensive handbag which she had carried only a few times. She recently married and her husband doesn't like the bag. She asked if I could use it and I suggested that she bring it in and I'd see.

This morning she brought the bag in and I liked it. I thanked her warmly for her generosity and told her I appreciated her thinking of me. She then said, "I didn't mean it as a gift. I had in mind selling it to you." We were both terribly embarrassed and I told her I didn't wish to buy it.

All my life I've been giving away clothes. I wouldn't dream of selling anything to a friend. Will you please tell me if I am stupid or if she is just too commercial to be considered a friend? Thank you. — BAGLESS.

DEAR BAGLESS — Generally speaking it's a bum idea to sell used articles to a friend. Rarely do both parties feel they made a good deal.

In this instance the girl should have made it clear from the outset that she wanted to sell the bag. Her failure to do this put you in a difficult position and it didn't do much for the friendship.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was very much interested in the letter signed, "Keeper Of The Closet Keys." This woman wanted to know if she should tell her grown children that their father who had been dead 15 years was really a scoundrel, rotten to the core, and not the fine man she had taught them to believe he was.

Dear Ann, I'm married. My husband has an affair with some joker who promised to marry her "when he retires" in 1968. Her children did not approve of her traveling with this man since they are not yet married. Her attitude was, "Why should they criticize me when I protected their father's reputation for so many years? I'm an angel compared with what he was."

I have some news for the foolish woman. Discrediting her dead husband in the eyes of his children won't make her look one bit better. And, furthermore, this guy won't marry her in 1968 or 1978 either. — WISER NOW.

DEAR NOW — Thanks for writing. I hope "Keeper" sees your letter. She should throw away those keys in the lake and forget where that door is.

Do you lack self-confidence . . . have trouble making friends? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 30c in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ASK IF DEAL MADE

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and several Conservative backbenchers peppered the government with questions Friday on whether they trustees had made a deal to keep Mr. Banks in power in return for an end to the illegal work stoppage.

Mr. MacEachen said he had no knowledge of what went on between the trustees and the union chief.

In Vancouver, Mr. Justice Dryer angrily denied that any bargain had been made with Mr. Banks to get the walkout ended. The trustees had made it clear, he said, that if Mr. Banks didn't end the illegal strike, "we would."

Banks had earlier told union members that terms had been worked out for the return to work of SIU men, including a guarantee that the trustees would not interfere with the SIU's internal affairs.

"There was no bargain made at all," repeated Mr. Justice Dryer.

trustees flew to their homes Friday for weekend rests after getting shipping in Canada back on smooth water following a conference Thursday with Hal Banks, head of the SIU in Canada.

Mr. Justice Victor L. Dryer of Vancouver, Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal and Charles Millard of Toronto will return to Ottawa early next week to begin running the SIU and from other unions as instructed by Parliament.

The trustees have no power in U.S. ports.

But in Canada, they have almost absolute authority over the internal operations of the SIU, the Canadian Maritime Union, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the National Association of Marine Engineers and 13 marine locals of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers. Realtor Offers Some Advice About Your Retirement Home

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I am a real estate broker, dealing primarily in homes. I would like to do my Boy Scout deed for the day by giving some advice to the retired man who owns a home and a wife. . ."

With the beginning, he counseled off five areas of home ownership where a husband can take positive action and thus eliminate some grave hazards for his wife when and if she is ever left alone to cope with a house.

1. Keep the house in repair. "This," according to the real estate man, "is vital if the husband wants to assure that his widow will have a stable home. More than any other one thing, the need for repairs is causing widows to lose their homes, and hardly a month passes that I'm not called in to sell a place and liquidate the problem. In part it is the cost of the repairs, which the widow can't afford. In part, it is the difficulty of getting repairmen. But mainly it is the absence of a man around the house. When the loose planks and worn washers and such, that a husband handles, are added to the cranky furnace and the rotting roof, the widow becomes so overwhelmed that she sells the house for whatever she can get and flees. . ."

ELIMINATE MORTGAGE

2. Eliminate the mortgage, if there still is one. "Some mortgages are running at 5 percent interest, and are too expensive for a man's pension and certainly, to expensive for a widow's mite if he goes. Also, it doesn't make sense for a man to be sitting on a big cash value in his paid-up life insurance policies, getting 3 percent interest, or hoarding savings at 4 percent, when he's paying 6 percent for a mortgage."

Make sure the home is located in a spot where an older woman would not be afraid to live alone — if she must — and where she can manage life without a car. "I am selling a good many homes for widows," the broker said, "because they no longer feel safe, and because they grow afraid to drive and have no way to get groceries."

4. Determine that the neighborhood where the home is located will be reasonably stable for the lifetime of the widow, say until age 75 or so. "I find," said the broker, "that many of the people now retiring moved into their homes 30 to 35 years ago. In that time a neighborhood often becomes ripe for change."

5. Cut the fat out of the upkeep — and if you can't, move. "Many men, by retirement time, have developed an expensive upkeep problem on their homes — big lawns that require hired help, paint job every three years, air conditioning, a neighborhood that requires big donations, good care and fine clothes, and an address that calls for high taxes." Again, said the broker, these things are too much for a pension and often impossible for the widow later.

The broker thought a home was about the finest thing a man could retire with.

"You can sell it," he said. "And you must remember that a home held for 20 years can be in a neighborhood that is changing to commercial use as well as to slums. It may bring a handsome price.

CAN GET CASH

"You can sell it for cash and walk out with the money, or even if it remains residential. At age 65 nobody should sell a house on contract or by any other long-term deal. Anybody patient enough to wait will eventually get a buyer with enough stability to go get a mortgage and swing the deal for cash.

"You can sell the house, with its 1927 kitchen and 1890 bath-room, and move into some charming little doll houses now. Great progress has been made in homes, especially small ones for retired couples. With convenience and pleasure of living many 65-year-olds never dreamed of. Naturally the retired man is going to sell his old home for about 30 percent less than he thinks. But the doll house may cost 20 percent less than that. The doll house, for the older couple, must be convenient to shops and such, and the older community will be cheaper in taxes than the new subdivision.

"Of course, any retired couple who sells, then buys, and then moves must know in advance it all costs money — maybe $500 to $1000 even if the move is made in the same city. The moving van, lawyer's fees, new curtains and carpeting, a better lawn, and that sort of thing. . ."

Finally, the real estate broker wanted to tell retired people that there are real estate agencies in almost every city that specialize in rentals. One of those, he thought, would always be able to rent your old home out, for a fair monthly payment, in case you want to test out sunshine country for a year or see what a downtown apartment would be like for a while.

MOROCCANS CUT DEEP INTO ALGERIA

Two U.S. Unions Drive Canadian Ship Back Home

SIU Picketers Banded, But Longshoremen Quit

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian grain carrier J. N. McWatters moved to more hospitable home waters Sunday after longshoremen at Superior Wis., refused to complete the job of filling her holds.

The ship was a victim of a union protest against the Canadian government's newly - imposed trusteeship over five Canadian maritime unions, including the Seafarers' International Union, a branch of the SIU of North America (AFL-CIO).

The McWatters, owned by Scott Misener Steamships Limited of Port Colborne, Ont., docked in Port Arthur, Ont., to add another 20,000 tons of grain to the 5,000 the Superior longshoremen placed in her holds before stopping loading in symphony with the SIU.

The SIU had picketed the McWatters at Superior after her arrival Saturday but stopped by a temporary injunction Friday night.

The next morning, longshoremen reported for duty, but refused to continue loading what they described as a "hot ship."

In Duluth, Minn., SIU agent Stanley McCormick said the longshoremen's refusal to work the Canadian ship was a protest against the Canadian government trusteeship.

TO LAST INDEFINITELY

In Detroit, Al Tanner, vice-president of the SIU of North America, said the SIU program of picketing Canadian ships would last "indefinitely." He said the trusteeship is a "threat to free trade unionism."

He said the SIU would use picket boats and patrol docks to make known to other unions the SIU's objections to the trusteeship.

In Chicago, grain handlers continued to refuse to load the John Ericsson, owned by Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto. The SIU has been engaged in a long feud with Upper Lakes and the Lake Carriers and Canadian Maritime Union (CLC) unions for its ships last year in place of SIU sailors.

REFUSE TO LOAD

The Ericsson, a 67-year-old ship, has been trying to get a load of grain at Chicago since early October, but grain trimmers have consistently refused to load her despite court actions, fines and threats of new and larger fines.

The SIU planned to picket a Canadian ship in Buffalo today.

A spokesman for the SIU said

PC's Will Meet In Spring

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) —The Progressive Conservative party intends to take a hard look at basic Canadian problems and decide how they can best be met by small "c" conservative policies.

The policy research project, with headquarters in Ottawa and workers in each province, is being established in preparation for the next federal election —whenever it comes—and for the long-range future of the party.

Establishment of the project was announced Sunday by Egan Chambers of Montreal, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, after a two-day executive meeting here.

He also announced that the party's next annual meeting will be held here Feb. 3-5. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said he expects the meeting, which 1,500 accredited delegates and as many more guests and observers, will give him a fresh vote of confidence as party leader.

The date could be accentained, a small dissident group in the closed meeting made no move to take Mr. Diefenbaker in the executive session. Sitting at the back of the conference hall, two of them joined in the standing ovation which greeted the leader's 90-minute speech.

APPOINTS MEMBERS

The meeting appointed most members of a 21-man resolutions committee which will meet a month before the annual meeting to correlate policy resolutions sent in by constituency organizations. Fourteen of the members represent the provinces and northern territories and the other seven—to be appointed within the next few days—will represent the executive and parliamentary group of MPs and Senators.

Though the incomplete list was not made public, party officials said the complexion of the new resolutions committee will be changed from the one which prepared for the last annual meeting, prior to this spring's general election, it headed off an oust-Diefenbaker movement and attempted to resolve bitter controversy over Canadian acquisition of nuclear weapons.

Establishment of the policy research project was seen as a move to give the party a fresh approach to basic Conservative party philosophy. Delegates said Conservatism has to be made more dynamic without becoming tied to rigid rules.

The executive also heard reports from senior officers of the party, including one from Commons House Leader Gordon Churchill following a study of the organization of the British Conservative party.

Twinkle Twinkle Teeny Star Now We Know What You Are

LONDON (AP)—Brash British teen-agers have started wearing stars—a new system of advertising, just how far they'll go in their sex life.

A one-star girl or boy won't even neck. A five-star wearer will stop at nothing.

Discovering the fade out two weeks ago at the big railway engineering town of Swindon, it reported to be spreading.

Said three-star Jane Phillips, 19:

"It's a good idea. Boys who wear three stars like I do seem to get on well with me. I don't feel let down when I date a three-star boy."

Commented four-star Graham Tanner, 20:

"I don't date girls with more than two stars than I have. Courting is now a real pleasure. Both the girl I date and I know exactly where we stand. You don't hurt anybody's feelings this way."

A social worker who spends much time with young people —and who asked not to be identified by name—said:

"They're wearing these stars all right. But I've found nobody yet modest enough to admit to a long, promiscuous enough to wear five."

The teen-agers even proposed a system to explain the system:

One star—must ask me. Two star—ah, ah. Three star— ha, ha, ha. Four star—steady too far. Five star—stop the car.

A commentator in London's Daily Sketch wrote:

"Their self - imposed star system may sound crude, but is it not exactly what most parents demand of their children when they ask them questions?"

Sprinkling of Rain Has Little Effect on Parched Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A meagre sprinkling of rain over the weekend failed to dampen Ontario's drought-ravaged forest and farmlands, parched from record high temperatures during the last eight weeks.

Hunters in areas not closed to woods travel went without smoking. But 15 new fires sprang up in other parts of the province, bringing the total to 60.

Weather experts see no signs that end to the province's worst drought in 63 years although thunderstorms are a possibility today and Tuesday. It probably be as light as the rain that fell during the weekend, it was predicted.

A long-range weather prediction indicates the drought may last for at least two more weeks.

Windsor had a high of 81 Saturday, the highest recorded in the province.

The weather office reported light showers at Simcoe and Sudbury early Sunday and at Kapuskasing later in the evening.

Special prayer services were held Sunday in rural churches as hundreds of thousands of alons of water were hauled to drought-stricken farmers.

Warden McCormick, president of the Essex County Milk Producers' Association, said the drought had created a critical situation.

He said Essex milk prices are producing enough milk for the milk trade but dairies soon will have to start importing milk for ice cream and other dairy products.

But Alphonse Lajeunesse, president of Purity Dairies Limited, Windsor, said that although the drought has reduced the milk supply slightly the situation is far from critical.

55 South African Miners Trapped in 5,000-Foot Fall

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters)—A freak mining accident, today cost one-miner his life and 75 others were facing through two elevator shafts in one of the world's deepest mines.

Four wire cables snapped, turning the two elevator cages carrying 75 miners.

Emergency brakes stopped one cage at the 5,000-foot level the other at the 5,000-foot level in the shafts which go more than 8,000 feet below the earth's surface.

Rescuers tried to free 35 men still trapped in the 5,000-foot level in the Western Deep Level gold mine, 50 miles west of here.

The loose cable whipped into the winding tower where each miner received fatal injuries from flying debris.

The 39 men in the cage at the 1,000-foot level were uninjured. Rescue teams unlocked the cage in the shaft and the men were able to get out at an underground "station."

"Mine teams are now in the cage and trying to get in touch with the men in the other cage," a spokesman said.

Three Italian Seamen Die Of Fumes Aboard Tanker

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP) —Three Italian seamen were found dead aboard an oil tanker early today, two of them as they tried to rescue their shipmate.

Their bodies were found by crew members wearing oxygen masks who entered a coffer dam between two holds on the East Bear in search for them.

Dead are boatswain Nazo Antonino, about 60; chief fireman Gildo Cira, 45, and fireman Ederi Guiseppe, 25.

Capt. Liborio Teresi said Antonio had been given instruction to remove a hatch over the coffer dam to release gases inside it as workmen could repair a faulty valve.

He said Antonio must have disobeyed orders and entered the coffer dam. When he did not reappear, Ciro and Guiseppe went after him. They did not return.

It took crew members using a sling more than half an hour to remove the bodies from the 10-foot under the deck.

The East River, owned by the International Navigation Corporation, anchored in Lake Erie two miles off this port 24 miles southeast of London Sunday night and started discharging 5,300,000 gallons of fuel oil. Barges shuttled the oil ashore to Sterling Fuels Limited storage tanks.

MAKE 10TH ARREST

LONDON (AP)—Police have announced the arrest of a 19th person in connection with last August's great mail train robbery. He was identified as Robert Welch, 34, a London night club owner.

Commons To Hear Members

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons, encouraged by the government, to clean up a tangled history of financial procrastination, observes the time-honored custom of hearing grievances before voting tax money again today.

For the fourth time this session, the government will move a pro forma motion which permits the opposition to raise any subject it wishes—so long as it hasn't already been dealt with this session. Any amending motion moved by the opposition automatically becomes a non-confidence motion.

The rules of the Canadian Commons require the government to give all such opportunities for so-called supply debates each session. The government intend to call the other two one week and two weeks from today began as this part of the session's work by mid-November.

Some Conservative MPs are unhappy with the government's plan to accelerate study of the government's spending program.

SEE DANGER

They see a danger in exhausting the opportunities for raising non-confidence motions, leaving them without a chance to initiate a debate later in the session when—they secretly hope—something really damaging to the government's image may develop.

The government is apparently hoping that the entire spending program can be approved before Christmas. If this is done, even though the whole of the legislative program is not finished by then, it is considered likely the government will then start 1964 with a new legislative session.

This would entail a new legislative program outlined in a speech from the throne which could be written to attract votes for Prime Minister Pearson's government if a general election is called early in the new year.

Tiny Droplets Blamed for Air Pollution

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Microscopic droplets in the haze human beings exhale are being blamed as an unsuspected source of air pollution.

Dr. Alexander Goetz of the California Institute of Technology said Sunday that the droplets, found even in charcoal-filled gas masks in test rooms, are believed to be irritating, and potentially to persons with respiratory troubles.

Goetz, a physicist, is working with Dr. Oscar J. Balchum of the University of Southern California department of medicine in a U.S. Public Health Service study of "clean air" rooms in hospitals.

Open Peace Talks In Effort To Settle Dispute

No Intention to Take Iron Centre by Arms

MARRAKECH, Morocco (AP)— The Moroccan government announced today that its troops are seven miles from the iron ore centre of Tindouf in the Algerian-controlled Sahara.

The announcement by Information Minister Abdel Hadi Boutaleb indicated the Moroccan Army troops have penetrated deep into the territory contested by the two countries. According to most international maps, Tindouf is some 80 miles inside the Algerian Sahara.

"Our troops are not pushing on," Boutaleb said. "All I can tell you is that they are there."

Asked whether the Moroccans were launching an offensive to seize Tindouf on the eve of Algerian power talks at Bamako, Mali, Boutaleb replied:

"We have no intention of taking Tindouf by arms but by negotiations."

Morocco's King Hassan II and Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella are scheduled to meet Tuesday in Bamako in a last effort to settle the border dispute.

The leaders of the warring North African neighbors will be joined in Bamako, the Mali capital, by Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Modibo Keita of Mali in the four - power conference to seek an end to the fighting that the attitudes of both sides left little hope for a quick settlement.

Ben Bella was expected to demand unconditional withdrawal of the Moroccans from the disputed frontier. Moroccan officials said there would be no yielding of land the kingdom considers part of its national heritage.

Moroccan infantry units Sunday chased the remnants of three Algerian battalions from Hassi Beida, a muddy water hole clustered by palm trees north of the ore - rich Tindouf Valley. Two U.S. television teams at the front confirmed the Moroccan victory.

FIND SOVIET ARMS

Moroccan headquarters said 60 Algerians were killed and 76 were captured. Moroccans also claimed they captured 20 weapons, mostly of Soviet and Czech origin.

The Algerians, who had borne four days of attack, apparently withdrew to Timlouchy, 20 miles to the south.

The Moroccans said they expected the Algerians to attempt a counter-attack next week.

Algeria was bolstered by a shipment of Soviet-made arms from Cuba and the imminent arrival of an Egyptian paratrooper unit withdrawn from Yemen by Ben Bella's ally, President Gamal Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Fourth Man Seeks Home In Canada

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A fourth East German seaman has jumped his ship in port here to ask for political asylum, it was learned today.

The young man, whose identity was not available, left the East German factory fishing ship Weimar today and asked for asylum.

He joins Hans Dost, 19, Erica Asch, 28, and Wolfgang Raedel, 19, all of whom have left the factory ship Bertolt Brecht in the last few days.

Miss Asch, an assistant cook on the ship, left Saturday night and has been transferred to immigration department offices in Halifax, officials here said.

Also in Halifax is Raedel who was taken off the Brecht Thursday by the RCMP after his attempt to seek asylum Oct. 21 failed when four other crew members dragged him back aboard the ship before the RCMP could get to him.

SEEK ASYLUM

Dost, admitted today by immigration officials, is still in custody here. He walked into a city police station Sunday night to ask for asylum. Miss Asch and Dost want asylum in Canada. Raedel is seeking asylum in West Germany and he too will probably be transferred in Halifax in the next day or two to await a decision on his application.

Weston Opens Trading Stamp War in Britain

LONDON (CP) — Canadian tycoon Garfield Weston today unleashed a trading stamp war in Britain—earlier and on a bigger scale than he had promised.

Signalling a massive battle launched by Sainsburys, leading trading stamper of the American firm Sperry and Hutchinson across 353 stores of Weston's Dicoa holding company, including Fine Fare supermarkets.

The S and H company—which claims to issue more stamps than the U.S. post office—described the move as the biggest single action in trading stamp history. It said bigger chains issue stamps in North America, but never had so large a number of stores began to use them at once.

Rescue May Come Wednesday

3 West German Miners Report They Are Still Fit and Well

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP) — Three West German miners trapped for more than 36 hours in a flooded iron mine reportedly reported today they are fit and well.

The miners reported to the surface through a communication shaft bored 250 feet down to the air pocket in which they were enclosed by water.

It will be at least Wednesday before a second shaft, wide enough to bring them up can be completed, rescue officials said.

During the night rescuers offered the men a deck of playing cards. But they declined the offer, explaining that only two of the three were card players.

Reject Diem's Itinerary

UN Mission to South Viet Nam Plans to Go Where It Pleases

SAIGON (AP)—The UN mission to South Viet Nam discarded its restricted government itinerary today in an attempt to counter the Diem regime's efforts to keep opposition Buddhists from the fact-finders.

The UN team announced it would decide for itself who it will see in its investigation of Buddhist charges of government persecution.

Since its arrival last Thursday, the UN mission has been briefed by President Ngo Dinh Diem and his powerful brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, and pro-government Buddhist leaders. The government schedule has given the UN investigators almost no opportunity to talk with opposition Buddhists or any opposition political group.

The diplomats decided to break from the tour-like schedule arranged by the government just as another Buddhist monk burned himself to death in front of the Roman Catholic Cathedral Sunday. It was the seventh Buddhist suicide by fire since June, and it was carried out to dramatize the Buddhist charges during the visit by the UN team.

Catching government police off guard, the monk arrived by motorcycle, poured gasoline on himself and lit a match. A crowd of about 100 persons gathered around the flaming figure.

Some prostrated themselves and recited Buddhist prayers, while others blocked police trying to extinguish the flames.

As the fire enveloped him, the monk bowed and raised his arms in prayer. He was dead in three minutes.

Buddhist sources predicted more suicides to protest what they called repressions by the government.

Copies of a letter purportedly written by a monk circulated in Saigon. It said the "Catholic government" was trying to wipe out Buddhism.

The letter called on Diem to release all imprisoned Buddhist religious leaders and laymen, to end its campaign of terror and to abandon all government-front organizations aimed at concealing religious persecution.

De Paur Chorus Enchants Music Lovers of City With "Songs of New Nations"

By HARRY MULHALL

Some of the oldest melodies and rhythms on record blossomed as new sounds in music for Belleville concertgoers Saturday night.

They came by way of the De Paur Chorus as the Community Concert Association ended a new season here.

Grouped together under the collective title "Songs of New Nations" the cycle saluted the song lore of those East African regions which have now emerged—in the western appreciation of the term—as independent countries.

However, as conductor Leonard De Paur's program notes pointed out: "These are 'New Nations' only the context of the 20th century. The history of these countries, and the songs which often recorded, extend back as much as 1,500 years in Africa . . ."

Mr. De Paur's research into this music has now brought it to light as important, fresh material for the concert palate. For most Westerners this musical region is still a vast, unexplored continent, albeit the fact these harmonies were the roots of musical culture the Negro brought to the Americas and the Caribbean.

The ready warmth with which a Belleville audience greeted this music Saturday night shows further evidence of a shrinking world and another welcome breakthrough in the sound barrier.

A WIDE RANGE

The group of "new" songs selected by Mr. De Paur for presentation here ranged from majesty to comedy.

The audience's attention — which thereafter remained undivided — was instantly captured by the full, purposeful tones of a 12th century Ashanti war chant "One Tief." Even on the concert stage one still catches the spirit of the melody's forceful dedication. This is strikingly borne out, perhaps, by the fact it has now become a patriotic rallying cry for modern Ghanaians.

For absolute contrast, Mr. De Paur later in the program introduced his audience to what must surely be one of the most haunting of folk melodies in any field, a repertoire: a lullaby of Nigeria's Yoruba tribe. "Ye Ke Omo Mi."

Ranging a solo melody above a fleece-toned obbligato (the latter accompaniment also was magical, in its simplicity.

The contrapuntals and clashing rhythms of African lore were also levelled at the audience with the chorus making significant use of the least number of props — three tribal drums.

One such presentation that instantly captured the imagination was a "percussion" of the Congo Republic's Kasai tribe.

Almost half of the "new" songs had to be scrubbed from the program, due, as Mr. De Paur apologetically explained, to "lack of preparation."

LEFT WANTING MORE

There was little doubt, his audience was equally sorry and might have foregone several other items on the evening's list for the opportunity of hearing more.

But, to leave them wanting more, is, of course, the secret of successful public presentation.

And Mr. De Paur as one of the most successful choral masters in contemporary concert work, left it at that.

The calypso Haitian songs also thoughtfully insinuating the audience into the concert mood were followed by showing into what the tribal roots blossomed when crossed with European lore in several of later centuries.

Calypsos from the West Indies, the gang and prison chants, Negro carols and spirituals were countered next other in timbre and rhythm. Outstanding here were the beautiful settings of George Marshall.

SHOWED VERSATILITY

The opening and concluding sections of the evening's program were devoted to a careful selection of works designed to show the disciplined versatility of the ensemble.

Mr. De Paur began the session on a traditional note with Brahms Soldatenlieder, then snapped the concertgoers upright with a perky setting by James Cohn of Odgen Nash's "One From One Leaves Two."

Discipline and control is one of the De Paur stamps, and it early demonstrated with the rendering of Gershwin's "The Demon of the Gibbet." It was again effective in the more mystical mood of the Credo by the Russian Gretchaninoff, toward the end of the program.

However, for local music lovers at Saturday's opening of the new concert series Mr. De Paur's return will be memorable for his collection of East African song lore. They may be a long time on tribal record. But the sooner these melodies are found on LP's, the better.

New Technique In Teaching, Reading Told

Among other things, reading is a thinking process stated Mrs. Rea Jewell at the Fall meeting of the Quinte Chapter, International Reading Association. In order to help students between 7 and 8 to improve in reading he has been using a multi-level reading laboratory with excellent results. On the average, his students are able to raise their skills in reading by two full grades and both spelling and arithmetic results have improved.

The laboratory is a box containing four different types of literature — one hundred and fifty individual stories ranging in difficulty from grade three to grade twelve and having questions on each story; cards that give the answers so that each student may mark his work; cards with a few paragraphs on each followed by questions (reading time three minutes) and booklets with the correct answers. Special record sheets are completed and kept by the student and mistakes are discussed individually with the teacher.

The laboratory was developed over a period of six years in the United States and the stories and paragraphs have a high interest level and contain many fields, including science and history. Students not only work at their own level but are able to mark answers immediately and to compete with themselves. Mr. Jewell allowed students who show mastery of two successive stories to move up into a higher grade level — one girl is now reading grade 11 material.

Students evaluate their own strengths and weaknesses and after a three month period are ready to benefit more fully from a well planned reading program. Specific skills results may include outlining, word mastery, following directions, summarizing and remembering. There is a definite procedure for using the stories in the laboratory — survey, question, read, review and recite.

Many questions were answered by Mr. Jewell at the conclusion of his interesting and informative talk. The meeting was introduced by Mr. Bernard Wright and thanked by Mr. Harold Ward. Mrs. Arthur Bradford presided and earlier in the meeting a vote of thanks to the retiring treasurer, Mrs. H. Cantin, was passed unanimously. Refreshments were served by a group under the direction of Miss Olive Delaney. The next meeting will be held in January . . . also at the Corby Public Library.

50th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

TRENTON — Completely overwhelmed when 60 relatives and neighbors called out "surprise," as they entered the Masonic Hall in Consecon Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kent recovered their composure and went on to enjoy the evening of fun on the eve of their 50th wedding anniversary. The well-known Prince Edward County couple had been "lured" to the hall by their daughter, Mrs. Audrey Herrington, who entertained them at dinner before the neighbors arrived.

The highlight of the evening was a Mock Wedding, a skit acted out by Mrs. Fred Mr. Clare Hicks, the "bridegroom," Mrs. Helen Peters, the minister, and Mrs. Sylvia Kent as the "flower girl," Carl Seeley.

During the bountiful lunch, prepared by neighborhood ladies, Mr. and Mrs. Kent picked 53 bills from a golden money tree centerpiece and gracefully accepted a "gossip bench" from the community. Telegrams of congratulations from Fred Whitney, MLA for Prince Edward-Lennox and Gerry Farmer John P. Robarts, were read and the couple also received cards and flowers and a great number of congratulatory cards.

Wilson Peters emceed the celebration and conveners for the evening were Mrs. Fern Addair and Mrs. Orin Kemp.

At the evening's end, Mr. and Mrs. Kent went home, unopened, with the exception of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," echoing in their ears. Mr. and Mrs. Kent were married in Picton, Oct. 28, 1913, Rev. Mr. Hall the former Leslia Demille. They have lived in Prince Edward County all their lives and purchased the Kent farming until a few years ago.

Both are members of the United Church at Consecon and Mr. Kent is the recording steward at that church.

Mr. Kent, who has literally "never had a sick day in his life," works in the canning factory in the summer.

Mrs. Kent, also in good health, does all her own housework, knits and crochets as a hobby and maintains, with her husband, a great interest in TV programs.

The couple has four children, Mrs. Rueben (Audrey) Herrington of Trenton, Norman of Consecon, Mrs. M. Charlton, in western Canada ad Mrs. Ted Genereaux of Consecon.

G. Ketcheson Winner in Grain Corn Production

Because of high interest in grain corn production in the Belleville area, this year, the Belleville Agricultural Society held a crop competition for which prizes were given in the regular annual cat competition.

The competition was judged recently by Mr. Jack Haggarty, Ontario Dept. of Agriculture fieldman from Brighton, accompanied by Mr. Bill Bishop, director in charge.

First place went to Griffin Ketcheson of Foxboro with at excellent field of Pride 9 corn. This winning entry showed a heavy crop of well matured ears, a mid-tall, even stand of plants and an excellent weed control.

Of the eleven fields entered in the competition quality was generally high. However, many good fields were placed down because of lack of maturity.

Total results were as follows: Griffin Ketcheson, Foxboro; Robt. Mallory, R.R. 3, Frankford; Robert Coulter, R.R. 1, Foxboro; Harvey Homan, Corbyville; Ron Hamilton, R.R. 5, Trenton.

Other contestants (alphabetically) were: Bob Burkitt, Geo. Burkitt, Howard Coulter, Horace Knight, F. M. Nobes, Donald Spencer.

Municipal Vote Will Be Dec. 2

TRENTON—Municipal elections are five weeks away. The vote will be held on Monday, Dec. 2. Nomination day is Thursday, Nov. 21, and the annual nomination meeting should be held the following Monday.

To be filled in Trenton this year are the positions of mayor and three councillors. Mayor James MacDonald, whose term expires this fall has not been "up his mind" about seeking re-election, but promises a solid statement. Also unsure about seeking re-election are Councillors James Duncan, Duncan McDonald and C. V. Graham. Councillor Duncan intimated today that he would run for election, due to pressure of business.

Fred Vaughan, who has run unsuccessfully in the past two elections, announced today that he would again seek election. Mr. Vaughan heads the Trenton Ratepayers' Association.

IN MEMORIAM

PEOPLES, Stella May—
God gave your memorial mother
Her memory will never grow old,
Fashioned from love's finest gold

He moulded her heart of pure gold,
He loved a new star in heaven,
A beautiful light to shine,
So out of this old world of sorrow,
Came that dear mother of mine.

'Lawrence of Arabia' One Of Great Movies of History

The Belle Theatre is holding over "Lawrence of Arabia" for four days this week—thanks to overflow crowds which have attended the seven-times-over Academy Award winner, in its first seven days.

A double-barrelled movie, it is a treat any theatre fans here for two reasons: It is at once an extrovert spectacular and highly introverted character study. That study in contrasts is exactly what the movie is concerned with.

Lawrence is one of the great personality mysteries of history. Unfortunately, he cut his swath in the twentieth century and his behavior patterns should have been satisfactorily analyzed. Ironically, this has never happened. He has never been explained away. Hence, the beloved cliche now known as "the Enigma" of Lawrence.

Wisely, David Lean's direction of this movie steers away from any cut-rate explanation of the enigma. Therein, lies one of its success clues.

Because he has never been satisfactorily explained for the record Lawrence remains one of the most disturbing figures of this age. Because Lean's movie also refuses to attempt an explanation, it also remains at the end a disturbing portrait of an individual.

But that individual portrait (Lawrence's self is set in a spectacular framework that achieves its effect by beautiful restraint. Both Mr. Lean and script writer Robert Bolt, resist the temptation to indulge movie wantonness at the expense of the very key to suspense—the desert itself.

FILMED IN ALL PHASES

The desert — as it was for Lawrence — is the beginning and the end of all that is pertinent in this movie. It is filmed in all its phases between sunset and sunrise. (In fact, one of the longest sunrises in movie history is in the film — also the most dramatic).

To recount the tale of Lawrence and his desert, one of the most insinuating casts in movie record has been assembled. Like the sands they play on, they drift easily in and out of their parts.

Most outstanding is the work of Peter O'Toole, by now the latest male range of actingdom since this week he has old-doo critics to acclaiming him the Hamlet of his generation). He is, in short terrific.

He is supported by a cast that includes Sir Alec Guiness, Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Jose Ferrer and Arthur Kennedy.

LEFT AS COLONEL

Lawrence of Arabia, an Anglo-Irish illegitimate by birth, went into the desert in World War I with hopes of carving out a supra-national Arab state from the Turkish Empire. He entered Arabia as a British Army lieutenant. He left it, officially, as a colonel, and unofficially, as an embarrassment to politicians. Between times his military mission had developed into a messianic mission.

The most disturbing thing about Lawrence, as seen through the direction of Mr. Lean's movie, is the impression that a clue is extended on how easily messiahs are made —providing the man, time, place and people are right.

In "Lawrence of Arabia" we are told the time and place were right. The people were not (neither politicians and what might be classed as Arab proletarian.) So, the individual was rendered useless.

The last-but-one scene of the production is a beautifully underplayed comment on this—contained in one line.

As the moulders of Arab and British imperial ambitions parry diplomatic daggers on what spoils belong to them, they pause to recollect their compromises. Draws a diplomat: "If I remember, we had agreed to a British pimping station with an Arab flag on it."

The line is apocryphal. But it serves the purpose. So ended Lawrence's great Arab scheme. In less than three years he fired the imagination of men for a new scheme of things in and around the gardens of Allah and Eden.

But prophets are only human, and politicians only too human.

And that's a perpetual enigma.

"Lawrence" is expected to play at the Belle at least until mid-week.

CORNERSTONE was laid Sunday by Rev. J. M. McLeod, moderator of the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church, at the new College Hill United Church. Rev. Roy Vessey is the pastor of the congregation.

College Hill United Church Foundation Stone Laid

Bright weather marked a hopefully symbolic ceremony for one of Belleville's newest church communities Sunday.

Members of the congregation of College Hill United Church joined with resident and visiting clergy to dedicate their new church sanctuary.

Focal point of the ceremony was the laying of the sanctuary's foundation stone by Rev. J. M. D. McLeod of Marmora, who is chairman of the United Churche's Belleville Presbytery.

building had been forced. Constable McColl was the first inside and said he saw two men running for an outside door. He grabbed one of the men, whom he identified as Mackie.

"We had quite a struggle. Through his fighting the second man I was trying to apprehend escaped," said the officer. "I had quite a job to subdue him."

LIGHTS WERE ON

"You didn't see him in the office?" queried Mr. Tempie.

"No, I didn't."

"Were the lights on in the office?"

"Yes they were."

Constable McColl also said he did not see any safe-breaking tools.

"Was there a pronounced smell of beer or alcoholic beverage on the breath of the accused?"

"I didn't smell any sir."

Constable Davison also said he saw a second man run from the building, but he stopped to help McColl handcuff a man he was struggling with.

"That person — do you see him in court today?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"Yes sir, it's the accused." The officer added Mackie was wearing dark clothing, two shirts and a pair of white gloves.

NO EVIDENCE OF DRINKING

"Had Mr. Mackie been drinking?" questioned Mr. Tempie.

"Not that I smelled."

"Did he give any indication — apart from the absence of smell — he had been drinking?"

"No sir — he did not."

Mrs. Gertrude Smith, office employee at the plant for 17 years said she looked up the buildin, between nine and ten o'clock that night. The safe, she said, was intact.

"What money, if any, was there in there at the time?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"Approximately $750."

After being committed for trial, Mackie was released on $5,000 property bail set after his arrest.

Toronto Man Ordered to Stand Trial

A Toronto man was ordered to stand trial on a burglary charge in Belleville today after one of the briefest preliminary hearings on record.

It took just 15 minutes of testimony before Magistrate T. Y. Wills decided that Terry Kent Mackie should go before a judge and jury. He is charged with break and enter with intent at Canada Beverages, Parker Street, August 8th, where police claim he was arrested after a fight with a constable.

Crown Attorney John Pringle called only three witnesses to support the charge. Mackie's defence counsel, Robert Temple M.P., had few questions to ask them.

Police allege Mackie was one of two men surprised by constables Ian McColl and Tom Davison inside the building after officers found a door forced. The door of an office where a safe held $700 also had been damaged.

About 11.30 p.m. the officers found an outside door into the

Accountants Hear Special Address

The Society of Industrial Accountants held their regular monthly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte recently. Chairman was Newman Smith of Deloro Stellite Ltd.

J. W. Ross, administrator of educational service for the society, gave a talk concerning the high rate of failures on examinations, 56 per cent in the first year alone, he stated. He pointed out that on analyzing the failures, the biggest problem was not one of ability but of determination and self-discipline.

Mr. Ross' advice on methods of studying and preparation for the examinations was of much interest to the members on the course.

Hospital Service Employees Want Contract Amendment

Hospital Here Sends Delegates To Convention

Delegates from Belleville General Hospital will be among some five thousand persons expected to register for the 39th annual convention of the Ontario Hospital Association taking place this week in Toronto. Included in the group from Belleville will be members of the Board of Governors, the Administrator, Director of Nursing and various Department heads.

This meeting in Toronto is the largest annual hospital meeting held in Canada, and this year its program will deal primarily with the various aspects of co-operative planning for hospital facilities and services. Topics will range from the addition of psychiatric units to public general hospitals to the educational function of hospitals, particularly in the field of nursing education.

People from almost every branch of hospital service, including administration and trusteeship, nursing and dietetics will be in attendance. Among the leading authorities who will address the conventions are Dr. R. E. Gosline, Department of Psychiatry of Dalhousie University; John H. Thompson, director of the program in hospital administration of Yale University; Daniel P. Willis, project director of the United States Health Service, and Dr. K. J. Brousmiche, Commissioner of Hospitals, Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

Running concurrently with the O.H.A. meeting will be the annual convention of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario. Mrs. F. A. Beeby, Mrs. R. B. Barlow, Mrs. J. C. Buchan and Mrs. G. Harvey from the Women's Hospital Auxiliary are expected to attend the sessions.

Members of the Building Service Employees' International Union working at Belleville General Hospital are seeking amendments to their present contract with the hospital.

At last week's monthly meeting of the hospital board, the hospital administrator reported he had received a communication from the union requesting the amendments.

The request will be considered by the personnel committee of the board with a meeting to be arranged later with the union representatives.

The Belleville hospital is operating far over its rated capacity of 227 beds the monthly report shows. During September the occupancy rate at the hospital was 122 per cent with 300 beds and cribs set up.

There were 747 admissions (adults and children) and 136 newborn infants during the month. Of total adult admissions, 70.1 per cent were listed as emergency, 12.1 per cent as urgent and 12.8 per cent as elective.

Of the children's admissions 61.2 per cent were emergency; 7.7 per cent urgent and 30.1 per cent elective.

Gordon Watkin Again Heads Bowling Club

Gordon Watkin, who guided the destinies of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club during the past year was unanimously elected to fill the president's chair for another year at the annual meeting of the members held in the clubhouse on Saturday evening. The meeting was followed by a Hallowe'en party chaired by Percy Graham and from all reports it was the most successful function held by the club this season.

Percy Graham accepted the vice-president's chair, while the secretary will be Jack Lawrence with the treasurer, Wally Lavergne. Ralph Tuck, who has served in this capacity for the past four years and did a terrific job, asked to be relieved of his duties. The executive will consist of Jack Avery, Orio Smith, Bruce Miller Austin Watkin, Claude Tree, Ralph Tuck and William Wright. The greens chairman will be Doug Row, the membership chairman, "Jerry" Hyde and the tournament chairman, Gordon Vince. L. E. McLean and H. S. "Cliff" Argue, two stalwarts of the club in past years will be honorary presidents of the club. The chairman of the other committees will be named by the executive at a future meeting.

The financial report showed the club in a better position than it was at the same time last year. It is the intention of the club to fix the clubhouse during the winter months and this project was started at the meeting when members volunteered to take a couple of chairs and refinish them. They will not be all painted the same color but this will add a little color to the new room. The financial position of the club was assisted by the influx of Trenton members, who were without a home and no doubt the same arrangement will be continued the coming year.

GREENS EXCELLENT

The greens were reported in excellent condition for the long winter layoff and this was due in a large measure to the excellent work of the greenskeeper, Charles Matthews during the season. He was ably assisted by the greens chairman, Doug Row, who gave many hours of his time in planning the work.

"Jerry" Hyde, treasurer of the Corbin Cup, reported a successful tournament and the net profit a little higher than a year ago. It was hinted that the fees for playing in this tournament might be raised to $16 a rink instead of the present $12 due to the excellent prizes given was approved in principle by the meeting but the decision will be made by the Corbin committee when it is convened. There was also some discussion as to whether the Corbin rinks from the clubs would be picked or drawn and the question drew varied comment and this matter will also be a decision of the committee.

Offbeat Is Off-Base

Richard Jackson, whose column "Ottawa Offbeat" appears on this page thrice weekly, is a well-informed, entertaining writer on political affairs in the nation's capital. He is entitled to his opinions like anybody else, and because these are invariably interesting we never hesitate to print them. But that does not mean that we always agree with them.

Mr. Jackson appears to be greatly annoyed by the action of the great majority of members of Parliament in voting for a substantial increase in their own pay. The truth of the matter is, we suggest, that some of the members deserved that $8,000 increase in salary—they had been earning it all along and will, we feel sure, continue to earn it.

Others did not earn the raise before it was paid out and will not earn it now they are receiving it.

There are still others who, while they did not earn the increase in the past, may do so in the future. They may do so because they will find they are now able to do so. Before they had to devote part of their time and energies to supplementing their pay from the public purse, in order to maintain their families in the style to which they had been accustomed. Now that they are paid more for their work as Members of Parliament, they will not be forced to "moonlight" generally at their former occupations, and will endeavor to give value for the increase in pay they are receiving.

How many members will respond in this manner we have no idea. We would hope the number would be substantial. If it is, it will fully justify the increased expenditure. Even if it is not, the effort to secure such results by raising salaries was worth a try. And there will still remain the possibility that the desired results will be attained in the long run.

A couple of elections will have to be held before the effects of this increase in salary can be accurately judged. It may be the increased salaries will induce more men to enter election—men who in the past felt they could not afford to do so because it would mean reducing the standard of living of their families.

And, in any case, a man who is a good member of Parliament ought to be paid as much as or more than a man who is merely a good lawyer or a good accountant or a good school teacher.

The members of Parliament ought to be among the ablest men in the country. If they are not, perhaps part of the fault must be shouldered by those who elect them, and by commentators who keep on insisting that they ought to be paid less than hockey players or strip-tease artists or pin-ball machine distributors.

Message From a Six-Year-Old

We hope all our readers have some knowledge of phonetics. They will need it if they are to appreciate an essay on war and peace, which we present in the conviction that, while hardly Tolstoyian in stature, it has a clear message.

It is the work of a six-year-old pupil at a public school in Prince Edward County.

"war is a disaster for all that is reckt and all that is ded and the billdings that are gon the lovle things that God has gave to use distroyed.

"pes is a good thing so that we can pray and cids can grow up and be happy. and not be ded and do things that we have not don like a tran rids owning a bike and playing hocky and having a horse and all good things."

If that were all, it would be a heart-touching message from a youngster whose feelings adults could fully appreciate because they fully share them.

But there is a third paragraph. The little boy was troubled.

"pes," he concluded. "is what we want for erve thing that we have now. some it is going to be the batel of armageden sow we cant dow wat we want."

The boy comes from a church-going home—but nobody at home had told him about the Battle of Armageddon.

Later children from the same family brought home from school a document listing ten reasons why they should belong to the United Church. They asked their mother to sign it. She tore it up. The family belongs to another denomination. The children cried. The document carried a pretty picture.

Since that time the mother has had the children excused from religious instruction.

Letter to The Editor

Community Planning Group Is Proposed

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Prior to your editorial of October 23 regarding the general appearance of Belleville, an effort was being made to form a Belleville Division of the Community Planning Association of Canada, which was formed in 1987 by Major-General W. L. Brennan of Ottawa.

Interested Canadian citizens were concerned about the lack of good planning and now divisions are operating by average interested citizens throughout Ontario and other Provinces. All those interested in joining a group of this nature in Belleville are invited to attend an initial meeting at the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street, October 30th at 8 p.m.

A Reader.

Overdoing Speed Craze

Ottawa Citizen

Commercial aviation is painfully adjusting to the jet age — the costs of the transition are enormous — and if every nation was not so anxious to go faster and faster in the air it might be suspected that the industry would be content with its present creations for a while. But a bit. Two large United States companies, Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines, have announced firm plans for acquiring jet-driven transports. Pan American is ordering 15, TWA six.

These stories will presumably trigger a chain reaction, as competitors in the U.S. and other countries will want to get into the act; or even if they don't want to they will be forced into it in order to meet the competition. Indeed this has already begun to happen.

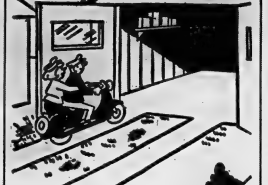
It will be necessary for the civil aviation authorities to keep a close watch on developments. The noise factor is something that affects everyone living within a few miles of a modern airport. Then, too, the new monsters must be able to accommodate themselves to runways no longer than those now in use; there has to be a limit set on the encroachment of airports on agricultural, industrial and residential land which, in the vicinity of large cities, is becoming scarce enough as it is.

But even when the supersonic aircraft are functioning, people will be able to complain a long-distance journey much faster than they do today. In many areas, it is taking progressively longer to get the point of departure by land, and the holds are true at the point of destination. Taking off from an airport and landing at another is only part of the expedition.

It might be better for the engineers to concentrate on developing vertical take-off aircraft even at a sacrifice of some speed aloft. There would likely be a net gain for the traveller in the total time involved, and there would be less necessity for boundless acres of asphalt.

Swedes Use Much Makeup

Brockville Recorder and Times



Swedish women, who are among the fairest and most beautiful in all Europe, also spend more time and cash per year for cosmetics than women anywhere else in Europe. Possessed of natural beauty to begin with, this is a surprising revelation.

Figures in a survey published by a Stockholm newspaper, Swedish women bought $30,000,000 worth of beauty articles in 1961. With a total population of only about 7,500,000 this places Sweden ahead of Britain in the per capita consumption of cosmetics by 20 per cent. And sales have been increasing by about $2,000,000 a year.

According to the Stockholm report, Swedish women tend to use cosmetics very subtly, to accentuate "naturalness" and to give the impression that they use very little makeup. Swedish women on the other hand are much bolder with cosmetics. Their biggest problem is selecting color combinations which go with naturally fair complexions and look well in the particular lighting conditions so far north.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 28th, 1943.

170 families or more received their Sunday dinner from the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. The Chicken Bingo held on Friday and Saturday night of last week by the Kiwanians resulted in this number of families or members of families receiving 196 chickens which went into ovens and pans and cooked the tables at three homes over the weekend. The Kiwanis Club wishes to thank the hundreds of people who played bingo in the location on Front Street and for supporting through this manner, their most essential work of sponsoring the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic at their Centre on Dundas Street East.

A delightful holiday band concert was held at the Capitol Theatre on Sunday evening when the Trenton RCAF main station band presented its wartire program. The concert was held under the auspices of the Belleville Rotary Club, for the O.E.S., and the sum of $75. realized. The officers and members of the O.E.S. are indebted to Group Captain McBurney, officer commanding the Trenton Air Station, W. O. Hancock, director of the band, and its members for a splendid musical program which was thoroughly enjoyed by a large theatre audience.

It is necessary to obtain a permit from the city engineer's department before commencing to erect a building. The by-law in this regard is largely neglected and the regulation should be enforced.

Dr. J. M. Moore of Chicago, Ill., an old Belleville boy, is home on a short visit.

Here is an interesting item about Campbell Street, taken from our file copy at this time in 1873: "Dr. Ridley has much improved the appearance of Campbell Street by the block of brick he has completed on that street."

Mrs. J. D. [illegible]er is visiting friends in Toronto.

Superintendent H. F. Coyle of the G.T.R., Belleville Division, spent yesterday in Brockville.

The mortgage on the Grand Trunk Railway Engineers' hall on Pine Street has been paid in full, and the mortgage was burned at a social gathering in the hall this week. Mr. John Fitzgerald occupied the chair, and short addresses were made by Mr.-W. Rogers, Mr. A. Calcutt, Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., and Mrs. Rogers of the Women's Auxiliary, which organization greatly assisted in paying off the mortgage.

Restful Radio

Comment on the BBC

It stands to reason that after 4,000 years of gardening there is yet be very much to be said about it that is new, or new. But this does not deter the radio gardener. And why should it? It is characteristic of us radio listeners that just as we enjoy familiar music, we also love to be told what we know already. There's nothing more restful than being told how to pot a geranium.

Strictly Personal

Psychological Approach Can Make Winners

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In New York, as one time ago, I was invited by a friend to play bridge with him one afternoon at the Cavendish Club, where the masters make their home between tournaments. Afterwards, there was much talk and gossip about various experts, habits and peculiarities.

What interested me was the discussion about one particular master, who invariably wins at rubber bridge, even with the most mediocre partners. Other experts play just as well as he, but he knows just how to adjust himself to the faults and deficiencies of his partner of the moment.

Most of his colleagues, I was told, do exactly the opposite. If their fixed theories in a serious game partnered by a duffer, they make the partner "pay" for his ignorance and clumsy tasks. They punish him for being a poor player — even though he is their partner — and then act after the game bad score for their behavior.

They make bids he cannot understand, place burdens upon him that he cannot fulfill, and then heap withering scorn upon him for failing down on the hand — which merely only makes him play worse, and adversely affects their own score as well.

This attitude of superiority reminded me of marriages I have known, in which one of the partners is always criticizing the faults of the other, and would rather see the partnership broken up than ever forgo the bleak pleasures of criticism.

Cutting off one's nose to spite one's face is a much more common attitude than we realize. The other day I heard a man say, "If you're not going to fulfill my expectations, if I am to be saddled with your shortcomings, then I'll strain you to the limit and bet you to the breaking-point, as much as it may hurt me; because the satisfaction I get from feeling superior to you is greater than the cost of disaster."

But the winning player in bridge — where all the masters have about the same level of technical skill — is the one who knows that the noose he draws around his partner's neck also hangs him.

When one reaches a certain high level of aptitude in any pursuit, the differences in aptitude are then emotional: the line that really separates winners and losers is not a technical or strategic superiority, but a psychological approach. In bridge, in business, in most other competitions, games are not so much won as lost — lost by those who are not in full command of their inmost natures.

Guineas Nonsense

Calgary Herald

The guinea may have had an honorable beginning but, today, it represents little more than a status symbol. It is used by the better and more expensive shops. Saville Row suits are priced in guineas. In fact, a gentleman's tailor always begs to represent what a thing really costs, and a shilling extra as a sort of afterthought. He separates those who are beyond having to worry about such sordid things as money, like to pretend they are, and the rest of the people committed to more realistic point of view.

This sort of nonsense, society can do without. Money is money, whether spent by a duke or an office clerk and, nowadays, both find it a somewhat elusive object to get their hands on.

Pyorrhea Is a Disease Of Gums Rather Than Teeth

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: "What causes pyorrhea? Is there a cure? Years ago I worked for an orthodontist and am wondering what advances have been made since then, because he tried everything but the ultimate result was lost or loosened. Many people have various experts, habits and peculiarities.

What interested me was the discussion about one particular master, who invariably wins at rubber bridge, even with the most mediocre partners. Other experts play just as well as he, but he knows just how to adjust himself to the faults and deficiencies of his partner of the moment.

When one reaches a certain high level of aptitude in any pursuit, the differences in aptitude are then emotional: the line that really separates winners and losers is not a technical or strategic superiority, but a psychological approach. In bridge, in business, in most other competitions, games are not so much won as lost — lost by those who are not in full command of their inmost natures.

Dear Dr. Molner: "What causes pyorrhea? Is there a cure? Years ago I worked for an orthodontist and am wondering what advances have been made since then, because he tried everything but the ultimate result was lost or loosened. Many people have various experts, habits and peculiarities.

Now my 37-year-old son has this trouble. He has consulted a number of dentists but they don't all agree. Some want to extract only a few teeth and leave the others for an abutment. Personally I feel all the teeth should be removed if they are diseased. — Mrs. R.I.

I can't agree that all his teeth should be removed. Perhaps so, perhaps not. It depends on the condition of those teeth.

I've consulted Dr. Alfred E. Sayer, a dentist of considerable prominence and, I think, of skill which exceeds his reputation. By any standards, a fine one. When it comes to teeth, I want the word of an expert. Dr. Sayer has written me and I'll give you the information he gave me. But first, what is pyorrhea? A disease of the gums, rather than of the teeth. It is quite possible (although perhaps not probable) that someone without any cavities may still have pyorrhea.

Germs congregate, not in the gums at first, but in the crevices between the gums and roots of the teeth. As this continues, the gums become inflamed, at the tooth margins. There may be little or no pain. But as the germ colonies increase, they work down, destroying the bone along the tooth, and the gum recedes.

Now it is no single germ. There are many varieties. There is no drug that "cures pyorrhea". There's no easy way of stopping it.

Yet it is not a hopeless problem, either. We have antibiotics and we also have modern techniques.

My adviser states: "Not many years ago pyorrhea or periodontitis, as we call it, was generally regarded as incurable and therefore doomed the teeth to removal.

Today dentists have found methods to eliminate much pyorrhea without extraction.

If the ailment has continued too far, there isn't much to do. But with careful examination it often including X-ray, it is now possible to save the teeth that have not been too much damaged, while removing the ones for which there is no hope. Treatment includes medication, special techniques for removing under-the-surface pockets of infection and care to prevent or remove silex of new infection.

Having the teeth cleaned by a dentist every so often is certainly the best method of preventing pyorrhea, because it removes the tartar or calculus which is such a breeding ground for germs.

But even when pyorrhea has developed, painstaking care can save the teeth which have not been too much destroyed, and save some teeth in better than losing all. Or as Dr. Sayer puts it, "So far there are no medicines or chemicals drugs which in themselves cure pyorrhea. Nothing can take the place of daily gum massage and regular visits to the dentist for thorough cleaning.

But you can quite easily avoid most pyorrhea, and you can at least see that your teeth can be saved and which cannot. If the disease has gained a start but been recognized in time.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told to eat sunflower seeds to strengthen my eye-sight. I am 68. Are they good to eat? — Mrs. M.P.

They won't help your eyes, or anything else. Let the birds eat 'em.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would it be safe for a boy to start playing tennis at the age of 30? I bowl occasionally and am not exceptionally strong. Have an underactive thyroid? — J. H.

There's no reason why you shouldn't play tennis. We'd all be better off if we started such sports at the age of dropping them, as so many of us do. Take it easy in the beginning.

Woman's-Eye View of Men

Ottawa Journal

A woman who invaded our masculine preserve this summer writes:

During the last few weeks this page has been studded with pieces about women—a woman's pay, her variety, her bargaining place in business, and the paradoxes of women generally.

It is high time someone wrote about men. Men are just as much a mystery to women as women may realize it. Like women, men can be tall or short, lean or fat, handsome or otherwise, highly intelligent or dull normal. But, to a woman, at least, they are always interesting.

Men have tempers and moods and frightful weaknesses that must be soothed and smoothed through all of them by women. Such soothing is almost certain amputation and every sniffle a case of pneumonia or worse.

Nearly all men are conceited. However much they may admire a woman they never believe she is quite as smart as they.

They get wrapped in their job, whether it is cleaning floors or writing poetry, and however hard they try to relax in off hours the chances are that there is nearly always with them. Arbitrary retirement drives most of the nearly mad.

If they have never played games they are rabid football fans. If they stopped school early they make a great point of saying how much they read. If they are big they busy small cars and if they are small they rattle around in big ones and, next to their work, a car often becomes the most important thing in their lives.

But they are also innately kind and understanding through all their boastfulness and conceit. They are fun, and often gay, and most of them can reason an over-wrought woman to tranquility with the flick of an eyebrow and one sensible sentence. They work like slaves and believe in what they do. They are hopelessly idealistic and endlessly romantic. They really do run the world, and most women are glad to have it that way.

Oratory Falls On Evil Days

Des Moines Register

Oratory has fallen on evil days. This sophisticated generation is inclined to regard it as cornball. It has, however, one enduring friend, Congressman Everett Dirksen (Rep., Ill.), whose devotion to it was shown again in his recent speech on the tenban pact.

There are many men alive today who will testify that it is not at all the same thing as oratory. To speak acceptably less is required of the nearly, logically and, it is hoped, briefly. Oratory combines speaking with a full display of the tricks of the tone of voice, the pause, the gesture, to create an emotional effort. You seldom get that anymore.

It still is heard occasionally from the pulpit. In parliamentary bodies like the United States Senate it is still cultivated, then, usually at critical moments. The fading of oratory in the political field is perhaps the most surprising thing because that was once its home. Perhaps even the average politician is too self-conscious today, too fearful of expressing his emotions, for dare to be so flamboyant.

The last president who could be called an orator was Franklin D. Roosevelt, but only in a limited sense and that was 30 years ago.

Sir Winston Churchill still is heard but the skill which could create oratory through understatement, which could turn a word into a righteous indictment, lives no longer. Yet that skill once served to bring a people to victory. To those who see no purpose in oratory that fact is answer enough.

Oratory may have lost its everyday role because of human reticence and the competition of radio and television and the printed page. But when the moment is big enough to justify them there are still big speeches.

Commencement Exercises At St. Michael's Academy

On Friday evening the annual Commencement Exercises were held in St. Michael's Academy. The chairman for the evening was Douglas Meagher. After extending a welcome to all present, he called on the members of the Glee Club to open the program. Arrayed in the school uniform and wearing the Academy colors, they rendered a pleasing picture against the stage background of flowers and autumnal decorations. In the singing of "O Canada" and "The School Song" there was evidence of the splendid training received under the direction of the music superintendent, Rev. Sister Mary Rosalita.

The guest speaker, Dr. B. F. Beirne, director of the Dominion Archeological Research Institute in Belleville, was introduced by Timothy Doran, head boy at St. Michael's Academy. Dr. Beirne, internationally known specialist and author of numerous technical scientific publications and books abroad, is a unique exposition by clarifying important principles of action: resistance to the unseen forces, his skills intuitive, and wariness in making generalizations. Referring also to the value of liberal academic skills, he showed how these could lead to a more satisfying adjustment to the fact of the increasing leisure of adult years.

Stating that he did not intend to talk about books but about people, Dr. Beirne continued: "Graduates who are receiving diplomas and prizes tonight are going into Grade Eleven. That means that in three years they will be moving into jobs or into college. Up to now they have come under the care of teachers and parents. When they move on, they will come into contact with people of very different outlooks."

Dr. Beirne referred to scientists as people who are becoming increasingly important in the world. Their function is to seek new knowledge. Everybody is seeking new knowledge. Students are being taught knowledge that is already known. Scientists, however, are searching to discover facts that are not previously known. In doing so, they are seeking the truth. That is one of the objectives of scientific work — to find out the truth. In the course of your school career, you have learned very good reasons why you should always be truthful. One of the most important reasons, of course, is that if you are not truthful, you are likely to be caught. You will have to remember what you have said or that was true and what you said that was not true. If you are smart enough to do that, you do not need to tell the untruth in the first place.

WHO SEEK TRUTH

"The scientists's job is to seek the truth. Scientists as a whole do not go by appearances as much as other people do. Some people are fond of judging other people by the size of their houses, their cars, etc. This is not a very good way to judge people. Because a person has a new car does not mean he is superior to a person with a ten-year-old car. Maybe he came into some money; maybe he stole it.

"What a scientist makes a discovery he has to publish it in a scientific magazine or journal, and publish it with a proof of what he has discovered. He has to see that it's available to humanity in general in any part of the world. Scientists are trying to better the lot of man. Because of this there is very close co-operation between scientists in different countries. It is part of the tradition that they assist each other. This means scientists tend to get to know people of other nationalities, of other races, and of other religions, by correspondence and by visits back and forth. As a result of this, scientists tend to judge people individually; that is, they do not make generalizations. They do not say that because a man is of this particular race or religion, he is all bad or good. They wait and see.

"Early this week I had a visit from a director of a large research institute, a graduate of two universities, in America and Britain; but he was completely black. He came from Ghana and had not gone to school until he was eleven. If you come to the conclusion that because a person is black, he is not very bright, that is ridiculous.

"Seeing somebody do something, people in the habit of generalizing assume because he is interested in that, he is not interested in anything else. Some years ago at an official dinner I talked all last beside a quiet, unassuming man. When he found out that I was an entomologist, he talked for an hour and a half on butterfly collecting. He could be now made prime minister of England. If you think big collecting is a 'sissy' sort of occupation, I point out that Churchill collected butterflies all his life and he is not a 'sissy' type of individual.

"There is nowadays among children a tendency of pressure to conform, to be like everybody else. Therefore, if somebody found something most people are not interested in, they say he is 'peculiar' or 'square.' This is a very bad outlook. Only people who are different make advancements. If everybody was interested in the same thing that everybody else was interested in, then nothing would happen. Therefore, if you are interested in something which is unusual in, this, in my opinion, is a good thing. You can ignore anybody who thinks you are a 'square.'

NEVER HIDE IGNORANCE

"Everybody has knowledge in one direction or another. Even if I am not the slightest ashamed of being ignorant in a particular subject. Nobody can be learned a person becomes and the more he knows, the more he realizes that he does not know everything. You must not be ashamed of showing your ignorance. You will learn more less you ask. One of the characteristics of ignorance of anybody who has reached a fairly high eminence in this profession, is that they are not afraid to show their ignorance. Anyway, if you do try to hide your ignorance, you are in fact telling lies.

"One of the aims of education is, in my opinion, to become know, the better you get on in life, the more you get out of life. The better you get on in life, the more you become and the happier you are materially.

"Nowadays a man gets a job and works forty or forty-five hours a week. With increasing use of machines, that may be cut further and you will a great deal of leisure. If you have leisure, you can be entertained by TV — but that only goes so far. The other way is to learn to do something which will interest your mind as a scientist, the two most practical things you can do are to observe and to read and how to write. The most important thing for a student is to learn how to read, to enjoy reading, and to like to read. Next to reading the next thing is to learn to write. I do not mean to write in shorthand, but to learn how to be able to express yourself clearly and simply on paper. Even well-educated people find this hard to do. By reading books you find out what other people know. By writing you tell other people what you know."

Dr. Beirne added some humorous remarks and advice on speech-making. He concluded by congratulating the graduates and prize-winners.

Theresa Lumsdon, head girl, thanked Dr. Beirne on behalf of the entire audience for the opportunity of profiting from his experience and accomplishments.

Showing the degree of proficiency already attained, General French, a group of children in Grade Five and Six sang "An Clair de Lune," both in English and then in French.

The chairman then called to the stage the ladies and gentlemen who were to present the prizes and diplomas.

LONDON (AP)—A govern. ment efficiency expert today urged the Queen to scrap the Broughams and begin a new era of doing her family marketing.

The buggies — four-wheel carriages known as Broughams—are a familiar sight in London's west end shopping areas.

In front sits a coachman, magnificent in brown coat, top hat and high-winged collar.

In the back sits an elegant lady-in-waiting, carrying the royal shopping list from grocer to dressmaker to banker.

Behind comes a frustrated procession of honking car drivers, slowed to the pace of an unhurried horse.

RECOMMENDS CARS

Now Edward Dowling, a tenancy lines and medicine expert, has recommended that cars should supplant the Broughams.

He believes the Broughams are too slow and too accident-prone.

Only last week one had a collision on a taxi and lost the hub caps. A few days earlier a royal horse lay down in the middle of the traffic, refusing to move until it was unharnessed.

The first Brougham was designed by the first Baron Brougham, the anti - slavery campaigner who lived from 1778 to 1863.

The future of the Brougham has returned to the will be left to the Queen, since she initiated the efficiency studies.

France Once Again Demands Measure of Control Over Nuclear Power in Europe

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

France once again has demanded a measure of control over nuclear power in Europe as the price for an increase in the French military commitment to the North Atlantic alliance.

The private talks between French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and President Kennedy in Washington two weeks ago appear to have resolved nothing.

The indications by Couve de Murville that President de Gaulle will pay a visit to the U.S. next year also appear, in the context of the foreign minister's latest pronouncements, to harbor no fundamental change in the attitude of Europe, towards her NATO allies, particularly the U.S.

When Couve de Murville conferred with Kennedy and State Secretary Dean Rusk earlier this month there were reports that some of the French ideas had can misunderstandings had been cleared away.

But when the foreign minister returned to Paris, he supplied in an interview that Soviet-American - British negotiations which led to the partial ban on nuclear testing had merely settled "false problems."

In his way of thinking, there is no point in negotiating with the Russians at all until the Russians stop provoking international incidents, such as in Berlin. And then, he suggested, the East-West detente would be out of its control.

As for the French military commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Couve de Murville described NATO as "not adapted to the world as it is."

He said France's drive to build its own nuclear military force has become the essence of misunderstanding not only between France and the U.S. but between France and some of her European allies.

Yet France remains undeterred to press on with her search for full independence, with her revulsion in terms of her relations with Europe on the one hand and the U.S. on the other.

Prime Minister Pearson will visit France next year and it is understood that Canadian leader hopes to bridge some of the differences between de Gaulle and Kennedy; to turn the disjointed North Atlantic alliance into a more cohesive and comforting community.

But de Gaulle will not settle for any middle course. He appears bound to lead France to the full stature of some mysterious "grandeur," no easier what anguish this may cause in Washington or what concern it may cause to the future of the alliance itself.

BURRIS — STICKLE

Johnstown United Church was the setting for a lovely wedding on Saturday, October 12, when Thelma Ann Stickle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle, R.R. 5 Trenton, was united in marriage to Corey Douglas Burris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burris, R.R. 2 Consecon. The Rev. C. A. Futtenham of Cherry Valley performed the double-ring ceremony assisted by Mr. Brian Thrasher before a background of bronze, yellow and white 'mums and pink snapdragons. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Miss Evelyn Harry of Trenton R.R. 5 as pianist accompanied the soloist, Mr. Ronald Elmy of Belleville in his renditions of "The Wedding Prayer" during the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length bridal gown of white peau de soie highlighted with a sweetheart neckline, lace appliques and long lily-point sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil edged with a wide lace band flowed from a sequin pearl tiara. A single strand of pearls and pearl earrings completed her ensemble. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations mingled with lacy fern.

Mrs. Ernest Kennedy Garden City, New York, sister of the bride, as matron of honor, and the bridesmaid, Mrs. Jamas Payette were identically attired in street-length dresses of gold peau de soie with matching shoes. Their headdresses were of matching feathers and each carried a bouquet of golden 'mums.

Mr. Keith Burris of R.R. 1 Consecon attended his brother, while Mr. Ernest Kennedy of Garden City, New York, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Graeme Burris of Point Anne, cousin of the bridegroom were the ushers.

The reception was held in Aikens Community Hall where each table was decorated with yellow 'mums and the bride's table prettily appointed with white lilies cloth and pink and white streamers and centred with a three-tier wedding cake with pink swan pillars and topped with miniature bride and bridegroom. Misty tulle with pink rosebuds enclosed the base of the cake.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a dusty rose dress of silk lace over taffeta, matching accessories and a corsage of tinted green carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was dressed in a gold brocade sheath with matching jacket, brown accessories and a corsage of green tinted 'mums.

For the wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario the bride chose a gold basket-weave dress with matching jacket, brown accessories and a green cymbidium orchid.

Guests were present from New York, Toronto, Barrie, Belleville, Frankford, Picton, Almonte and Hamilton.

Previous to the marriage a community shower was held in the Acme Community Hall; a miscellaneous shower by the girls from the Ontario Hydro at Frankford and a presentation by the Frankford-Sidney Hydro Club of which the bride is a member when she was the recipient of a coffee percolator and a crystal sandbower cake plate.

Mr. and Mrs. Burris are residing at Consecon R.R. 2.

Home and School News

BAYSIDE HOME AND SCHOOL CLUB

Mr. Harold Elmy, vice-president, conducted the second meeting of the Bayside Home and School Club in the absence of George Miller. In his opening remarks Mr. Elmy spoke of parents' duty to show encouragement and interest in their children's school efforts and the effect this has on their work. Attendance at Home and School meetings not only shows our children that we are interested in them but keeps us informed in matters which are of vital concern to parents.

A disheartened attitude in school matters and in education in general is not what we want to pass on to our children who may find it hard enough sticking it out until graduation. The trend is employment circles is toward higher and higher educational standards, yet we read of increasing numbers of drop-outs.

The Club, as sponsoring body will be paying the charter renewal fee for the Cub and Scout troops. The boys had a peanut drive on Saturday. A good turn-out on the parents' part ensured a good morning and everyone went home happy with a job well done. On Tuesday the Cubs and Scouts are putting on a series of skits especially for the parents.

Mrs. May donated two pillow cases for use in the sickroom.

The room count proved to be so close between four classes that two recounts were necessary with the winning class awarded a film strip.

Friend Has Violent Temper

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Five years ago I befriended a person who had come from another province and eventually we shared the same apartment. We got along very well but it developed that he had a violent temper and there were times that I was the unhappy recipient.

Then I left this province. After a year I returned, and although I am not on the same status as before, this friend and I renewed acquaintanship.

The problem now is that he has come with an ultimatum and said that if I want to go to B.C. for a trip, I have to make up my mind soon. Do you think I would be a fool to travel so far with him? I would like to, but if there is an argument, will he leave me in the middle of the Prairies somewhere?

He has lots of friends his own age (I am 45, he is 27). How is it he didn't ask them? I know what this trip means to him and I don't want to let him down. — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED — Lay down your own ultimatum. Say you'll keep him company if he promises there'll be no temper tantrums. Make it clear that you will leave him on the spot if the fun-item breaks — and be prepared to do so.

He seeks you out because you are older and steadier. Whether you go with him depends on how much you care about him.

DEAR DORIS — I have a reputation of being wild just because I enjoy going to parties and dances and never sticking to one guy. Lately I did meet the right one I fell so hard I got pregnant. I went away to have the baby and gave it up.

Then I came back home. After that I met John and I completely fell for him and want to marry him. He acts every bit of a gentleman to me in public and when not in public. Everyone likes him, including my parents and sisters and brothers.

This is my problem: he once asked me to go steady and I said I would tell him Saturday night, but he never talked about it. He never said he liked me or anything, but he kisses me like he means it. He takes me every place in public. I know he likes me but I would like to hear him say it just once. My friends ask me if we are going steady and I don't know what to say to them. Should I ask him? — HOPELESSLY IN LOVE.

DEAR HOPELESSLY — If you want him, behave yourself. Grow some brand new habits of being ladylike and physically under control. You have a lot to overcome with that past reputation of yours.

Don't worry about the going steady business, as long as you are good friends. If this attachment has the makings of a lifetime love, you will both know it before long.

To MRS. E.F., CAL. — I would be glad to send you the names of the books on sex and birth control. However, you neglected to give me your name and address. What do I do now?

DEAR DORIS — What is your honest opinion of a mother and sister (my husband's) who insist on phoning me (his wife) a gossip about their very own son and brother? They say: "How has he been? Is he drinking? Is he spending money he has in the bank?" They even call him a liar and tell me not to believe what he says.

If we try to plan a vacation the wet cloth is thrown over it immediately. The man is O.K. in my eyes, open and above board. Yes, he had a drinking problem before I married him (at 45) and has been under doctor's care for the past two years, but the doctor told me he has made a remarkable recovery since we married, and even blamed these people for the drinking problem. In fact, most people think it's a wonder the man isn't out of his mind with these two frustrated women. I guess they think they are on this earth forever. They sure try to get rid of everybody else anyway.

Now I just wonder if anything could be done. I myself have had a tragic life more or less and they sure make a nervous wreck out of me. If I was to turn round and tell them to mind their own business I would be upsetting them. — DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED — Then upset them. Your Frustrated Females need to know you aren't having any. And that their victim is now out of their reach. And then hang up before they drive you off your rocker.

(Have you a teen-age dilemma? Write to Doris, a Canadian social worker, and tell her all about it.)

The feature attraction for the evening was a series of wildlife slides taken by Mrs. Wallis. Many of the slides were taken in this area and were striking for their skilful photography.

Jumping to Conclusions? Think Well Beforehand

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions—(and how many do you agree with?):

A wife with a bald, pot-bellied, middle-aged husband usually feels serenely safe from feminine rivals. She couldn't be more wrong. This is the type of guy who keeps most of the champagne corks popping in night clubs — and pays the rent for most love nests.

A phoney, when asked what bores him most, almost invariably replies, "phoneys."

Never marry a girl who tries to catch the bride's bouquet at a wedding with a first base man's mitt. There's such a thing as carrying eagerness too far.

A penniless bum is never as deferential to anyone as a millionaire is to a multi-millionaire.

Toothaches are nature's way of showing that all men are equal.

ENJOY FAT

Fat men who go to fat doctors always enjoy life more than fat men who go to skinny doctors.

Most fellows hate to sit in even a friendly poker game with a preacher. They can't help feeling he may have a secret ace.

One of the things that puzzles me most is why the first thing God did was to invent Monday. But He proved His compassion when He got around to creating Friday.

Never trust a man who says he's "just an old country boy trying to get along." Real country boys don't brag about it.

A poor woman who steals things from a department store is a shoplifter. A rich woman who steals things from a department store is a kleptomaniac. But they're both trying to get something for nothing.

CONSIDER SPACE WHEN PLANNING PARTIES

If you're planning a large party this season, be considerate of guests and make some down - to - earth plans concerning space.

Often a hostess spends more time mooning about whom to invite than figuring out where she'll put them once they arrive. Sometimes the guest list is longer than the living room and thre's precious little space for air to circulate — let alone people.

The large party may be very fashionable this season, but so is breathing. So if you're planning a huge "do" as a prelude to the holidays, put comfort high on your list of preparations.

Before sending out invitations jar and wide to everyone you know consider first how many can be easily accommodated. Naturally, many more may be invited to a cocktail party than to a dinner or even an informal buffet. Standing room is the main space requirement for the former, but when food is served, a seat, at least must be provided for everyone, and some sort of table space is desirable, even if it's the collapsible type.

When a cocktail party is planned arrangements might necessarily call for rearrangement of furniture. If the party is SRO, often the decor has to be sacrificed to practicality. A congenial grouping of chairs might have to be separated and resettled along the wall to provide more space for the standees. Occasional tables also might be redistributed along the sidelines, although they should be handy to rest glasses on and to hold large ash-trays for the convenience of guests. With the furniture out of the way, guests are permitted to circulate more easily and there is less stumbling blocks to the passing of food and drink by the host and hostess or their hired assistants.

DINNER PARTY

Naturally, even more planning has to go into a dinner party. Here the number definitely has to be held down to the seating space available at the dining room table or at smaller tables set up in the living room. Seats should not be placed so close together that guests have trouble finding elbow room. If card tables are used, traffic lanes should be kept open for serving. If there's danger of overcrowding, then it's wiser to cut down the guest list rather than cut down on everyone's comfort.

The informal buffet allows a little more leeway in inviting a larger number, but some hostesses make the mistake of not providing enough table space for guests to rest their plates and glasses on. As a result many a poor soul tries to balance a plate in one hand and wine in the other and has to put his glass on the floor as a final solution. When planning this type of party, make sure chairs are grouped near convenient tables, or provide folding snack tables for individual use.

It may seem like a grand idea to give a big gala to bow in the holiday season, but, for the sake of your guests' comfort and convenience, be a good scout and "Be Prepared."

PARENTS WARNED

TWENTY-THREE DAYS OF EUROPEAN FASHION

Does the idea of a twenty-three day tour of Europe with visits to Lucerne, Interlaken, Berne, Geneva, Paris, Nice, Rome, Florence, Venice and Zurich intrigue you? Just such a tour with added attractions of fashion showings in Paris, Rome Florence Zurich and a cosmetic school in Rome, was dreamed up by an enterprising airline and a large Canadian department store. The tour details of transportation, hotels and service were arranged by the airline, who also supplied a competent tour manager. The departmental store obtained the services of a well-known Canadian fashion personality, who is in charge of the fashion showings and the official hostess for the tour's sixteen guests.

The group left Montreal in early September, with Zurich as the first stop. This opulent manicured city is a perfect introduction to Europe with its magnificent jewelry and accessory boutiques. From Zurich the tour went by private motor coach to Lucerne, only a short distance, for a lake steamer trip. The next day, they toured the Furka Pass, to the Rhone Glacier, then on to Interlaken, Berne and Geneva. In Geneva, a visit had been arranged with a world famous watch-maker.

The left-over hostess plans for the tops of shelves in a child's room, or other areas which take hard wear. Just cut them to fit spaces and glue down with fashion cement.

From Geneva, they flew to Paris, to visit two well-known fashion houses where private showings of the new fall fashions were part of the itinerary. A reception at the Canadian Embassy was followed by a tour of Paris by night, Versailles, luncheon at the Pavilion Henri IV, a tour of historical Paris and a motor launch cruise on the Seine took a complete day.

They journeyed by luxury train — the Mistral — from Paris to Nice to stay at the famous hotel Ruhl right on the Mediterranean. They toured

Girl on Way To Become Race Driver

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Sandra Clouthier at 13 is already well on the way to her ambition to become a trainer and driver of trotting horses, and later a veterinarian.

Her father, Hector Clouthier, as owner of the Northwood Stables has a private track where he trains a string of more than 100 horses.

When she is 16, Sandra hopes to be a trainer and driver for her own standard-breds, and she expects to be a qualified veterinarian when she is 24.

Sandra will be eligible for a driver's licence when she is 16.

She was jogging the horses a few years ago. "Now I work them their first mile, too," she said. "It's really fun."

Of all her father's stock Sandra likes best the aging Barney Diplomat. "I guess I'm sentimental," she said. "Barney is the same age as I am. We just sort of grew up together."

But of the younger horses, Northwood Lee is her favorite. Baldy won more than $10,000 as a two-year-old in 1962, but last year developed leg lame.

Sandra spent many hours helping the stablehands nurse Baldy back to health. No one was happier, and no one was cheering as loudly as Barbara, when Northwood Baldy won his first race of the year in Montreal recently.

Grasse, the world's perfume centre, dined at storied old Eze, high in the Maritime Alps and had a fling at the table of Monte Carlo.

From Nice, they flew to Rome to see the Trevi Fountain, St. Peter's and the Borghese Park. They viewed another private showing of fabulous fashions, dined at Biblioteca del Valle and took in the sound and light spectacle at the old Forum. A visit to the Vatican Museum and a Papal Audience had also been arranged. The next day, they visited a beauty salon for private instructions, then they drove to the Villa d'Este at Tivoli.

Florence was next with a visit to a leather factory and a motor trip to Pisa to see if the tower was still leaning. Here, in Florence, they had their choice of conducted tours through museums and galleries. Then on to Venice to see St. Marco's Square the Doges Palace, Murano glass and the Grand Canal.

Back in Zurich, they attended two more private showings, one featuring famous shoes and in the other, they saw expertly designed dresses and suits. Then jet to Montreal and home. Reaction? Completely wonderful, but it should have been longer!

Lord's Flying Lobsters

by Mary Moore

My sister Doris wanted to bring home from the Maritimes something perfectly magnificent for the birthday dinner of our sister-in-law Wyn.

Her last stop in the Maritimes was Saint John. After her business was accomplished she made a few tentative phone calls to find out if she could bring some fresh Bay of Fundy lobsters home. Mrs. Lord of the famous Lords' lobster company made it all possible. Doris' plane was to leave Saint John very early on Saturday morning so Mrs. Lord had six one-lb. lobsters taken from the lobster pound, quickly boiled then chilled and neatly packed in ice in a carton to the Admiral Beatty Hotel. The hotel manager graciously arranged for them to be stored in the "lobster refrigerator" overnight and had them waiting with her luggage at the hotel entrance when Doris was ready to board the Airline limousine Saturday morning.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Beef Patties; Broiled Crumbed Large Tomato Halves; Mashed Butternut Squash; Iceberg Lettuce Wedges with Roquefort Dressing; Peach Crisp; 10% Cream; Coffee.

TCA co-operated by storing them in the cold undercarriage of the plane. When she arrived home the ice in which those lobsters were packed was still hard as a rock. We landlubbers stood over the box oohing and ahing at her prize catch. The dinner was to be at my home so we immediately postponed the Duck Mandarin I had planned to serve. I phoned my brother and asked him to bring along his lobster crackers.

I simply laid the whole lobsters on broiler pans to heat them through, then cracked the claws and slit the tails and abdominal sections and took out the intestinal portion and served each one of us one whole lobster with divine Hollandaise Sauce which my sister Peady made.

The Lord provided . . .

Now 8 landlubbers eating 6 Bay of Fundy lobsters with nut crackers and fruit forks is a funny sight, but we had plenty of time and not one scrap of lobster meat was wasted — nothing but corsi-colored shells went into the garbage pail.

Thank you, Mrs. Lord.

. . . and another thing came from Newfoundland—courtesy of Iris Powers, whom Press Clubbers will remember—canned unsweetened Bakeapples, pronounced bakeepples. (These are called Cloud Berries in England and Multer Berries in Norway.)

These are strange fruit to us — a little like a yellow raspberry but with larger but fewer juice cells, larger but fewer seeds and so removable centre. Peady and I decided to make a pie with them so I opened the one-lb. can and pushed them through a fine sieve to remove the seeds. We added 5 sliced fresh peaches, 2 tablespoons minute tapioca, ½ cup sugar, 1-3 cup seeded raisins. Peady used this as the filling for a pie. She served it with Roquefort cheese and it was a lovely discovery.

Thank you, Iris.

The washing action that dares to be different up down—330 times a minute

Why up and down? Less wear and tear on clothes. Only a Frigidaire Washer's agitator works this way. All Frigidaire Washers work up and down. Not sideways.

Why not sideways? Because sideways agitators wash by dragging clothes through the water. Back and forth. Back and forth. Too many pulled threads.

Up and down is kinder to your clothes. Safer. Instead of dragging clothes through the water, the Frigidaire agitator pumps sudsy water through the clothes. Keeps clothes entirely underwater too. Always circulating. Never letting them ride up.

And it works. Give even the heaviest, dirtiest denims 6600 ups and downs and they come thoroughly clean. But that's easy. The real test is with your dainty things. They don't take kindly to backs and forths. But they come clean gently with ups and downs. No drag. Anything you can put in water can be washed in the Frigidaire up-down Washer.

More facts: You can use liquid or powder washing aids. You can spin water out fast when washing's done, leaving clothes barely damp and saving drying time. Still more facts? See your Frigidaire Washer dealer. See his matching dryers, too.

Pres. of Zeller's Appointed to New Position

MONTREAL — Mr. Peter Kilburn, the chairman of the board of directors of Zeller's Limited, has announced the resignation of the Company's president and chief executive officer, James G. Kendrick, so that he may undertake the responsibilities of a new position, that of sales vice-president, to be created at W. T. Grant Company, with which Zeller's Limited is affiliated.

Mr. Kendrick's resignation will become effective December 1st but he will continue, as a member of the Board of Directors of Zeller's Limited.

It was also announced, that John G. Curtis has been appointed a director of Zeller's Limited and that he will succeed Mr Kendrick as the company's president and chief executive officer.

Mr. Curtis is forty-two years of age, and a graduate of Fordham University in New York City. He gained his business experience in the service of both the Grant and Zeller companies. After twelve years with the W. T. Grant Company, he joined the Zeller organization in March 1959 at the latter's head office in Montreal, where he became Controller of the company and in due course assumed executional responsibilities as its treasurer and financial vice-president and as one of its directors.

In August 1962, he returned to W. T. Grant Company as its comptroller, which position he relinquishes to undertake the leadership of the Zeller Company.

Prelates Try To Find Ways To Speed Work

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Restless prelates at the Vatican ecumenical council are trying to find ways to make the assembly move more efficiently.

"At present at a week ago more bishops were reasonably satisfied with the pace of council work," Msgr. Derek Worlock, secretary of the English hierarchy, reports. "But now proposals are starting to arise on what can be done outside the daily sessions to get matters moving faster."

Bishop Helmut Wittler of Osnabruck, West Germany, told a council press conference Saturday that many prelates have expressed their dissatisfaction with the slowness of the council discussions, especially during the first part of the (last) week. Not a few of the speakers did not appear to make any definite and concrete contribution to the progress of the council."

Since the second council phase began Sept. 29, the 2,300 council fathers have been debating a topic called De Ecclesia, which examines the nature and structure of the church. Fifteen to 20 speakers a day have been getting up to suggest changes for the council's theology commission to incorporate into the schema.

So far only three of the four De Ecclesia chapters have been discussed and no amendment has come back for a vote. With six weeks remaining before the Dec. 4 recess, many bishops have begun to worry about how the council can ever hope to make progress on its state of 16 additional schemata.

SHORT OF MEN

Observers questioned whether the arms, apparently ordered six months ago, could be put to use immediately in the conflict in view of Algeria's shortage of trained manpower.

But the threat of foreign involvement in the dispute troubled U.S. officials. U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter conferred with Ben Bella Saturday and warned him of the danger of internationalizing the war.

In the last few days, the Moroccans have beefed up their tough professional army of 35,000 by mobilizing 20,000 auxiliaries and an equal number of the Second World War and Indo-China veterans who fought with the French.

Boarding-House Fire at Sudbury Takes 2 Lives

SUDBURY (CP)—Two men died and two others were injured jumping to safety as fire destroyed a 25-room boarding house here early Sunday.

Dead are painter Michael Maloney, 42, and Joseph Ogerek, 62, employed at the International Nickel Company of Canada mine here.

The body of Mr. Maloney, believed to have been partially crippled, was found in his room.

The body of Mr. Ogerek, originally from Yugoslavia, was found in a corridor at the rear of the building.

Boarders jumped from second- and third-floor windows and three men tied a blanket around a restaurant sign outside a window and slid to the ground.

The only exit was a wooden staircase at the rear of the building in the fire area. It was burned. Other boarders are believed to have found their way to safety through an adjoining restaurant.

Joseph Morris, 36, received minor injuries when he jumped 30-feet from his third-floor window and landed on the roof of a car. He was in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Bureau Chief Criticized by Moscow Paper

MOSCOW (AP)—Preston Grover, chief of The Associated Press Moscow bureau, was criticized by the government newspaper Izvestia Sunday for checking conditions at a local farmers' market.

Grover visited the market Oct. 18 to investigate reports that there was panic buying of potatoes and vegetables.

Izvestia printed a letter from three farm women who said they had protested about pictures.

In a publisher's note, Izvestia called Grover a Knight of the Cold War and added:

"If Mr. Grover wants to find out about queues and write about them, then it will be better for him to go to those where millions of people are standing in known sacred factory gates in hope of finding work, or near cashiers' offices for unemployment payments."

15 Acres of Big Swamp Near Picton Burned Over

PICTON — Fire in the Big Swamp area, northwest of Picton, offered a challenge to Picton fire fighters Sunday afternoon. About fifteen acres were burned over and since the bog is likely to smoulder for some time, the area was circled by a trench, of barren earth, using John Leavitt's bull-dozer.

The fire was located in a marsh on property owned by Clayton Carter, who lives west of Doxsee church and was at the far end of Broadbridge Island, better known as Doolittle Island. It was a half mile from the county road, north of Ben Gill cheese factory.

The swamp area had been cut over years ago but there are still small size trees, along with marshy grasses and leaves.

FIRE CONTAINED

On all sides and extending for miles east is the Big Swamp Woods, the country's most massive woodlot. Fortunately, the fire was contained and did not burn into the roaring forest fire as it might have done as everything is very dry.

HEADS ASSOCIATION

REGINA (CP)—Mrs. W. Harold Clark of Toronto was re-elected Saturday as president of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada at the close of its national conference.

Bloomfield and Camp Picton fire brigades responded to the call but due to the bog could not get in sufficiently close to be used.

One plan had been to secure a fire-fighting aircraft from the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed, but this was not possible.

Cause of the outbreak is not known and is not connected with the fact that logs are being cut on the Roy Brooks' bush which adjoins that owned by Mr. Carter. These logs go to Kitchener and Oakville for furniture and basket manufacture.

MANY VOLUNTEERS

While there is an entrance to the island from Doxsee-Picton road, it was necessary to walk some distance to the fire. There were numerous volunteers but they could do little.

Fire department heads emphasized that while no cause of the fire could be determined, caution should be exercised everywhere due to dry conditions. A cigarette butt thrown in the ditch from the highway could start a bad fire, it was stated.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

This is the week of the big Hallowe'en masquerade dance to be held in ANAF auditorium on Friday, November 1st. The entertainment chairman reports that there will be lots of good prizes for the various costumes as well as door and dance prizes. The dance floor is in excellent shape and Comrade Don expects the biggest crowd of the season so come early and avoid the rush. All members and their friends will be made very welcome so make up a party and join in the fun and gayety. Always a good time for all.

The members will be sorry to hear that Comrade Sheldon Smith was taken to Belleville General Hospital, Room 143, Saturday afternoon and had a minor operation right away which somewhat relieved the severe pain he was suffering. At last report he was resting fairly comfortably. He has had X-rays taken and may have to undergo further surgery. Everyone wishes him a speedy recovery. Comrade Ab Brenton is still at the BGH and coming along as well as can be expected and the same applies to "Warpy" O'Brien who is still at the Kingston General. Comrade Bert Wells is coming along pretty well at the Sunnybrook Hospital and is looking forward to being able to come home in the not too distant future.

The sports chairman and his committee are still trying to get a program of sports for the winter months organized and George would appreciate any ideas any of the members might have as to what they would like to play. So if you have any suggestions tell them to George.

In his role as band manager he reports that there is still room for a few more young fellows who are interested in learning to play the pipes. They can contact Pipe-Major McNiven any Wednesday evening in the ANAF auditorium, which is practice night for the band.

READY FOR BANQUET

Arrangements are rapidly becoming completed for the annual Remembrance Day banquet in the auditorium on Saturday, Nov. 9th at 7 p.m. A good program has been arranged and don't forget, there are only 100 tickets being sold, so get yours from the stewards early and don't be disappointed. Tickets are available to all veterans, regardless of affiliations.

It is reported that both the Royal Canadian Legion and the ANAF Vets in Canada are investigating the news that the Memorial Building project is being sidetracked and if the facts warrant it, both organizations are going to word an extremely strong protest to the government.

Remember to wear a Poppy next week for Remembrance Day.

To Comrades Ray Denike and Ab Brenton, the members will softly sing "Happy Birthday to You," for Monday, October 28th.

Comrade Art Hobbs, representing the president and members of Unit 201, presented the annual bursary awarded a son or daughter of a veteran who has high standing in Grade XIII, and is continuing further education, to Miss Shannon Knight at the BCIVS commencement exercises.

INTERESTING ITEM

Disability pensioners helped to help themselves. Disability pensions of World War I, World War II, the Korean conflict and the regular forces, are given an opportunity to develop their remaining abilities towards self sufficiency through the Pensioners Training Regulations introduced in 1959 as part of the rehabilitation program created by the DVA's Veterans Welfare Services.

Prior to the inception of these regulations, many had been trained under the Veterans Rehabilitation Act. Pensioners' Training Regulations exist for the sole purpose of helping disabled men who are unable to resume their former occupations because of their service-incurred disabilities to fit themselves for employment in another field using their remaining abilities. The regulations provide for the payment of retraining fees and subsistence allowances for trainees. There is a small but steady flow of applications for this training, and more than 85 per cent of those who complete their training obtain employment and become productive members of society.

Since inception of the Regulations 862 approvals have been granted for training, with 60 pensioners receiving assistance during the past year. Of these 29 took university courses at a cost of $9,600, and 41 received vocational training at a cost of $38,125.

This is all for this week, see you at the dance.

Keeler Faces Hearing on Perjury Charge

LONDON (AP)—A co-defendant's claim that Christine Keeler resorted on perjury money she possessed that her last court testimony was heard today at the playgirl's hearing on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice resumed after a three - week adjournment.

The court heard a complaint attributed to Rudolph Fenton, 39, a West Indian, that Christine refused to pay him a promised £1,000 ($3,000) to support her story that she was taken up last April by her ex-lover, Jamaican jazz singer Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon.

A witness testified that Fenton complained "he was having all the headaches out of the case and was not getting any financial benefit out of it."

The court was told Christine was reaping large profits by selling her story to the newspapers.

The case against Christine, 21, is based on police charges that she framed charges against Gordon which resulted in his being sent to jail on accusations of beating her up. Gordon's conviction was later reversed by the Appeal Court. Police investigated further and arrested Christine and three others on charges that might set her 28 years in prison.

Union Breaks Many Windows, Steals Ensign

ST. JOSEPH DE BEAUCE, Que. (CP) — L'Union Canada Autonome (union for an autonomous Canada) made its existence official early Saturday by breaking a dozen windows in the federal post office here, stealing a Red Ensign and splashing the initials UCA in black letters on the building.

L'Union, in a recent letter to an area weekly newspaper, said it had chosen the St. Joseph post office "to point out its existence."

The letter said the organization is not separatist.

Its object is "an independent Canada that belongs 100 per cent to Canadians and not 25 per cent to Americans."

The post office is directly across the street from the Quebec Provincial Police office in St. Joseph. The broken windows were discovered Sat. when noticed until postal employees arrived at work at 8 a.m. Saturday.

National Theatre At Ottawa Is Proposed

OTTAWA (CP)—A $9,000,000 national showcase for the performing arts, including a 2,500-seat opera house, has been proposed for Canadas capital with the opening performances coinciding with the 1967 centenial celebrations.

A 185-page report released today by the National Capital Arts Alliance calls for the centre to become a focal point in the country's cultural life and the seat of an annual Canadian festival of the arts.

It says no city in Canada of comparable size has worse facilities for the performing arts than Ottawa, and better facilities are to be found in the capital cities of at least 22 other countries.

The report was prepared by Dominion Consultant Associates for the alliance, which is formed by some 30 organizations active in the creative and performing arts fields. Proposals based on it are expected to be submitted to the federal government within two weeks.

BE IN ONE BUILDING?

The proposed centre would consist of a single building, in which would be the opera house, a 1,100-seat theatre, a 230-seat studio theatre and a 160-seat salon for presentations of the visual arts and for smaller recitals, meetings and receptions.

Construction would begin in the spring of 1965 with the completion date set for March 1, 1967.

Should the government approve the scheme as a centennial project, the arts centre might become eligible for a grant from the $100,000,000 federal centenary fund. Once in operation, it would not be expected to be a money-making proposition.

Not All the Dumb Bunnies Live in the Country

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a high school junior who lives in a small town in Nebraska. All my life I have heard that country kids are dumb and city kids are smart. The expression "small town rube" and "hick from the sticks" illustrate the point.

Well, a few weeks ago I went to New York with my family to attend my grandfather's funeral. For the first time I got to know my New York and New Jersey cousins. These kids are all about my age and they have lived in big cities all their lives. One of the girls did not know that milk comes from cows. She said she always thought milk was manufactured.

When I told her I used to milk cows when we lived on the farm she said, "I once heard something about that but I couldn't figure out how a cow could sit on those little bottles."

Please, Ann Landers, print this letter for all the small town kids who think their city cousins know so much more than they do. Since that trip I'm feeling a whole lot smarter.—NEBRASKA BRAIN.

DEAR BRAIN — Someone very wise once said, "We are all ignorant — on different subjects."

I'd hate to tell you how old I was before I learned that a hen could lay eggs without the help of a rooster. And I was born and raised in Iowa.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband is about as close to perfect as a man can be. I'm a very lucky woman. His only fault, Ann, is that he has a habit of writing cheques when he has no money in the bank.

Almost every week I get a telephone call from a business firm and somebody says, "Your husband's cheque was returned to us today marked insufficient funds."

I reply, "There must be a mistake at the bank. Please send the cheque through again. I'm sure it will clear." Then I scurry around and borrow from a friend or a relative which I pay back out of my husband's next cheque.

The maddening part of it all is that my husband never bothers to subtract from the balance when he writes a cheque. Yet he is always shocked to hear he is overdrawn. How can he possibly know what his balance is when he doesn't do the arithmetic?

Any suggestions? I'm beside myself. — Mrs. L. S. F.

DEAR MRS. — Offer to relieve your husband of the nuisance of writing cheques and paying bills. If he refuses, direct all those telephone calls to him and let him scurry around covering the clinkers. After a few such experiences he'll probably hand over the job — with pleasure.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My daughter's boy friend will be leaving soon for the service. He is 23 and Penny is 20. They've been dating two months. He wants to give her an engagement ring before he leaves.

Penny says she loves him and is willing to wait. I hate to see any young girl tie herself up for two years. Penny has always been a sensible person and she will not accept the ring unless I give my consent.

I would hate to wreck my daughter's life by giving her bad advice.

Please tell me what you think about this. — SERVICE BOUND.

DEAR BOUND — It's foolish for a girl to sit around waiting for two years after two months courtship.

By dating others both Penny and her boy friend will give themselves a fair shake. If it's really love they'll have no trouble picking up the threads when he comes home.

Plan to Give More Power To Committees

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—How are the political parties in Parliament going to translate into action their general agreement that House of Commons committees should be made more powerful and effective?

The problem is one for the rules committee, set up early last week to recommend changes to Commons rules.

There are two main types of Commons committees — standing and special. But all have this in common: They don't travel down paths of inquiry without the government's acquiescence.

Standing committees must be set up at every session of Parliament. They aren't required to meet and conduct hearings. But their machinery must be available in case the Commons wants to refer something to them for study.

Special committees generally are set up at government request to inquire into some specific subject or problem. Only rarely has a private member's motion for a special committee been adopted.

ACTS FOR MAJORITY

A committee has no existence except as an arm of the Commons. It acts only on Commons instructions. That almost invariably means its instructions are what the majority party in the Commons thinks should be given to the committee.

Opposition MPs or government supporters who think one particular subject needs special attention really need government support to get an inquiry going.

In the end, the effort to make committees more powerful and effective may boil down to the government referring a lot more legislation or spending programs to them.

And that means the government retains its power to ensure that no problem that might be politically dangerous to itself will get much of a hearing.

DEAR HENRY — During the summer I was employed at a gas station. My boss seemed O.K. at the beginning but after he turned out to be a real Simon Legree.

For a very small wage he kept me busy every second of every hour and gave me only 15 minutes for lunch. The thought that kept me going through all this was the thought of writing him a rude letter when I start school. Do you think I should tell Scrooge what I think of him? DAVID J.

DEAR DAVID J. — The thought that really kept you was the very small salary you were getting. Why didn't you just quit? Because there were no other jobs and you needed money. Next year you may be in the same predicament and a rude letter is not a recommendation. HENRY

I have recently broken my relationship with my girl friend, whom I have accused of having too many "friends." We had been going together for almost six months before this happened.

I like her very much but I don't trust her. I have asked her out many times but she always finds an excuse. Last Friday (when she told me she was doing her homework) I saw her skating with some friends (boys) and she had told me she didn't like skating.

However, I am anxious to see her again. Could you please mend our "puppy love." HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN — The girl at the other end of your "puppy love" is just a sly fox. I think she is picking you up every time there is a lull in business.

Show that you are under your own management and unless she makes a steady favorable change of course forget her. Look around for a girl who is more faithful and considerate in your feelings. HENRY

FRANKFORD

U.C. Presbytery Elects Officers At Frankford

United Church men of Cobourg Presbytery, filled Frankford United Church to capacity on Wednesday evening, arriving by car and bus, to hear Rev. Harry Mellow of Ottawa, who challenged United Church Men' Clubs to "hit the target" in worship, Bible study and service. "Only worthwhile projects can justify the club's existence and keep it alive," said Mr. Mellow. "Only intelligent Bible interpretation taking full cognizance of recently discovered scientific facts, can hold the modern searcher after truth."

Albert Hirock of Cobourg led an inspiring sing-song, unison and harmony and sang a solo with Rev. R. Knock of Grafton at the organ.

The minister of Frankford Church, Rev. Charles R. Judd, welcomed the men briefly, expressing pleasure at the dynamic surge of interest by men in the work and doctrine of the Christian Church. Worship was conducted by Arnold Boes, Brighton. The speaker was introduced by Earl Jones, Roseneath, and thanked by Harold Milne, Campbellford.

Prize Skotallan, Batawa, brought the report of the nominating committee and the following officers were elected and installed in office by Sid Martin, Belleville. Past president, O. J. Robbins, Roseneath; president, Jack Williams, Frankford; vice-president, Arnold Boes, Brighton; treasurer, William Bowen, Warkworth; secretary, Gordon Savage, Frankford.

The benediction was pronounced by Dr. D. M. Smith, Campbellford and the meeting adjourned to Rose Lowery Hall where Frankford United Church Women had prepared lunch and a social hour was enjoyed, including some excellent pictures of the 1200 man rally at Keswick, which many present had attended.

Garden Notes

Nursery Is Good Investment

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

A nursery corner in the garden is a good investment. This can be a small space 9 x 4 or 5 feet that will save you many dollars if planted out with small shrubs and trees. It will be a source of great satisfaction to watch these shrubs increase their value 100 percent or more in a few years.

All property needs nursery stock in varying amounts, not only to furnish your grounds but to replace unsatisfactory or dead shrubs. Shrubs in any quantity require a fat budget but small seedling shrubs, ever green or deciduous, are for sale in quantity at very low prices. All these plants need is time and a minimum of care to grow into graceful compact shrubs for the border or for accent plants.

PREPARE NOW

You may not be able to buy a great variety this fall but you can prepare the nursery and be ready to start in the spring. However; fall planting will give you a head start and the plants will have made roots and be ready for some top growth next year if planted now.

Do not set these small shrubs where they are to stay. Make a nursery plot where they can be cared for as a unit. The results will be much more satisfactory than planting them here and there singly.

Part of the space can be in light shade, but most shrubs need full sun. Fence the space with cinder building blocks, old fence posts laid end to end or old railway ties. This will guard against accidental trampling.

Dig the soil at least one foot deep. Mix in plenty of humus, such as peat, old sawdust or ground corn cobs or compost, and some bone meal. If your soil is heavy clay lighten it with sand or perlite.

Allow for space to develop into well rounded plants. Do not hoe, this may injure the tender roots. Hand weed.

When the plants arrive set them out immediately an inch below their former depth. Firm soil well around roots to prevent air pockets. Soak the soil with a fine spray and mulch to prevent heaving from rapid temperature changes. It will conserve moisture and eliminate most of the weeding too. Never allow the soil to dry out completely.

Protect the plants in hot summer weather from the blazing sun with a portable lath shade. A lath house is easy to build if you are raising rhododendrons.

Spray two or three times a year to discourage insects and fungus diseases.

As the shrubs reach the right size for moving replace them with new stock and keep your nursery well stocked.

Evergreens because of their slow growth will offer the greatest savings in your budget. Compare prices on yews, junipers, pines and hybrid azaleas and you will be surprised in the price spread. Deciduous shrubs are well worth including as they grow quickly and need less winter protection and soon give a good return for little effort.

Prisoner Waited 59 Years Without Mail But When It Came It Was a Deluge

CHESTER, Ill. (AP)—Richard Honeck waited in prison 59 years without receiving mail. When it came it was a deluge.

Honeck, 84, is serving what may be the longest prison term of any man alive. He has been behind bars 64 years, since his imprisonment in 1899 for the slaying of a school teacher.

His recent mail resulted from an Associated Press story on his long imprisonment. Prior to that, Honeck's last letter was in 1904. It came from a brother expressing concern for his health.

Warden Ross Randolph collected Honeck's recent pile of mail and called the old man into his office. When Honeck saw the bundle of more than 2,000 letters and a score of packages, he appeared bewildered.

Honeck, a little bald man, blinked and stammered. Finally he said:

"It'll sure take me a long time to read all these. I'm surprised and pleased that so many people have expressed this much interest and anxiety in an old prisoner."

Then he opened some letters.

NIECE WRITES

One was from a niece, a 63-year - old California woman whom Honeck had believed to be dead.

Another letter brought a proposal of marriage. It was from an elderly woman in Russian West Germany. Warden Randolph, who had the letter translated, wrote back that even if Honeck were freed he could not leave the U.S.

Numerous U.S. military men overseas wrote and one, in South Korea, said: "I too have felt the bitter hunger of loneliness and know how you must feel."

A North Carolina man, who said he and his wife were 50 years old and had three children, wrote to Warden Randolph:

"When we read the article on Mr. Honeck, Dad was still alive. He died two weeks ago at age 83 and his vacant room is hard to look at. The paper said Mr. Honeck will be eligible for parole in November. What are the chances of him taking Dad's place?"

CANADIANS WRITE

The letters came from all over the U.S. and from many other countries, including Canada. One person enclosed an inexpensive oil paint set and some money ranging from 25 cents to $5.

Many persons simply wrote newsy letters telling about themselves and their families in surprising detail.

A 17-year-old Australian girl wrote that she is five feet, seven inches tall and has red hair. She had written three letters and two pictures more.

The warden said every writer would receive an answer, but most will be from his office. Honeck will be permitted to answer any that he desires, but prison rules allow only one outgoing letter weekly from convicts.

A prison rule also forbids convicts from receiving packages. But Randolph said this is one rule that will be broken in Honeck's case.

INFORMING BOARD

The warden said the Illinois parole board would be appraised of offers to Honeck of a home and employment and of calls from welfare agencies offering to look after him if he is paroled in November.

Honeck, who took several hours off from his prison job cutting bread to read the mail, summed up his feeling:

"It's hard to talk at a time like this, but I am very grateful. This has been quite a nice day—and so unexpected."

PLAIN TALK about aviation is given Air Cadets by officer Bud Woodley prior to free flips at Prince Edward Flying Club. Outing is part of course to give future airmen working knowledge of flight.

Air Cadets Take to Skies Over P. E. Flying Club

Being a hundred per-cent ground hog is strictly for the birds in this air age.

Thus, a party of Belleville teenagers will readily testify today. They seem to know. With official blessing, the party they were on Sunday morning got higher than a kite — much, much higher.

All members of 608 Air Cadet Squadron (Belleville) the youngsters initiated their membership term in the squadron by taking to the skies over Prince Edward Flying Club.

Shepherded by their commanding officers, 26 cadets spent the morning shuttling aboard club aircraft for free air trips over the Quinte district. A dramatic finale was given the outing when local skydivers staged a drop from 7,200 feet for the fledgling airmen.

In coming weeks the remainder of the squadron which has not yet been broken in aloft, will repeat yesterday's air excursion.

It took just three hours to give the cadets their baptism of air flight — and, if circumstances be favorable, they would have spent all day queueing up for more.

STARS IN EYES

Nervousness was no concern; over-eagerness, if anything, was the only problem as most of the youngsters came back from the altitudes with stars captured in their eyes.

Weather conditions were ideal for the mass induction. The civilian planes flown by veteran pilots Jack Hogan and Bud Woodley — one of the cadets' senior officers — flew under clear, warm skies, with perfect visibility.

However, the instructional aspect of the occasion was not forgotten. Before going aloft the cadets were given a lecture on the fundamentals of flying and the functions of aircraft controls by club instructor Murray Clapp.

In fact, this was probably the most important part of the event.

FINE CO-OPERATION

The flights are the result of co-ordination between the squadron's commanding officers and the local RCAF association — which sponsors the cadets — and the flying club.

Encouragement of future air men is one of the common denominators of all three.

"However, even if it doesn't give us pilots for tomorrow, it helps acquaint the coming generation with a working knowledge of aviation," say a squadron officer.

After their inductions yesterday, at least 26 youngsters will agree with him — and most other adults these days.

The future is up in the air!

Some Should Be Jailed

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Rev. William Sherwin, United Church chaplain of the Ontario Reformatory, Guelph, has criticized magistrates for fining or placing on probation young people who have committed a criminal offence after a drinking bout instead of sending them to jail.

Mr. Sherwin was addressing a weekend youth conference on alcohol attended by some 80 teen-agers from the Niagara Peninsula.

"Many of these people come from good homes," he said later in an interview. "A fine doesn't mean anything to them and probation is not the answer. Three to six months in a reformatory inhabited only by people in that age group can be of enormous help.

FOUR FLEE

ESCHWEGE, Germany (AP) Four East Germans fled to West Germany during the weekend near here. Two came over under the cover of fog, the other by swimming a border river, police reported Monday.

20 Collections Of Rare Coins Shown in City

Five hundred and fifty dollars worth of rare coins changed hands Saturday evening at the combined Bay of Quinte Coin Club Coin-O-Rama at the Kiwanis Centre in Belleville. Auctioneer was Major Roy Hider of Montreal. About half the coins offered were sold.

About twenty collections were displayed at the all-day meet, and seven dealers from Canada and the U.S. attended. Judged best display of the show was the Chinese coin collection by Frank Sorensen, a Toronto resident now, but formerly president and still a member of the Bay of Quinte club.

First prize went to Keith Paul of Belleville, second to Edith Morris, of Trenton, and third to Allen Guay of Trenton.

Will Be "Several Years" Before Red China Can Test Atomic Bomb Says Minister

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's Foreign Minister Chen Yi was quoted today as saying it will be "several years" before his country can test an atomic bomb.

Kyodo news service said the Chinese vice premier made this statement in Peking to visiting Japanese newspaper men.

Chen was reported to have said that the delay in testing was due to the backward state of China's industrial base and that it will be some time before it can mass produce atomic weapons.

But he emphasized the Chinese Communist government has every intention of acquiring nuclear power, because without it China would remain a second- or third-class nation.

He said China is close to resolution of the problems of atomic weapon production.

China's objective is, he added, to be equipped with atomic bombs, missiles and supersonic weapons "within a few years."

NOTES TAUNT

He noted that the Russians had taunted China on wanting to produce expensive nuclear weapons when it didn't have enough trousers to go around. Chen added that even if China had to go without trousers, it must have modern weapons.

In any case, Chen Yi added, possession of atomic weapons will not affect China's domestic or foreign policy. With or without bombs, it will refuse to kneel before the United States.

Chen said the Chinese economy has been going through a period of adjustment following three years of natural calamities, the withdrawal in 1960 of Russian engineers and Western restrictions on trade. As a result of the Russian withdrawal it would take another year for the economy to right itself.

Turning to the Sino - Soviet quarrel, he said that relations between the two countries should be established on a moral basis rather than on temporary self-interest.

He said he did not share the view that the differences of opinion would lead to a break. But he insisted that relations between the two nations could be improved only if China continued to maintain its support of Marxism-Leninism, meaning the revolutionary line rather than Russia's policy of co-existence.

Chen denounced the limited nuclear test ban treaty as aimed at putting the blame on China when it begins testing.

Anti-Sukarno Rallies Held In Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) — Malaysian aborigines perforated an effigy of Indonesian President Sukarno with poison darts from blow pipes Sunday and then set it alight with shouts of laughter.

At other anti-Sukarno rallies here and in Klang, 20 miles west of here, Indonesian leaders were denounced by political leaders before cheering crowds. Then effigies were burned, a standard Sunday pastime in recent weeks.

In Kuala Pilah, 63 miles south of here, more than 5,000 persons, including several hundred aborigines, attended an anti-Sukarno rally. The banner carrying, slogan slogan shouting crowd marched through the town and pledged support to Malaysia. The demonstration was climaxed by the impatient aborigines shooting an effigy of Sukarno full of poison darts.

In Kuala Lumpur, Finance Minister Tan Siew Sin, speaking to a crowd of 10,000 in drenching rain, appealed to all youths to register their names for national service.

"This will prove all of us are united and it will prove your loyalty to the nation," he said.

In Klang, V. Manickavasagam, the assistant minister of labor, told a crowd of 2,000 that Indonesia opposes Mayalasi because "Sukarno and his gang are jealous of us."

Jakarta has cut off trade and diplomatic relations with Malaysia—a federation of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah (formerly North Borneo)—charging that its formation was a British colonialist plot to encircle Indonesia.

In Jakarta, Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio declared Sunday that Britain is purposely trying to keep the Malaysians asleep so she can maintain "her beneficial position" in the new federation.

Subandrio also accused British of using the new federation as a base "to encircle Indonesia and undermine the Indonesian revolution."

Key to Defusing Explosive Situation in Viet Nam Is Patience Says Ikeda

William L. Ryan has been on a tour of Southeast Asia. A specialist for nearly 20 years in Communist affairs and the international reaction to communism, he reports here the views of Japan's premier about Asian hot spots.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

TOKYO (AP)—Premier Hayato Ikeda of Japan says the key to defusing the explosive situation in South Viet Nam is patience.

Ikeda, whose influence is being felt more and more in Asian and world affairs, reflects hope that South Viet Nam can be calmed down and that, even the seemingly insoluble Malaysian-Indonesian crisis can be resolved.

He declared in a weekend interview:

"Difficult situations exist in Laos and South Viet Nam, but I believe recent United States policy toward these countries has been generally good."

"There is a seeming recession of tension in problems centering around Berlin, thus there is a possibility or rising tension in this area (Southeast Asia). Therefore, the situation in this area should be very closely watched and wisely handled.

Regarding South Viet Nam, Ikeda said he believes something might be done by paying more attention to the Buddhists, whose complaints of religious persecution against President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime have brought a critical situation and sharp conflict between Saigon and Washington.

On the Malaysian-Indonesian dispute, Ikeda said the outlook "may be hopeful." He said it would be necessary to create a climate which would enable the two nations to understand each other's problems "and find through consultations and discussions a way out of the present impasse."

Ikeda's conversation skipped across the whole map of Asia.

On Communist China, he said:

"Speaking of political development in Asia, it seems to me much depends on how Communist China develops in the next few years. At present there is a sharp division between Communist China and the Soviet Union and it seems to me this conflict will continue for some time to come.

"As a result, Communist China's trade has decreased to a third of what it was three years ago. Communist China can ill afford to engage again in any great-leap-forward program, which already seems to have failed. The Chinese will continue, as they are doing now, to concentrate their economic efforts on agricultural adjustments."

He indicated this would oblige China to pursue a more moderate course than its words might lead outsiders to expect.

"I don't believe the Chinese will make any positive or active moves on the Indian border, because it would be most foolhardy if they did," he said. "At any rate, I would hope that the Chinese would pursue a realistic and moderate course.

Diefenbaker Calls Banks 'Pampered Pet of Liberalism'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Saturday night the Liberal government has gone through six months of indecision, revision and retreat.

The Progressive Conservative leader told a crowd of 700 at a party rally that "never before in Canadian history has a government slipped so far so quickly."

Mr. Diefenbaker flew here for the function from Ottawa to be addressed at a national Conservative executive meeting.

He told the cheering Winnipeg audience in a downtown hotel ballroom he will ask for a vote of confidence in his leadership at the next annual meeting of the party.

"Whatever the decision," he said, "we will go forward together."

HITS AT LIBERALS

The Liberal rule, he said, has been "its months of indecision, revision and retreat to a degree less mess never before seen in this country."

He spoke at a testimonial dinner for Manitoba Conservative MLAs and MPs organized by the Winnipeg Conservative Club.

The former prime minister appealed for party unity.

"Let's start fighting Grits rather than fighting among ourselves," he said in an apparent reference to the party's cabinet division prior to the last election.

Conservatives, strong in the West, Mr. Diefenbaker said, "lost last time in the urban, suburban areas." He promised to "press hard" with a policy on suburban development on which he invited suggestions.

"There's no dictatorship in me," he said, adding later "we're going to organize all parts of Canada."

Terming Hal Banks, leader of the Seafarers' International Union (Lind.), the "pampered pet of Liberalism" Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals allowed the American-born official to remain in Canada when they had the opportunity to deport him before the Conservatives came to power in 1957.

Suggesting Banks owe all he wanted from the Liberals in the current Great Lakes labor truck-ing dispute, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "There were no sweetheart deals when we were in office."

HAS BIG SURPLUS

Alberta had a $15,000,000 surplus in the year ended March 31, Provincial Auditor C. K. Hucklvale reported. In a report on 1962-63 government operations, Mr. Huckvale said oil revenues accounted for most of the surplus and added increased oil royalties and revenues from sale of leases and reservations likely will provide another $15,-000,000 surplus on current operations.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Monday, November 4th, is the day of the Great Exodus.

"A STAR IS BORN"

There is no truth in the rumor that the Bowl-O-Drome's Bill Bateman has been signed to understudy Dr. Zorba in the TV Ben Casey show although with a ruffled hair-do he could fill the bill.

Bill starred in his own television show Saturday afternoon over the CBC network. At least he made it his show particularly in the fifth game of the championship bowling series at the O'Connor Bowl.

Playing against Toronto's Nick Slaiko, Bill bowled a brilliant 234 in the fifth game to win the championship with an aggregate of 1291 as against Slaiko's 1189. Bill took the title three matches to two.

He rolled four straight strikes to end the fourth game then practically wrapped up the title with five straight strikes in the fifth. Slaiko rallied in the later frames but Bateman came back to maintain the lead and grab the gold and gravy.

The popular Bowl-O-Drome bowler-manager won the title game with a victory margin of 102 pins. His game scores were 223-223-211-231 and a victory-winning fifth game total of 234.

I understand Bill meets another challenger next Saturday afternoon and will be seen on the CBC television network. If he maintains that fifth-game form of last Saturday, he'll be rather tough to beat.

SOMEONE SHOULD TELL WIRKOWSKI

From this story that came to me via the "underground" it would seem that football coaches have overlooked a good bet in a Belleville sports figure.

Sid Forster, the coach of the Kearners senior basketball team will be the most surprised man in the city when he reads it.

According to my informant it seems that Sid in his "younger" days was a mean scrimmy Rough Stephens, Russ Jackson and a few other top quarterbacks rolled into one. At least that was the opinion of the local fandom.

I am told that Sid recently attended a sports function in Sudbury where with another grid star he was feted and honored for not only his playing ability but administrative qualities.

Sid, with a fellow player, Cec Brown, were saluted in a tangible way by league and club officials of the Northern Rugby Football Union. It seems it was a toss-up as to whom was the "most valuable" to his team and the league, but Sid eventually got the nod.

The function marked the tenth anniversary of the year and Brown and Forster were selected as the most outstanding contributors to the game and the league over a period of years. (And I thought that guy was just past 23.)

My informant told me that Sid was one of the outstanding players of the league for not a few seasons, and his interest in, and efforts for the club and the league were outstanding. He was a member of the Sudbury club.

THE THIRD STAR

The third weekend salute goes to the fine Thomasburg softball team which brought to its part of Eastern Ontario the first Ontario Amateur Softball Association championship this year. Under the coaching of a Mr. Soaking, the village club came up with a brilliant seasonal effort consistent down to the finals series.

OASA provincial titles have been more or less of a rarity down this way the past few years and Thomasburg should be, and I am sure is, very proud of its first championship squad.

Houston Back On Top

Oakland Upsets Chargers

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sid Gillman, the ol' professor of the American Football League, has taught his pupils well. Too well for coach Sid Gillman.

Two of Gillman's able assistants have become head coaches in the AFL—Jack Faulkner of Denver Broncos and Al Davis of Oakland Raiders. Faulkner's Broncos have defeated San Diego three times without a loss. Gillman matched his wits with Davis for the first time Sunday. He's 0-1 against his pupils now.

Cotton Davidson's nine-yard touchdown pass to Glenn Starr, reactivated from the deferred injury list just before the game, carried Oakland from behind to a stunning 34-33 upset of the Western Division leading chargers.

The victory pulled Raiders to within 1½ games of Chargers, San Diego is 5-2, Oakland 4-4.

Houston Oilers took over the top spot in the East as George Blanda passed for three second half touchdowns in Oilers' 28-7 triumph over Kansas City Chiefs. Houston leads with a 5-3 record.

LOSE TO BUFFALO

Boston Patriots dropped to a tie for second at 4-4 after a 28-21 loss to Buffalo Bills Saturday night while New York Jets remained in contension at 3-5-1 after a 35-35 tie with Denver before a record AFL turnout in New York of 20,377. The four-game program attracted 106,133, the season's high.

RUGBY STAR KILLED

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A head-on crash between two cars on the main Dublin-Belfast road Sunday night killed three men and a girl, among them Irish international rugby star Gerry Hardy, 27.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Boston Bruins and Gordie Howe waited for what seemed like ages, but both reached National Hockey League milestones Sunday night. Howe scored the 544th regular season goal of his career to tie Maurice (Rocket) Richard's record, a feat that eluded him for three frustrating games. And the Bruins won a game, their first victory in eight starts this season.

Howe's accomplishment touched off five minutes cheering and paper-throwing demonstration by 14,749 Detroit Red Wings fans at Olympia Stadium.

They had little else to cheer about as Montreal whipped the Wings 6-4.

On other games Sunday, Chicago Black Hawks opened up a four-point first place lead with a 6-1 victory over the New York Rangers and Boston, behind stalwart goaltending by Ed Johnston, blanked the Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0.

Saturday, Montreal and Chicago played to a 1-1 deadlock and Toronto outscored New York 8-4.

FIRST BRUIN WIN

The Bruins had lost six straight games since opening the season with a 4-4 tie against the Canadiens until the encounter with Toronto.

Johnston locked the door with 33 saves and Boston tasted victory with goals by Forbes Kennedy and Murray Oliver.

Kennedy got his first of the season unassisted in the opening period when he picked up a loose puck in his own end and outraced two Leafs to beat Johnny Bower with a 20-footer that bounced off the goalie's chest and dribbled in.

Oliver's marker, a 10-footer off a pass from Tom Williams, came in the second period while Toronto was shorthanded.

Ab McDonald sparked the Hawks with two goals and Bobby Hull and John McKenzie got singles as Chicago moved four points up on Toronto and Montreal, tied for second.

A goal by Don Marshall gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead, but it didn't last through the first period.

TWO IN MINUTE

Jean Beliveau scored twice within a minute and ten seconds in the second period to break open a 1-1 tie and lead the Canadiens to victory over the Wings. Montreal never looked back from that point.

Montreal's Red Berenson opened the scoring but Parker MacDonald tied it up. Beliveau made it 2-1 and despite Detroit goals by Larry Jeffrey, Bill Gadaby and Howe, the Canadiens scored at least one about on numbers by Dave Balon, Bernie Geoffrion and Gilles Tremblay.

Howe, who gets a chance to break the record Tuesday against Chicago, tied the Rocket's mark with a clean shot he banged in Bruce MacGregor's goon from the boards at close range on a Detroit power play.

Red even threw couldn't hold the Canadiens, who bombed Wings goalie Terry Chuck with 45 shots.

The Habs also were flying high on Saturday but Chicago netminder Glenn Hall was sensational, especially during Montreal's all-out effort in the third period. He stopped 12 shots in the last frame while the Hawks managed only four.

HULL GETS BEAUW

Rookie John Ferguson was the only man to beat Hall and he burned the Chuck at the 29-minute mark of the opening period. Hull earned the Hawks draw in the second period when he knocked on Murray Balfour's goalmouth pass.

It was a goalie's nightmare in Toronto where Bower faced 40 shots in the Leafs nets and Jacques Plante was tested 34 times at New York's end.

Toronto owned a 3-0 lead on goals by Frank Mahovlich, George Armstrong and Eddie Shack until Ridway through the middle period when the Rangers caught fire. Camille Henry, Phil Goyette and Al Langlois each scored in a New York drive even and then took a 4-3 lead early in the third when Vic Hadfield counted.

But Mahovlich and Armstrong got their second goals of the night to put the Leafs back in the game's end and Dave Keon added an insurance marker.

The Big Seven

Jean Beliveau and Bernie Geoffrion of the Montreal Canadiens both counted four points in two weekend games to move into a first-place tie with Chicago's Stan Mikita in the National Hockey League's top seven scoring list.

Beliveau scored two goals and picked up two assists and Geoffrion notched one goal and three assists to tie Mikita for the lead at 12 points. Mikita had to settle for two assists.

Geoffrion and Mikita have identical records of six goals and six assists while Beliveau has scored three and helped set up nine more.

Bobby Hull of Chicago also had a productive weekend. The blonde bomber scored his fourth and fifth goals of the season and received two assists to stay within reach of the leaders at 10 points.

Montreal's John Ferguson scored once and earned two assists to move into a tie at nine points with Chicago's Ken Wharram, held pointless through the weekend.

Chicago's Ab McDonald scored twice Sunday night to draw even with Phil Goyette of New York at eight points. Goyette scored once in two weekend games.

Vancouver Canucks, too tight to throw anyone out of the Western Hockey League record to 1-5 Sunday afternoon.

San Francisco Seals took a share of first place by winning 3-1 before only 1,341 fans at Vancouver. Bill Eveland and Buckaroos won their first game at home, defeating Seattle Totems 4-1 in the same series before 7,537.

Saturday night Totems won 7-2 over Los Angeles Blades.

Seals picked up goals by Nick Mickoski in the first period, Les Haley in the second and Pete Panagakho in the third. Ron Hutchinson scored for Canucks.

Totems and Buckaroos went into the third period tied on goals by Larry Hale and Aric Goodwin. Then Tom McVie scored with 13 seconds left and Norm Locken drew his goaltender for an extra attacker, with the game result. Arnie Schmautz scored into the empty net in the last minute.

There wasn't anything complicated about the way New York Giants handled Cleveland Browns Sunday — they just whomped them at every turn.

The Giants overwhelmed the previously unbeaten Browns in a National Football League encounter in each convincing fashion that even New York coach Allie Sherman admitted:

"Maybe, we made some mistakes out there, but I didn't see any."

As for beaten coach Blanton Collier, he agreed.

"They simply outplayed us in every single eagle of the game."

And that the Giants did, from the splendid defence led by the Ro, La, Mo, Ko boys to the offensive heroes—Y. A. Tittle, the portly bald quarterback, and Joe Chandler, who kicked four field goals. The score was 33-6.

But the biggest single factor had to be the defence, led by the fearsome front four of Ro, La, Mo, Ko—Rosy Rosatelli, John Loveters, Dick Modzelewski and Jim Katcavage, who conforms to Ko because "Kat don't go."

Neither did Jimmy Brown, now Frank Ryan, Browns, the league's No. 1 rusher with a 150-yard-a-game average, was limited to 48 yards in nine carries. Ryan completed exactly one pass in nine attempts and wound up with a minus six yards for his efforts.

BROWNS STILL LEAD

The Browns' loss deprived the NFL of its last undefeated team, but Cleveland still leads the Eastern Conference with a 6-1 record, one game ahead of New York and St. Louis Cardinals, both 5-2. The Cardinals kept pace with the Giants as Charlie Johnson pitched three touchdown passes in a 21-7 victory over Washington Redskins.

Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears remained tied for the top spot in the West. The Packers made the most of top performances by speed-strikers. John Roach and Elijah Pitts for a 34-20 walloping of Baltimore Colts and the Bears defeated Philadelphia Eagles 16-7 on two long drives engineered by Billy Wade.

Elsewhere, Ed Brown passed for four touchdowns as Pittsburgh Steelers edged Dallas Cowboys 27-21, Detroit Lions got three touchdown passes from Earl Morrall in a 28-10 triumph over Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams used Roman Gabriel's passing to down San Francisco 49ers 28-21.

Deer Season Opening Not Postponed

Chief Forester W. Taylor, Tweed District, Lands and Forests Department, announced today that there will be no postponement of the opening date of the deer-hunting season scheduled for Monday, November 4th.

Mr. Taylor said the announcement was made by the Ontario Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests over the weekend.

However, due to the almost thaw-dry conditions in the forest areas, hunters are urgently requested to refrain from smoking while in the timberbush.

The fire hazard in the Tweed forest district is high, Mr. Taylor said. Towers are all manned and all personnel alerted.

"However," he said, "the visibility is extremely good and we believe we can cope with any outbreaks."

One small fire broke out over the weekend but this was quickly under control and put out.

Faloney Quickie Nips Riders 11-10

Argos Whip Saskys

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With Bernie Faloney in charge, you can always expect the unexpected.

The old pro, thought by many to have lost his quarterback job to young Joe Zagar when Hamilton Tiger - Cats began training this summer, cut himself a slice of the cake even before the season began.

Saturday, he put on the icing. He gave his tabbies the Eastern Football Conference title.

With the favored Tests being outplayed by Ottawa Rough Riders and locked in a tie game in the last minutes, Faloney decided to discard his arm, which wasn't doing the job.

With second down on the Ottawa 37-yard line and the score deadlocked at 10-10, Faloney set a roaring crowd of 38,077 into a frenzy as he hustled back and quick-kicked the ball out of the end zone.

It scored the winning point, and gave Hamilton a two-point edge over the second - place Rough Riders. More important, the 11-10 win gave them the season's series between the clubs two games to one.

Fined $200, $100

Campbell Tabs Ivan, Reay

MONTREAL (CP)—General-Manager Tommy Ivan and coach Billy Reay of the Chicago Black Hawks had different reactions Saturday to fines imposed on them for National Hockey League rule infractions.

Ivan was fined $200 for his part in a verbal battle with referee Vern Buffey following the NHL game Oct. 20 between the Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens in Chicago. The Hawks won 5-3.

Reay was fined $100 for delaying tactics.

"I don't want to comment on that," Ivan said briefly. "Only after the fines were announced by league president Clarence Campbell.

Reay was dead serious about his fine.

"I was surprised," he said. "I didn't think I deserved it. Mr. Campbell thought I was in the wrong, but I only wanted to delayed the game at all." Chicago defenceman Howie Young started the trouble Friday when he drew a minor, misconduct and game misconduct penalty. Referee Buffey then assessed the normal $75 fine. Reay, coach of the Hawks' Canadiens, said Reay was too involved in getting another player to take Young's place in the penalty box.

Ivan got himself involved later when he met Buffey going to the dressing room. They exchanged words about Buffey's work in the game.

Castle Forbes had to survive a foul claim before the result was made official by the Garden State park stewards.

Blue Norther, owned by H. R. Hawn, got second by a nose over Harry S. Nichols' Miss Candalight, who was third by a head over Jacques Wimpfheimer's Petite Rouge.

Fifteen juvenile misses competed in the ninth running of the $100,000 event.

Castle Forbes, a bay daughter of Tulyard-Longford, took 1:01.0% for the seven furlongs, her 1963 earnings to $237,696.

The time was 1:45 2-5 for the 1 1-16 miles. Castle Forbes paid off a triple Wheatley entry with Beautiful Day and Bold Queen second and third. Blue Norther paid $4.40 and $4.40. Miss Candalight was $5 to show. Blue Norther was a starter by with Petite Cricket.

Big Goal Recalls Famous Line

DETROIT (CP) — When Gordie Howe finally reached the biggest milestone Sunday night it must have brought back memories for two old forewards.

Coach Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings and Toe Blake, coach of the Montreal Canadiens, had a lot to do with this scoring record business.

Howe notched the 544th regular-season goal of his 18-year career to tie the National Hockey League record set by former Montreal scoring whiz Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Abel helped Howe get a lot of those goals when he centred Detroit's famed Production Line with Howe and Ted Lindsay as his wingers. And Blake was the leftwinger on the Canadiens' equally - famous Punch Line which had Elmer Lach at centre and the Rocket on right wing.

"I wish I could have played centre for you," Blake told Howe after his historic scoring effort.

FANS SALUTE HIM

Abel, although more concerned over Detroit's 6-4 loss to Montreal, must have had an urge to go on the ice, as 14,740 standing - room - only fans saluted Big Gordie.

"Don't worry," said Abel, "he'll get lots more."

Howe, too, was concerned about the feat.

"I'm glad I got a goal—but we lost," he said. "Nobody likes to lose."

Boston goaltender Ed Johnston, who stopped 33 shots as the Bruins shutout Toronto 3-0 Sunday for their first victory of the season.

Bobby Hull, who scored the tying goal in a 4-4 draw with Montreal Saturday and contributed a goal and two assists to Chicago's 4-1 victory over New York Sunday.

Gordie Howe, who scored the 544th regular season goal of his career to tie the record set by former Montreal Canadiens star Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Canadiens put a damper on Howe's big moment, helped by Henri Richard, the Rocket's kid brother, only nine seconds after this historic scoring play.

Play was halted for five minutes as the rabid Detroit fans showed their appreciation—then it resumed with a faceoff at centre ice.

Richard took the faceoff and Canadiens had an immediate three - on - two - break—Richard, Bobby Rousseau and Gilles Tremblay against the Detroit Red Wing defencemen, one of which was Howe.

CANADIEN SCORES

Tremblay scooted past Howe to score a goal—at 11:13 of the third period, only nine seconds after Howe had connected on a powerplay.

"How did you feel when you scored the goal?" a reporter asked Howe.

"Ask me how I felt when that little Tremblay scored," scoffed Gordie.

Howe's 544 goals were scored in 1,177 games. Richard did it in 978 games—18 seasons from 1942 to 1960.

Flyers Win, Wings Tie

Marlies Clobber Oshawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"If you can't beat 'em, join 'em," is an old adage in sports. And it is working just fine for Toronto Marlboros.

The Marlboros, who finished second to Toronto Neil McNeil Maroons last season in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Metropolitan Toronto league, teamed up with the Maroons this year for their return to the provincial league.

The new Marlboros, combining the best players from both, before from both of last year's teams, have ridden at the top of the league since the season opened three weeks ago.

Sunday, they clubbed Oshawa Generals 8-1 to remain in a tie for the lead with Peterborough Petes, who nipped the Junior Canadiens in Montreal, 3-2.

Both teams have 11 points in seven games.

In other games, Niagara Falls Flyers defeated St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-4 to move to within one point of the third-place Canadiens, while Kitchener Rangers tied Hamilton Red Wings 3-3 as the two bottom teams battled to stay out of the cellar.

"Easily the best team in the league," said Oshawa manager Wren Blair after his team lost to Marlies. Although he felt his defence played its poorest game of the season, Blair said the better team won.

Mike Walton led the Toronto attack with three goals and a pair of assists before 1,768 fans in Toronto. Brit Selby and Wayne Carleton each scored two goals and Barry Wilson and Peter Stemkowski added single markers.

Ron Buchanan scored two goals for the Generals and Gerry Powell added the other.

Oshawa actually outshot the Marlboros 37-34, but ex - Neil McNeil goaltender Carl Voss stopped all but three. Toronto led 3-0 after the first period and 6-1 after the second.

Paul Dojack, for 16 Years Football Referee in West, One Man Fans Love to Hate

By BOB TRIMBEE

REGINA (CP)—In the depths of the depression a tough, teenaged gang leader named Paul Dojack hooted around the east end Regina neighborhood for something to keep his boys busy.

A scrappy, impatient kid, smaller than most members of his gang, Dojack held control with his wits and determination.

His solution was the formation of an athletic club called the Dales. The boys built a tarpaper shack and equipped it with an old heater and boxes for stools.

The gang scoured the neighborhood for sports equipment. Much of it was made from old sacks, padding and newspapers. Businessmen, anxious to keep the youngsters out of their hair, donated still more.

By the mid-1930s the club's success in junior football caught the eye of Dean Girling, general manager of the Regina Roughriders of the old Western Interprovincial Football Union. He took a fancy to the scrappy manner in which Dojack handled the club and decided to help out with coaching and old equipment.

BECAME REFEREE

It was an association that led Dojack, now 57, to Winnipeg and the youngest of seven children to Western Canadian family, to join the WIFU a decade later as a referee.

Today, after 16 years as a football official, he is a man fans love to hate. Boos and catcalls reverberate across football field when he is introduced. Insults pour from partisan spectators when Dojack stretches to his full five - foot - seven and forcefully marches off a penalty against their team.

Despite the abuse, Dojack likes to referee. "I don't want to do anything else as of fical," he says. "I want the job as referee because I like the responsibility and I guess it helps my ego, too."

And although fans still shout insinuations about his vision or reasoning ability, he is the most respected football official in Western Canada.

Canadian Football League administrators assign him to referee as many games as he can handle a season. He has officiated in 13 Grey Cup finals, six times as head referee.

AIDS DELINQUENTS

Off the field Paul Dojack is quiet and affable. He is recreation director and second-in-command at the Regina Training School for delinquent boys.

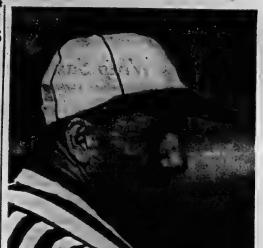
Now 47 and weighing 185 pounds, he is just a shade heavier than during his football days as quarterback of the Dales.

"I keep so busy working with the boys at the training school and with youngsters in minor football that I am never really out of shape."

Besides his full-time job at the school (the time he spends as a WFC referee is deducted from his annual three-week vacation) Dojack is in great demand as an after - dinner speaker.

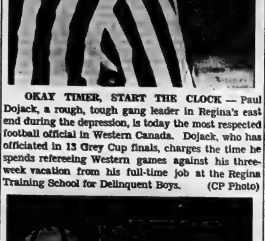
Seldom is his topic football because CFL rules forbid him to comment on teams, players, officials or rules. Usually he talks about ways to keep young sters on the right side of the law.

"A youngster must be made to feel he belongs," Dojack says. "Most boys want to the training school have never felt they were part of anything. This is why recreation is so important in our rehabilitation program. Sports is a big weapon in helping these kids. It teaches good fellowship and a sense of give-and-take.



"I enjoy working with children. I've faced the same problems they face and know what it's like to try to find a way to belong. Both my parents died when I was six and my older brothers and sisters took over the job of raising the family."

WON ELECTION



Dojack is as likely to be booed in his hometown as elsewhere but he feels his election to the Regina collegiate board four years ago demonstrated that the abuse is merely a way for fans to "let off steam and frustration" when their team is losing.

"Between my job at the school and refereeing I had so much on my campaign but four years ago and again two years ago I led the polls."

As civil servant, Dojack decided to enter provincial politics this year and has won the Liberal nomination in Regina East. If he wins in the next election he'll have to give up his school job but hopes to con-

OKAY TIMER, START THE CLOCK — Paul Dojack, a rough, tough gang leader in Regina's east end during the depression, is today the most respected football official in Western Canada. Dojack, who has officiated in 13 Grey Cup finals, charges the time he spends refereeing Western games against his three-week vacation from his full-time job at the Regina Training School for Delinquent Boys. (CP Photo)

ALLIE SPEAKS HIS MIND—Referee Paul Dojack seemed unimpressed as Allie Sherman, coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1956 but now with New York Giants, lets off steam during a Western football league game. The Regina official doesn't pretend to be popular with the fans but he's hoping they won't have any hard feelings when he runs for re-election as a Liberal in Regina East in the next Saskatchewan election. (CP Photo)

"I've talked to the commissioner (Sydney Halter of Winnipeg) and he says he can see no reason why I should quit if I'm elected."

Dojack's playing days with the Dales ended when he suffered a fractured collarbone and neck injury. He turned to coaching and led Dales to four Western titles. At 21 he guided them to the Canadian junior championship in 1938.

REFEREED IN RAIN

Two years later he joined the army and was sent to Vancouver for his basic training.

"Griffing telephoned me one day and said he was coming to the coast for two games against Vancouver Grizzlies. The visiting team had to bring a referee and he told me I was it.

"It was a hell of an experience. It rained throughout both games and the stuff officials had to take from the coaches, players, trainers and fans was terrific.

"Since the teams appointed the officials they ran the game. There was little the referee could do to hold a game in check. And when the coaches went through their acts it riled the fans."

Today, Dojack says, the situation is vastly improved for officials. The league administrators appoint officials and the calibre of play and officiating has been improved.

But even after 16 years the sandy-haired Dojack is tense and nervous before a game.

NEVER HATE

"I never eat anything after lunch the day of a game. Until that first play I have as many butterflies in my stomach as the players. Once the game is started though I'm oblivious to everything but handling the game.

"The thing that bothers me as well as most officials is not whether we can handle the game but the unexpected incidents. If an accident is covered by the rules we're okay. But if not we have to make a quick decision.

Dojack, who spends hours studying the rules between games, never carries a rulebook on the field.

"If you don't know the rules then you'd better get another job. Knowledge of the rules is important if an official is to hold the respect of the players."

Often Dojack gets crank telephone calls and letters warning him not to appear in a certain park again.

"I just file them in a folder for fan mail. But really, I get just as many complimentary letters."

Rudolph Takes Fresno Open

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Mason Rudolph won the $22,000 Fresno Open Sunday, after leading from the first round. It was his first professional golfing victory in four years.

The bespectacled 29-year-old wrapped up the $3,300 first-place money with a closing round of 35-36—71 over the 7,181-yard, par 36-36—72 San Joaquin Country Club course. That gave him 66-67-71-71—275 total, 13 under par, and three strokes better than runners-up Tommy Aaron and Al Geiberger.

George Knudson of Toronto was sixth with 71-69-70-73—283 and won $1,333.33. Montreal's Al Johnston tied for 21st place with 71-73-71-76—290 and won $373.

Not since Jack Nicklaus won the Las Vegas Tournament of Champions last May had a golfer led all folk rounds of a professional tour event.

Rudolph entered the final day with a three-stroke margin over Aaron. He quickly went 3-under ahead and sewed up the title at the 375-yard third hole.

Rudolph, now playing out of Lehigh Acres, Fla., previously had won only the 1959 Golden Gate Invitational at San Francisco.

Only once in 30 outings this year has Rudolph failed to collect a cheque. Sunday's prize boosted him from 16th to prsent place on the 1963 PGA money-winning list with $35,-695.14.

Central Pro League

Minneapolis Brutus can be forgiven for thinking in terms of hibernation after a weekend which saw them lose both their Central Professional Hockey League games and also playerboss Harry Sinden.

Brutus, who were only three points off the pace before the weekend, were dumped by the league's two top teams, Omaha Knights and St. Paul Rangers.

In their Saturday game against the Knights, they came out on the short end of a 6-4 score and lost Sinden for four to six weeks.

The Kingston, Ont., resident, who captained the world-champion Whitby Dunlops in 1958 and the last three years was with the Eastern Professional League Kingston Frontenacs, suffered a broken jaw in a melee. He was in an Omaha hospital, but planned to return to his coaching duties as soon as possible.

Ken Stephanson, a defence man from Selkirk, Man., will assume the coaching duties until Sinden's return.

STAYS IN FIRST

In Minneapolis' Sunday game St. Paul Rangers scored a 7-5 win to stay in first place with Omaha. Each team has 12 points, although St. Paul has played two more games.

In the only other weekend game, St. Louis Braves and Indianapolis Capitols played to a 3-3 tie.

Marauders Take Over Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

McMaster Marauders raided the University of Ottawa Gee Gee domain Saturday, scored an 8-0 win and took undisputed possession of first place in the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference.

The undefeated Marauders handed Gee Gees their first setback of the season and left them in a second-place tie with Waterloo Lutheran University Golden Hawks.

The Golden Hawks easily won their fourth game in five starts by whipping Royal Military College Redmen 34-6 at Kingston.

In other games Saturday, Loyola College of Montreal overpowered Ontario Agricultural College Redmen 19-13 and Carleton University Ravens defeated University of Waterloo Warriors 29-12

Varsity Bows To Mustangs

Gaels Whip Redmen 17-7

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fame was fleeting for the McGill University Redmen, last year's champions of the Intercollegiate Senior Football League. This season, they were the first team to be eliminated from competition.

The Redmen, 15-13 winners over Queen's University Golden Gaels in a sudden-death playoff last year, fell by the wayside Saturday by 17-7 count to the same Gaels in Kingston.

The loss was McGill's third in four games, including two to Queen's, and leaves them three games behind the undefeated Gaels with only two to play.

It also dropped them into a third-place tie with University of Toronto Blues, who slapped University of Western Ontario Mustangs 12-8 Saturday for their first win of the season. The Mustangs are second with a 2-2 record.

Either Toronto or Western could force a playoff with the Gaels. League rules stipulate a playoff in the case of a tie, if the second place club has beaten the leaders during the regular schedule. Both teams have a game left with Queen's.

In Kingston, the Gaels patched up their pass defence and quarterback Cal Connor threw a pair of touchdown passes to highlight the win.

The throws went to Bayne Norrie and Jim Ware. Bill Edwards converted one and Harold Rose booted a pair of singles. The Gaels added their final two points late in the game on a safety touch.

High-scoring halfback Willie Lambert burrowted his own first quarter touchdown to account for the McGill Points.

Before the game was two minutes old, the Gaels had scored. Connor flipped a screen pass to Norrie, and the North Bay speedster ran 68 yards to score.

Lambert took a 15-yard halfback pass from Bruce Johanson to force a 7-7 halftime tie.

After fullback Jim Young's fine catch of Connor's pass gained 45 yards for the Gaels, Ware dropped to his knees to catch Connor's payoff pitch in the end zone.

Marshall Nets Five For Reds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Marshall sent the statisticians thumbing through American Hockey League records Sunday.

He scored five goals and had one assist in leading Providence Reds to a 7-1 triumph over Springfield Indians.

The figure fitbers boys found that the 32 - year - old veteran from Kirkland Lake, Ont., had missed the record for most goals scored in one game and also for most points.

The record for goals in one game is six, set by Bob Heron of Pittsburgh Hornets in 1942 and tied by Harry Pidhirny of Springfield in 1954 and Camille Henry of Providence in 1956.

Marshall himself is one of the co-holders for the most points in one game, eight. It was set by Bob Gracie and Bob Walton, both of Pittsburgh, on Feb. 24, 1945, and equalled by Marshall, then with Pittsburgh, in 1955 and Gordon Wilson of Hershey Bears in 1956.

Marshall, who was traded to Providence by Hershey during the off season, did rise his all-time league record for the most three- or more-goals games to 20.

Marshall's exploits overshadowed Saturday's other results. Cleveland Barons routed Buffalo Bisons 8-1, Baltimore Clippers defeated Quebec 3-2 in overtime, and Rochester Americans whipped Hershey 5-3. Saturday, Pittsburgh beat Hershey 3-2, Springfield nipped Providence 6-5 and Rochester edged Cleveland 3-2.

Bulldogs Defeat All-Stars

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Bulldogs, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League last year and Allan Cup winners, stormed an 8-3 exhibition victory Sunday over an all-star team from the Ontario league circuit.

Windsor, which joined the International Hockey League this season after nine years in the Senior A, fired five goals in the first period and coasted during the last two.

Only 709 fans watched the game, played under international rules.

The Bulldogs leave in early November for a 12-game exhibition tour of Europe.

Stamps Down Eskimos

Bombers Win Over Lions

With only individual records at stake, offensive units went all out in three fast-moving, high-scoring Western Football Conference games during the weekend.

Saturday, Calgary Stampeders downed the lowly Edmonton Eskimos 45-35 in Edmonton. In the process, flanker Bobby Taylor set a record for pass receptions. Taylor picked off four from Calgary quarterback Gerry Keeling to up his total to 88—one better than Winnipeg Blue Bomber Bud Grant in 1953 and Ernie Pitts in 1959.

Sunday, Blue Bomber halfback George Fleming moved to within 12 points of the Western conference scoring record set in 1958 by halfback Jack Hill of Saskatchewan Roughriders. Fleming scored 16 points as the Bombers trounced British Columbia Lions 34-30 at Winnipeg.

Hill set the mark with 143 points and Fleming has one more game of regular play to pass it.

TAKES TO AIR

Keeling was relieving in the slot for injured Eagle Day and he fired 21 attempted passes for 307 yards. One was an 18-yard touchdown effort to Taylor and another was a 66-yard touchdown toss to halfback Jim Dillard. Dillard picked up another, halfback Lovell Coleman got two and Keeling went over himself once.

Larry Robinson booted a field goal and converted all the touchdowns.

Welland Whips Sailors 9-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Playing Welland Barlooks is like juggling a live bomb. Sooner or later it will explode and hurt someone.

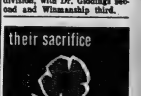
Oakville Oaks becomes the second team in the young Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League to discover this as they were whipped 9-2 before a hometown crowd of 1,200 Sunday night.

Barlooks who thrashed Port Colborne Sailors 9-2 in their opening game Friday, drilled home seven goals in the third period at Oakville to win 9-2.

The victory gave them four points and undisputed possession of first place Oakville, which beat Guelph Regals 5-3 in its opener, is in second spot with two points.

Guelph picked up its first point of the season as Regals gained a 2-2 tie with Galt Hornets in Galt Saturday night.

Oaks and Welland played on an even basis over the first two periods and were tied 2-2 when Chester Worchal scored at 2:57 of the third to give Barlooks the lead.



The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Jerry Harrison, an 88-pound jockey who wears a leaded vest for extra weight, booted home the winner in both divisions of the Sandown Stakes at Greenwood Raceway Saturday.

He won the second division aboard Stafford Farms three-year-old Cress, the only filly in the race and a 15-1 shot. Lucky Uncle was the place horse with fast - closing Jammed Lucky third.

Five - year - old Kisco Kid, owned by Sol Wagman of Toronto, was winner of the first division, with Dr. Giddings second and Winnamahy third.

Scientists Wag Finger at Young Men in Hurry

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Heart researchers wagged a warning finger at young men in a hurry.

They are more likely to get heart attacks before age 50 because they are hard-driving, aggressive, competitive, ambitious, and living under constant deadline pressures, said Drs. Ray Rosenman and Myer Friedman of San Francisco.

Dr. Rosenman presented to the American Heart Association a preliminary report on a long-term study aimed at finding the best "predictors" of future heart attacks.

In a press conference, he and other specialists agreed that a number of things in the U.S. way of life apparently are involved — blood fats, rich diet, heavy smoking, personality and tension and high blood pressure.

Dr. John R. McDonough of Chapel Hill, N.C., told of a study of almost the entire population of Evans County, Ga., indicating exercise or physical activity can be protective.

While most of the upper social class there have a higher rate of heart attacks than white men of the lower social class or Negroes, he said.

All-Canadian Labor Group Is Requested

HAMILTON (CP)—An Independent labor leader said here Friday night that intervention by United States labor leaders in the current Canadian maritime unions' dispute proves the need for a 100-per-cent Canadian labor group.

James Young, president of the National Council of Canadian Labor, said Canada is the only country in the world to suffer from such outside intervention and dictation on labor matters.

His organization, which opened a two-day conference here to mark the organization of the all-Canadian group 15 years ago, represents about 12,000 non-affiliated union workers in five provinces. Most of them, he said, are in the Niagara Peninsula area of Ontario.

He said the NCCL had stayed out of the Canadian Labor Congress because it felt the CLC was nothing more than a front for U.S.-organized international unions.

Paul Hall, international president of the Seafarers' International Union, had literally thumbed his nose at the CLC during the recent maritime to find dispute. Mr. Young said.

Indian Summer Drought Continues Despite Rains

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Light showers teased the dry earth of southwestern Ontario Monday. The weatherman said perhaps a few more rain sprinkles would occur today.

But the drizzles did not, and would not, end the Indian summer drought.

A 24-hour rainfall—three to five inches of rain—would be needed to replenish farm ponds and wells, rivers, creeks and other waterbeds, said agriculture and weather officials.

"I've been an optimist up to now, but now I just don't know," said D. L. Parks, director of the field crops branch of the department of agriculture.

With lower temperatures finally spelling an end to Ontario's unprecedented Indian summer, Mr. Parks feared the ground might freeze without adequate moisture, inflicting further damage on crops.

Farmers had another worry—how to obtain adequate water for their livestock. An emergency water supply committee formed by the provincial government was designating railway sidings throughout the drought area where water tank-

Denis Put On Griddle

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Denis came under fire in the Commons Monday in a continuing campaign by opposition parties attempting to prove that he unfairly dispenses job patronage and evades their questions about his activities.

Twice in the course of their grilling of Mr. Denis, opposition MPs suggested the postmaster general discriminates against veterans in favor of non-veterans in post office appointments.

At one point, Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound Muskoka) appealed to Prime Minister Pearson to investigate whether "there is such a policy" of liberal preference over veterans' preference."

At another, Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) suggested a Commons committee investigate the post office department because of the "disturbing information" given by Rod Webb (PC — Hastings - Frontenac) about a postal appointment at Enterprise, Ont.

A week ago Mr. Webb accused Mr. Denis of dismissing Mrs. Betty Stewart as postmistress at Derrynane, Ont., and Mrs. Stewart is a veteran, widow of a veteran and mother of five children. On Oct. 24 Mr. Denis said it was not replied to until Monday.

DENIES CHARGES

A few days later Mr. Denis said Mrs. Stewart wasn't a veteran and denied Mr. Webb's letter. Mrs. Stewart was replaced by a Mrs. Dillon, mother of 10 children.

This brought Mr. Webb into the fray Monday with a question of privilege in which he reiterated that Mrs. Stewart is a veteran—he gave her service number — and compared the family circumstances of the two women.

He said Mrs. Stewart cares for five children, including one in an institution, and has eight children. On the appointment of

Govt. May Not Survive Nuclear Issue Vote

Storage of Arms in Que. Opposed by Caouette

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The politically explosive issue of nuclear warheads has been injected into a Commons defence debate because the minority Liberal government couldn't muster the Commons votes to sidetrack it.

A showdown vote at 8:15 p.m. EST tonight will determine whether the Pearson government can survive a non-confidence motion on the nuclear issue—the same one on which the former Progressive Conservative government was toppled in a Commons vote last Feb. 5.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette set the stage Monday by presenting a non-confidence motion attacking the government for "servilely" accepting nuclear arms storage "on the territory of the state of Quebec" despite the protests of civil and municipal authorities.

His motion—an amendment to a Conservative non-confidence motion attacking other defence measures by the government—was ruled out of order by Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But on a challenge of the chair's ruling by the combined forces of Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes prevailed. They outvoted the Liberals who were supported by five Social Creditors and one Conservative—former defence minister Douglas Harkness who resigned from the Diefenbaker government Feb. 3 in protest against its nuclear policy.

VOTE TO REVERSE

The vote was 85 to 83 to reverse the Speaker's ruling and let the Creditiste motion stand.

Absenteeism played a determining factor. Absent from the House were 46 of the 129 Liberals, 28 of the 95 Conservatives, five of the 17 NDP members, four of the 13 Creditistes and six of the Social Creditors. Three Liberals and two Conservatives were paired with absent MPs and did not vote.

The Conservative non-confidence motion presented by Gordon Churchill charged that "grave concern, confusion, unrest and damage had resulted from "piecemeal" government announcements on abandonment of defence projects, notably the navy's $432,000,000 general purpose frigate program, and criticized the government for making the decisions without consulting the special Commons defence committee.

Mr. Churchill, who accreedied Mr. Harkness as Conservative defence minister last February, said the cancellation of the frigate program "scuttled" the navy without suggesting an alternative.

Hassan, Ben Bella Arrive In Mali for Peace Talks

BAMAKO, Mali (AP)—President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria and King Hassan II of Morocco arrived in Bamako today to bring their border war to the conference table.

Hassan, the first to arrive, was smiling. Ben Bella arrived about one half hour later. He and several of his ministers wore battle dress as they stepped from their plane.

Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, who has been trying to organize a peace conference for the last 10 days, was due to arrive later.

Western diplomats hoped the meeting would produce a cease-fire in the disputed border area between Morocco and Algeria. But they doubted that any of the fundamental issues dividing the two North African neighbors would be resolved.

The summit talks are a major test for the principle of African unity, adopted last May 1 at the conference of African nations in Haile Selassie's capital,

Canadians This Year to Buy About 500,000 New Cars

OTTAWA (CP) — This year Canadians will buy about 500,000 new cars costing roughly $1,500,000,000. It has been estimated that they can choose from among 400 or more models.

But not one in the lot will be a truly Canadian car. There is no such thing.

Meeting the bulk of the demand will be the output of plants of American - owned and controlled subsidiaries of the big three — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. Added to this will be the output of the Canadian branches of Studebaker and American Motors.

Judging from 1962 statistics, about 75,000 new cars will be imported from Britain, Germany, Sweden, Italy and elsewhere.

Canada is stuck with this situation. The idea of investing the huge sums needed to develop, produce and market an all-Canadian car in a relatively small market that has such easy ac-

Charges Babies Die Needlessly Because Hospitals Denied Funds

VANCOUVER (CP) — A charge that newborn babies have died needlessly has resulted in a heated controversy between the British Columbia government and some hospital administrators.

An inquiry is promised, although the subject of the investigation still was in doubt Monday.

Dr. R. E. Adams, medical director of St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria, lit the fuse Thursday when he said during the B.C. Hospitals Association convention that babies were dying needlessly.

Harassment by B.C. Hospital Insurance Service officials forced one hospital—he refused to name it—to cut staff in its nurseries. The result was that for several years the mortality rate among newborn babies at the hospital was twice the provincial average.

"There is no question that several babies died each year needlessly," said Dr. Adams, who is chairman of the Hospitals Association committee on hospital standards.

The whole thing boiled down to the fact that BCHIS, government - run hospital insurance service, was not giving hospitals sufficient funds to operate properly, he charged.

Health Minister Eric Martin moved quickly.

Within a few hours he announced that an inquiry would be conducted, but it would be into the treatment of maternity

Three Miners Continue to Joke As Rescuers Sink Shaft Deeper

BROISTEDT, West Germany (AP) — Three high - spirited men trapped in an iron mine since Thursday continued cracking jokes with their rescuers today as 200-inch rescue shaft passed the halfway mark.

"Don't send down too much stuff—we'll only have to bring it out of the shaft again," one of the miners said over a supply tube that has been rigged down to them 259 feet below the surface.

Hot food, warm clothing and the sports sections of newspapers go down to the three via the six-inch tube.

If barring operations continue at the present rate of five feet an hour, the men could be rescued Wednesday night, Rudolf Stein, the mine director, warned that geological variations in the earth could slow down the speed of the drilling.

At 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EST), after 46 hours of drilling, the rescue shaft reached the halfway mark.

The men are confined to a space about the size of a four-room apartment and communicate with the surface via a microphone and loudspeaker lowered in the supply canister. Today there was some alarm when they did not answer for 15 minutes.

"Where were you?" the signal engineer asked.

"We were just around the corner," calmly replied Gerhard Hanusch, at 45 the oldest of the trio.

He said he and his companions, Fritz Leder, 28, and Emil Pahlel, 34, are confident they will be rescued.

U.S Senators Start Probe of Activities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators begin their investigation today of Robert G. Baker, the page boy they called Bobby who quickly grew up to wealth and power as secretary of the Senate's Democratic majority.

The first witness in the rules committee's closed hearings is to be Senator John J. Williams, Delaware Republican who has conducted a one-man investigation of the affairs of Baker, 35, who resigned his Senate job under fire Oct. 7.

A specific point under the committee's scrutiny is an allegation that Baker used pressure tactics to induce big defense contractors to install their plants vending machines of various kinds leased from a firm in which he had a financial stake. Baker has denied any pressure tactics were involved.

The case has been followed by disclosure that Baker was a moving spirit in the organization of an exclusive Capitol Hill group known as the Quorum Club incorporated, at a hotel across the street from the Senate office building. Its membership included Congress members, lobbyists and others.

Representative H. R. Gross (Rep. Iowa) has asked that the investigation also look into the affairs of Mrs. Elly Rometsch, attractive West German brunette who was shipped home after allegedly engaging in scandalous adventures with Washington figures.

One of the unconfirmed rumors was some members of Baker's circle were on good terms with Mrs. Rometsch, and that she was often seen at the Quorum Club.

Gross said he "certainly hopes" the Senate group will check into the matter.

But today's session is scheduled to be given over to Williams' reported interview with persons who might shed light on Baker's business activities.

As for Mrs. Rometsch, Gross told the House of Representatives Monday: "Members of Congress and the people are entitled to know whether there

Ont. House Will Sit Few Hours

TORONTO (CP) — A special session of the Ontario Legislature that may last only a few hours convenes today with the single purpose of letting Ontario municipalities go deeper into debt.

The only piece of legislation the government has said it will submit to the house is a bill that will enable Ontario centres to take advantage of the federal government's municipal development and loan fund.

Details of this legislation will be outlined by Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner following the reading of speech from the throne by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe and the election of a Speaker—Donald H. Morrow, member for Ottawa West.

TORONTO (CP)—Hospital administrations must accept government-financed centralization of hospital planning, the Ontario Hospital Association's annual conference was told Monday.

Dr. Bernard Brosseau, hospital consultant and head of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, said the only alternative to centralized planning is for the government to take over.

Dr. Brosseau and two other speakers agreed that hospitals can no longer plan the course of future services individually with no regard for the plans of other hospitals.

Botulism Food Poisoning Scare Puts 20,000 People Out of Work

DETROIT (AP) — The botulism food poisoning scare is causing a reported 20,000 layoffs in the Great Lakes commercial fishing industry.

In the meantime, the U.S. fishing industry is fighting to restore public confidence in its smoked fish product.

Current and pending Great Lakes area layoff reports came from commercial fishing sources Monday as representatives of the industry began meetings with government officials in Washington in an effort to regain the housewife's favor.

Sales of smoked fish have dropped drastically after seven deaths from botulism and a government warning to the public not to eat smoked fish from the Great Lakes area unless it is known to have been properly processed.

The seven deaths, blamed on botulism in smoked fish, were in Michigan, Tennessee and Alabama.

Deputy FDA Commissioner John L. Harvey said some industry men felt that some aspects of the FDA's warning had led to public misunderstanding.

H. J. Dornbos and Brother, Grand Haven, Mich., fish packer which the FDA said had produced a contaminated chub (whitefish), held back on plans to resume smoking fish.

David Price, Dornbos plant manager, said operations would be closed down until FDA officials "get to the bottom of this matter." The FDA said no botulism had been found in Dornbos products since the Tennessee deaths. Dornbos quit these operations voluntarily Oct. 7.

Layoffs in the Great Lakes fishing industry were reported by the Michigan Fish Producers Association and a Detroit wholesale fish distributing company.

Roy Jensen, association secretary, said fish processors are laying off 1,000 workers and that 3,000 licensed fishing boat operators with 7,000 crew members will be stopping work shortly.

Harold Rosloff, secretary-treasurer of Harold Rosloff Fish Company of Detroit, a distributor, said 3,000 to 10,000 employees of fish distributors, warehouses and retail sales centers are being laid off.

Govt. May Not Survive Nuclear Issue Vote

Storage of Arms in Que. Opposed by Caouette

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Nuclear arms blossomed into near-crisis in Parliament Monday with frantic figuring among the five political parties on the possible results of tonight's vote.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette made no secret of his intentions.

"We're not afraid of an election," he told reporters. "In fact, we wish for an election on that specific issue."

He challenged the progressive Conservatives to defeat the minority Liberal government by voting in favor of his non-confidence motion regretting "widespread confusion, unrest and damage" because the government "servilely accepted nuclear arms storage "on the territory of the state of Quebec" despite the protests of civil and municipal authorities.

His motion—an amendment to a Conservative non-confidence motion attacking other defence measures by the government—was ruled out of order by Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But on a challenge of the chair's ruling by the combined forces of Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes prevailed. They outvoted the Liberals who were supported by five Social Creditors and one Conservative—former defence minister Douglas Harkness who resigned from the Diefenbaker government Feb. 3 in protest against its nuclear policy.

VOTE TO REVERSE

The vote was 85 to 83 to reverse the Speaker's ruling and let the Creditiste motion stand.

Absenteeism played a determining factor. Absent from the House were 46 of the 129 Liberals, 28 of the 95 Conservatives, five of the 17 NDP members, four of the 13 Creditistes and six of the Social Creditors. Three Liberals and two Conservatives were paired with absent MPs and did not vote.

The Conservative non-confidence motion presented by Gordon Churchill charged that "grave concern, confusion, unrest and damage had resulted from "piecemeal" government announcements on abandonment of defence projects, notably the navy's $432,000,000 general purpose frigate program, and criticized the government for making the decisions without consulting the special Commons defence committee.

Mr. Churchill, who accreedied Mr. Harkness as Conservative defence minister last February, said the cancellation of the frigate program "scuttled" the navy without suggesting an alternative.

Defence Minister Hellyer en-

May Cut NATO Ships

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's naval commitment of 34 combat ships to the North Atlantic alliance will likely be reduced, informed sources said Monday.

They added that the commitment might have been pared down even if the $432,000,000 program to build eight tri-purpose super-frigates had not been cancelled by the government Thursday.

Authorities have stressed in recent weeks—as official cancellation of the frigate program came nearer—that a Canadian commitment to NATO is not a sacred undertaking and that commitments to the alliance can be and are altered.

N.E. Company Spikes Rumor Factory Will Be Closed

Officials at the Northern Electric plant in the city yesterday afternoon scotched a 'Front' rumour current that their plant might close or at least drastically reduce its staff.

"It is completely untrue and unfounded," stated a company official. "We are not leaving Belleville this year or next."

Mr. Glenn Daugharty, personnel manager at the plant, said today that rather than reducing the plant staff, men laid off earlier this year are beginning to be called back.

He said six or seven men were called back last week and another six were expected to be called back this week.

The rumor that Northern might close out its Belleville operations apparently arose out of the fact that there have been several transfers of key personnel from the city in recent weeks.

It was stated that these transfers within the company could mean promotions for those concerned. Several other key personnel have been moved to Belleville from other centres.

Miners Emerge Unharmed From Elevator Cages

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters) — Sixty-three miners emerged unharmed Monday after spending more than 13 hours deep in one of the world's richest gold mines.

The men had been imprisoned in two elevator cages.

Ambulances stood by as the men reached the surface.

Wives and relatives, most of them sobbing with relief, greeted them.

Earlier reports put the total number of trapped miners at 75 in two groups of 30 and 55. But a mine spokesman said Monday night there were only 13 and 50 in the two cages.

The spokesman said the group of 50 was originally trapped 1,000 feet down but had managed to reach safety in a cable pocket cut into the shaft until rescue was effected.

The group of 13 was 5,000 feet down.

The only fatality in what had threatened to be a major disaster was a white collar of hoist gear at the surface. He died of injuries received from the backlash of four 100 - ton elevator cables severed by a runaway ore-loaded carrier.

Another driver of gear controlling the mine cages slammed on the emergency brakes when he heard the cables snap in the adjoining shaft. This stopped the two cages.

The accident took place in the No. 2 shaft of the Western Deep Level Gold Mine 50 miles west of here.

Rotarians Told Of 3 Keys to Salesmanship

The "Three Keys To Creative Salesmanship" were explained to the Rotary Club of Belleville at their regular dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte on Monday.

"The first thing to remember," said Mr. Marshall, "when attempting to sell your product, is to be yourself. Don't bother trying to impress anyone," he added, "but act your natural self and your chances for making a sale will be greater."

The second phase to remember be stressed was "to be a good listener." By listening, he said, one can be more persuasive than by anything one says."

The third key to becoming a creative salesman, the speaker explained, was "serve your customers to death." "If you have a good product to sell, sell it and mean it."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Al Cameron and thanked on behalf of the club by Rotarian G. Dougherty.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Glyan Reynolds.

Students Clash With Edmonton Mayor's Backers

EDMONTON (CP)—About 25 University of Alberta students, protesting the election of Mayor William Hawrelak, clashed with about 300 of the mayor's supporters in front of city hall Monday.

There were no injuries or arrests as a result of the noisy 10-minute demonstration. Between 25 and 30 police officers kept the demonstration under control after the placard-carrying students were booed, jeered and shoved by an angry crowd that lined the front entrance to city hall.

Mayor Hawrelak was in the city hall during the disturbance. Police kept doors to the building locked and guarded his office.

The students handed out copies of a statement protesting the mayor's election Oct. 16.

Mr. Hawrelak resigned in 1959 as mayor after a judicial inquiry found him guilty of "gross misconduct" in land deals.

Canada Objects to Vague Anti-Discrimination Motion

By JIM PEACOCK

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Racial discrimination, being studied in committee sessions, including Canada, to attacked at length in debates at the current General Assembly session, was condemned again Monday in a general declaration calling for its total elimination everywhere.

But the specific wording of one section of the declaration to stain when the declaration was approved by the assembly's social, humanitarian and cultural committee.

The Canadian delegation, which supported the intent of the declaration, said it hoped that before the assembly votes on it the wording will be changed so Canada can vote for it.

Today, the United Nations main political committee is expected to receive a draft resolution dealing with underground nuclear testing and may give final approval before Wednesday evening with its general debate on other disarmament measures.

Some nations were reported to feel that the wording agreed to by the two leading nuclear powers was too weak and further behind-the-scenes negotiations were held in an attempt to strengthen it without losing U.S.-Soviet agreement.

TO SIGN TREATY

The resolution is expected to have the assembly appeal to all countries to sign the partial test-ban treaty negotiated recently in Moscow and to request the Geneva disarmament committee to report progress soon on the issue of underground testing.

The wording to which Canada, the United States and several other nations expressed opposition in the discrimination declaration is contained in a section which says all states should:

"Take immediate and positive measures including legislative and other measures to prosecute and/or outlaw organizations which promote racial discrimination or incite to racial violence for the purpose of discrimination based on race, color or ethnic origin."

A Canadian spokesman said the dispute revolved around the shade of meaning of the word "promote" in the English text and the words used in that spot in the Spanish and French texts. The literal translation of the Spanish was "to incite" and in the French text was "to encourage."

Specific wording was necessary.

Placing Man on Moon Now Just a Slowly Dying Dream

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The prospect of placing a man on the moon — the goal of this decade now appears to be just a slowly dying dream. Russia might land on it first, Soviet Premier Khrushchev says he no longer is interested. While the U.S. would like to do it, technical accomplishments so far indicate the U.S. still has a long way to travel just to catch up to what Russia has done so far.

It is probably Khrushchev's desire that the U.S. keep well behind and not close the space gap that caused him to announce his withdrawal from the moon race. For it is this very challenge of a race that aided President Kennedy's campaign to gain the billions of dollars from Congress to keep the American space program moving at high speed.

Now some legislators are beginning to wonder what all the hurry is about, especially when Khrushchev makes clear he won't try to get to the moon first. Moreover, the U.S. national debt is soaring and more legislators want to put the axe to the U.S. budget to halt the series of budget deficits that have contributed to the inflated debt.

The ironic twist is that while the Kennedy administration has been placing emphasis on the moon race, the president is well aware the U.S. military concern is not so much to beat the Russians to the moon as to provide in the process the kind of American skill that could successfully meet a Soviet military challenge in space.

With excitement over the moon race deflated by Khrushchev's withdrawal, Kennedy will have to find some other equally attractive incentive to continue the intensified drive necessary to overtake the Russians. With the cold war thawing and the Kremlin beset by such earthly problems as the food crisis, more questions are likely will be asked in and out of Congress why Americans should be in such a frantic pressure in space.

The difficulties Kennedy may find in pleading for maintenance of urgency in programming probably will be multiplied by his government's own public concentration on U.S. achievements — the emphasis on the number of successful U.S. orbits in contrast to the Soviet emphasis in technical orbiting of manned spots for longer periods in more advanced space equipment.

BOOSTERS STILL BIGGER

Even at this stage, the U.S. has yet to produce a rocket booster equivalent in power to that used by the Russians for the last few years. All the American talk of overtaking the Russians is based mainly on boosters and vehicles still in the planning or prototype stage.

With Khrushchev now boxing out of the moon race, Kennedy likely will switch his campaigning for more space funds on the basis of need to improve U.S. technology—he may switch the emphasis from the moon race to a technological race. But that likely will not carry with it the same glamor and public appeal of a race to the moon.

And it may be difficult to cry wolf about the Soviet military threat in space when Russians are having trouble finding enough food. Undoubtedly, the Kennedy government will get sufficient funds to keep the space program operating at slower speeds but this won't help the U.S. schedule of getting an American on the moon

Four Singing Beatles Setting Britain Afire

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Britain admitted Monday that Beatlemania—one of the wildest teen-age crazes of the era—just about has them beat.

"It's spreading all over the country," said a police spokesman, "and it's causing some anxiety."

Beatlemania is a mass hysteria generated by the Beatles—four singing, guitar-playing young musicians from Liverpool.

Three London newspapers are doing series of stories about them. Other papers chronicle their activities, many of them on front pages.

Not one of the Beatles can read music, but their phonograph records are out-selling the world's established recording artists.

Now appearing in Sweden, the Beatles got one Swedish girl so excited that she rushed to the stage and jumped on the back of George Harrison, one of the Beatles.

TEEN-AGERS RIOT

In London last week, screaming teen-agers rioted when tickets for a Beatle concert during Christmas week went on sale. More than 80,000 tickets were sold in the first few hours.

Seven thousand teen-agers went wild in Newcastle Upon Tyne Sunday in front of a box office selling tickets for a future appearance of the Beatles. One girl had her jaw torn off. She reached the box office wrapped in a blanket.

In Carlisle, nine were injured when a crowd of 600 rioted in front of a box office. In Hull Monday morning, 40 police battled 3,000 teen-agers trying to buy tickets for a performance next month.

A girl named Eileen Lawry told reporters she lied about her job. A photograph of her standing in line for a ticket was published in a local paper. Her boss saw it and told her she had to choose between her job and the Beatles.

"I chose the Beatles," she said.

Two girls were expelled by the Grove Park School for Girls at Wrexham, North Wales, when they organized a midnight rum-drinking party.

Caught by the headmistress, they said they were celebrating because it was the birthday of one of the Beatles.

Jewett Shocked By Old Guard Within Party

OTTAWA (CP)—Pauline Jewett, Liberal MP for Northumberland, says she is political activist is likely to get a few shocks in the arena of active politics.

Miss Jewett, formerly chairman of Carleton University's political science department said her first shock after entering politics in 1963 was to find that party organization and activity was democratic in theory only.

She said she shocked the party old guard herself by insisting on fair and open nomination meetings.

Her second shock was to find that loyalty must be practised although it is not prevalent.

She said she was inflated after getting elected in 1963 to find as a backbencher in the Commons she seldom got a chance to speak.

"But we let off steam in caucus."

Miss Jewett also attacked political patronage.

"You've got to be firm about this," she said.

Miss Jewett was addressing alumni and high school students at a Carleton University alumni reunion.

Cadet Corps For Girls Is Proposed

TRENTON — The year-old St. John Ambulance, Trenton division, plans to form a cadet corps for girls, eight years of age and over, if enough girls show interest in the plan.

The idea of a junior group was outlined to division members at a meeting in the community gardens last week by Mrs. J. D. McKenzie.

Meanwhile, division members, as part of their service to youth groups, plans to teach first aid to the Girl Guides in Middleton Park.

The adult group will hear a lecture on the natural defences of the body by a local doctor at the regular meeting in the Community Gardens board room this Wednesday.

Cheese Warehouse Addition To Be Ready Early in '64

A $200,000 addition to the Ontario Cheese Producers' warehouse in Foster Ward south of the hospital is expected to be ready for use early in the new year.

Mr. J. A. Johnston, secretary-treasurer of the producers' marketing board, said it had been hoped the new addition would be ready late this year, but it now appeared that completion would be delayed until the new year.

The new addition, being constructed of concrete block, will provide approximately 12,000 square feet of additional cheese storage and office space. The addition is being built to the west of the present warehouse which was built some years ago.

It will provide cold storage as well as freezing space and a cheese grading room with office space overhead.

General contractor for the warehouse addition is Wilfrid Spencer of Rawdon township who since World War II has constructed a number of modern cheese factories in the area.

14 Paintings Returned to Bancroft Widow

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute over ownership of 14 unsigned oil paintings, believed to be by the late Canadian artist David Bruce Milne, has been settled in Ontario Supreme Court.

Under the settlement filed Monday before Mr. Justice Charles J. Stewart, the 14 paintings—valued at a total of between $12,000 and $15,000—are to be returned to the artist's widow, Kathleen Pavey Milne of Bancroft, 56 miles northeast of Peterborough.

Mrs. Milne is to pay $1,000 to the defendant, Arthur Ramsay of Toronto, who had taken the paintings before a Toronto art panel nine months ago for assessment of their authenticity. Since then, the oils have been in custody of police pending outcome of Mrs. Milne's claim.

The widow claimed that some time after Aug. 1953, a sleeping cabin and log cabin in the Lake Baptiste area where her husband had a studio was broken into and some of the contents stolen.

In his statement of defence, Mr. Ramsay said that in the summer of 1953 he found the two cabins abandoned and saw paintings among debris in one cabin. The following summer he returned to the cabins and found more paintings among debris.

Mr. Milne died in Dec., 1953.

CAS Officials Want to Set up Layman's Group in Town

TRENTON — Wednesday night, October 30, Children's Aid Society officials from Belleville will attempt to set up a Trenton layman's committee to assist the society in financial and other ways locally. The organizational meeting will be held in the auditorium at Queen Elizabeth School, starting at 8 p.m.

The society claims that "due to a lack of community support," professional case workers have only been able to give the town "minimal" service in the past few years. If a committee were formed, says the society, (and finances provided) a program of welfare services in children and families in the town would be implemented at the earliest possible moment.

Trenton council a few years ago, withdrew an annual grant to the CAS. Tomorrow night, Mayor James MacDonald and other members of his council will attend the meeting, but it is not known if they will present a rebuttal to the society's arguments. Individual councillors contacted claim that they have adequate reasons for continuing to withhold a grant from the area CAS group. Welfare work, formerly dealt with by CAS workers, has been taken over by the welfare committee of council and Trenton's welfare administrator Gordon Davis, the councillors say, and the cases which are outside the jurisdiction of the local authorities are referred to the Belleville CAS group.

Murray Twp. Builds New Shed to House Equipment

TRENTON — Murray Township has 130 miles of roads and with the first snowfall of the season, residents of Clifford, Wannamaker, roads' superintendent, fought Mr. Wanna ker and his staff are up and on their rounds every snowy winter morning by four a.m., plowing and sanding the town ship roads, first on one side and then on the other, making 300 miles of travel in all.

Emergency night calls are handled by Mr. Wannamaker himself, who keeps one piece of equipment on his farm all winter, "just in case."

Other equipment is kept in the recently built township shed, built by the township council at a cost of $12,000. Before the shed was built, Mr. Wannamaker was hard put to find space to strip down, oil and otherwise prepare his equipment, but now its stands ready to swing into action at the first sign of snow. Ranged in the yard at the back of the shed are four big plows, waiting to be hitched to the graders which stand in the shed. Two gasoline pumps also stand in the yard, to ensure no time is lost refuelling graders and trucks during emergency snow removal periods. A huge pile of sand stands at the rear of the shed, in readiness for use.

FULLY INSULATED

The 80 by 44-foot shed is fully insulated against freezing weather. The high roof makes for easy manoeuvring of equipment and numerous power outlets make on-the-spot servicing and welding easy.

Each vehicle in the shed has its own fire extinguisher, in case of emergency and rows of stout chains hang on the walls, ready for use if road conditions are icy.

Mr. Wannamaker views the building of the shed as the height of his 18 years duty as road superintendent.

"When I took over, we only had an old one and a half-ton truck with a wing. Not until 1946 did we have a snow plow," he says, "but it sure feels good to have all the equipment under one roof."

New Program Will Be Outlined To Industrialists

TRENTON — Tonight, the members of the Trenton Board of Education will meet with local industrialists at the high school. The object of the special meeting is to acquaint the factory heads with the training facilities now offered by the new vocational program at the school.

Only employers with staffs of 15 or more have been asked to attend the meeting as the board feels that the courses offered apply to larger classes.

The vocational curriculum will be outlined to the industrialists in the auditorium at the start of the meeting and then the group will break up into smaller groups and the employers will be shown the particular parts of the building which is of special interest in their lines of work.

WAITING FOR MOVE

The Ontario Legislature meets in Toronto today and Premier John P. Roberts has promised to introduce legislation to set up an arbitration body to deal with a dispute between the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board and members of Local 183 of the Building Services Employees Union.

Seventy-four union members, all employed at the hospital, have said they will go on strike if the legislation is not introduced.

The premier's decision to set up an arbitration board came on the heels of the hospital board's failure to send a representative to a meeting between the union and a Department of Labor official.

A strike at the hospital, set for Oct. 1, was called off by the union at the request of the Department of Labor.

Who Should Pay for Sidewalks?

Last week the City Council defeated a proposal by Ald. Jack Bills that a sidewalk be constructed on Dundas Street West, the Trent Road, with the cost being shared, approximately equally, by the city and by the province. The majority of members felt that it would not be fair to permit property owners in the area, with the exception of Albert College, to obtain a sidewalk without sharing, by local improvement taxes, in the cost.

It would be easy to criticize the Council for its stand; easy, too, to criticize it if it had approved the project—but far from easy to suggest an overall policy with respect to sidewalks which will be truly equitable to all.

Some may feel that the Ontario Government should share in the cost of sidewalks on those portions of highways which lie within the city limits—so-called connecting links. The government, however, feels differently. It has a good case. In those areas where sidewalks do not already exist, their installation would encourage "strip-development," the building of homes and places of business along the highway itself while the rest of the area remains undeveloped. Planning is unanimously opposed to such developments, with good reason. Among other drawbacks, they make the installation of services, sewers, water mains. Hydro and telephones, more costly than would be the installation of a similar number of services in a more compact area. The one area where Ontario might share in the cost of new sidewalks on a highway is when the existing sidewalk has to be changed, because of alterations to the highway itself.

The province was willing to share in the cost of a sidewalk on Dundas Street West, not because it is a highway connecting link but because such a sidewalk would serve a provincial institution, the Ontario School for the Deaf. Payment would have been through the Ontario Department of Public Works, not through the Department of Highways.

The City Council has recognized that a case exists for differentiating between sidewalks on quiet, residential streets and sidewalks on main arteries, necessary for safety and heavily used. In the case of residential streets, the policy here is for the full cost to be charged against the owners of abutting property. A small proportion of the city assuming intersection and "flankage" costs which would otherwise be charged against owners of corner lots. However, sidewalks recently installed on Farley Avenue, Victoria Avenue and Bridge Street in the east end have been covered by a new arrangement for main arteries, under which the city pays half the cost which would normally be charged to property owners. The city thus pays for slightly over half the cost of such sidewalks. An apparent exception to this policy was made in the case of a sidewalk on Rollins Avenue, a dead-end street opposite the H. J. Clarke Public School. Here the city, in effect, assumed all the cost, but technically half the cost is being paid by the Public School Board, which apparently felt, for some reason or another, that a sidewalk was so necessary for the welfare of pupils at this school that it assumed frontage charges from which it would normally be exempted.

In the case of sidewalks on Farley, Bridge, Victoria and Rollins Drive, it may be argued that the builders should have been required to install them. The Council has, indeed, moved to make such a requirement possible in future sub-divisions. Where the Council believes sidewalks needed, it can require their installation, in the same manner as the installation of streets and sewers. Sub-dividers, of course, would recover this money through raising the price of lots. Probably this cost would be spread over all the lots in the subdivision, and not just added to the price of lots abutting on the sidewalk. It is almost certain this method would be fairer. If the subdivision was a public development, under the so-called land assembly plan in which Federal, provincial and municipal governments share the cost of providing land for building.

Under the Local Improvement Act, Council has power to use the same system in allotting the cost of a sidewalk in an already built-up area. A percentage of the cost can be charged against property owners in the area who benefit from the construction of the sidewalk, but whose property does not abut it. A proposal had been made for the use of this method on Dundas Street West, but there were objections.

On the whole, this seems the fairest method, as well as the cheapest. It makes possible an equable sharing of costs for sidewalks on one side of a quiet street. It would also seem appropriate to adopt it in an area where the original development seemed to make it unwise to make the construction of sidewalks compulsory, but where later changes give rise to an acute need for them.

Fire May Have Gone Out In Once-Hot Real Caouette

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Something has happened to Quebec Creditiste Real Caouette.

The rasping edge of his voice has been blunted and he no longer thrashes at the top of his ear-splitting speaking range.

Nor does he makes those wildly acrobatic gestures bathed in that astonishing mist of fine perspiration with which he used to spray his audience for five feet in all directions.

That once intense, frighteningly hot resentment of just-about-everything has cooled.

It may be that the fire has gone out in the man.

It was almost with a whimper that he accepted his demotion from leading Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, to No. 2.

Perhaps, it was that he was content that, while Thompson had the honour of leading the fourth ranking party in the Commons, it was an empty one.

For he, as Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's political totem pole, leading the fifth and last-ranking party in the House, while denied the honor, would enjoy the more tangible benefit of sharing the $4,000 in special allowances paid the leaders of groups of 12 or more.

POWER STRUCTURE

The new, tamed Caouette remains one over the proclamation by magic 25,000 number with his 13 Creditistes, and Robert Thompson one under with his 11 Socreds.

But the old fire-breathing Caouette of only a year ago would have scorned playing as it has been called, "the numbers game," and for such paltry stakes at that.

The honor and the glory, the power and prestige would have been all that mattered.

Remember the Caouette of just last Fall?

SWAGGERING, arrogant, politically lit by the fires of Master of the Commons with 26 Creditistes plus Thompson's four Socreds, all holding the balance of power over the head of the minority Diefenbaker Government.

Those must have been great days for Real Caouette.

Days that were described by the 130 political correspondents now inhabiting the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

What did he say? How did he think? Would he vote for or against the Government? Where did he stand on this question or that?

Caouette held court almost like a king.

And how he may have been courted, both by the then reigning Conservatives and the power - hungry Liberals in the revival party House leaders and wheeler - dealers Jack Pickersgill of the Liberals and Gordon Churchill of the Tories know. And they are not telling.

PRESSURE; TOO MUCH?

It got so that he began handling political manoeuvres with domestic policy and world affairs and issuing ultimatums to the government.

This was heady stuff.

He even reached the point of looking down on the head of the minister of finance and telling him what was "acceptable" and what was not to be tolerated in the conduct of the nation's fiscal affairs.

Fortunately, former Conservative Finance Minister George Nowlan was around to add political stager with a sense of humor, able to give Real Caouette to the impression he was making him more than passing mind, while privately enjoying the utter ridiculousness of the situation.

That was a year ago when Real Caouette was breaking and making Prime Ministers, or so he, and a lot of other people, thought.

Now, almost nobody — perhaps even not Real Caouette himself — really cares anymore what he thinks or says or does.

He simply does not count.

Perhaps that is why he was such a tamed and even best, if not broken, figure when he finally meekly, though reservedly, submitted to being seated at the foot of the Commons class.

You hear talk, none of it denied even by Real Caouette, that Real Caouette's post-election collapse did irreparable things to his health, that the pressure, something gave, and that he has not been the same man, physically or emotionally, since.

First Step Is Half of The Battle

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of bridge, as I was yesterday, reminded me that the most effective element in any bridge hand is usually the opening lead. More than half the game, this move determines the success or failure of a contract.

The Spanish have a saying, "The first step is half the distance," whose truth we do not fully appreciate. I have found it to be true even in so subjective a pursuit as writing a daily column. To write the first sentence is much harder than writing all the rest of it.

If my "opening lead" is right, then whatever follows is smooth and well - proportioned; hardly a word needs to be changed or a sentence restructured. If the opening sentence is poor, it is easier for me to throw it away and start another topic than to proceed from a maladroit lead.

The importance of getting off to a good start with a child, for instance, can hardly be overestimated. The first year is by far the most important — yet many, I feel, are wrong, wrongly believe that a baby is simply a lump of protoplasm which does not need serious and tactful attention (beyond changing and feeding) until it can stand up and babble a few words.

A wrong start, by its very nature, keeps getting more and more wrong, and each day becomes increasingly difficult to correct the curve. Once a boy, for example, becomes tagged as a "delinquent", his tendency is to become one — not necessarily because of his nature, but because his treatment by others sets up a vicious circle of mistrust and resentment. Only heroic effects (on both sides) can break through the impression his conduct has made.

Equally, in our relationship with a new country, we get off on the wrong foot, things can only go from bad to worse. How often when we have erred, even, after not seeing such a person for a long time and then re-meeting, that we are wrong in our first impressions, and it is possible to be friends. Making an utterly new start is the only way out.

We commonly think of the "beginning" as just a point in time, from which developments proceed in a straight line—when this is a wrong conception. The beginning includes the end, contains the past, is a point in time, and is thus more crucial than any other part of the event.

Anyone who remembers, as a child, getting off to a poor start (either inside or outside the classroom) in a new school will vividly recall how difficult it is to establish an equilibrium after the first wrong step has been taken. We can recover from late catastrophes more easily than from early failure.

20 YEARS AGO

October 29th, 1942.

At their regular session on Tuesday night, members of the city council adopted a definite policy of tree removal and all decayed or dying trees will be removed before good trees are touched, despite requests from property owners for removal of trees that owners may believe are injurious to their property. It was shown in the debate that tree removal is under a select committee and not under the Department of Public Works. It was also decided that the City Engineer, the City Comptroller and Ald. H. J. Clarke would be the committee to decide upon requests for the removal of trees.

Shades of other days were recalled when Mrs. E. St. Thomas' night when a chestnut horse was seen running loose on the street, and crossing the main way was narrowly missed by an auto. Mrs. Thorne, county constable, was notified and took the horse in charge. The horse was without shoes and evidently had strayed from some pasture field.

Contributions to the annual St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. tag day on Saturday amounted to $458.00, Mrs. J. Neate, regent of the chapter announced. Owing to the chilly weather we discontinued tagging at five o'clock Saturday afternoon, which makes our receipts of $458.00 very much appreciated," stated Mrs. Neate as she expressed the thanks of the chapter to all who assisted in the venture.

Landlords are supposed to pay heavy taxes which help to provide the relief for those in their tenants can not pay the rent, the landlord has to raise the money from somewhere, generally by a mortgage on the property. Food, fuel and medical attention is paid for out of relief, but as far as Belleville is concerned, says this landlord, nothing is ever provided for by the municipality, although it is done in other places.

But it is equally foolish to abdicate the policy-making function to the expert, as we seem to be in danger of doing. Expert opinion deserves to be one factor in the equation supporting a decision. Another, equally important, factor must be good, common, everyday horse sense.

Electrolysis the Only Sure Way to Remove Hair

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: After much expense and many treatments I find that hair removed by electrolysis seems to be growing back. I would hate to have to do this again. Previously I had hair removed by the hot wax method by a beauty shop and found it satisfactory. Is the latter method harmful to the skin? — Mrs. H. S.

The wax method is not particularly irritating such as chemical depilatories may be. The hairs are pulled out, but as you now know, they will grow in again.

Electrolysis is a tedious process and hence more expensive, but it is the only method I know which destroys hair permanently. Any apparent regrowth actually is of neighboring hairs which you may not have noticed.

Here's an explanation of the principle involved:

1. Shaving, of course, just cuts the hair off at the surface. It does not destroy it. It may become heavier or coarser, despite the food hopes of adolescent boys, or the fears of their fond mothers.

2. Abrasion used to be popular and effective to the same degree as shaving. Pumice stone rubbing removes the skin grinds off the hair.

3.Depilatories are chemicals in cream or other form which dissolve the hair.

4. Wax removal pulls out the hair. The follicle remains in the ever, and new hair will grow. This is the equivalent of plucking.

5. Electrolysis destroys the follicle, so hair cannot grow again from it — and this does not prevent other follicles from continuing to produce hair. That, in fact, is the main difficulty with electrolysis. You have to go at it one hair in time.

In reply to the frequent worries about the results of shaving, the A.M.A. Journal recently carried a report of a study by Dr. Howard T. Behrman, of New York.

It showed that hair grows faster immediately after shaving, but within a few hours it slows down.

The report confirmed that shaving does not make the hair darker or coarser. The hair shaft is darker and coarser at the root, so that cutting nearer it gives this appearance.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had had undercut ulcers and has been taking medicine for a year. Is there any cure for them? Please send me your booklet on ulcers. I enclose the dressed envelope and 25c in coin. M. G.

Admittedly, some ulcers won't yield to anything short of surgical removal, but most can be cured. More than medicine is required, though. The patient has to do his part - - as outlined in detail in the booklet. Tension and emotional play a great part in stubborn cases. I'm sending you the booklet too and are often overlooked.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can ivy poisoning recur next year even though I will not be exposed again? R. S.

No, you have to be exposed again. A person who is sensitive to ivy poison, or has become sensitized by contact, can get a rash next year from indirect sources - - the oil of the ivy transferred to the hair of a dog or cat, or onto a child's clothes, etc. You won't break out with the rash unless you encounter the ivy plant, but you don't have to touch the plant directly.

Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Calorie Chart," write Dr. Molner in care of Daily Intelligencer, 1882 Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee, Illinois, enclosing a long self-addressed envelope and 10c in coin to cover printing and handling.

Big Winds of the World

National Geographic Society

The cry "Hurricane!" sends inhabitants of the western Atlantic basin scurrying for cover year after year.

The devastation recently caused by hurricanes Fiora in Haiti and eastern Cuba again dramatically demonstrated the awesome might of a tropical storm.

Despite today's sophisticated forecasting techniques, hurricanes still take a tremendous toll. Erratic behavior such as Fiora's five-day, zig-zag journey over the Caribbean Sea, caught the best informed prediction.

Weathermen consider the Atlantic hurricane one of the fiercest — the Pacific Typhoon, the cyclone of the Bay of Bengal and the Arabian Sea, and the Australian willy - willy — as nature's most destructive storms.

The Atlantic hurricane, which occurs seven to eight times a year, is not as concentrated as a tornado. But it packs a punch estimated as the equivalent of 10,000 atomic bombs of the type dropped on Nagasaki in the Second World War.

Tropical Birthplace

Tropical hurricanes inflict damage in three ways: pounding seas, flooding, and winds. Of these, the winds are the most spectacular of waves and hurricane lashed cliffs. In any case, because as much erosion as a century of ordinary wave action.

A hurricane may pour billions of tons of water, more than an area's normal annual rainfall, in just a few hours. People and animals drown; crops and property are laid waste in the ensuing floods.

To be rated as a hurricane by meteorologists, a storm must have winds of at least 75 miles per hour. But the highest winds have never been accurately determined: Anemometers are often blown away by the winds being measured.

Winds must have reached 200 to 250 miles per hour during some hurricanes, engineers estimate, to have done the damage left in the storms' wakes. After a hurricane struck Florida in 1935, it was found that victims had literally been sandblasted to death—their clothes were torn off, their skin abraded. ◊

Hurricanes are born in tropical waters south of the equator anywhere from the Cape Verde Islands, off Africa, west to the Gulf of Mexico. The storms usually travel west to northwest, then veer north to northeast when they reach colder waters. But there is infinite variation in this basic pattern.

The Galveston hurricanes of 1900, in which some 6,000 persons died, began in the tropical mid-Atlantic, moved into the Gulf of Mexico and headed into the United States over the Texas coast. The same storm, in various phases, has been traced to the Great Lakes, eastward across the Atlantic, past northern Europe, and into Russia.

For some years, the U. S. Weather Bureau has assigned girls' names to hurricanes and typhoons, but other systems have been tried. Grenfell Dunn, director, and Banner I. Miller, research meteorologist, of the United States Navy Aerological Centre at Miami, tell this story in their comprehensive book, "Atlantic Hurricanes":

"Early in the century a forecaster in Australia named hurricanes in his area after political figures whom he disliked. By properly naming a hurricane the weatherman could publicly describe a politician (who perhaps was too generous with weather bureau appropriations) as 'causing great distress' or 'wandering aimlessly about the Pacific'."

Population Went Home

St. Thomas Times Journal

A number of years ago a school board election meeting was to have been held in Elmdale School. Five candidates turned up.

But not a single member of the public.

Of course a Times-Journal reporter was there, pencils well-sharpened, to get the story the candidates had to tell.

The candidates and the reporter waited and waited. Nobody came.

An hour after the meeting had been due to begin one of the candidates said: "There is nobody here, but The Times-Journal reporter is present and when the newspaper is here it is equivalent to the entire population of the city, and we make our speeches to the reporter."

"No you don't," replied the reporter. "The entire population of St. Thomas is going home."

Youths Ordered To Pay $1,200 In Damages

Two Belleville youths must pay $1,200 damages for a car theft reported after stealing it.

The amount the insurance company pays is going to increase the rates . . . that all of us pay on our cars," noted Magistrate T. Y. Wills as he placed Steven Mott, 16, and John James Lowes, 17, on two years suspended sentence. Each boy must pay back $620 to the car owner in period stipulated by the magistrate. A condition of Mott's sentence was that he return to training school.

Both pleaded guilty to two charges of car theft on October from Dr. W. C. Ludolph, 16 Northwood Crescent, and on April 21st from James Fox, 31 Smith Crescent.

The Ludolph automobile was abandoned behind Moira Secondary School.

Fox's car was also abandoned — after it hit a hydro pole on Thurlow Township's second concession.

"The estimate of damage was $1,241," said detective Harold Read.

Both boys admitted to the thefts, the officer said.

"It is clear that the insurance company will pay for this," summed up the magistrate. "But the insurance company is an individual just the same as everyone else."

Payment of the damage by the youths would relieve "The unfair share of the cost being placed on the rest of us."

Lowes will begin paying next April, finishing in December.

Because of training school, Mott will start restitution in March, 1965.

Abandon Stolen Car North of Bellville

A car stolen in Toronto late last night, was found abandoned on Highway 401 outside Belleville last night.

The automobile, apparently undamaged, was spotted by OPP constable Bill Ross, on the road shoulder between highways 14 and 37.

Ross Whicher Not Candidate For Leadership

TORONTO (CP) — Ross Whicher, a former candidate for the leadership of Ontario's Liberal party, said Monday he would not contest the leadership vacated by John Wintermeyer after his defeat in the Sept. 25 provincial election.

Whicher, member for Bruce, was one of six Liberals who ran against Mr. Wintermeyer at the party's convention in 1958. Mr. Wintermeyer took over then from Farquhar Oliver, who has been chosen house leader until the leadership convention in the spring.

Toronto lawyer Joseph Gould 51, has announced that he will seek the leadership post. Mr. Gould has been member for Bracondale since 1959.

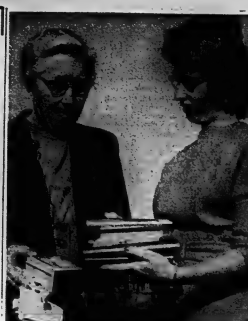
Had to Operate

FRESHWATER, Isle of Wight (AP)—A nine-year-old sheepdog named Bruce is recovering from an operation which veterinarians say was necessary to correct a change in his sex.

Said his owner Mrs. Kathleen Cotton Monday night: "Bruce is doing fine but we won't know for a few days if the operation has been successful."

Bruce had the reputation of being a fairly gay dog on this island off the south coast of Britain. In his time, he had fathered a number of pups and had never been known to back out of a fight. But a few weeks back, his attitude changed. Instead of being the hunter, Bruce became the hunted. The backyard at the Cotton residence was invaded by neighborhood hounds who apparently found that Bruce had become attractive.



Mrs. Cotton called in a veterinarian surgeon and told him of her fears—that Bruce was changing sex. The veterinarian agreed and operated. Bruce still is in bandages.

In London, experts said the situation was rare but not impossible.

"One gets examples of animals born with certain of the generative organs of both sexes which do not become evident until later in life," said one expert.

FIDEL BANS BEER

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Havana Radio has announced a government ban on day-time sales of beer during work-days, starting Tuesday. Fidel Castro's interior ministry set 6:30 p.m. as the time Cubans can start buying their brew. "In this way workmen can buy beer after they finish their daily work, and vagrants and parasites will not be in a position to obtain great amounts of the product," said the broadcast.

AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS of carrying the mail in Hillcrest, Miss Annie Logan will be quitting next month. Yesterday, Mrs. Grant McCoy presented her with a plaque and an alarm clock, gifts from more than fifty Hillcrest residents.

Hillcrest Residents Honor Their Retiring Postwoman

Everyone in Hillcrest knows Miss Annie Logan. She's the lady with the small blue car, who has delivered the community's mail for the past eighteen years. She's going to quit now though.

"It's just getting to be too much for me", she says.

Her decision to quit coincides with the Post Office decision to begin letter-carrier delivery in the area. Next month, the day after Miss Logan drives the six-and-a-half miles of RR 8 for the last time, regular mail

Her decision to quit coincides with the Post Office decision to begin letter-carrier delivery in the area. Next month, the day after Miss Logan drives the six-and-a-half miles of RR 8 for the last time, regular mail deliveries, and the rural route will be rural no more.

The carriers will be post office employees: Miss Logan was working under contract to the post office.

Yesterday, Miss Logan was presented with a plaque commemorating her service, and an electric alarm clock, as a "thank you" from nearly fifty residents of Hillcrest who contributed toward the gift. Mrs. Grant McCoy, of 9 Pearl Street, made the presentation.

Read how London Life helps young couriers fit life insurance into their budgets.

This London Life advertisement is specifically for men who plan to marry this year

If you buy life insurance now, you take full advantage of your youth and good health. Read how a London Life policy can actually grow with your family, and eventually provide for your retirement.

ON THE DAY YOU MARRY, your fiancee becomes both wife and dependent. You know life insurance will give her financial protection, but here are some facts you may not know:

(1) A London Life Jubilee policy is an unusually good investment. It is not affected by market fluctuations. It gives you guaranteed cash values and annual dividends. It is just as safe as high-grade bonds and much safer than most common stocks.

(2) You can take advantage of your youth and good health. If you are 25 and healthy, you can buy a $10,000 Jubilee whole life policy with annual dividends, for $13.09 a month. If you are 30, the premium is $15.27 a month. At age 35, the premium is $18.11 a month. Change to annual premiums any time you wish.

(3) The sooner you start, the more money you'll save. In fact, if you start when you're young, you can build up substantial savings in addition to the protection given your family. For example, on a $10,000 Jubilee whole life policy purchased at age 25 you will have available about $12,600 at age 65, twice as much as you have paid in premiums. (Based on the 1963 dividend scale and assuming you leave dividends to accumulate.)

(4) The London Life Insurance Company has had an outstanding dividend record over the past 50 years. Since 1951 the London Life dividend rate has been increased six times.

(5) One reason London Life dividends to policyowners are high is because the Company invests wisely and profitably. (In 1962, the Company earned 5.47% on its investments – after investment expenses.) Dividends on participating policies are declared annually. The dividends payable to London Life policyowners in 1963 will be more than $23 million.

(6) One reason London Life premiums are low is because Canadians, on the average, are long lived.

(7) You can reserve the right to buy more London Life insurance regardless of health. A small addition to your annual premium gives you this valuable option.

(8) If a financial emergency crops up, you can borrow from London Life on the cash value of your policy. Quickly and quietly. The interest rate of 6% is comparable with banks' regular lending rates and much lower than personal loan companies'.

(9) Your wife should know what life insurance you own and where you keep the policies. Make sure she gets to know your banker, your insurance man and your lawyer.

(10) When you call a London Life representative, you'll soon realize that he has been schooled to develop an insurance program tailored to fit your needs.

Taffy Apples and Carmel Corn

by Mary Moore

and Hobgoblins for Hallowe'en Capers

You can make red taffy apples and carmel corn for your Hallowe'en Hobgoblin Party to your heart's content.

We had a dubgastul of carmel corn to share with neighborhood children and red taffy apples which children and adults munched on. I bought my sticks for the taffy apples from the butcher, paying 6c for 12. So maybe your butcher will sell you some too or if there is a decine in your family, bamboo tangzan depressors would do if your doctor husband or son co-operates.

The Hobgoblins make exciting favors on a Hallowe'en party table.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Split Pea Soup; Cold Cuts: Sliced Liverwurst, Chilled Sliced Canned Corned Beef, Sliced Bologna; Mixed Mustard and Pickles; Potato Salad; Fruit Cup; Seeded Halved Red Grapes, Melon Balls, Grapefruit Sections; Chocolate Chip Cookies; Tea.

RED TAFFY APPLES-ON-A-STICK:

10 to 12 wood skewers, 10 to 12 medium-size eating apples, 3 cups granulated sugar, ¾ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1½ cup water, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 15 whole cloves, 2 teaspoons red food coloring.

Stick skewers into stem end of washed and dried apples securely. Combine sugar, cream of tartar, water, lemon juice and cloves in thick heavy saucepan (I used my heavy aluminum small pressure cooker). Stir over hard until sugar dissolves. Add coloring. Boil hard, without stirring to 300 deg. Fahr. or hard crack stage. Remove from heat. Skim out cloves. Twist apples in syrup quickly, tipping pan to coat upper shoulders of apples. Set on buttered cookie sheet, far apart, not touching. Use some day as prepared.

CARMEL CORN:

½ cup raw popcorn (makes 2 qts. popped), 1 1/3 cups sugar, 1-6 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon boiling water (extract of rosemary), 3 teaspoons butter, 3-4 teaspoon baking soda.

Have popcorn ready-popped in large clean dishpan. Stir in sugar, cream of tartar, extract and water until sugar is dissolved. Boil about 5 minutes. Do not stir. The instant this turns a gold color remove from heat at once — stir in baking soda and butter and at once pour over hot popcorn in fine stream. Be sure not to burn yourself, but at once toss with 2 forks to coat popped corn. As soon as coated popcorn can be handled lift out handfuls onto sheets of wax paper to cool. Break any kernels apart that cling together. This should be served the day it is made.

HOBGOBLINS:

1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, ⅔ cup corn syrup, ½ cup water, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 teaspoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 4 cups rice krispies, 1 cup peanuts or walnuts, (optional).

Combine sugars, corn syrup, water, butter and vinegar, cover and cook to 240 deg. Fahr. or to soft ball stage. Cool slightly, add vanilla and cinnamon and pour over mixture of rice krispies and nuts. Shape into small 3" balls and insert a toothpick in each for a base. On each toothpick place a marshmallow for a "body," liken a cooked prune for a "head". (Remove pits of prunes and stuff with small candies, if desired.) Make features on each prune by pressing slivers of blanched almonds into surface for "faces".

NOTE TO N.E.B. (unsigned letter):

Apples may be dipped in melted semi-sweet chocolate in the same way as above and, if desired, immediately sprinkled with desiccated coconaut.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

FABRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

With so many winter weddings on the calendar, perhaps you're wondering what are the facts about sending presents to th e happy couple. The same rules apply in December as in June. Here are some representative questions that always pertain:

1. Who is required to send a wedding gift?

2. Is it sent to both bride and groom?

3. Where is a wedding present sent?

4. Should it be gift-wrapped?

5. What type of card should be enclosed?

6. If a gift is sent after th e couple is married, where and to whom is it sent?

7. May a cheque be sent, instead of a present?

8. How is it made out?

9. How should a gift card be signed?

10. Should a return address be included?

Answers:

1. Anyone who has been invited to both wedding and reception.

2. Wedding gifts are sent to the bride. The same procedure is followed by all donors, even those who know only the groom and have never met the bride, or know her only slightly.

3. It's always sent to the home of the bride.

4. Yes.

5. A calling card may be enclosed, or a simple white card — often supplied by the st ore mailing the package. A sh ort message of congratulations may be written on the card, if desired.

6. It is addressed to both Mr. and Mrs., and sent to their new home.

7. Relatives may send cheques, but other wedding guests usually do not.

8. A cheque is made out to the bride, if it is sent before h er marriage, and sent to her at her home. If, for any reason, it is sent after the marriage, th e cheque is made out to both.

9. Unless a donor such as "Uncle Mac" can be readily identified by such a signature it's wiser to sign a card w ith one's full name as the bride may send a thank-you note to the proper person.

10. Definitely, either on th e outside wrappings, or on th e card enclosed.

U.C.W. Meeting

WELLINGTON U.C.W.

WELLINGTON — Almost one hundred ladies enjoyed an afternoon of sociable good fellowship, when Wellington United Church Women entertained members of their sewing room fellowship, Melville, Hillier, Bass Hall, Stevenson's and Barr's church-es. With Mrs. Thomas Barr at the organ, the meeting was called to order with quiet music. Mrs. R. Pierson in her capable manner presided. Mrs. Lala Wright of Belleville led the devotions. Women have a place in the church, sincere service gratefully rendered, the structure of organized society will crumble as our purpose. Mrs. G. Parks, Mrs. H. Wright, Mrs. B. Bishop, Mrs. Mac Crowe and Mrs. Pierson took part in the service.

Mrs. H. Rash introduced the speaker, Mrs. E. Bray of Frankford, secretary of Christian Stewardship and Recruiting in Belleville Presbyterial, who proved a fascinat ing speaker giving much information. In her opening words she paid tribute to the president, Mrs. H. Pierson, for her vim and energy for the work and her association with the Presbyterial, and to Rev. Mr. Pierson who was described as one who got things done.

Continuing, the speaker said there is a great reversing as church work, full time workers are needed in every field. Unlike the church Women can find means and ways to stimulate interest in heart and girth by availing them in Quota Mar-Lee camp where a flame of enthusiasm will be kindled. Dedicated women will take time to attend conferences and regional meetings to keep abreast with the work and establish a proper attitude. Our interest must be kept fresh. Stewardship calls for it to get the proper attitude among the members, bcase our allegiance will be easily met. She recommended the use of envelopes and systematic giving.

ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITIES

We must carry on the torch handed to us by accepting responsibility. We must look out beyond the wardship horizon to the whole of life, our time and interest. Now is the time for witnessing and action, let us raise our sight and see the need for strong men and women.

Mrs. K. Chown on behalf of those present thanked Mrs. Bray for coming and closing her visit at Presbyterial of U.C. Women's work. Mrs. Pierson also voiced her appreciation. A program followed, with a musical number from Bloomfield U.C.W. when Mrs. Walter Fox and Mrs. Whytock Fox sang. Everyone with a duet, accompanied by Miss Shirley Fox at the piano; from Rose Hall, Mrs. W. Cooley, Ruth Miller and Helen McCormack sang with Janet Cooley accompanying them.

The regional meeting at Massassaga in November 8th and the next general meeting of Wellington U.C.W. on November 28th were announced.

Tea and a social hour were enjoyed with Mrs. J. Dick and committee in charge.

FASHIONABLE HATS ARE COMFORTABLE THIS SEASON

With the introduction, th is fall, of hats that are real hats, not just bits of veiling meant to be perched on top of elaborate creations of hair, in question of head sizes is once more with us. A hat that is too small for its wearer, regardless of style, will not be comfortable. It can, and does, cause headaches. Not fitting down on the head the way the designer meant it to, it likes do not mow to best advantage. Conversely, a hat that is too big will constantly slip down it feels insecure and the m o st gentle wind will lift it out of line.

According to statistics, th e average woman has a head measuring from twenty-one and one half inches to twenty-two and one quarter inches and most hats are made to fit these average measurements. Th e puffed and teased hair styles of the past three years have helped the woman with the small head, increasing her head size. B u t the woman whose head measures twenty-three inches without claims that the continuing popularity of the First Lady pillbox everywhere, but in Quebec, can be attributed to the ease with which it fits large head sizes.

He also says that the beehive hair style is dying, very slowly, outside of Quebec. In that Province, this style has had it — it is finished. He hopes that th e new soft permanent waves, set on big rollers, will encourage more women to get rid of these towering, built-up hair styles. Once a woman who has a large head converts to the new soft hair styles, he claims that she will be able to find a hat which is becoming and comfortable this season. He has a whole collection of young looking h a ts, which are available in all sizes, right up to twenty-three inches.

I asked him about the l i t t l e girl with the small head. What happens when she discards her bonffant hair style? She c a n either have her new fall chapeau adjusted by padding underneath the inside ribbon, or she can buy one of his specially-sized hats, marked with a large tag, which reads: "small size."

The Rev. Roy Vessey officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Lily-of-the-Valley tucked in mauve and white bows designated the guest pews.

Miss Caroline Bekkour presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Miss Sheila Keenan in her renditions of "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love."

Women Called on to Take More Interest in Politics

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Two many women are isolated in their political viewpoint, too involved in local or provincial politics to promote the national cause, Mrs. R. A. Kinnear of Port Colborne, Ont., president of the Federation of Liberal Women said Monday.

Addressing nearly 500 delegates on the opening date of the federation's three-day national convention, she called for women to take a greater interest in the political life of the country.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said during a luncheon speech that although she is often called upon to look at legislation from a woman's point of view, she is trying to represent the people of Canada and not just the women.

Miss LaMarsh said Liberal women have reason to be proud of their two newly - elected women MPs—Pauline Jewett, Northumberland, and Margaret Konantz, Winnipeg South. She added jokingly: "And if you'll wait a little while longer, I think you'll be proud of all three of us."

BROUGHT GREETINGS

Bringing greetings from the federal government, Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier said Liberal women could do more to aid the cause of national unity than any other group.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton, in an unscheduled appearance at the convention's opening ceremonies, drew loud applause when she paid tribute to Prime Minister Pearson. The mayor said "through the years I have always known Mike Pearson as man of honor and conviction."

Mayor Whitton said that it is of the "utmost importance" that strong party convictions and affiliations are maintained.

Micheline Tessier

Prepares for New York Debut As Met Revives Caruso Opera

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (C) — Micheline Tessier, a striking, brown-eyed soprano, is preparing for a milestone in her operatic career—her New York debut at Carnegie Hall next March.

Miss Tessier will sing as Princess Eudoxie in La Juive, the opera by 19th - century French composer Jacques Halevy.

The production itself will be a major event because the golden-staged opera was last done in New York in 1933, with Enrico Caruso singing the male lead.

"An appearance in New York is difficult to get," said the 28-year-old Montreal artist. "Usually you get a minor role, much as that of a servant, and end up singing no more than 20 pages."

Miss Tessier is excited for another reason. She will sing opposite a long-time idol, Metropolitan Opera star Richard Tucker. She says Tucker has always wanted to sing the role of Elmar, last done by Caruso.

Recalling her audition for the role of Princess Eudoxie, Miss Tessier said conductor Robert Lawrence, the producer of the concert version of the opera, had her sing half a dozen arias.

HAPPILY SURPRISED

"I thought I was finished," she said, making a fullstop gesture, but Lawrence told her the part was hers La the production was possible."

She says she thinks her French background helped her get the part. Lawrence is interested in reviving French opera for the American audiences, she explained.

Last year he produced two French operas in Carnegie Hall but "La Juive" ran into difficulties. The only musical score available, however, was for piano, so the orchestral scores had to be composed.

Also the opera calls for two full choruses, together with the wide range required by this operas are "hard to find."

La Juive (The Jewess) is the story of two women in love with the same man — Elezar. Miss Tessier likes her role—she portrays a "nice, sweet girl"—but her favorite is still that of Violetta in Verdi's La Traviata, one she has sung many times, including 22 performances in German.

WORKED IN GERMANY

The soprano studied at New York's Juilliard School of Music before going to Germany to look for a job. She picked up the language quickly and spent two years singing lead roles with the Detmold Theatre in Detmold.

She says the main difference between Europe and Canada from the singer's standpoint is that the chances of making a living are better in Canada. Canada, she says, there are "plenty of singers but no outlets."

"I'm living proof of it! If you were working like everyone else. We had to be in the theatre by 10 a.m. each day and received our pay cheques at the end of the week."

She says she wonders how a singer can support a family in Canada with an appearance on the average of once every one or two months. In Europe she sang four or five nights a week.

Both Miss Tessier's parents were singers but her father later became a physician "or I never would have been able to pursue my own career."

She was born in Paris where her American-born father was studying medicine.

Four years ago she married Gilles Pelletier, music critic for the Montreal French-language daily newspaper Le Devoir. They have a two-year-old daughter Natalie and a rambling seven-room house in suburban Outremont.

Two Women, Sisters, Say Hard Work Only Answer

WINNIPEG (CP)—When the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards met here, two of the more interesting delegates were women—sisters.

Shirley Brunke is chairman of the women's division of the Toronto Real Estate Board and a board director. Norma Bland was among the top 10 real estate salesmen in Ottawa last year.

While both have their full share of good looks, personality and an inherent liking for people, neither has found this enough to make a success in the profession.

Hard work, they say, is the only way to succeed.

But affection for people and enjoying dealing with them is certainly no hindrance.

"You must have empathy with your customers," says Mrs. Brunke. "You must be prepared to put yourself in their shoes. You must be ready to really work hard.

"It's not all glamor. You must be prepared to answer the telephone 24 hours a day and go out in all kinds of weather at almost any hour of the day or night.

"Why, to get a holiday I have to go out of town some place where there's no telephone."

MOVING UP

Mrs. Bland was one of six women among 73 candidates who received associate membership in the Canadian Institute of Realtors at the convention in early October.

Next May she will become a fellow of the board—a position her sister already holds.

Mrs. Brunke explained that to become an associate a person must be over 35, have three years experience, belong to a registered board and have taken a three-yearuniversity course either by correspondence or by attendance at lectures.

The fellowship requires five years active business participation.

But it's not all business in the lives of the two women. Both have large home responsibilities in their stride as well. Mrs. Brunke started in the business eight years ago when she left with three youngsters to feed, clothe and care for, switching from her former profession as a dietitian because selling real estate gave her a better opportunity to care for her growing family.

Mrs. Bland found "a perfectly wonderful employer" a great asset in looking after her two children, including a baby, when she followed her sister's example.

Church Groups

(E.S.W.A.)

A complimentary subscription will be sent in a former member, Mrs. D. Milligan in hospital. A donation of $15 was made to the leaders of the Girls' Auxiliary who are planning their annual party.

Mrs. L. Mason, convenor of the fall bazaar discussed further arrangements.

Mrs. Bongard and Mrs. E. Pope served tea and cookies.

Chief Director Praises VON For Service

The regular meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held recently at the YMCA.

The president, Mr. Frank Follwell, advised the board that it would be necessary to move the V.O.N. out of their present quarters at the Kinsmen Centre. They will have to vacate over a month before then by November 15th, as the former rooms are needed by another organization. Mr. Follwell stated that he would meet with Mr. Freestone and set a day for Miss Dorothy Conner, Mrs. Franklin and himself to work out satisfactory arrangements.

Mr. Follwell said he had met Mrs. Robson, who visited the local branch from head office, October 9, 10 and 11. She was pleased with the way in which the V.O.N. was operating here under Miss Conner and her staff. Mrs. Robson hopes to visit with the board early in 1964.

In a letter received from Miss J. A. Allen, Superintendent of the V.O.N. in Ottawa, it was reported that the service given by the Belleville V.O.N. nurses was excellent.

NURSE'S REPORT

Miss Dorothy Conner gave the nurse's report for September. There were 1,000 home visits were made to 113 patients. Medical and surgical patients were 47 per cent of the caseload and 84 per cent of the visits. Maternity cases were born were 21 per cent of the caseload and 8 per cent of the visits. Patients other than maternity, for health supervision only, represented 32 per cent of the caseload and 8 per cent of the visits.

During September, two visits each were made to Douglas Atkin and Canniffon-Corbyville schools.

Four Premature Babies Now at Home Doing Well

TORONTO (CP) — Four infants whose combined weight at birth barely equalled that of a normal-sized baby are thriving in their Metropolitan Toronto homes. All were born at Mount Sinai Hospital here.

The smallest, Susan Levi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Levi, weighed in at a mere one pound six ounces. Now, five months later, she is a gurgling, cooing nine-pounder.

Elana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shmuel Kopersztein, weighed only two pounds one ounce at birth and now, at eight months, is a bouncing 14 pounds 7¼ ounces.

Sonia, the first child in 17 years for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Salini, was born three months prematurely and weighed two pounds. She was in hospital for three months before being allowed to go home.

"She'll soon be walking," says her mother. Her only other child, Claude, was born in 1946 and was a normal weight.

Stuart Lloyd Weinstock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Weinstock, weighed one pound 13 ounces and lost six ounces in his first few days of life. Nearly a year later he weighed 15 pounds.

SECRET IS CARE

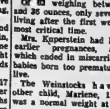
"It's most unusual to have so many tiny prematures survive in one year," says Sidney Listwood, administrator of Mount Sinai. "They are the smallest babies born here since the hospital opened 19 years ago."

"The secret is good nursing care," said Dr. Barnard Lashi, the hospital's chief of pediatrics.

"The nurses hovered over Susan like a new-born egg," said Mrs. Levi. "They were wonderful."

No official records are kept on the smallest baby ever to survive in Ontario but several Metro hospital officials agreed that Susan would be a strong contender. The Levis have one other child, Brian, 3, who was adopted.

The death toll among prematures is high. Among 23,000 births at 10 large Ontario hospitals in one recent year, there were nine babies weighing less than 17 ounces. All died within seven days.



Of 63 weighing between 18 and 26 ounces, only seven were living after the first week, the most critical time.

Mrs. Kopersztein had the earlier pregnancies, all of which ended in miscarriages or babies born too prematurely to live.

The Weinstocks have one other child, Marlene, 12, who was a normal weight at birth.

stated Liberal party policy on nuclear weapons: That the Conservatives had promised Canada's NATO partners that this country would accept nuclear warheads and that therefore the Liberals must carry out this commitment.

The navy in 1960 undertook to build a fleet of 34 combat ships, 30 of which would be assigned to NATO's supreme allied commander, Atlantic, and 24 to NATO's Canada - U.S. region. The navy in 1963 reached this target.

Officials said the commitment presumed a regular replacement program for aging ships so that new ships would come into the line as old ones were mothballed.

Informants said 31 of the navy's 54 combat ships—one aircraft carrier, 20 destroyers and 10 minesweepers—are modern enough so that their lifetimes will extend into the 1970s.

But the 23 others would not last that long unless refitted at almost as much cost as their original price.

tal council in Rochester, N.Y., agreed that hospitals must cooperate in service planning. Lack of central planning often leads to certain needs being overlooked.

Dr. C. J. Doherty, medical superintendent of the Sudbury Algoma Sanatorium, said the greatest need in co-operative planning is education of hospital personnel and the community.

TO EASE SHORTAGE

On the first day of the four-day conference, the association proposed a five-point program designed to alleviate the nursing shortage in Ontario:

1. Urge the provincial government to develop and staff enough schools to double the number of nurses in five years;

2. The government should assume at least two-thirds of the cost of building new schools or additions to existing ones;

3. Encourage universities to enlarge their nursing education facilities several times;

4. A greater number of more liberal bursaries should be provided to encourage the development of well-trained teachers;

5. A consultant group, including OHA representatives, be established to advise the minister of health about continuing needs in the nursing field.

He accused Mr. Denis of failure jo reply to letters from Mrs. Stewart Oct. 4 and Mrs. Stewart's mother Oct. 18. His own letter of Oct. 10 was replied to Monday.

Mr. Webb said the new postmistress, Mrs. Dillon, works as a part-time clerk, drives a rural mail route and with her husband, who works as a carpenter, owns a farm. Four of the Dillon children were working away from home and another was married.

He concluded by offering Mr. Denis a petition from the users of the Enterprise post office stating their satisfaction with Mrs. Stewart as postmistress. He said 180 signatures were attached.

Mr. Denis replied that Mrs. Stewart wasn't entitled to veterans' preference and was only acting postmistress since her husband's death.

Dad Poor Loser Son Wants To Abdicate as Chess Partner

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a chess maniac. Not a very accomplished one, but I enjoy the game and I'd trying out for membership in our chess club at school.

Now that I've improved I can check-mate my father's king about 5 per cent of the time. This seems to be causing a lot of trouble between us. If I put him in check with a piece he will make some snide remark like "Where did that come from —" as if I had cheated.

When he finds he's beaten, he makes up an excuse to quit or "accidentally" tips over the board. Yesterday I beat him twice and he got so mad he almost hit me.

To be honest with you I don't want to play chess with my father anymore. My mother says I should play with him but that I ought to let him win, so we can have peace in the house. Do you agree? — SIXTEEN PIECES OF TROUBLE.

DEAR SIXTEEN — I do not agree. What your mother calls peace is really appeasement. She is asking you to knuckle under to escape your father's wrath.

A person of integrity does not take a dive for any reason whatever. Do your homework during the evening and play chess with your friends.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Will you please clarify something for a group of south side commuters? In a recent column a woman said of her sloppy office colleague, "If her garter breaks she doesn't bother to sew it on. She just pins the stocking to her girdle. When she crosses her legs the pin and dirty slip show. It is revolting."

We girls have been experimenting and we find it impossible to pin a stocking to anything without ripping it and causing runs. So this slob must be pinning her garter to her girdle. Even so, how does she cross her legs and reveal the pin job without hiking her dress way up? Please clarify this one in the paper.—NON-BELIEVERS.

DEAR NON — All it takes is a long girdle, an extra large safety pin, and a sloppy girl who doesn't care how she sits.

Your letter was a challenge so I did some experimenting by myself — at home, not at the office — and it can be done. Incidentally, girls, the dress needn't be hiked "way up." With the current hemlines, it's already there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 40 and still single. My fiance is 45 and a Sea Bee. Mert and I have been going together for four years.

Because of his career we are separated a great deal of the time. Mert has to travel 500 miles to visit me when he is on shore and able to leave the port. We manage to see each other about seven times a year.

Mert had an unsuccessful marriage ten years ago and claims the marriage failed because he had to be away from home so much. He says he loves me but will not marry again until he retires from the Sea Bees, which will be in 14 months.

Does this reason sound like a good one — or do you think he is stringing me along? Mert writes once a week and telephones long distance whenever he can. Please help me see this situation clearly. — VISION BLURRED.

DEAR VISION — I believe your Sea Bee's judgment is securely anchored to reality.

Since you've already invested four years in Mert and he is thinking in terms of marriage, be patient and go along with him.

Truckers in the Kitchener area were using any and all containers to transport water. One farmer in Wellesley solved his container problem by dumping out this year's supply of apple cider.

In Sarnia the emergency measures organization made a list of trucks in Lambton County that could be used to cart water both for humans and for livestock.

In the London area an oil company had trucked 65 loads of water to farmers. In the Niagara Peninsula fruit farmers pitched in to water their orchards—but were told not to.

Failure of the meeting would represent a serious blow to the Organization of African Unity, which was organized at the Addis Ababa meeting, and would be a bad omen for prospects for peaceful settlement of future disputes between Africa's new nations.

To strengthen the Moroccan position at the talks, Hassan's government announced its troops were eight miles from Tindouf, well inside the territory claimed by Algeria. Information Minister Abdel Hadi Boutaleb said Morocco would not take Tindouf "by arms but by negotiations."

The Moroccan king said he would press for adjustment of the frontier, most of which has never been formally marked out. It was doubtful that Ben Bella would concede much, if anything, and he was certain to reject Morocco's claim to the ore-rich Tindouf area.

Govt. May Not

tered the debate in the evening to defend the government on both fronts.

Firing back at the Creditiste motion, he said: "I think the state of Quebec is still part of Canada."

NOT SERVILE

There was no question of servility, Mr. Hellyer said, in the government's decision to honor its commitment to the United States to install nuclear warheads at the two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que.

Unless the United States was willing to contract out of the plan by negotiation—"which in this case I am sure it is not"—then Canada was duty-bound to carry out its part of the bargain.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked whether he was sure the U.S. would be unwilling to release Canada from the agreement.

Mr. Hellyer said he based his feeling on the importance the U.S. attaches to the nuclear weapons system.

Turning to the cancellation of the frigate program, he argued that the multi-purpose ships were planned for several roles and none of them effectively enough.

He said he had given the defence committee a clear indication that a decision on the ships was shaping up, yet it hadn't taken the opportunity of seeking to question him on it.

PLANS POLICY

The defence minister made three other points:

1. The defence department is planning "a comprehensive policy for the future" which he hopes to unveil early next year.

2. Abandonment of some defence establishments in Canada is "quite possible" as an economy measure. Some changes were essential and "they are not all going to be politically palatable."

3. The defence committee should concentrate its studies on long-range defence strategy and policy — not on "housekeeping" affairs of the defence department. Committee recommendations on policy would be welcomed and "very valuable to the government."

Mr. Churchill said the defence committee, set up to consider defence policy, was a waste of time and "we might as well disband it."

Ont. House

dicated the program of his Progressive Conservative government can be dealt with in a matter of hours. The opposition, however, may force the session to a two-day lifespan.

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, is expected to criticize the government for dispensing with the traditional fall session of the legislature. This has been put back to January by Premier Roberts.

NEED MORE TIME?

The opposition leader—Farquhar Oliver is acting for the Liberals in the political demise of John Wintermeyer — may also contend that a few hours is hardly time enough to deal with the development and loan fund legislation.

The federal government has set aside $400,000,000 for lending to municipalities in Canada to finance various civic projects. Ontario's share of this—about $140,000,000—will be disbursed by the provincial government under the pending legislation.

The government will vote itself the power to dole out the money to municipalities once it is satisfied that the financial stability of the communities involved has been protected.

One other thing the government has said it plans to do is reconstitute the select committees on consumer credit and municipal law. These were dissolved along with the last legislature, Ontario's 26th.

(COLUMN 2)

dian history the defeat of government supporters on a Speaker's ruling heralded the defeat of the government itself soon after on a non-confidence motion.

The most recent instance was last January shortly before the Conservative government was defeated on the nuclear arms issue. A previous instance occurred in 1926.

The Liberals called home their United Nations delegation and cancelled the departure of another parliamentary delegation heading for a NATO meeting in Europe.

In the best circumstances, the Liberals can muster 129 voting members against a combined opposition of 136—95 Conservatives, 17 New Democrats, 13 Creditistes and 11 Social Credit MPs. In a tie, they can count on another vote from Speaker Alan MacNaughton.

But they aren't operating under the best circumstances due to absentees on official delegations, illnesses and other factors.

Mr. Caouette said he is confident of a full turn-out of 13 Creditistes.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, pointing to an agreement for a "free vote" on nuclear issues in his party, expected all seven of his Quebec MPs might vote against the government if they voted at all. At most he figured the Liberals could get two Social Credit votes.

The New Democrats consistently oppose nuclear arms in Commons votes.

It appeared the Conservatives might throw sufficient weight behind the Creditiste motion to topple the government.

However, there were complications which had Liberal whip James E. Walker and Conservative whip Eric Winkler working on their members' lists.

There was a formidable number of prospective absentees and vote cancellations for one reason or another.

The Liberals Monday night were missing two MPs at a Commonwealth conference in Malaya, six at the United Nations, two due to illness and one attending his mother's funeral.

For the Conservatives, two were ill in hospital, another was en route home to Western Canada, one was in Malaya and another at the UN but instructed to return for Tuesday's vote.

The New Democrats had one MP in Malaya and another at the UN. Social Credit was missing one MP in Malaya and another in the Maritimes on party business.

TAKE FRENCH MISSILES

OTTAWA (CP)—Two French anti-tank guided missiles, the Entac SS-10 and the SS-11, have been adopted by the Canadian Army, it was announced Monday. The Entac is an infantry weapon while the SS-11 will be employed by the armored corps.

It's All in Her Age

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Please accept my heartfelt thanks for the great help you have been. For a while I felt you were the only real friend I had.

Now my doctor has taken the time to explain the personality change which has been of great concern to me. Well, Doris, it is all a matter of hormones! It is my age, and a particularly annoying menopause. Apparently I am not the type to get it over with in a hurry.

He told me of many patients, business women as well as housewives, who are going through the same thing, and with proper medication, will get through it and be themselves again.

In the realms of personality you are superb, but according to my doctor, I can't reason or think myself out of what has been ailing me. Such thoughts as you promoted have helped, just the same. — BLESS YOU.

DEAR BLESS YOU — Good for your medico! I'm publishing your letter to remind other women of your age that there's help — of one kind or another — for that down-in-the dumps feeling. Our leaflet on "Facing Forty," (available to anyone writing in) tells the story.

DEAR DORIS — I like a boy in Grade 12. I am in 11. I passed him on the street the other day and when I didn't say anything, he said "hello". Lately I've been meeting him in the strangest places; I really couldn't say "hi".

This boy is the school class president. I've spoken to him at other times. We have meetings at church and other organizations. I think by now he probably thinks I'm stuck-up or something. Could you give me some advice? — NOT REALLY STUCK-UP.

DEAR NOT REALLY — Make up the lost time by saying "hello" to him sometimes when the places are not quite so strange. The lady really should speak first!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I have a problem. I am nineteen years old and have been very happily married for two years to a man who is forty. However, lately I have noticed that whenever we go any place, my friends do not associate with him.

Please tell me why they act this way and what I can do? — DISTRESSED.

DEAR DISTRESSED — Settled folk in their forties can be like a foreign language to Teen-agers or even Early Twenties. Help bridge the gap by having one or two of your contemporaries in for an evening. They need to get to know your husband as a person rather than as an unknown Age Level.

* * *

NOTE TO VENTURESOME WIDOW — I have a letter for you. Would you please write in again, identifying yourself with name and address, so that I may forward it?

* * *

Confidential to FUTURE PLANNING — At 16 it's risky to leave home unless you are sure you can support yourself.

You need someone to talk to and I suggest you get in touch with Children's Aid Society in Belleville. The worker there will be glad to talk over your situation with you.

About joining the army, write to: The Army Recruiting Station, 339 Queen Street, Ottawa, Ont.

This came from a Belleville reader who did not enclose a self addressed envelope.

Are you the one person in three who might benefit from a low-cost Seaboard Mortgage Loan?

Borrow up to $10,000- as long as 10 years

What is a Seaboard Mortgage Loan? It is a low-cost loan for people who own, or are in the process of buying a home. The money you have invested in your property is excellent collateral for a Seaboard Mortgage Loan. And this means you get one of the lowest rates of interest to be found anywhere, because real estate offers such excellent security.

When should you take out a Seaboard Mortgage Loan? Only when it's to your advantage, and this can be worked out between you and your Seaboard manager. Here are some ways other people have benefited from Seaboard Mortgage Loans:

- To reduce your monthly mortgage payments.
- To pay off high-cost charge accounts and loans for furniture, car, clothing, etc. Often articles which you think you are buying at a saving are actually costing you an unnecessarily high price because of the variety of service and interest charges.
- To put your children through university or to make home improvements.
- To help you purchase a new or older home if you are having difficulty in raising the necessary mortgage money.
- To assist you in selling your home if a prospective buyer has difficulty in raising cash to your mortgage.

How much can you borrow? You can take out a Seaboard Mortgage Loan up to $10,000 or 80% of the market value of your home. What's more, monthly payments can be planned to fit your budget and leave you with extra cash each month.

How does this special plan work? Here is an example of how a Seaboard Mortgage Loan can reduce your total monthly payments and save you money:

FILE NO. 32 — 4709 "MR. JONES"

New monthly payments with a Seaboard Mortgage Loan—$96 per mo.

Total obligations consolidated into one Seaboard Mortgage Loan reduce monthly payments from $162 to $96—a 40% reduction in monthly payments, or $66 extra in your pocket each month.

What special benefits do you receive from dealing with Seaboard?

- You can renegotiate your contract anytime.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"A STAR IS BORN"

Gordie Howe, rated in my book at least, the greatest professional hockey player to give an opposing goalie heart-trouble, has added another achievement feather to a well-decorated sports bonnet.

Besides being busy at breaking National Hockey League records and leading the Wings to what he hopes will be another league title and Stanley Cup, Gordie is more than a passing golfer, an astute business executive, family man and home lover.

Now, of all things, Gordie has become an author. He has written a book "Here's Howe" and it is a "must" for the younger hockey fry and any oldster interested in the game.

Gordier reviews his own literary brain-child in the book's preface. He says, "In this book I'm going to try to set out some of the theories I have about the game. Those ideas worked for me and they could work for you."

He adds—and this goes for any hockey player—"Remember one thing . . . your coach knows what you can and cannot do, better than anyone . . . and he's there to help you."

He goes on: "Some boys for one reason or another are unable to play the game. I hope they read this book, too, because it may give them a greater understanding of hockey. Through that understanding they may enjoy the game more. Let's not forget, we play hockey for fun. If hockey are not done on the ice. If you are physically unable to play the game, you can still support your team. A hockey team without loyal fans isn't much good."

"Finally," writes Gordie, "if you are a player, remember this. Your coach knows best how to handle any situation that might arise or difficulty you may have. But he can do only so much to make you a good hockey player. The real hard work is done by the fellow wearing the skates . . . you!"

Howe deals with condition in his first chapter: "The best way to stay in condition," he says, "is never to get out of condition."

He goes on to deal with equipment, skating, stickhandling and passing, shooting to score, the goalkeeper, the defencemen, the forward line, victory in play and defence, injuries, and how to avoid them, and the officials' and the players' attitudes.

"Here's Howe" is profusely illustrated with sketches of "right and wrong." It is written in plain, simple language that even a "tyke" player can understand.

And here's a Howe tip that should be read, learned and inwardly digested by any and all minor hockey players:

"Hockey can teach you to be a good winner and a gracious loser. Good winners are easy to find. The only thing is, if you win, don't go around with a big head. Let's get the word 'gracious' straight. I don't mean a good loser. I don't believe there is any such thing. By a 'gracious' loser I mean a boy who doesn't sulk when the game is over. He goes to admit that his team was beaten by a better team and who is willing to congratulate the opposition for a job well done. But at the same time a boy should keep in the back of his mind when he is shaking hands with the individual that beat him, that he's going to improve, he's going to beat him the next time."

"Here's Howe" was not written or embellished with the effects of a "ghost writer." Howe wrote every word of it himself and the contents are 100 per cent Gordie's, feelings, opinions, theories and advice.

As I said every minor hockey player who wants to improve his play should read "Here's Howe." It is simple to get. Have another package of boxes of Campbell's Red Kettle Soup Mix and send the trio of carton fronts to "Hockey Book, P.O. Box 700, Station K, Toronto, Ontario.

Shatto Got Headlines But...

Patterson Broke Record

TORONTO (CP)—Willie Dick Shatto was stealing the headlines, Hal Patterson was setting the record.

A check of the records Monday showed that Shatto, a halfback with Toronto Argonauts, did not set an Eastern Football Conference record Sunday when he caught seven passes for a career total of 383.

Shatto did pass the previous mark of 377 set by Red O'Quinn, former end with Montreal Alouettes. And after some anticipation, it was announced that Shatto was the new record-holder.

However Gord Walker, the league's official statistician, admitted Monday that the record was actually broken earlier in the year by Patterson, another former Montreal Alouette now playing with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

STARTED WITH 358

Patterson began the season with 358 career receptions. He has 40 so far—10 less than Shatto, who leads the league.

So the EFC record now is 398, held by Hal Patterson.

Walker said the error occurred when he neglected pre-season statistics to include Patterson's pass-catching figures made with Montreal before he was traded to Hamilton in 1960.

The spectacular Tiest end also holds the league record for most games gained on pass receptions, 8,231, including 832 so far this season.

The figures only date back to 1954, when Walker took over as league statistician. No league records were kept previously.

Taylor, Manning Top Receivers

Official NHL statistics released today show two other players currently tied with Geoffrion for the scoring leadership.

Stan Mikita of Chicago and Jean Beliveau of Montreal also have 12 points, but it took Mikita eight games to collect six goals and six assists. As for Beliveau, only three of his 12 points represent goals.

HULL FOURTH

Bobby Hull, Chicago superstar who also has enjoyed a 50-goal season, moved into fourth place in the scoring race by getting two goals and two assists in the Black Hawks' three games last night. He now has 10 points, five of them goals.

Montreal rookie John Ferguson, left winger on the line with Geoffrion and Beliveau, has nine points and is tied for fifth place with Ken Wharram of Chicago.

Ferguson has four goals and Wharram four.

A victory and a tie during the weekend maintained the Hawks at the top of the league standings, now with a comfortable four-point margin.

Montreal and Montreal are tied for the runner-up spot with eight points each. Toronto Leafs are ranked ahead because they have four victories to Canadiens' three.

Detroit has seven points, New York six and Boston Bruins, with one victory and one tie in eight starts, have three.

HALL TOP GOALIE

Glenn Hall of Chicago took over the goaltending leadership from Detroit's Terry Sawchuk, allowing only four goals in three games last week while Sawchuk was scored on eight times in two contests.

Hall now has 17 goals against him in eight games for an average of 2.13.

In second spot is Toronto's Johnny Bower, who has 17 goals charged against him after seven games. Sawchuk is third with 18 goals against in seven appearances.

Both Hall and Bower have one goal registered against them that was scored into an empty net in the dying moments of a game. No power goals are yet included in goals-against totals for purposes of awarding the Vezina Trophy.

Bruins are the league's most penalized team so far, with a total of 34 minutes. The individual penalty leader is Larry Jeffrey of the Red Wings with 34 minutes—more than one-third of his team's total.

Leafs Call Pair From Rochester

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs announced Monday that right winger Gerry Ehman and defencemen Al Arbour from Rochester Americans will be called up for a National Hockey League game here Wednesday night against Montreal Canadiens.

Punch Imlach, Leafs' general-manager and coach, said the American Leaguers are needed to fill vacancies created by injuries to regulars Bob Nevin and Carl Brewer.

Nevin suffered a severe bone bruise on the ankle last week and Brewer has been absent since last spring when he underwent an arm in the last game of the Stanley Cup finals.

Veteran To Play For Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders announced Monday that Canadian tackle Gil Archambault has come out of retirement to rejoin the club and may see action in the coming Eastern Football Conference playoffs.

The 29-year-old Archambault suffered a knee injury in last year's semi-final between Montreal Alouettes and was announced his retirement during the winter.

The 270-pound tackle, a first stringer in six seasons with Ottawa, received a cheque and gifts from the football club and fans here a few weeks ago.

Riders also announced that import defensive halt Don Derrick has been sent home for the balance of the season. Ed Ulmer, who joined the club early last week from Syracuse Stormers of the U.S. United Football League played in Derrick's place Saturday against Hamilton Tiger-Cats and apparently won a job for at least the balance of this season on the strength of showing then.

Coach Frank Clair said Archambault will play in Ottawa Saturday against Toronto Argonauts in order to be eligible to participate in the playoffs. Riders are dropping lineman Chuck Woods to make room for him.

Stamps Have Hot Tandem

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — Flanker Bobby Taylor, once told to get out of football before he got hurt, and import end Pete Manning, who never wanted to play football in Canada, today rank as the second most potent pass-catching tandem in Canadian football history.

Between them they have snared 131 passes for 1,950 yards and eight touchdowns in 13 Western Football Conference games this season and form an integral part of Calgary Stampeders' offence.

Their combined receptions are 15 shy of the 146 total compiled by Ron Patterson and Billy O'Quinn with the 1956 Alouettes.

In 1957 while attending high school in Calgary, Taylor threw five-foot-six and 105 pounds, was told by coach to "get out of football before someone kills you." It was jocularly suggested he should try out for a jockey.

"I didn't get much chance to play but I kept coming out to the practices and watching the games. I never would think about getting hurt because I knew I was as tough as anybody else out there," Taylor said in an interview.

A "tough guy" Gil Dodd and when he reached Calgary his first year of junior football he had grown a couple of inches and gained 30 pounds.

PLAYS HOCKEY

Taylor, who plays hockey in the off-season, will join Denver Invaders of the Western League this year.

Manning, 26, was born near Boston and is a graduate of Wake Forest University. He was an eighth draft choice of the National Football League's Chicago Bears and spent two years with them as a defensive halfback. He came to Calgary in a trade for Ed O'Bradovich, another end.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — It took Bradbury, a three-year-old bay colt, most of two racing seasons to learn how to run, but Monday at Greenwood the tenacious little thoroughbred showed his pluck to 8,093 racing fans and hung up his sixth straight victory.

The 100 of Fast and Fair had to be content with the furious charge of Indian Crossing to accomplish his victory but with Jockey Eric Walsh in the saddle giving aid, Bradbury went on to a neck victory. Already this was a distant third.

Bradbury paid $4.80, $3.40 and $2.40. Indian Crossing paid $6.80 and $3.20. Already Dia returned $2.60.

Hot Shot Unseated The Duke

PARIS (AP) — The shot that helped Jack Nicklaus win the Canada Cup individual golf crown Monday also unseated an ex-king.

The Duke of Windsor, a former King of England, was sitting on a shooting stick in the fairway just behind the trap on the sixth hole when Nicklaus blasted from the sand into the cup, 70 feet away.

"The duke became so excited he fell off his seat.

Two-Way Ti-Cat Honored

Henley Russel Memorial Winner

HAMILTON (CP) — Garney Henley, named winner of the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy Monday, can't get away from his fans. Not even in a hospital.

The Hamilton Tiger-Cat halfback, picked as the Eastern Football Conference player who best combines ability with sportsmanship, was flat on his back when the announcement was made.

And, to hear his nurses talk, he is the favorite patient in the Chedoke General and Children's Hospital he serves has been confined to bed since last Thursday.

"We'll get him back on his feet," said one nurse Monday night. "We're giving him tender, loving care."

Henley was injured nine days ago in a game at Toronto against the Argonauts and hospital officials Monday night said it will be "several days at least before he is released."

The outstanding defensive half, who is equally effective when used offensively, has a cracked rib and a kidney injury "something similar to a bruised kidney."

ANNOUNCES CHOICE

His choice as winner of the annual award, won last season by George Dixon of the Montreal Alouettes, was announced by EFC secretary Frank Gibson of Hamilton.

A second award went to punter Rick Black of Ottawa Rough Riders, picked as the EFC's outstanding rookie. Voting in both categories was done by the league's officiating staff.

The hospital official said Henley has been on bed rest since he was admitted to hospital and that x-rays will be taken later this week to determine the extent of the injury.

He is certain to miss the Ti-cats' final game Sunday afternoon at Montreal against the Alouettes, but hospital officials —obviously football cognicsnt and Tiger-Cat fans—say he will be in good shape for the playoffs.

Henley, 26, has been a key man in the Tiger-Cat drive to first place and leads the league in pass interceptions with six. He has the deception of a basketball player and the speed of a sprinter. He came to the Tabbies four seasons ago from Green Bay Packers who felt he was too small to make it in the National Football League.

Leads Eastern Conference

Dick Shatto Eyes TD Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Who would have thought Toronto Argonauts would turn out to be the saviors of the Eastern Football Conference?

The hapless Argos thumped Saskatchewan Roughriders 48-20 Sunday at Toronto and gave EFC teams an even split this season in inter-conference games.

Eastern and western teams won 10 interlocking games apiece in the EFC, forcing a deadlock which can be broken only in the Grey Cup game.

It was only the third win in 13 starts for the last-place Argos. The margin of the victory also gave the EFC an overall edge in points, 439-427.

And not hoping to spoil the party a long look at a fellow named Dick Shatto when they get around to meeting the Big Four's most valuable player.

Shatto is the leading scorer, leading pass receiver and third in rushing with a team that has not distinguished itself offensively. His average per pack has scored 13 touchdowns for 78 points, 12 points more than runner-up George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes.

NEARS WAGNER MARK

The all-time leading scorer in the EFC, Shatto now has scored 78 touchdowns since joining Argos in 1958. He's only one short of the record held by former Montreal great Virgil Wagner. Shatto also has gained 1,041 of his career in the five-point touchdown era and hasn't as many points.

In receiving, Shatto is far ahead of the opposition this season with 58 receptions for 1,041 yards and he set a career record in this department Sunday when he grabbed seven to give him 383, six more than Red O'Quinn, the former Montreal end who now is general manager of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Shatto is a country mile ahead of Ottawa's Jackie Parker, his nearest rival, in the rushing department. Shatto has churned 1,261 yards on 184 carries. Tiest has 873 on 144.

Ottawa's Russ Jackson leads the passers. He has completed 179 of 241 attempts for 2,734 yards.

Quinney Henley, the versatile Tiest handyman, has picked off eight passes this season to lead in this department.

Ernie White of the Rough Riders is the best at returning kickoffs, covering 605 yards while running back 19—an average of 33 yards a try.

Ted Page of the Als, busiest target of the league's punt return men, has run 325 yards while returning punts 51 times. Glen Bernier of the Als, a reformed soccer player, enjoys a slim punting lead over Toronto's Dave Mann with an average of 41.7.

Nine-Holes Decision Irks Canucks

Canada Cup

By JOHN FARROW

VERSAILLES, France (AP)—Jack Nicklaus played the last round of the Canada Cup golf tournament in a swirling fog Monday as if he had nerves—and he did.

The 23 year-old husky hitter from Columbus, Ohio, disclosed after he had won the individual title with a 63-hole total of 227 and the team title for United States with Arnold Palmer at 462, that he carried a "kind of radar."

"It's in my hip pocket in the shape of a card," he said, "to pace every course I play. I know the distances, not by just looking, but knowing. I don't play by visual guessing of distances."

Nicklaus, who had played well in the fog once before in the 1959 U.S. amateur at Colorado Springs, Colo., did the final nine holes in a four-under-par 32. The last nine holes were cancelled because of the fog that blanketed the course for the second straight day.

Nicklaus' total was five strokes better than Sebastian Miguel of Spain and South African Gary Player, who finished in a tie for second.

FAR UNDER PAR

Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer carded a 63-hole team total of 462—22 under par for the Saint-Nom-la-Bretecche course in the suburbs of Paris. They were three strokes better than second - placed Spaniards Miguel and Ramon Sota, and 10 better than Player and Relief Waltman of South Africa.

The Canadian team of Toronto's Al Balding, Stan Leonard of Vancouver was fourth with 495 and Balding tied Palmer and Australia's Bruce Crampton for fifth place in the individual competition.

Balding matched Palmer's 34 Monday in the nine-hole windup to give him 67-71-73-34 — 245. Leonard was 69-71-71-39—250.

But the Canadians were bitter about the decision to cut the final round to nine holes "even before a shot was played."

Organizers said weather conditions made it impossible to play the full 72 holes as scheduled.

ANOTHER WAY?

"That's okay," retorted Balding. "But there was another way out. Everybody should've been told that an effort was going to be made, to play 18 with the proviso that the tournament would revert to 63 if the weather clamped down."

Leonard, too, was outspoken: "The tournament was cut to a battle between six or seven teams. There was a chance those teams would complete the 18—even if the other teams did not.

"The point is, we could have reached the first green and wind could have blown away the fog. The sun might have come out. But it was all cut and dried beforehand. It was nine holes and that was that."

BOXER TURNED THINKER — Reggie Chartrand, 30, was one of Canada's leading welterweights in the 1950s. Today he works as a waiter and runs a boxing school in Montreal where he's active in the Quebec separatist movement. Chartrand's reading today runs from Nat Fleischer's Ring record book to the French philosophers. (CP Photo)

Separatist Boxer Runs School

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — Reggie Chartrand went soul-searching at 32, gave up the prize ring and jumped into the world of the thinker.

Now at 30 he works as a waiter, reads the works of such philosophers as Jean - Jacques Rousseau and Blaise Pascal, and runs a deficit-ridden boxing school in a rundown white-painted building that once housed a Protestant church.

He is also a self-proclaimed separatist, a supporter of the movement seeking to shear Quebec from Confederation.

Chartrand bought his building for $15,000 a year ago in a drab east-end area where tenements are crammed together and tough-looking kids scurry about the streets.

Inside, in his cubbyhole of an office, his desk bears a telephone, a copy of Nat Fleischer's Ring Record Book and an economic treatise by Raymond Barbeau, a top-ranking separatist figure.

FORMER CONTENDER

Once one of Canada's leading welterweights, Chartrand is a squat, muscular man of five foot-seven with angry, deep-set eyes, dark curly hair and the typical features of the fighter—flat face, broad nose and scar tissue around the eyes.

At 185 pounds he's 20 or so heavier than the night he fought Tony Percy here for the Canadian title in 1954 and bowed in a 15-round decision.

Chartrand is undeniably an extrovert, expressing himself candidly, with gestures, in booming tones like a man who wants to be sure he is understood.

His conversation is sprinkled with multi-syllable words, belying a formal education that stopped after the sixth grade. Ultimately he wants to write books.

He is especially outspoken on the subject of boxing.

MAN 'WASTING'

"Boxing is dying," he said, "because man is dying. He's dying 10 and 15 years before he should because he is physically wasting. Modern living has made him a weakling. The woman has taken over many areas that were once his exclusively. He has become too lazy to even do anything about it.

"Come an economic depression and boxing will come back, hard strong. It's a way out, a way up, for a guy with an otherwise restricted future."

He argues passionately against any ban on boxing.

"It's one of the few areas left in society where a man can show his masculinity and his honor. Nobody pushes you. You

Juniors Meet Picton Here Friday

Belleville's junior "B" hockey entry will get its first playing tests here tomorrow and Friday night, Manager Mel Richards said today.

The team will play an inter-squad game tomorrow night at Memorial Arena starting eight o'clock.

Friday night the squad meets its first out-of-town opposition when Picton's Intermediate team will be here for an exhibition tilt. The game gets under way at nine o'clock.

Some forty-two youngsters have turned out for the team under the eye of Coach Eddie Plata. Several practices have been held. The squad will shortly be cut to 25 aspirants.

"The players are starting to round into shape" Manager Richards said, "and we hope to have a good representative club. The boys are working hard and tomorrow night and Friday night's games should show us a lot."

Outside of the minors the Junior Bees represent the city's only organized hockey squad — and it is hoped the fans will come out and support the youngsters.

Last-Minute TD Won It

Brighton Defeats BCI

By ROBERT WILLIAMS

With three minutes left in the game and the score knotted at 14-14 Anthony Stobie of Brighton took a pass from Charles Ewing and ran 70 yards for a touchdown after breaking loose on an excellent block by Bob Simpson to defeat BCI 20-14.

BCI was in complete command in the first quarter as the defence led by Dave Brisbin persistently tackled large losses on the Brighton squad.

Ron Walsh got the first major on a pass from Alan Mott, set up by a long drive up the field by backs R. Ridley, J. Miller and D. Purcell. The try for extra point was blocked.

In the second quarter Mott again hit Walsh with a 15-yard pass and the touchdown. V. Miller booted the convert. Following long passes to Day and Simpson, Ewing passed to Stobie for Brighton's first T.D. Simpson kicked the convert.

In the second half following a third down punt by Ewing, a surprised B.C.I. defence watched Ewing recover the ball and go into Brighton's second major. McMaster added the extra and leading point.

Deep in their own end in the last quarter B.C.I. reached Brighton's 3-yard line on good passes by Mott to Adams and Walsh where the ball was fumbled and recovered by Brighton.

With four minutes to play, Adams kicked the tying point from Brighton's 30-yard line. Two plays later Stobie got the winning touchdown.

In the junior game BCI took an early 8-0 lead on a touchdown by Dave MacCormack. Brighton quickly followed with one of their own on a pass to Wayne Dowden. Ross made the extra point. In the second half F. Hamilton threw to Brian Cooper for the second major which ended the scoring at 14-8. G. Lucas was a standout for BCI being in on nearly every tackle.

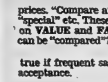
QUALITY AT FAIR PRICES

WHAT IS A FAIR PRICE?

IN THE HEART OF THE CITY

HARDWARE

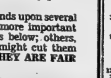
"FAIR", as above, became part of our slogan years ago. It means the same now as then; its choice was definite and purposeful.



HERE ARE THE REASONS:

There are many words to describe prices. "Compare at"; "right"; "correct"; "was and now is"; "discount"; "special" etc. These become only adjectives or relative terms if not based on VALUE and FACT. Is it not true that two items of unequal value can be "compared"?

Furthermore, "regular price" is only true if frequent sales have been made at such price, that is, by public acceptance.



A FAIR price depends upon several factors. Production and distribution costs are two but more important is Market Trend. Some stores have the same prices as below; others, higher. Some call them bargains. After this ad, some might cut them for a day or two to cause confusion but ACTUALLY THEY ARE FAIR RETAIL PRICES.

Things Seem to Be Opening Up for Negro Performers

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) "I don't know whether I should thank heaven for the racists on Washington," says singer Nancy Wilson, "but business has been very good."

Like many Negro performers, Nancy has enjoyed a spurt in her career in recent months. It would appear that the clamor for Negro rights has reached the conscience of perhaps the hard business minds of those who do the hiring of talent.

A Columbus, Ohio, girl with rare beauty and singing style, Nancy had been doing well on her own. She had been playing some of the better night clubs, with occasional concerts. Her Capitol record albums have been pushing the 100,000 mark.

But only recently has she been getting interest from the important television variety shows and from the bookers of the top supper clubs. A significant break-through is her signing with an agency for commercials. Other spots for television are in the offing.

OPENING UP

"Things seem to be opening up for all Negro performers," she observed. "Before, when you saw an elevator scene in a movie, the passengers were all white. Now if there is a Negro or two, I guess the producers decided that Negroes ride elevators, too.

"I believe there will be increasing work for Negro actors and as that happens the calibre of acting will get better. There have been only a few really fine actors, because all Negro actors had so little opportunity to demonstrate what they could do."

Even the best of Negro entertainers have a tough time in getting to the top, she said.

Now the wife of drummer Kenny Dennis and mother of Kenny Jr., she maintains a home here but spends most of her time on the road. "That's all right with me," she said, "I want to sing."

Separatist

get into the ring if you want to, and you step out the same way.

"Some people say the pounding makes a man slow-witted. But society itself makes a lot more people slow-witted."

Why did Chartrand quit?

"For me, the future as a fighter was limited. I used to cut easy around the eyes. I knew I wouldn't be going anywhere. I might have become a good club fighter—I won 33 of my 37 fights as a pro, you know —but that was it."

Reggie was born in Rockland, Ont., one of seven children of a sawmill worker. The family moved to Timmins, Ont., when he was a toddler and Reggie recalls his years growing up in school there with unconcealed distaste.

"We never had much money. My clothing was impoverished. In the summer I didn't even wear shoes. In the classroom I was a dumb-bell. In the schoolyard, with my fists, I was a champion."

He drifted to Montreal as a youth, took a $15-a-week job in a clothing factory and started campaigning in amateur boxing.

Thinking of quitting the ring, Reggie started training for the world he'd missed—literature. Soon he was devouring volumes of the classics.

"It was just as if I had spent all my earlier life on another planet."

A year ago he started teaching the manly art—"Ecole de Boxe" says the electric sign outside—buying the old church and outfitting the main hall—45 feet by 70 feet—with a ring, three light bags, two heavy bags, weights, mirrors for shadow work and other paraphernalia for training.

So far about 100 youngsters have passed through. The charge is $35 for three months.

His boxing school, the affable bachelor says, "runs into the red almost every month. While I am inculcating an ego-ideal, I don't ever expect it to make any money.

"But my job as a waiter gives me a comfortable living and I look on the school as a labor of love.

"I want to help the French-Canadian. Some English kids come in, but most are French. I can help them. Boxing gives a kid confidence. And we French here need it. We suffer from a mass inferiority complex.

"It may not be the best way to help, but it is a way. I'm doing something."

Marshall Tops AHL Score List

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a familiar name on top of the American Hockey League scoring list today—Willie Marshall.

The veteran 33-year-old centre of Providence Reds, who played for Hershey Bears last season, went on a scoring rampage on the weekend to take the scoring lead with 17 points on nine goals and eight assists. Len Lunde of Buffalo Bisons is second with 12.

Pittsburgh Hornets' Roger Crozier tops the netminders with an average of 2.17 on 12 goals in six games. Don Cherry of Rochester Americans leads in penalty minutes with 32.

Attendance In AF Loop Increased

NEW YORK (AP)—Commissioner Joe Foss reported increased attendance and dollar volume in the American Football League Monday and estimated that four, and possibly six, of the eight teams, will share a profit in 1963.

Foss, speaking at the weekly meeting of the New York Football Writers, said attendance had passed the 600,000 mark at the halfway point in the season, an increase of 80,000 over a similar period last year.

"Dollar volume is up 29 per cent," said Foss. "We really are moving along. All the clubs are up."

Foss said the league had become so well balanced that "the word upset has become obsolete."

Redman Tops College Score Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

McGill halfback Willie Lambert lengthened his lead in the intercollegiate senior football scoring race Saturday, scoring all the Redmen's points in a 17-7 loss to Queen's University Golden Gaels.

The touchdown and convert gave Lambert 41 points, 15 better than University of Toronto halfback Gerry Sternberg, held runner-up as the Blues edged University of Western Ontario Mustangs 12-8.

Bill Edwards of Queen's converted one touchdown for the Gaels to tie Mustang end Pat McConnell for third place with 29 points. McConnell was also scoreless.

Bayne Norrie scored a touchdown for Queen's, giving him 18 points and a one-point margin in fifth place over Western's Jim Weber. Toronto's Bryce Taylor follows with 15.

Interesting TV Choices Available Wednesday Night

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AT THE PARK — Tony Curtis plays seven comical roles, all the same character, in "40 Pounds of Trouble," whose final episode from famed South Shore of Lake Tahoe, is presented in color and Panavision, "40 Pounds of Trouble" is now showing at the Park Theatre. "To Kill A Mockingbird" with Gregory Peck is on the same program.

NEW YORK (AP)—Television viewers have some interesting choices available Wednesday night. There are among other network items, some dramas as He Rose on Sunday and We on Monday, Little Drops of Water, Little Grains of Sand, Oh, You Shouldn't Have Done It, and The Potato Bash World.

All the foregoing are the titles appended to episodes of network television series — respectively Espionage, Ben Casey, 11th Hour and Car 54, Where Are You? There seems to be some sort of a quiet contest going on this season to find the longest, most non-committal and weird title for a script.

Sometimes, it seems, these fashionable and kooky titles are the most creative parts of television scripts. Unfortunately, it is largely wasted effort. Who ever heard of a viewer who confided that he couldn't wait to see And Make Thunder His Tribute, when he's just planning to look at next Friday's Route 66 for an hour?

WHIP THEM OUT

The fad for surrealistic titles seems to have started with the avant - garde playwrights who are whipping up titles like Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf and Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm feeling So Sad.

Some television titles within the next few weeks include And James Was a Very Small Snail, (Breaking Point) and A Doll's House with Pompons and Trophies (Channing Again.)

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Take care in dealing with institutions, organizations. Minor misunderstanding could lead to "bad feelings." Check "fine print," especially where it concerns money, implicit responsibilities.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Resist trying to expand too quickly. Take your time, especially in the signing of documents. Friends will help . . . if you permit them. Generally fine day for socializing.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Time for review, analysis. Hold off on impulsive actions — restrain yourself. Take care of details involving current projects. Remember recent resolutions. Live up to responsibilities.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Fortunate that you are thorough. Be alert to superficial statements, actions. Avoid associate who offers substitute for quality. You can earn respect of superiors . . . by being sincere.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Dynamic day in store, if you are not afraid of new projects. Means: be willing to experiment. Partner or associate has confidence in you. Money situation will not remain an obstacle.

Scorpio (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21): Key is service. Courtesy, extra effort will make you stand out like a champion. Don't be afraid to give of your time. You will be repaid both now and in future benefits.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Fine for making basic changes. Travel indicated . . . including journeys of the mind. If you are not satisfied with status quo, do something about correcting situation. Act!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You can display abilities and affection. Family members may require aid. Strive for greater harmony within the home. Highlight understanding. If you are asked to be mediator, use diplomacy.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Fine for cementing friendships, reaching out and enlarging horizons. Don't stand in way of your own progress. Move ahead, expand. Make new contacts in person and through correspondence.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Approaching high point in cycle. You should be reviewing facts, figures. Future is not as far away as you might imagine. Ambitions could be quickly fulfilled. Be ready!

If today is your birthday . . . you have sense of harmony, are attracted to the arts . . . keynote to your success is humor combined with versatility.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Pisces, Aries, Taurus. Special word to Libra: Think, analyze . . . substitute creative decisions for needless brood ing.

Joseph Gould Wants to Lead Ont. Liberals

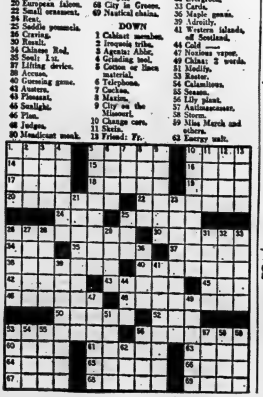
TORONTO (CP) — Joseph Gould, Toronto lawyer and member of the legislature for Bracondale, Sunday announced he will seek leadership of the Ontario Liberal party.

Mr. Gould, 51, is the first to announce officially that he will run for the post vacated by John J. Wintermeyer, defeated in the Sept. 25 provincial election.

The Ontario Liberal Association's management committee is scheduled to meet Nov. 23 to consider a date next spring for the leadership convention.

Mr. Gould, who describes himself as a middle-of-the-road Liberal, said:

"I'm not by nature, as far as policy is concerned, too far to the right or too far to the left. I think that is what the Liberal party needs today and I think I can give them what they are looking for."



He said that if he becomes leader there will be no headhunting as in the past, a policy which proved disastrous for the Liberals.

Mr. Wintermeyer was a man of great integrity but he was politically misled, Mr. Gould said.

Mr. Gould was born in New York City and came to Canada at the age of two.

What really was needed, he said, was a full - scale inquiry into the hospitals' infant care and infant mortality rates.

The West German defence ministry identified the statuesque brunette as Rometsch and said she and her sergeant husband had been called home last August on the basis of intelligence reports about her behavior.

A defence ministry spokesman said the woman had not had any contacts with persons from the Soviet bloc and "the whole thing seems harmless."

Sgt. Rometsch had been assigned to the West German military mission here.

Officials here said Mrs. Rometsch was sent packing after a quiet investigation by the FBI but that she was not deported.

Real Live Witch and Proud of It Has Cauldron for Hallowe'en

By EDDY GILMORE

BURLEY, England (AP)—Mrs. Sybil Leek—a real, live witch and proud of it—has everything ready for Hallowe'en, including her big black cauldron.

"But I'm not riding any broom," she explained in a recent interview. "I'm walking on Hallowe'en . . .

Then why the cauldron?

"I'm taking it along—as I always do—because it gets darned cold up there in the forest."

The witch and the other 12 members of her coven will build a fire under the cauldron and brew some soup from herbs to keep them warm on Hallowe'en, this Thursday.

Asked what time the coven would meet, she replied:

"At midnight (Thursday night), of course. What other hour? And we'll be up there until about dawn (Friday)."

Mrs. Leek lived in the heart of the New Forest, a spooky stretch of dense woods in the county of Hampshire, about 100 miles southwest of London.

Mrs. Leek's coven includes both men and women. A coven is 13 witches or warlocks gathered in a witchcraft session. A warlock is a male witch.

IS TRUE RELIGION

"I'm a witch," she went on, "and I practise witchcraft because witchcraft is the only true religion. And please don't get any notion that we're a lot of cranks."

She said witchcraft is much older than Christianity.

"For me witchcraft is a very real thing. It should be, for I've lived with it since I was 7.

"It seems to me that the time is ripe for the old religion—and that's what witchcraft is—to re-establish itself. And from what I know, there'll be no lack of adherents."

Asked how many witches and warlocks live in Britain, she said:

"I know of at least 600 covens."

This works out to be 7,800 practitioners of witchcraft on this island.

"Riding a broom and all that business is foolish," said the witch.

"But don't you have a black cat?" she was asked.

"No, but I have a jackdaw and he's very black."

Mrs. Leek, who is in her late 30s, is married and has a 12-year-old son named Julian.

HUSBAND HELPS

Mrs. Leek's husband, Brian, helps her with her sidelins to witchcraft — running an antique shop in the New Forest. Asked how he felt about his wife being a witch, Mr. Leek said:

"Let's put it this way—I'd rather have her on my side than against me."

Dedicated to witchcraft—and to helping other people through it—Mrs. Leek said:

"The reason why I no longer mind discussing the subject is that it seems to me civilization is at the crossroads. Witchcraft can help a great many people. People are confused and they can be helped."

She was most emphatic in pointing out that she practises white witchcraft, not black magic.

"There's a great difference. If one uses the occult powers badly, nothing can be more evil."

Ireland Plans to Raise Minimum Age for Marriage

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Put Charles Dickens in a bed facing either east or west and he spent a miserable night. . . He shared a delusion held by many people over the centuries that good sleep is possibly only in a bed parallel to the earth's north-south axis.

Ireland plans to raise its minimum age for marriage—now 12 for girls, 14 for boys —to 16 for both sexes. . . . Actually, however, the Irish have one of the world's highest average marriage - age rates: 31 for men, 26 for women.

Big news: The elephant is reported to be the only quadruped that is unable to take all four feet off the ground at the same time—except when lying down, of course.

During former times each member of the College of Cardinals had to provide his own food during the election of a pope. . . . The Vatican didn't install a kitchen to feed them until 1878.

Old story revived: Returning from a trip abroad, Mark Twain told a customs agent his luggage contained nothing but clothing. . . . The suspicious official rummaged through one bag, pulled out a bottle of bourbon, and demanded, "you call this clothing?" . . . "Yes," replied Twain calmly, "That's my nightcap."

Geographical quiz: Can you quickly name eight countries that begin with the letter "I"? . . . well, how about Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Israel, Italy, and India?

The fight against noise: The metro, the Paris subway, has put rubber wheels on its trains to cut down the squeal of wheels.

Do you think of the Sahara as uninhabited? . . . Actually, about 600,000 people live in it.

'64 Jet-smooth Luxury CHEVROLET

A General Motors Value '64 Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan

Besides looks, ride and power—what's so special about it?

(it's so reasonably priced)

Kind of leaves the high-priced cars some explaining to do, wouldn't you say?

Long and luxurious — with a clean fresh-christened look that almost makes you feel somebody should be breaking a champagne bottle on its prow.

Richer roomy interiors with subtle new blendings of colors and fabrics. Like the ultra-soft vinyl upholstery in the new Impala Super Sport Series. And the foam-cushioned front and rear seats and door-to-door carpeting, now standard in all models including the modest-priced Biscaynes.

A choice of seven engines, no less, with output all the way up (say when!) to 425 hp.*

And a choice of three smoother working transmissions — from automatic* to 4-speed Synchro-Mesh* — to go with them.

And underlying it all, the opulent feel of Chevrolet's Jet-smooth ride — something some of the expensive makes would dearly love to claim for themselves.

Matter of fact, the most important and noticeable difference between this beautiful new 1964 Chevrolet and the high-priced cars is the price itself.

Let your Chevrolet dealer show you how much luxury that reasonable Chevrolet price now buys. *optional at extra cost

Govt. Survives Two Votes Of Non-Confidence

Spectators Jam Galleries To Watch Proceedings

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — An opposition offensive against the government's defence policies fizzled out in the Commons Tuesday night and the minority Liberal administration survived two non-confidence motions with unexpected ease.

Members of all four opposition parties roasted the government for signing an agreement with the United States to acquire nuclear warheads, but a Creditiste non - confidence motion on the issue was voted down 135 to 85.

More than 600 attentive spectators jammed the galleries to watch the votes, presumably attracted by speculation that the seven - month - old government was in danger of being toppled.

SPLITS DEVELOP

Unusual splits and alliances developed on the motion by Creditiste Leader Real Caouette scoring the government for "subservientity" approving the storage of nuclear warheads in "the state of Quebec" despite strongly anti-nuclear sentiment in Quebec.

The 13 Creditistes drew support from eight New Democrats and six Social Credit MPs from Quebec. The Caouette motion was opposed by 119 Liberals, 16 New Democrats, 13 Creditistes and eight Social Credit MPs.

This motion alleged massive confusion in the defence department. It specifically criticized the government for cancelling a Conservative government program to build eight navy frigates worth $433,000,000.

The Liberal government now has survived nine tests of confidence since Parliament opened May 16. The closest vote last year was on the nuclear issue—an NDP motion defeated 134 to 113 May 21.

It had been generally assumed that the Conservatives would back the Caouette anti-nuclear motion, but former transport minister Leon Balcer rose just before the vote to announce that his party would support the government.

Mr. Balcer said the Conservatives are "opposed to nuclear arms anywhere in Canada"—especially when those arms were OTTAWA (CP) — Oct. 28 and 29 may go down in the history books of this Parliament as the days that shook the parties.

At least three of the political parties in the dominoes may experience internal repercussions as a result of the events of those two days.

Informants Tuesday night assessed the effects in this way:

1. Liberal ministers who were unenthusiastic about backbench demands for a greater voice in policy and decision-making now have ammunition against the backbenchers.

2. Wounds in the Progressive Conservative party inflicted at Dauphin Harkness' resignation last Feb. 4 as defence minister were re-opened.

3. The New Democrats may have to decide whether they can afford three-way splits in public on crucial questions.

In the Liberal camp, interest centred on the defeat of government supporters by combined opposition forces Monday when Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux sailed out of order a non-confidence motion on nuclear arms.

BAD ENOUGH

The Liberals had enough MPs in Ottawa to have prevented their party's defeat on this procedural issue. But when they met at a meeting of the Liberal caucus they detected that some more were viewing a railway locomotive as part of their work on the Commons railway committee.

The government supporters were motivated by only two votes. Prime Minister Pearson was unlikely reported to have been angry that some Liberals weren't on hand to ensure a victory coming out on top in the vote.

The absentees prepared for a blast at the regular party caucus meeting today behind closed doors.

A few feared the backbench absenteeism would be used to reinforce arguments that the backbencher didn't deserve a louder voice in making decisions reportedly won by the backbenchers at the three-day caucus a couple of weeks ago.

Not all cabinet ministers are considered to be enthusiastic supporters of backbench demands for a greater say in

Hurricane Ginny Cools Ontario But Fails to Supply Any Rain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Although hurricane Ginny pushed cooler air into Ontario Tuesday, the effects of the storm produced no major precipitation in the province and Ontario entered another day of its worst drought in 63 years.

The weather office at Toronto International Airport said no rain was expected today or Thursday. Ginny's only vagary in Ontario was to northerly winds, which brought cold air down into the province.

Meanwhile, southwestern Ontario — hardest hit by the drought—experienced a flare-up of brush and grass fires Tuesday.

The department of lands and forests reported 34 forest fires burning in the province, eight in the North Bay district.

Fire conditions across the province were moderate to low, except in Tweed district, north of Belleville, where they were extreme, and Sudbury, North Bay and Peterborough districts where they were high.

Scattered showers fell in the province early Tuesday but did not provide enough moisture to dampen the ground.

Farmers were worried that temperatures below the freezing point would continue, resulting in a freeze-up before much rain has fallen. This would force hauling of water during the winter months until the spring break-up.

But central and eastern Ontario has not been so hard hit. Peterborough district farmers say lack of rain has not affected crops although they hope for rain before freeze-up.

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—Strong northerly winds sweep Arctic air southward through eastern Canada and the United States Tuesday, to bring southern Ontario its coldest night this fall. A minor disturbance now east of the Great Lakes is expected to bring a little rain or snow to Northern Ontario tonight and Thursday.

LaMarsh Turns On Critics

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Judy LaMarsh turned on her pension plan critics Tuesday night in the Commons.

Agreement with Ontario remains essential, but the portable, contributory Canada Pension Plan may still be approved by Parliament in time to meet the original schedule to pay benefits by January, 1966, she said.

While she cheerfully acknowledged her own lack of patience, the government did not intend "to stampede into action which is misunderstood and against which there has been a deliberate lobby of misinformation."

Miss LaMarsh indicated that even with the most favorable conditions, the pay-as-you-go plan won't become law until 1964 in a new session of Parliament.

She spoke to an attentive House of Commons in her first lengthy pension plan statement since the subject was introduced—in a one-day debate—last July 18.

GIVES INFORMATION

In an Ontario-federal technical committee, set up at the last federal - provincial conference, would meet this week.

The next step would be the federal - provincial conference beginning Nov. 25 and even with unanimity there it would take a week to settle details, leaving only three weeks in the current parliamentary session.

Further, the bill would be referred to a parliamentary committee so that representatives including the opposing "lobby" of insurance and trust companies could be heard.

The pension - plan statement came after a demand by Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) that the government provide a firm assurance that it will proceed at this session with the pension legislation.

Since the July 8 debate, Quebec has chosen to operate its own pension plan and Ontario—after consultation at a September federal - provincial conference — has given qualified assurance of co - operating to mesh its provincial plan with the federal proposal.

At least one of the two main provinces is required to make

Hurricane Ginny Lashes Maritimes

HALIFAX (CP) — Hurricane Ginny moved over the Gulf of St. Lawrence early today on a course for the east coast of Newfoundland after lashing the Maritime provinces with winds up to 100 miles an hour.

In her wake, she left uprooted trees, disrupted communications, stalled shipping and damaged buildings. There were no reports of deaths or injuries.

The weather office at Gander, Nfld., predicted Ginny would die in the North Atlantic.

Newfoundland's western shore was expected to receive winds gusting to 60 miles an hour, while the rest of the province was to get easier treatment.

The storm swept across the North-northeast Strait after its onslaught on mainland Nova Scotia and attacked Prince Edward Island with ferocity described by veteran Alberton fisherman as "the worst in memory." But the blow apparently did little damage on the island.

Earlier Tuesday, two barns and a two-storey home were engulfed by wind-fanned flames near Amherst, destroying one of Nova Scotia's best dairy farms.

Northern New Brunswick did not receive as severe a lashing from wind and rain as other parts of the Maritimes, but a

Union Charges Minister Promised Arbitration, Instead Probe Ordered

Employees Will Decide Tonight As Leader Asks Thursday Strike

TORONTO (CP) — A. G. Hearn, vice president of the Building Service Employees Union (CLC), Tuesday night set Thursday as a strike deadline at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Hearn accused Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree of a breach of faith in failing to sponsor legislation imposing arbitration in the hospital dispute.

The minister said in a special session of the legislature Tuesday the government intends to appoint a commission to report on the desirability of compulsory arbitration in labor-management disputes affecting public hospitals.

In a telegram to Mr. Rowntree Tuesday night, Mr. Hearn said: "Reliance on your word as a minister of the Crown placed us as leaders of the union in an untrusted position in relation to our members."

The union, which represents about 70 employees of the non-professional staff of the hospital had lifted a picket line around the line on what Mr. Hearn said

FBI Arrests Two On Spy Charges

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Agents of the FBI have capped seven months of around-the-clock work with the arrests of an American electrical engineer, cleared to handle top secret material, and a Russian chauffeur on espionage charges.

They were arrested Tuesday night after a rendezvous near the Penn railway station in Englewood, N.J.

Two Russian diplomats serving with the Soviet mission to the United Nations in New York City also were apprehended by the FBI but they were released because of their diplomatic immunity.

Seized in the Russians' car were a brief case that contained information about a secret air force contract and a tiny document camera designed to operate from the car's cigarette lighter.

The accused spies, charged early today with "delivering to a foreign government information relating to the national defence of the United States," are John William Butenko, 38, of Newark, N.J., and Igor A. Ivanov, 33, of New York City.

Butenko, a bachelor of Russian parentage, is a $14,700-a-year control administrator for the International Electric Corporation of Paramus, N.J.

IS RED CHAUFFEUR

Ivanov, married and father of a six-year-old daughter, was a chauffeur for Amtorg, a Soviet government - sponsored agency that handles U.S.-Russian trade relations. He came to the United States in March, 1963.

House Will Sit Day More

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts, frustrated in his plan to have a short one-day special session of the legislature, is expected to push ahead today with passage of legislation bringing Ontario into the federal municipal development and loan fund.

The government had hoped to complete business in a brief session but a combined Liberal and New Democratic party opposition forced the legislature into sitting today, starting at 10 a.m.

Liberal House Leader Farquhar Oliver charged Premier Roberts with attempting to muzzle discussion of important public business when the premier made a motion to waive debate on the short speech.

A Liberal amendment condemning the Progressive Conservative government for failing to allow debate time was defeated 72-28. But time had run out and the House was adjourned until today.

The newly-elected legislature also will be asked today to re-constitute committees dealing with commerce and trade and municipal law, which ended their prorogation preceding the Sept. 25 election.

The premier had expressed hope earlier the agenda could be cleared up in a few hours.

CITY SHARE

Premier Roberts said the rush in connection with the municipal loan bill was to get it into effect by Nov. 13 so municipalities could get in on their share of the federal funds this winter. He convened the legislature just one day after it became legally possible.

He said a previous special session in 1955 lasted only one day, and the three-week debate was waived then. He attacked the opposition for trying to sell the public the impression he was trying to block debate on public business.

"I don't know how many times I have stood here and said we will stay here until the business is complete," he said. "It sounds trite, but I say it at least every three days."

Mr. Oliver charged the premier with attempting to close off debate so that he would not be put on the spot on the Canbudget. The Senate meets at 3 p.m.

Mr. Harkness spoke after, after his right to the floor was challenged by Paul Hellyer (Riverdale) was challenged but upheld 139 to 72 in a vote.

Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) attacked as pessimistic and defeatist a Conservative motion criticizing defence policy.

Marysville-Napanee Strip of 401 Ready

It has been a long, long wait, but turnpike travellers in Ontario after this weekend will for the first time be able to travel almost completely across the province without a stop for a single light.

Highways Minister Charles McNaughton yesterday announced that two more "gaps" in 401 highway would be opened, leaving only a short strip near the Quebec border still to be completed.

Friday the eight-and-a-half mile stretch of 401 between Marysville and Napanee will be opened to traffic, while an 18 mile stretch west of Cornwall is to be opened on Thursday.

Mr. McNaughton said opening of the two stretches would permit a 500-mile drive from Windsor to Lancaster, east of Cornwall.

"The closing of the Marysville gap is a source of particular interest to me," the highways minister said. "It puts into service all of highway 401 except for a nine-mile piece at the Quebec end."

Only the two south lanes of 401 between Marysville and Napanee will go into service Friday, but the contract for paving of the north lanes has been let and work is expected to commence later in the year.

$10 Million Chicago Drug Ring Got Most of Dope From Canada

CHICAGO (AP)—Twelve persons were arrested Tuesday night, crowking what federal investigators said was a $10,000,000-a-year narcotics ring which supplied 70 per cent of the dope traffic in Chicago. Most of the narcotics were smuggled through Canada.

Among those arrested was a reputed henchman of the Chicago Nostra family," America (Pete) DePietto.

Charles G. Ward, chief of the Chicago office of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, said 25 ounces of heroin estimated at $17,500 were seized.

Ward said the arrests, which he described as the most important narcotics seizures in Chicago history, came after a federal grand jury returned two suppressed indictments naming 41 persons with narcotics violations.

The ring, which Ward said was controlled by Cosa Nostra, had raked in more than $30,000,000 in narcotics sales since 1960.

Ward said DePietto, a resident of suburban Lombard, is the "narcotics officer" of the Chicago Cosa Nostra "family," and answers only to reputed crime boss Momo Salvatore (Sam) Giancana.

Mobster Joseph Valachi has told a senate rackets subcommittee that Giancana is head of the Chicago "family."

DePietto and 10 others were arrested Tuesday night, sixteen named in the indictments are in prison or are free on bond for other offences. The remaining 17 are being sought in Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland.

DePietto is free on $40,000 bond.

Ward said the dough were obtained from sources in France and Italy and smuggled into the United States through Canada.

Reaction to New Assessment Not as Marked as Anticipated

Property owner reaction to notices regarding re-assessment which went out in the mail this week, have so far not been as marked as was anticipated by officials at the city assessment department.

Assessment commissioner G. Leighton Thompson said how ever that phones in his department were busy all day yesterday.

Also about 150 persons from Ward 1 visited city hall yesterday, but the calls and visits for the most part were simply enquiries or requests to have their new assessments explained.

Mr. Thompson expected the biggest rush at city hall would be today when property owners in the heartily, populated East Hill district in Ward 2 started making enquiries about their increased assessments.

UP THREE TIMES

On Monday assessment notices advising property owners of their new assessments under the city's re-assessment program went out in the mails.

Assessments generally are in, creased about three times over this year's figures, but depending on whether there will be increased money requirements in the city next year, the tax rate for 1964 is expected to be about one third of this year's $1.9 mills for residential property.

A letter accompanying the notices asked if there were any enquiries that they be made at city hall on specific days according to the ward in which the property owner resides.

Reason for the re-assessment was to correct out-of-date assessments thus making for more equality.

Mr. Thompson said the trend across the province was in bring municipal assessment up closer to today's values.

ment of legislation.

Hon. MacDonald charged the minister with "publicly giving away from a commitment to have the legislature apply compulsory arbitration at the Toronto hospital if the workers called off a scheduled strike a month ago.

Mr. Rowntree denied promising legislation than that he would recommend arbitration to the cabinet, which decided in favor of applying the "flexibility and desirability" of binding arbitration in hospital disputes generally.

He said his commitment was to recommend compulsory arbitration to the cabinet, which he had done.

Mr. MacDonald produced a letter from the chief government conciliator, Louis Fine, where he said Sherlee, assistant deputy labor minister, telling union chief Al Hearn that legislation would be introduced.

The minister had got himself into an untenable position, said Mr. MacDonald, who suggested the government should put the hospital board, which he accused of defying the law, under trusteeship.

Junior Farmers Take Prizes At Ottawa Fair

Carman Grills, also of Sidney township took third place in the grain corn class, while another Sidney township junior, Gordon Striker of Frankford, took second place in Kerwick potatoes.

The Hastings county livestock judging team comprised of Allan Thompson of Moira, Gary McComb "of Bonarlaw and Robert Hamilton of Sidney township placed second in a field of eight competing teams. Carleton county was first place.

Allan Thompson had the honor of being the high individual boy in livestock judging, while Gary McComb was high in swine.

The Prince Edward county judging team won plaque with one of its members Ronald Corfield being high in sheep judging.

sda Pension Plan.

He said Ontario is run by the cabinet for 10 months of the year and by the members of the legislature for only two months. The House should sit longer to deal with the complex issues.

Mr. Robarts he was not in favor of fall sessions because of the difficulties they presented to civil servants and because of the distractions inherent in the holiday season.

He said he intended to call the next session early in January instead of the usual middle of February, thus making up the 17 days taken by the old fall sessions.

In other business Tuesday, Labor Minister Rowntree announced the government plans to consider a proposal to apply compulsory arbitration in the settlement of labor - management disputes affecting public hospitals.

He made the statement in connection with a dispute at the Trenton Memorial Hospital where 70 members of the Operating Service Employees International Union (CLC) are threatening to strike.

The minister said he has recommended to the cabinet legislation to provide compulsory arbitration in the Trenton dispute but the government has decided that further consideration should be given before enact-

Ald. F. Murray Urges Drive to Beautify City

A large number of Kiwanis and Lions attended at the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday for their regular luncheon meeting at which time Aldermen Frank C. Murray, general manager of Radio Station CJBQ, spoke on "Some Aspects of Civic Government."

Ald. Murray said he wished to convey to the group some of his thoughts concerning the problems that face City Council from time to time and the civic matters that, as he put it, "I feel should be of some concern to you."

"City council is a board of directors for the Corporation of the city and we have to rely to quite a degree on the advice and counsel of the city hall officials," he said.

"Like any other task," Ald. Murray continued, "being an alderman has its frustrations, one of them being the lack of control as far as many thousands of dollars of spending is concerned."

URGES BEAUTIFICATION

"The second point I wish to discuss with you," he said, "is that some time ago I suggested that council should request our city planning Citizens' committee to start work on a "Beautify Belleville" campaign in honor of our country's 100th birthday.

"I felt that such an organization or group," he continued, "should not be a government body but rather one directly of the people, not a group that is going to rely on government funds because government funds are so far, and many centennial projects are being planned that will require financial support from the government."

Ald. Murray said that "the Zwick's Island project which has been approved by city council is a unique development that will not only enhance the attraction of our city, but will also make it a magnificent tourist attraction.

"I would like to emphasize," Ald. Murray stated, "that my suggestion for a centennial Beautify Belleville campaign does not conflict in any way with the Zwick's Island project."

The speaker went on to say that he felt "we should get started now as 1967 is only three years away; three years passes very quickly," he stated, "and a lot of time is needed to organize this planning.

"I think that a lot can be done to make Belleville more beautiful," he said, and suggested flower gardens in the residential areas of the city.

In closing, Ald. Murray said, "perhaps the way to conclude the show on the road would be to introduce a competitive aspect." He mentioned that Hamilton a campaign is conducted in which neighbors nominate area gardens for a Trillium award.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian J. A. Hall, and thanked by Kiwanian Clarence Fuller.

President Ralph Graham was in the chair.

Three new members were inducted into the club by L. McDougall. The new members are Dr. E. L. Dinnis, Paul Robb and Harold Exley.

Jack Ireland Dismissed as Sub-postmaster

Mr. Jack Ireland, proprietor of Ireland's Furniture and Appliances at Belleville's Four Corners, has been relieved of duties as sub-postmaster in the downtown area.

Notification of his dismissal as sub-postmaster was received by Mr. Ireland late last week from G. C. Charlebois, district director of postal services.

The reason for Mr. Ireland's dismissal was given as "political considerations."

The No. 8 sub-post office was opened at Ireland's store four years ago, bringing the opening of the mail post office to the new Federal building at the corner of Pinnacle and Station Streets. Public demand for downtown service made the opening of the sub-post office necessary.

Mr. Ireland said the sub-post office would be moved from his store on November 9th.

Mr. Ireland had no indication, however, as to who would receive the sub-post office appointment. In a letter received by Mr. Ireland stated consideration was being given to the new appointment and would be announced in the near future.

Mr. Ireland had no comment regarding his dismissal other than to say it was expected.

Mr. Ireland had acted as campaign manager for Progressive Conservative candidate Lee Grills in recent federal elections.

Need Taggers To Collect for Santa Parade

Some 30 local residents turned out for the Santa Claus Parade Committee meeting on No. 2 Fire Station on Monday night. In the absence of chairman Fire Chief Gerald Vance, Mr. Stu Martin presided over the meeting.

To date six bands have indicated they will be participating in this year's parade scheduled to be held on Saturday, December 7th.

Secretary G. Mrennan reported that 13,000 pieces of candy have been ordered to be distributed to the children along the route immediately before the parade. Does no other commitments, former secretary Harold Vaughan asked that he be relieved of his duties as secretary as he would be unable to attend the meetings on the scheduled Tuesday nights. Archie Thompson has been elected to this position.

It was pointed out that all committee members be in attendance the day of the parade to assist in any way they could.

DONATIONS RECEIVED

Chairman Martin stated that anyone wishing to act as tagger for the Santa Claus Parade Tag Day being held on November 15th and 16th, were asked to contact Fire Chief Gerald Vance at No. 2 fire hall at WO 2-3010. Taggers are badly needed this year as it is difficult to get people to devote a little of their spare time for this purpose. Proceeds from the Tag Day are used to finance the parade while it still relies on donations. Treasurer, George Rutherford reported that to date, donations totalling $100 had been received.

Mr. Martin reported that a number of floats are being worked on at the two fire halls and should be ready for appearance for the parade. Volunteers to help work on these floats Hosts are also urgently needed.

KINETTES TO ASSIST

A motion was made that the floats in the parade were to consist of fictional characters and Christmas scenes. The Kinette Club of Belleville have offered their services once again, to serve coffee and doughnuts to the participants at the parade and the workers connected

COSTUMES NEEDED

The question of spending contributions to rent costumes from various other firms was raised and it was suggested that perhaps following Hallowe'en, those costumes for the occasion, might be interested in buying their costumes to the Santa Claus Parade committee to dress the various floats personnel in the parade.

Chairman Stu Martin asked that anyone interested in doing this contact the costume committee chairman, Mrs. Patricia Bateman at WO 8-9164. Mr. Martin also pointed out that anyone wishing to help in the repainting of our building of floats for the parade, could contact him at the Simpson-Sears office. Those who wish to enter floats in the parade are also asked to contact Mr. Martin.

PROPER IDENTIFICATION

Costume Committee chairman, Mrs. P. Grant, asked the chairman if there had been trouble concerning the collection of donations for the parade, as she had read an article in the Ontario Intelligencer concerning this matter.

Deputy Fire Chief Post pointed out that members of the parade committee would be given proper identification as to who they are and who they are representing when calling on people for donations so they will know who they are as it is alleged unauthorized personnel have been collecting funds supposedly for the parade committee.

Plans for the parade are slowly taking shape and members of the committee are hoping to make it the best parade ever staged in the city.

Sydney Sillitoe Has Been Moved To Montreal

The transfer and promotion of Sydney Sillitoe to assistant manager — Patents at the head office of the Northern Electric Company in Montreal has been announced to become effective November 4th.

Mr. Sillitoe has been active in the Belleville community since coming here in 1948 from Montreal. He was one of the original commissioners of the Belleville Transit Commission appointed in 1949 and was chairman of the Commission in 1957. He was chairman of the building committee for St. Margaret's-on - the - Hill Anglican Church and served on the Parish Council continuously since 1953.

In professional circles in the city, Mr. Sillitoe was instrumental in the organization of the Belleville branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada which was formed in 1959. On a national basis he took active part as a councillor of the E.I.-C. and was chairman of its committee on Technical operations in 1961-1962 and a member of that committee from 1956-1962. He was also a member of the Institute of Electronic and Electrical Engineers.

Locally, Mr. Sillitoe was a member of the Chamber of Commerce and also a charter member of SPERSSQSA, which was organized in this city in 1959.

Mr. Sillitoe is a member of the Association of Professional Engineers of the Province of Ontario and a graduate in Electrical Engineering of the University of Alberta from which he received his Bachelor Degree in 1931 and his Master's degree in 1933. In 1934 he attended McGill University and in 1953 and 1953 attended extension courses in business administration from Queen's University. In 1957, he attended the University of Western Ontario and obtained a diploma in business administration.

JOINED N.E. IN 1936

In his earlier years Mr. Sillitoe worked on geological surveys and railroad construction in Alberta and installed the first underground system for the City of Edmonton, Electric Light and Power Co. He is the author of a dozen or more technical papers.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sillitoe have become very much attached to Belleville and they are sorry to leave their many friends in the area. They will, however, retain some ties here in that Mr. Sillitoe's mother, who came to Belleville in 1953 will remain here and also they expect to return to their cottage on Adolphus Reach for the summer holidays.

Pleads Guilty To Charge Of Car Theft

TRENTON — A 16-year-old Bancroft youth, Donald Taylor, was placed on a two years' suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Trenton court yesterday, after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of car theft. Taylor was charged and arrested by a Trenton police officer, Sgt. Steenburg after he had been released from Bancroft hospital on Oct. 22. The court was told that Taylor had admitted in a statement to police that he had taken a car, parked by its owner, Hugh James St. Hilaire, R.R. 5, Trenton on Dundas St. E. on the evening of Oct. 18. The key had been left in the ignition.

In his statement, Taylor was reported by a police witness to have said that he had driven a three quarters of a mile to a Trenton hotel before taking the car. Heading north on Trenton Road, Taylor said that he had stopped in a hotel at Madoc, where his age was queried and that he had been refused a drink. Proceeding north on the highway at 95 mph, according to the statement, Taylor lost control of the car at the turnoff to Gilmour and crashed. Taylor was taken to the hospital and later told police that a passenger in the car had run off after the accident. Later, in his statement and in court yesterday, Taylor said that he had invented the "passenger," because he was "scared" and said that he had been alone in the car.

Magistrate Wills said that the story of the passenger would bear more investigation, as he wondered if Taylor might be protecting someone.

FOUND CAR GONE

Constable Richard Vickers, who investigated the car theft, said that Mr. St. Hilaire had parked the car in front of Brown's Drug Store at 8 p.m., Oct. 19 and that when he returned at 7 p.m., had found it gone. Thinking that one of his friends was playing a joke on him, Mr. St. Hilaire looked for the car until 10 p.m. when he reported the incident to police.

Constable Vickers reported the theft of the car to OPP at Bellamina and a short time later was notified that the car had been smashed up near Gilmour. Bancroft OPP were notified to hold the driver of the car on a warrant from the Trenton police.

Yesterday, police were unable to give estimate with any estimate of the damage done to Mr. St. Hilaire's car in the accident. However, damage was said to have been extensive." Magistrate Wills asked that an estimate be forthcoming within a month. Meanwhile he asked Taylor to make regular $50 monthly payments to

OMB to Hear Issue Between Twp., Town

TRENTON—January 8th has been set as the date for a hearing before the Ontario Municipal Board between Murray Township Council and Trenton Town Council. The issue to be resolved by the OMB is whether or not Trenton is obliged to recompense the township for road grants from the province, which will be lost through annexation of about 600 acres of township land. Annexation of the land becomes effective Jan. 1.

Trenton council, while agreeing to assume a portion of the high school debenture debt of the township, has refused to date to consider recompense for the loss of road grants.

Factory Heads Meet With Education Bd.

TRENTON — Last night, 40 factory managers, machine shop operators and representatives from other industrial or commercial outlets, attended a meeting in Trenton high school, called by the Trenton Board of Education to acquaint them with the facilities to be offered by the vocational wing of the school. The visitors were asked to offer suggestions as to how the present curriculum could be supplemented to train students for integration in local industry.

"The purpose of the meeting is to get advice from you rather than to show what we have," the visitors were told by high school principal John Garrett.

T. J. Reid, vice-principal, told the group that the school now had "occupational" training, which is for students who are "transferred" into high school but that they may be taught marketable skills.

Technical director C. A. Wells said that Trenton could join a Quinte Chapter of people from industry, which is being set up in Belleville. The chapter, of which there are several in the older, larger Ontario centres, concern themselves with apprenticeship training, and vocational training as applied to local industry.

wards restitution. Taylor is employed at a local textile plant and earns $62.50 a week. He has been with the lawyer in 11 o'clock curfew, except on the night he is working and sign a bond, one condition of which is that he does not own nor have an interest in a motor vehicle for a year. Taylor will also be required to report to probation officer, Dennis Atkins at regular intervals.

Licence Lifted For 3 Months By Magistrate

TRENTON — A Toronto man, 23-year-old Brian McGee, had his driving licence suspended for three months in Trenton court yesterday . . . even though McGee said that he had never had a licence.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills explained that the suspension meant, in effect, that McGee could not get a licence for three months and that when he did apply for one, he must provide insurance and apply for reinstatement of his licence. He was fined $10 and ordered to pay $3.50 court costs.

On a further charge of careless driving, McGee, who pleaded guilty was fined $50 and ordered to pay court costs of $25.50.

Sgt. Gordon Steenburg told the court that he had chased McGee, (who was driving a pick up truck) through downtown Trenton streets at 80 mph, on the night of Oct. 6. Sgt. Steenburg said that traffic was light that night, but that he had slowed the police cruiser when other cars came in sight. He said that the pick up truck had not slowed up.

On Dundas St. W., in front of the late Senator Fraser's home the truck suddenly stopped, the police officer said, and the driver (one of a number of escapees from the property, McGee was apprehended by Constable Car...ge Schwager, who was driving another cruiser in the area.

Police Probing Cause of Fire

TRENTON — Police are investigating the cause of a fire at 605 Front Street in Trenton which occurred about 7 p.m. last evening.

It was discovered that a fire had been set in the middle of the floor in a large frame, insulbrick covered apartment building owned by Mrs. Dora Borden of Peterborough. The apartment was unoccupied at the time. The fire had been set in one of the apartments.

Police will make their report to the fire marshal's office in Belleville when they conclude their investigation. Damage was estimated at about $300. The fire was reported by a neighbor.

Accused Fails To Produce Witnesses

TRENTON — John Wood of 76 Murphy Street, who last week said that he would produce witnesses to back up his contention that he was not guilty of careless driving, yesterday failed to produce the witnesses in Trenton court and was found guilty in the county by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, was sentenced to seven days in jail on the charge.

Wood was sentenced to an additional seven days on the charge of driving while his licence was under suspension. He was ordered to pay a fine when he pleaded guilty to having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Clifford Benjamin Roy Rozell of Oshawa was remanded until November 21 on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon (a knife.) Bail may be arranged.

Everett Bellyon of the York Road, Trenton, was sentenced to seven days on the charge of being in control of a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Bellyon was found on King St. on the evening of October 12th, slumped behind the wheel of his vehicle by Constable George French.

At yesterday's court sitting, Thomas Lally of Belleville, was the acting Crown Attorney.

Studies for New Road Near Completion

TRENTON — Preliminary engineering studies for the new development road in Murray Township are nearly completed and Ontario land surveyors are now measuring off private land which must be bought by the township to permit for widening of the road to 100 feet from the present 66 feet. The Ontario government will reimburse the township 50 per cent of the purchase price.

The development road, will start at a point near Dead Creek off Highway 33 and run north, crossing Highway Two, the Telephone Road and the Wooler Road, to Highway 401. Construction costs for the new road are being assumed by the Ontario Department of Highways. Once completed, the road will be turned back to the township for maintenance.

Township council has put the wheels in motion to have the road named a suburban road, in which case, the province would assume maintenance.

As a step further, the township council hopes that the road will eventually be named a provincial road.

Construction costs for the road have been estimated at $286,618. A major consideration in the rebuilding of the railway overpass, between Highway Two and the intersection of the Telephone Road and the Wooler Road. Reconstruction costs have been estimated as $187,628, part of which will be borne by the Ontario Department of Highways and part by the CNR and CPR.

Spirit of Service

Members of the Belleville Public School Board have voted unanimously against a proposal that legislation be sought to permit payment of school trustees.

We congratulate them.

Those who believe that the labor is worthy of his hire may wonder why we oppose payment of trustees.

The answer is that we do not object to trustees being paid, if they desire to be, but that we appreciate the fact no amount of money could purchase the interest and devotion which prompts a man or woman to seek to serve the community without recompense.

If the duties of the school board were such that failure to pay members would bar from service men and women of some social or financial classes, then we should be the first to advocate payment.

This, though, is not the case in a city of Belleville's size. As long as there is no remuneration for this work, it represents a personal sacrifice. The willingness to make this sacrifice can only be prompted by zeal for the cause of better educational facilities or reduced expenditures. It is, we suspect, more likely to be the former than the latter desire which prompts such service, and if the latter the spirit is there to be an urge for true economy than it is to be niggardliness.

We should not have blamed the trustees had they voted to seek recompense for their labors. But that does not prevent us from praising them for refraining from doing so.

"Steel" on the SIU

There are those who have been blaming our Great Lakes labor strife on international unionism.

True, the SIU, the cause of this strife, is an international union.

But international unions are not all alike, any more than are international corporations.

In this connection the comment of David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, one of the biggest and most powerful of International unions, is pertinent.

"Steel" is a tough union. It had to be or it could never have been born, let alone have survived—in an industry in which the employment of strike-breaking goons was once customary.

Now listen to the leader of this "tough" international union on the SIU and the Canadian Government's troubles: "It's hate to see the government take over, but it seems to be an impossible situation."

Only the most rabid union-hater would disagree with McDonald in his dislike in principle for government control, but this dislike, and his ties through the AFL-CIO with the SIU in the U.S., do not prevent him from accepting such intervention as necessary.

An Old Right

Vincent Kelly of Ottawa, provincial state deputy for the Knights of Columbus, says Pierre Berton lost his job with Maclean's Magazine as the result of the influence of the Knights.

This has been denied by Maclean's.

No matter. We can take the intent for the deed here.

Mr. Kelly says that Berton wrote a column "trying to promote premarital relations." Some of those who read Berton's column may doubt he had any such intent.

No matter. The intent is of no import here.

What does matter is that Mr. Kelly and his Knights disliked what Berton wrote and exerted their influence in an effort to punish him.

In doing so, they were merely invoking a right recognized throughout the ages by groups with widely differing views.

It is a right hallowed by tradition—a tradition already old when Caiaphas the high priest and other members of the Sanhedrin exercised it in the days when Pontius Pilate was procurator of Judaea.

Salute to a Flag

There is at least one Prince Edward County cyclist whose parents can expect him home for supper every night, even if he does ride on the highway. An Ontario Intelligencer reporter spotted the boy Saturday, riding south along the shoulder of Highway 14 near Mountain View, with a bright red signal flag, the type used by construction men for traffic control, flying from his handlebars. The flag stands out even where the cyclist and his machine blend into the scenery.

Because of the flag, it seems a safe bet that boy will get home for supper every night. Without it, and riding on the highway, it is a bit of a gamble.

Home Rhymes With Fume

New York Times.

The Earl of Home has been described as everyone's idea of an aristocrat: slim, frail, courteous, and relaxed, a man one can listen to with respect.

He has also been called the most unassertive of men, a politician who is able to stand aloof from the tumble of daily life, a likeable man who lacks great intellectual endowment. He is, in part, is Alexander Frederick Douglas in Scotland and Baron Douglas in the English peerage, and the man invited by Queen Elizabeth II to become Britain's 44th Prime Minister since Sir Robert Walpole in 1721.

William Douglas-Home, playwright brother of the Prime Minister - designate, wrote of him:

"Integrity, broadmindedness, a sense of humor, tolerance, lack of pride are all qualities withheld by Providence from almost every party politician in the interests we would like to think, of making what would otherwise be quite unworkable work — all these qualities he has."

It is easy to talk with this son of a Scottish family enobled in 1473. He has a friendly, kindly approach, a personal way of balancing his spectacles on the tip of his nose, rather wistful, sympathetic eyes that look at you quite steadily, but often with a twinkle in them. He could be a field marshal, King, anything.

Lord Home's name rhymes with fume. His friends call him Alec.

A nice chap, they say, not a thing of a bit of fighting. Not effective on television, but a safe bet with elderly Tories.

He has a shy, almost cadaverous profile and a toothy smile that is the delight of cartoonists and the despair of party managers, who will have to reckon with his television image. He speaks easily and with charm, but with an odd clenched-teeth manner.

He looks like a man who could sit down and rest, but the appearance of rather precarious health is more a legacy of an illness 30 years ago than a current disability.

During World War II after army service he had tuberculosis of the spine for many months and lay encased in plaster for two years. He later explained that it was the "first time anyone had performed the impossible task of putting a clock back into a politician."

The Home family is rich, although just how rich is not known. In 1937 the family estates were transferred into a joint stock company with a capital worth $2,240,000 at the rate of exchange then prevailing.

The family pedigree can be traced back to Sir Hugh Home in the latter half of the 14th century. The family is related to other titled families — for example, Lord Home and the Earl of Ellesmere are grandsons of mothers being daughters of the fourth Earl of Durham.

The Scottish estates are in Scotland at Coldstream, County Berwick, and Douglas, County Lanark.

Lord Home's brother attributes the pronunciation of the name to a habit the family had of calling a leader shouted "Home, home!" to rally his forces. Instead, as Mr. Douglas-Home tells it, all the bosses ran home by mistake." The name was thereafter pronounced differently by each similar disgrace.

Another version, he said, was that at one time the name was spelled differently, but the original pronunciation has been carried over.

Moral Courage Often Treated With Contempt

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In a recent issue of the Atlantic Monthly, I was interested in reading an interview with Stirling Moss, the pre-eminent racing driver of our time.

Among other things, Moss confessed that moral courage on the track does not extend to other activities; for instance, he would, under no circumstances dive from a high board into the water, even though he "knew" he could do it safely enough and safe enough for the dive.

We tend to do with the word "courage" what we do with the word "intelligence" — we assume that it is indivisible, when actually there are many different kinds of courage and many different kinds of intelligence.

And those who possess one special kind of courage or intelligence tend to feel that those who lack it (even though possessing some other kind) are wholly without courage.

Physical courage, for example, is most admired in our society; yet a good deal of it is so stupid that not only are there differing forms of moral courage, but also that there may be superior kinds of courage that make the physically brave man look like a coward.

I was impressed some years ago by listening to the broadcast of a BBC talk given by Gen. Sir William Slim, former commander-in-chief of the Indian and Allied Forces in South East Asia, in which he began by saying that "Moral courage is a higher and rarer virtue than physical courage."

He went on to point out that no other army has ever possessed "massed physical courage" as the Japanese did. The Japanese generals, he added, shared their men's physical bravery, but lacked moral courage. "Thus we replayed our own weakness and destroyed their armies."

Moral courage must be taught, he said, because so few, if any, have it naturally, and "most men with moral courage learned it by precept and example in their youth." The outstanding impression of courage he received was from the retreat from Burma in '42 "was that of British women refugees, and not of the fighting men."

One man fears heights, another spiders, and still another water. One man will make the most heroic attack and then faint if a hypodermic needle is plunged into his arm. Physical bravery or cowardice are more a matter of childhood experiences than an indication of basic character.

Humanity has always respected physical courage, but high moral courage usually meets with contempt or martyrdom — in its own time. How many men have been "brave" in an unjust war simply because they lacked the moral courage to resist the force of public opinion?

Weird Ruling By Court

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Much is said about British justice; what a fine thing it is and so on. But one comes across odd cases of screwball decisions.

Reginald Holgate of Croydon, a London suburb, received a summons for riding his bicycle without lights in the city section. To save trouble, knowing he would be convicted anyway, he did not appear, but on saying he would pay whatever sum he was fined.

His one course he was notified he had been fined the equivalent of about $13.

But that was not all. He was also notified that his driver's licence for his car was suspended for a certain length of time.

Mr. Holgate is wondering why he has been penalizes as an automobile driver for an offence committed while riding his bicycle. He also wonders whether if he should happen to be summoned again the police will accept his explanation that he had no conviction as a car driver, but that the conviction should be recorded against him as a bicycle rider.

The U.S. Congress repealed the Neutrality Act 22 years ago today—in 1941—virtually putting the country on a war footing. It was the first Nazi destruction of an armed U.S. vessel.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 30th, 1915.

Early this year the Y.M.C.A. Red Triangle Hostess Club started a registration book for visiting servicemen. The book contains two hundred pages with an average of thirty-eight names to the page, and now contains the signatures and home towns of 7,600 sailors, soldiers and airmen who have visited the local "Y" to have attended the week-nightly dances and Sunday Open House afternoon entertainments. Among the signatures and localities listed in the book, practically every country is represented as well as hundreds of Canadian cities and towns. The book will be retained by the Hostess Club as a souvenir.

Following several weeks alarm over outbreaks of infantile paralysis which started between Trenton and Dysonto, the situation has been brought under control with schools no longer being required to report absentees to the central office of the public health nurses and the Belleville General Hospital, according to a statement released by Dr. G. E. Mosely, of the Department of Health.

With five public health nurses, Dr. Moodie has been stationed in Belleville for over two weeks checking on reported outbreaks of poliomyelitis in the local area, and working to bring the disease under control. The service in the city and district by the department is being discontinued today.

Miss Mary Drummond and Mr. Clarke Kinnear of the John Street United Church Young People's Society, were successful in winning the final in a series of inter-society debates which were conducted some time ago when they defeated a team from Carman's Young People's Society of Peterborough at the convention of Young People's Societies, held in Belleville on Saturday afternoon. The subject debated was: "Resolved that capitalism provides greater happiness for the greater number than does socialism." They received a handsome cup as champions of Eastern Ontario. This is the fourth debate in the series which has been won by the John Street young people: Miss Drummond and Miss Reed Hinds defeated Northport; Miss Drummond and Miss Evelyn Jack defeated Colborne; and Miss Hinds and Miss Drummond also defeated Courtice debaters.

Miss Marion Fairbairn, Miss Margaret Elliott and Miss Grace Givins attended the football game in Kingston on Saturday.

Language Woes

Cerebral Palsy Permanent, Combined Group of Disorders

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have been told that our 5-year-old son has cerebral palsy. Is this a permanent disorder? — J. A.

Cerebral palsy is really a group of disorders, rather than a single one.

It is a permanent condition. Treatment and training are possible — indeed, I hope all C. P. children get such care — but not with the hope of curing a child.

The problem is that certain portions of the nervous system have been damaged — nerve cells controlling the muscles.

In about two out of three cases, it will be the "spastic" type of cerebral palsy. The child's muscles (well, there are adults, too, with C. P. but it usually begins in infancy) are tense and rigid.

For most of us, the muscles relax when they are not in use.

For example, take the leg muscle. See if all of them on the leg (except the Achilles tendon, at the back of the ankle) relax when you sit down. Or, while you are walking, alternately tensing and relaxing these muscles — one set goes loose while the other gets tight.

With the spastic child, both sets of muscles remain tense. When he walks, he has to overcome the resistance of muscles that should be relaxed. Difficult? Extremely. And the child uses a great deal of energy to do things which for the rest of us are easy.

There are a number of kinds of cerebral palsy, and there are many degrees of it, from slight to severe. Some youngsters have trouble speaking and swallowing; others don't. Some of the muscles don't react as they should. They reach for a thing and the arm goes in a wide, unexpected direction. A few have a tremor (you've seen the palsied control of their muscles while at rest, but begin to shake when they start to move). Many of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate

Relaxing drugs, physiotherapy, patient training in how to use muscles more benefic the hands, cap, braces, and in a few cases, even surgery can help. Since groups of disorders, rather than a single one.

Dear Dr. Molner: Sometimes there is blood from my breast. The doctor says it is useful to see a doctor, — Mr. W. E. O.

This may or may not mean cancer, but it is not normal. It should be examined as soon as possible. If it is a minor condition, fine; but it should be treated. If it is cancer — have it treated, and the sooner the better.

Note to Mrs. O. K.: Yes, most fruits are allowable for patients with high blood pressure.

Diverticulosis is a bulge in the digestive track. To become more familiar with the subject, write for my booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You," enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover handling. Letter to The Editor

United Church Pastor Replies to Editorial

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I read most of your editorials and many of them are to be highly commended; but I was disturbed on reading in your editorial column of October 28th (Message From a Six-Year Old) of your reference to a school in Prince Edward County where they were listing ten reasons why children should belong to the United Church were distributed to the children of a certain family.

I shall be pleased if you would allow the following comments for clarification.

(1) The United Church has no such leaflet as mentioned. If leaflets were distributed they were printed, as by other churches, for purposes within the Church only.

(2) The distribution of United Church leaflets as referred to in your editorial is not authorized either by our Church Headquarters or by the Conference of Prince Edward, the area in which the school is located, or in any other area.

(3) Altho it I do not know the name of the school or the person who distributed the literature I am pleased to learn that it was not a clergyman. If it were a clergyman, or if he were known as one, such literature be distributed, he would receive a stern rebuke from his Presbytery.

In a like manner, knowledge of the Bible is of such tremendous importance to the developing character of boys and girls; and when obstacles from every direction are grasped at to prevent the dissemination of Biblical truth in the Day Schools, the United Church, in co-operation with other religious bodies, is pleased to do its part in the responsibility of teaching religion in the schools with complete absence of denominational reference or application.

Yours sincerely,
Harry M. Davis,
Minister, Bridge Street United Church,
Belleville.

Birds' Morals Sink in Town

West German Bulletin

It is not only the countryman who is lured to try his luck in the city. For a long time bird-watchers have been observing the migration of country birds into towns of birds into the doubtful security of the towns. More recently attention has been directed to the changes in the life of the feathered immigrants after they have joined the sparrows in the cities.

The researchers chose blackbirds as the subject of their studies, males, females and one-year-olds are easily distinguishable. They found an average of four pairs nesting in each acre — as many as are to be found in the woods and open countryside. In the city itself half that number were found — more, that is, than in the same expanse of poor suburb in the country. The birds' breeding centres, however, it is still only the sparrows that find a home.

One thing observed was that far more old blackbirds live in the towns than in the country. The town, it seems, offers the best chances of enjoying a long life, and those birds are the most vive and learn to cope with the new conditions. Many blackbirds become quite tame.

The old blackbirds, however, have not become as wise in the city as they are useful. Morals have sunk, bigamy threatens the partnership that once was so faithful, nest building and family rearing are neglected. Without continual influx of new blood from the land, the town blackbirds would be doomed. Though blackbirds' eggs are almost as numerous as ordinary houses in the Federal Republic and are treated with loving care, the excitements of town life have proved too much for the blackbird.

One odd thing: After the brood is hatched and fledged, the female blackbird flies off with her young into the country for the summer. The black-feathered straw widowers stay behind to rest from the strains of family life as he will — amidst the thrills and temptations of the city.

Quick Action Saves Home From Burning

PICTON (Special) — A Canadian Guardsman — T. Struthers and his family of Waraga Corners, one mile west of Picton, narrowly escaped losing their home early this morning.

Mrs. Struthers said she awoke around 3.00 a.m. to feed their small baby and noticed from a window that the rail fence running from the back of their home to a woods about a quarter mile away, was a mass of flames.

The fire caused a great concern for a time as there was danger of the fire reaching the woods, which because of the lack of rain was very dry. Firemen from the Camp Picton Fire department and the Bloomfield fire department went to the edge of the woods working their way towards the Struthers home, in an attempt to keep the fire from spreading to it.

The fire travelled a steady course as there was a field of alfalfa on one side of the fence, which fire officials said would not burn and a plowed field on the other.

Over 1,300 gallons of water was used to extinguish the blaze. The department was called to the same residence last Saturday, when fire allegedly caused by carelessness set the foundation of a barn on the Struther's property afire. Fire officials said they believed this morning's fire was also caused from carelessness.

Hurricane

cold front and Ginny combined to drop from two to 12 inches of snow in many sections.

Residents of northern and western New Brunswick were surprised by the sudden arrival of winter. The region had been basking in the warm fall sun last week, with temperatures as high as 70 degrees.

Tuesday, Edmundston, N.B., reported about 12 inches of snow.

Ginny produced 90 - mile - an - hour gusts at Saint John, N.B., where heavy seas uprooted basements flooded and the 50-foot steeple of an Anglican church toppled. Several chimneys were blown down.

The 894-ton freighter Northern Star VI—used as a sealer in the spring—snapped her moorings and was grounded on rocks near Halifax. The damage appeared serious.

SUFFERS BROKEN WRIST

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Gleason fractured his left wrist while he did the last 15 minutes of tape Tuesday for his television show for next Saturday night. The accident occurred when Gleason rode a bicycle down a ramp into a "brick" wall made of plastic.

District Farmers Not Feeling Lack of Rain as Badly as Those in Western Parts

Despite the fact it has been weeks since there was a decent rain in the area, farmers in the Hastings county area are apparently not as badly off as their contemporaries in the western part of the province.

Agricultural representative Sidney MacDonald of Stirling at Picton, narrowly escaped losing their home early this morning.

Mrs. Struthers said she awoke around 3.00 a.m. to feed their small baby and noticed from a window that the rail fence running from the back of their home to a woods about a quarter mile away, was a mass of flames.

The fire caused a great concern for a time as there was danger of the fire reaching the woods, which because of the lack of rain was very dry. Firemen from the Camp Picton Fire department and the Bloomfield fire department went to the edge of the woods working their way towards the Struthers home, in an attempt to keep the fire from spreading to it.

The fire travelled a steady course as there was a field of alfalfa on one side of the fence, which fire officials said would not burn and a plowed field on the other.

Over 1,300 gallons of water was used to extinguish the blaze. The department was called to the same residence last Saturday, when fire allegedly caused by carelessness set the foundation of a barn on the Struther's property afire. Fire officials said they believed this morning's fire was also caused from carelessness.

Despite the lack of rain fall wheat in the area looks "rather good" according to Mr. MacDonald.

"I don't know where it is getting the moisture, but the fall wheat has a fair top and has good color," Mr. MacDonald stated.

He said a lot of fall plowing has been done, while some farmers with heavier land have been holding off waiting for rain, which so far hasn't arrived.

Jaycees Give Dates for Sports Show

At the Junior Chamber of Commerce executive meeting on Tuesday night the Jaycees announced that their 2nd Home and Sport Show would be held at the Belleville Armouries.

The scheduled dates for this show are from March 11 - 14th, 1964.

Deputy Chief Warns Motorists To Be Careful

The trick-or-treat tradition of Hallowe'en today holds a threat to life and limb.

And thereby hangs a warning issued by Belleville police this morning.

With swarms of made-up moppets hustling through suburban streets tomorrow night the potential exists for an increase in traffic mishaps.

Deputy Chief J. Clair Hayes asked motorists to be on the alert for children, many of whom will travel in parties unescorted by adults.

A sudden dash across an ill-lighted - street by a tot in a dark costume could mean fatal consequences, said the deputy chief.

Meantime, he has asked that parents guard against such eventualities by dressing their children in bright costumes during the shell-out carnival.

WEDDING

SAGER — BAMBER

White mums and potted ferns adorned the setting in Foxboro United Church on Saturday, October 12, when Sharon Elaine, chosen daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Bamber was united in marriage to Eric Lloyd Sager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Sager, Trenton. The Rev. Robert Reid officiated at the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by Miss Maris Hollinger of Foxboro who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. William Rombough, in her renditions of the "Wedding Prayer" and "Walk With Faith in Your Heart".

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown of pearl de soie with bodice featuring a scoop neckline and long lily-point sleeves. The waistline was highlighted with a white satin sash forming a large bow in the back and the front of the skirt was echanged with a daisy embroidered panel. Her shoulder-length veil of nylon tulle was held by a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of deep pink 'mums.

Mrs. Robert Sager of Toronto, as matron of honor wore a rose colored peau de soie dress highlighted with a bell skirt edged with an underlay of border lace as was the yoke of the dress. She wore a matching headpiece of nylon tulle and carried a bouquet of blue tinted 'mums. The bridesmaids, Miss Sandra Sager, of Trenton, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Lillian Landers, also of Trenton were similarly attired to the matron of honor, but in blue and carried bouquets of white and rose 'mums. The little flower girl was Miss Laurie Bamber of Foxboro, niece of the bride who was dressed in a rose nylon frock with a white lace yoke, matching headdress and mitts. She carried a basket of baby 'mums and rose carnations.

Mr. Robert Sager of Toronto attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Ronald Bamber of Foxboro and Mr. Keith Bamber of Belleville, brothers of the bride, and Mr. Alfred Waddell of Trenton were the ushers.

A reception was held in Fuller Memorial Church hall where the bride's table was attractively appointed with white damask cloth, centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Pink candles and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue brocade dress with matching jacket, rose beige accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was dressed in a "Champagne colored brocade dress, matching accessories and mink stole and a corsage of Orange Delight roses.

For the wedding trip to Syracuse, New York, the bride chose three-piece brown double knit suit with gold top and gold trim on jacket, brown accessories and a corsage of Orange Delight roses.

Guests present from Madoc, Stirling, Campbellford, Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Grimsby and Charlotte, Michigan.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower held in Trenton with hostesses, the Misses Sandra and Rhoda Sager and co-hostesses, Miss Lillian Landers and Mrs. F. Baldwin. The Foxboro community presented the young couple with two end tables and matching coffee table. The bridegroom was presented with a purse of money from his fellow workers at the Trenton Dye Plant and with a smoker at a party held in his honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Sager are residing at 3 Sutcliffe Blvd., Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Lloyd Sager are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Foxboro United Church. The bride is the former Sharon Elaine Bamber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Bamber, Foxboro R. R. 1. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Sager, Trenton.

Packed in glass to help preserve freshness of "leftovers"

Yes, now Gerber Strained and Junior Foods are packed in Wide-Top jars with re-usable Quick-Twist caps, to help keep your baby's food fresh even if served more than once. When refrigerating unused portions, caps reclose tightly to protect flavour and help prevent discoloration . . . thus reducing "leftover" waste. What's more, these tight-fitting covers also protect precious food values by reducing exposure to air.

Other advantages of Gerber in glass: you can see what you buy. The Wide-Top jars make it easy to spoon out baby's food down to the last morsel. The large-size jars of Junior Foods are designed to meet a toddler's growing appetite.

Important: Gerber Baby Foods are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements because cooking times and temperatures vary with different foods. "Custom-cooking" also contributes to the exceptionally fine flavours, true-to-nature colours and unusual smoothness of Gerber Baby Foods.

Ladies' Study Guild Views Colored Slides

Mrs. George Wishart opened her home for the October meeting of the Women's Study Guild with 32 ladies present.

A letter was read by the president, Mrs. Ellis, from the Guild's foster child in Tunis and it was decided to send her a special gift at Christmas. A shower of Christmas gifts will also be given to the Provincial Health Association for distribution to the patients at the Ontario Hospital, at Cobourg.

An inspiring worship service by Mrs. G. Hayden, related to the story of the painting "The Madonna of the Future," how whether a great artist can be he a great religious man—both are inspired to work with a single purpose. Afterward Mrs. Dorey guided his famous "Praying Hands," while watching his friend and benefactory kneeling in prayer. His friend's hands, no longer able to paint after working for years to help young Durer become established in his arts, made the offering for this ever-famous painting.

Mrs. R. Seldon vividly portrayed, by use of colored slides, her recent trip through France, Switzerland, Italy and Austria. She showed and described local customs, typical architecture and physical features of the countries, highlighting the Temple of Apollo at Pompeii, Ancient Rome, United Nations' building Geneva, canal scenes in Venice and had some particularly good photography of high mountain scenes from the Aiguille Dreuild mountain excursion in Switzerland.

A social hour was spent over the tea served by hostesses Mrs. E. M. Rendal and Mrs. L. F. Reid.

The vice-president introduced the guest speaker, Miss Bev. Davies who showed slides and thoroughly outlined her trip and experiences while on tour of England and Ireland with the winners of Science Fair. A question and answer period followed.

Miss Davies was thanked by the principal Mr. W. Mott.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Stoliker and Mrs. G. Cowan.

Puff Pastry for Ambitious Bakers

by Mary Moore

We had a request from Mrs. Arthur C. saying "I would like a recipe . . . I believe it is made of puff pastry and cut pie shells and jam or jelly cookies and rolled up. I would like a recipe for the pastry and to be called from the large end or pointed end?"

This particular pastry to which Mrs. Arthur C. refers is made with Puff Pastry so I will give the rule for it which is easy. I wish you would clip it if you have any lingering desire to make this professional pastry. Then I will give the method of making the jam or jelly crescents requested.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Sweet 'n Sour Pork; Chinese Fried Rice; Fresh Green Peas; Celery and Olives; Plum Cobbler; Coffee.

PUFF PASTRY:

1 cup butter, 1¼ cups sifted pastry or bread flour, ¾ tablespoon table salt, 6 tablespoons ice water.

Wash butter by squeezing it lightly with the fingers under cold water until it is waxy and smooth. Double it over quickly between the palms and pat hard to remove water. Reserve 1 tablespoon and shape remainder into a flat oblong about ¾" thick and place on lightly floured board. Sift together flour and salt and cut in reserved tablespoon of butter with a pastry blender or 2 knives. Moisten to a dough with the ice water and turn out on lightly floured board. Roll ¼" thick, keeping paste longer than wide and corners square. Place butter in centre of one side and fold the other side of the paste over it. Press edges firmly to enclose as much air as possible. Pat until enclosed butter is within ¼" of edges. Fold one end over and the other over and under to form 6 layers of pastry. Turn ¼ way around, pat, lift and roll ¼" thick, having paste longer than wide. Lift often to prevent paste from sticking and dredge board lightly with flour when necessary. Fold the ends in towards the centre to make 3 layers and roll out as before. Repeat folding and rolling 4 times. After 4th rolling, fold from ends to centre and double, making 4 layers. Chill until paste is stiff. Shape (see below) and chill thoroughly. Place on baking sheet covered with 2 thicknesses of brown paper. Bake for 8 minutes in very hot oven at 500 deg. Fahr. Reduce heat to 350 deg. and bake 5 minutes down to moderate temperature or 350 deg. Fahr. Cool slightly. Total baking time — about 25 minutes.

TO MAKE JAM OR JELLY CRESCENTS:

Roll pastry ¼" thick into a 12" circle. Cut in 12 longish pieshaped pieces. Put one tablespoon jam or jelly at wide end of each. Carefully roll up, beginning at wide end, being sure jam does not ooze out. Place on pan, point underneath and bake as directed above.

See tomorrow, Thursday, for method of shaping and baking Puff Pastry for Patty Shells and Napoleons, eh.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

USEFUL TIPS FOR EMPLOYERS

"Ever-Faithful Reader" notes that I have had my say in the past about the duties and obligations of the executive, secretaries and employees in general.

"What about the boss?" she asks. "Isn't he supposed to practice good manners around the office, too?

"My husband often gets home at night virtually frothing at the mouth about the man he works for. His boss deals with employees as though they were dirt to be sentenced to hard labor. He shows no consideration for their feelings.

"According to my husband, the man is taken on acting as 'the Big Boss, but he's nothing but a Big Bore."

Unhappily, whether he be boss or bore, it's the privilege of the man in charge to act as he wishes. But more enlightened employers nowadays have a different perspective on their relationships with employees. In fact, many companies have an executive whose sole responsibility is to keep employees happy.

But no often the boss lets the title go in his head. He may be aware of good manners, but only as they are exhibited to him by the people on his payroll.

GOLDEN RULES

If you're an executive, and want to keep inner peace as well as your star workers, then you should try to observe these golden rules:

Say "hello" to people as you walk down the hallway.

Since you're not to call attention to mistakes and errors in judgment, give praise freely for a job well done.

Don't interrupt an employee in the midst of a suggestion. He may just be getting to the point that will clinch a pending deal.

Don't put him on the defensive with a "from did you step beating your wife" type of question.

Learn to listen.

Don't expect everyone to recognize your voice on the phone. Announce who you are when the other person answers.

Don't automatically assume your employees are trying to get out of doing a full day's work.

If overtime work is necessary, try to be sympathetic with those asked to stay late. Don't act as if they owe you all their waking hours.

Remember that "please" and "thank you" are for bosses as well as for us ordinary folk!

Club Activities

BOARD CLUB

Approximately 25 members of the Belleville Sr.-Bi Club met at the Y.M.C.A. last Wednesday for the second week of the fall session.

Ballroom dancing instruction by Maureen Jewell, and a theatre group under the direction of Mr. Alexander of the Belleville Theatre Guild are but two of the many presentations. Mr. Harold Mott is chairman of the club which "Are You Mature?" bringing forth many interesting and canvassed views points from the participants of this group. The Scuba Diving Club held the controlled attention of the members with an interesting talk, demonstration of equipment and the showing of various objects retrieved from the depths of the lake.

Refreshments were offered after which the social evening came to a close with dancing.

The film "Etiquette" and Mr. E. Vader presenting a talk and the showing of slides on "Driving Instruction" are two features of the next meeting on October 30th.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

THE RAT RACE

Sometimes we get so caught up in our tomorrows that we forget to live today. We look ahead and think, "Heaven, what a busy week. I'll never get through it." At times like these I have found it helpful to stop and say, "I can do just one thing at a time, so I will concentrate on that. I can live just one day at a time, so I will face tomorrow tomorrow!" If we can learn to make the most of today, to enjoy today, and every individual task we have to perform today we are well on our way to serenity. Many tasks we have to do are routine, and many are annoyances, and this is especially true of housework. Yet every housemaker knows the satisfaction of shining dishes on clean shelves; of a room freshly polished and fragrant; of clothes neatly ironed and put away; and of a family happy and satisfied after a good meal. It is not the task so much as our attitude to the task that is important. We may not think of housework as creative and yet we are creating an atmosphere where our families grow and develop, and as every farmer knows the soil that growing things have is very, very important.

CUT IT OUT

The Ontario Intelligencer is starting a new pattern department which we hope you will like and use. For those of you who like to do your own sewing we have chosen ANN ADAMS styles. By starting in November we hope you will be able to choose some of the patterns for your Christmas sewing. The dress styles are new and smart, there will be children's clothes, play clothes, aprons and accessories for women and girls, and dolls' clothes.

We once heard a man describe the shirt his wife had made him as homemade. "Not homemade, dear," she corrected him, "Handmade." There's a difference.

WASTE NOT, EH?

One day an old Scottish lady was talking to me about my father. In admiring tones she said, "Aye, you're a wasteful man," meaning he was wide of girth around the waistline. But I misinterpreted it to mean "wasteful." Now if there was one thing my father was not, it was wasteful. In our home every crust of bread went into a bread pudding or stuffing for a chicken, every quarter inch of paste was squeezed out of the tube of toothpaste, and clothes were passed from the oldest to the youngest until they became dusting cloths. Boots and clothes were not bought for looks but for utility and long wear. It was not poverty, (indeed, looking back I can see we were rich in things of the mind and spirit) and I was not stingy-mean (the Scot is the most maligned person in the world with that tag attached to him. Canny, yes; frugal, yes; but the Scot is generous, and there is no more hospitable person in the world, his door is open and he loves company) but it was thriftiness. It was positively squeezy too, because I can remember that rejoicing in our home when ministers' infinitesimal salaries were raised in $1,500 a year. So it is not surprising that I resented the suggestion that my father was a 'wasteful man.'

LaMarsh

the federal scheme work, Miss LaMarsh re-emphasized Tuesday night.

IS SUPPLEMENT

The Canada Pension Plan would supplement the universal monthly old age pension just raised to $75 from $65 for persons aged 70 or more.

Under the federal proposal employers and employees would contribute equal amounts and benefits would start to flow by January, 1966, at the rate of an initial extra $10 per individual a month, rising to a maximum $100 more monthly on top of the basic $75 within 10 years when the plan would be in full swing.

One other feature of the 1965 inauguration—if it works out that way—would be a choice open to persons aged 65 to start receiving pensions smaller than those available at age 70.

Mr. Knowles raised the pension plan's future on grounds previous queries on its fate had been in vain and that the project was a "surprise in the arch of the Liberal election victory" last April 8.

He said the health minister tends to concentrate on difficulties posed by Ontario participation rather than on those caused by Quebec's separate plan.

HAS ANSWER

Miss LaMarsh, who got into trouble with Premier Robarts of Ontario by pensions statements during the recent election campaign, had an answer.

She said that a 1951 amendment to the British North America Act sets out that any federal pensions legislation cannot affect present or future provincial pension legislation.

Quebec had taken its own course toward a compulsory plan although "I entreat them" to join the federal plan. Thus, Quebec was banned territory for the federal proposals while Ontario's plan was not compulsory but regulatory in its effect on private concerns.

Miss LaMarsh said she doesn't want to suggest the Ontario portable pensions plan is bad—anything was good in a vacuum—but she did not think it went far enough.

It set out no minimum standards and it failed to cover the full labor force.

Thus, Ontario had been invited to set aside its plan to some degree to facilitate a "truly universal Canadian pension plan."

Spectators

shaping government act.

In the Conservative camp, informants indicated that the Harkness-Diefenbaker breach is again wide open after a period in which the wound seemed to be healing.

They pointed to the Tuesday incident in the Commons which saw the Conservatives, including Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, attempt unsuccessfully to deny the floor to Mr. Harkness by proposing that Leon Balcer (PC—Trois-Rivieres) be allowed to speak in Mr. Harkness' place.

Mr. Harkness wouldn't yield his place although he said he would have done so had his party's whip asked him to. Mr. Diefenbaker argued the Conservatives were deprived of the right to have the party's position explained.

That was before Mr. Harkness spoke. Later, Mr. Balcer got the floor anyway but Mr. Diefenbaker had by then indicated publicly that Mr. Harkness didn't represent Conservative thinking.

WANT ACTION

Conservatives indicated that today's caucus probably would want to see action to prevent future public airing of internal policy disagreements.

Among the New Democrats, a discussion seemed imminent of the party's voting on one nonconfidence motion Tuesday night.

Leader T. C. Douglas carried only seven of his colleagues with him in voting in favor of a Creditiste call – nuclear mo-

Five New Democrats split from the Douglas line and two others publicly abstained from voting at all.

The New Democrats have never placed as high a premium on voting solidly on any big issue. There have been abstentions before, and also splits by a few MPs with the official party line.

But a three-way split appears to be something new and members were worried about its effects among the electorate.

"imposed on us by foreigners."

However, he said the wording of the Caouette motion was unacceptable to the Conservatives.

Mr. Balcer, MP for Trois-Rivieres since 1949 and Quebec lieutenant to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, said the motion was illogical, ridiculous, separatist and unparliamentary in that it made a distinction between Quebec and the rest of the country.

He argued that the Creditiste were "a little bit" opposed to nuclear arms, that they were ready to accept storage of warheads in the other provinces as long as there weren't any in Quebec.

He believed that MPs had a duty to pass legislation that applied to all provinces and strengthened national unity.

SAYS PC DISHONEST

Mr. Caouette interjected angrily that Mr. Balcer was "misinterpreting dishonestly" the meaning of his motion. The Creditistes were opposed to nuclear warheads anywhere and Mr. Balcer knew it.

Mr. Balcer spoke after the Conservatives resorted to a rarely-invoked rule in an attempt to allow him to speak ahead of his colleagues, former defence minister Douglas Harkness.

The two Conservative frontbenchers rose simultaneously to speak and Speaker Alan Macnaughton recognized Mr. Harkness.

Invoking a rule not used since the 1956 pipeline debate, Conservative Whip Erik Nielsen moved that Mr. Balcer be recognized instead. Only the Conservatives supported the motion and it was rejected 139 to 72.

Mr. Harkness again supported the government's pro - nuclear position, but he criticized the cancellation of the frigate program and abandonment of a jet-training role for RCAF station Penhold near Red Deer, Alta.

The nuclear warheads agreement with the U.S. was attacked by Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe), Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) and Gerard Girouard (SC—Labelle) as well as Mr. Balcer.

THINKS INEVITABLE

Gerald Laniel (L — Beauharnois-Salaberry) said storage of U.S. nuclear warheads on Canadian soil is inevitable at the present time. But he indicated that the government would seek a non-nuclear role in the future.

Mr. Laniel said he is less concerned about American domination of Canada than about a dictatorship p'amed by Mr. Caouette and Mr. Gregoire.

Mr. Girouard said the people of Quebec are firmly opposed to nuclear arms. He had been elected because people in and around the Bomarc base at La Macaza, Que., wanted an MP who stood against nuclear weapons.

He suggested that Quebec MPs from all parties get together outside the Commons to discuss the question of nuclear warheads on Quebec soil. Such a meeting would show a near unanimity against nuclear arms, he said.

in $100,000 bail pending action by a federal grand jury. They pleaded not guilty.

The two Russian diplomats were brought when released from FBI custody here, despite the FBI's offer to provide them transportation.

"The conduct of the FBI agents was very rude," snapped Yuri A. Komashin, 38, third secretary of the Soviet UN mission. His companion, Gleb A. Yavlov, 30, an attache of the Soviet UN mission, had nothing to say.

The FBI complaint also named a staff member of the Soviet mission, Vladimir I. Oiserv, but he was not apprehended.

Agrees With "Mere Male"

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I admire Mere Middle-Aged Male for speaking up. We need more men like him.

I am a woman who has just passed through the teen-age years with three girls and have one boy there.

It is almost impossible these days to teach a girl what is attractively feminine and what is vulgarly female.

Women and girls have gone overboard in displaying their bodies to the world. It is done deliberately to attract attention from the male. The manufacturers have commercialized on it for style and the sale of their wares until there is no restraint left.

We have three boys on trial in court now in our city for raping an 18-year-old girl. I wonder if the boys are to blame or the atmosphere of the community in which they grew up? — JUST A MIDDLE-AGED MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER — The accent does seem to be on sex. Yet even in Cleopatra's day the girls were rouging their cheeks and draping curves in slinky silks. You and I and men like Mere Male will just have to hold the line for maidenly modesty!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — We have been married almost a year now and already our marriage is very stormy.

A neighbor suggested a talk with our pastor or a marriage counsellor. Where may I contact a marriage counsellor, should I decide to go to one? — MRS. X.

DEAR MRS. X. — To restore sunny skies you can't do better than go now to the Children's Aid Society, 83 Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved. The sooner the better.

DEAR DORIS — Just couldn't resist writing regarding "Mixed-up," also "Hoping to Help."

There is 15 years' difference in my husband's age and mine. We were married when I was 19 and my husband was 34; and that's 30 years ago. Sure we had ups and downs, sorrows and joys, good years and bad, but we forgot about age differences and remember that marriage is "for Better for Worse."

My husband sleeps on the couch also, but I'm glad he can rest and is at home, not running around with other women or drinking and coming home all hours, as lots of husbands do. "Hoping to Help" says "It's no life for children." Does she not think of the fourth commandment that says "Honor thy father and thy mother." That "honor" is the same if a father is 25 or 95.

Enough said, but it burns me up. Forget about age and work to make a happy marriage! Far too many go by the numb on T.V. screens. After all, we must face reality. — ONE WHO KNOWS.

* * *

DEAR ONE — Thanks. Makes me think of the old washerwoman who said: "Marriage is like doing a big washing. You just roll up your sleeves and go right to it."

Must agree that I haven't noticed this type of commercial on the T.V.

Union

was the minister's promise that he would introduce legislation of the dispute.

The labor minister appealed to the Trenton hospital workers to stay on the job while the inquiry is proceeding.

WILL MEET TONIGHT

A spokesman for Local 183 of the Building Services Employees' Union at Trenton hospital said late last night that the union local would meet tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Trenton Legion Hall to decide what action to take. A strike by the workers, called for October 1, was called off when the Minister of Labor, the Hon. Leslie Rowntree, relayed a promise from Prime Minister John F. Robarts that legislation to set up an arbitration board to settle the dispute would be introduced at yesterday's sitting of the Ontario governmental body.

FEAR DELAY

Yesterday's decision, in effect, did nothing at all, from the union local's point of view, said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified. The workers feel that the issue, once in the hands of a "committee," will drag on for months and months and that they will lose out in the long run. The general feeling, said the spokesman, is that they should strike now.

Reminded that Mr. Rowntree "hoped" and "expected" that they would stay on their jobs until the committee report is brought down, the spokesman said, "He may get a surprise."

The hospital board, the spokesman said, is bringing in more and more additional workers. These workers, said the spokesman, are in effect, "standing around." waiting, think the union workers, to replace them in their jobs should a strike occur.

BOND SALES UP

OTTAWA (CP)—Sales of the 1963 series of Canada Savings Bonds had exceeded $200,000,000 by the close of business last Friday, Finance Minister Gordon announced Tuesday. He said sales through payroll savings plans had reached $146,000,000 and there was a "strong likelihood" that last year's payroll plan record of $252,000,000 would be equalled or surpassed.

Geen's Drugs in Existence For Close to 130 Years, Has Big Expansion Program

A local drug store in continuous operation on Front St. for close to 130 years, has undergone an extension expansion program during the past summer.

Geen's Drugs at 276 Front St. has added another 800 feet of floor space with the entire premises being given a new and modern store front and fitted with new store fixtures and new lighting.

The added space was achieved by taking in the floor area formerly occupied by Jeweller A. E. Woonacott, who is carrying on his watch repair business from second floor quarters.

What is now Geen's Drugs was started back in 1835 by the late Dr. Holden, who for 35 years, along with his physician's practice, operated the business as Holden's Drugs. In 1871 the business was purchased by the late Albert L. Geen, father of Percival Geen, present and senior member of the firm and grandfather of Alwyn S. F. Geen, managing director.

WORKED AFTER SCHOOL

Sixty-nine years ago, in 1894, Mr. Percy Geen commenced working in the store after school hours and on holidays.

Geen's Drugs was known as the "friendly drug store" long before this slogan became an accepted drug store advertisement.

Over 50 years ago and soon after The Drug Trading Company was incorporated, Mr. Geen became a shareholder and in 1934 through his efforts the I.D.A. group was started in Belleville with local stores becoming members of this buying and advertising group.

There are now over 500 drug stores in the I.D.A. with resultant mass purchasing making possible the passing of many savings on to customers.

BUSINESS INCORPORATED

On Alywn's return from Air Force service, he, with his father and Mr. Lyle Twiddy had the business incorporated as a private company under the name of Geen's Drugs. The officers are P. W. Geen, president; Alywn Geen, managing director, and Mr. Twiddy, assistant manager.

Geen's Drugs has been in existence for well over a century, and no small measure of that long success is credited to the store's efficient and friendly staff.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. Dorothy Dutton, a former 980-a-week investment firm employee was committed for trial Tuesday following preliminary hearing into 10 of 222 theft charges against her involving $89,000. Mrs. Dutton was secretary-treasurer of D. M. Duggan Investments Limited. The president of the firm, Eric Duggan, filed an assignment in bankruptcy March 18 this year.

Ford Reports Record Sales

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Co. set a nine-month sales record this year, but its profit picture wasn't as rosy as that of Chrysler or General Motors.

Tuesday Ford became the last of the three biggest auto makers to file its financial report for the first three quarters of 1963.

All reports agreed the auto business has been extremely good. Total dollar sales by both Ford and General Motors for the three quarters were records. For Chrysler, they were the highest since 1957.

Cross-Canada Survey

Councils Lean More to Caucus Secrecy - - If Local Taxpayers Don't Protest

Secrecy in the deliberations of bodies conducting public affairs at the community level exists in varying degrees across Canada. This story deals with the problem in municipal councils.

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A reporter called for a vote of city council before accepting an order to leave a meeting. Instead, the mayor walked out, saying he wouldn't return until the reporter left.

The reporter went out to persuade the mayor to return for a vote. As the mayor walked back in, a policeman slammed the door shut in the reporter's face. The meeting went on without the press.

Not often does* a civic body saw off press coverage in such an unorthodox fashion when it wants privacy. The technique is usually smoother, though it varies from region to region. Mostly, it is within the law. Sometimes, the municipal legislators stretch the law to accommodate it to their view of what public business should be transacted openly.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates a wide variety of attitudes on the part of civic officialdom toward news coverage of community affairs. For municipal councils, the gamut is from wide open to the occasional blackout.

PUBLIC CARES LITTLE

Answers by CP member dailies to a questionnaire point to a number of conclusions including:

1. Many councils have a tendency to transact more and more public business in private if no one protests.

2. Vigilance by the press has served to curb this tendency time and again.

3. Except under unusual circumstances, the public generally takes no particular interest either in secrecy or in attempts by the press to dispel it.

Many newspapers report no problems with their local councils. But others tell of such techniques as "caucuses," "informal" or "privileged" sessions, overworking of the device of going into "committee of the whole"—all with the press excluded—or just omitting to let it be known publicly that a meeting has been called.

Across Canada almost generally, councils must meet openly by law but are not barred from also holding closed meetings. Such matters as personal affairs of employees and dealings that could affect property values are generally recognized as subject to privacy, but a common complaint is that the councilmen close the door on too many other topics.

SIDED WITH PRESS

As a rule, decisions taken at such meetings are made known officially later. Sometimes, it is much later, and lacks background and, for instance, where a member stands on a ticklish issue, though on occasion reporters get second-hand fill-ins.

Few get the Brandon reporter called colleagues at Chicoutimi, Que. Quebec law says councils can sit behind closed doors when a majority wishes but veteran Mayor Rosaire Gauthier has regularly barred reporters on his own. On a recent occasion, so many council members walked out with the press that he was left without a quorum and had to capitulate.

In Chatham, Ont.—where the reporter had the door slammed in his face—The News says that "the tendency to hold committee - of - the - whole sessions of most councils and boards in this area is growing more prevalent." But when it draws this to the attention of the public there is little interest. "They seem to feel it's okay as long as they personally don't get hurt."

HEEDED PROTESTS

In some other places, the local lawmakers have reacted markedly to an unfavorable press. Thus some Halifax County council committees began holding secret meetings—not forbidden by law but contrary to practice—The Chronicle-Herald and Mail-Star protested editorially, and all sessions were opened.

"Elected representatives here are very sensitive to any suggestion that they may not be operating in the open," comments C. R. McKinley of the Halifax dailies.

On the other coast, steady pressure by newspapers and newscasters has reversed tendencies towards secrecy in several British Columbia centres, but there remain pockets of resistance.

There was a running battle between council and press up to two years ago in Vancouver. Now, the secret meetings have stopped and reporters even are admitted to preliminary sessions of the city's budget committees.

The Victoria situation is good now, though eight years ago there was a fight to overcome a rash of council "committee" sessions. Complaints and backlogs still have secrecy problems.

MEET IN PRIVATE

In a class by itself is Montreal's civic operation where the city council has never been known to meet behind closed doors but its seven-man executive committee, in practice, exercises the real power—always does.

In heavy periods, the committee meets almost daily. Its resolutions are distributed to the press, along with background material. Some of these have to be ratified by the council which has two regular (public) only four times a year but in fact actually has an additional 10 or 12 special meetings.

The closed committee meetings are allowed under Montreal's 75-year-old charter. Assistant city clerk Albert Castonguay, who usually says no stories to the press, says they are justified on the ground of dealing with "internal management," though the committee can on its own approve spending items up to $10,000 or award contracts up to $5,000 without tenders.

Ottawa's board of control holds "special" meetings to close out the press, and nearly half of the first 104 meetings in 1963 were of this type. Minutes are available to reporters, but usually not until they are approved some weeks later.

COUNCIL ADAMANT

In neighboring Carleton County, reporters have found life frustrating since the 1950s when the council got into a feud with the press. This is what happens: The press is admitted at the start of a meeting; there is a motion to go into committee of the whole, and the press is ordered to leave. Next day, the clerk - treasurer gives out what he has been instructed to release. Editorial criticism has brought no result.

Municipal legislators at Saint John, N.B., on occasion take advantage of a provision in matters involving the "legal liability" of the city need not be discussed openly. These "legal" sessions were becoming longer and more numerous up to 1960, when The Telegraph - Journal and The Times-Globe attacked the practice and obtained the publication of a withheld report on the police department.

They report:

"At one time, under strong criticism from the newspapers and the public, the common council voted against holding the so-called committee-of-the-whole meetings in private. They have slipped back into it, but the situation is not as bad as a few years ago."

TREND TO SECRECY

A system of slipping from public into private meetings also has grown up with the city council at St. John's, Nfld., and has come under criticism in the press. The council under previous legislation must meet openly unless it calls, or declares itself by vote to be, a "special or privileged" session.

As it works out, the council holds its public meeting once a week and then declares itself privileged. The press and public leave. The councillors do not. The News commented in July:

"There was a time when the council sat as a miniature parliament with major policy questions openly and sometimes acrimoniously debated in public session. . . . The council functions today more like a board of directors with major policy debated in secret."

Press complaints helped dispel an aura of secrecy in Estevan where—despite Saskatchewan legislation that city council meetings must be open—the council often met privately after Estevan became a city six years ago. An investigation launched by the municipal affairs department brought improvement.

Another newspaper campaign was launched by the Prince Albert Herald when Mayor Allen Barsky of that Saskatchewan city initiated a meme system to discredit comment on city activities by department heads. Ray Guay, Herald managing editor, says it delays the flow of news, while Mayor Barsky contends he is entitled to know what his officials are saying before he reads it in the newspapers or hears it on the air.

The Herald's campaign, and a Civic Voters Association established in an attempt to beat the problem, have not yet changed the system.

Elsewhere, the press has met varying degrees of success in holding down the aldermanic urge to meet behind closed doors.

Secrecy by the Korah Township council was rapped editorially by the Sault Ste. Marie Star in recent months, and now its meetings are open from start to finish.

The Lethbridge city council had a habit last year of going into committee at the drop of a hat. It has happened only twice this year, after a strong campaign by The Herald.

LOOPHOLES EXIST

The Medicine Hat News has been campaigning more than a year against the use of statutory loopholes by civic bodies—especially city council—to call private meetings, so that everything is set up before it sees the light of day. It reports a "faint but heartening reaction" from officialdom, accompanied by public unconcern.

The Fort William Times-Journal finds no great tendency toward secret meetings of city council, "it has been tried from time to time but was so vigorously opposed editorially that councils are hesitant to repeat."

By refusing to accept handouts or sit through committee-of-the-whole meetings, except with freedom to report, the Pembroke Observer has rectified matters with city council and other boards there, but "none with others."

Different newspapers handle in different ways the problem of the council that allows reporters to sit in on closed meetings. At some of these, the council permits the newspaper man to absorb background but not use anything at the time. Some councils direct what may be used. Some trust to the discretion of the newspapers.

VIRGIL VIGILANCE

Individual newspapers have accepted all three forms of coverage, though a number will not permit reporters to attend where the council exercises control over what is printed.

A tough stand by the press is the best harrier to secrecy, says C. M. Pellman, managing editor of the North Bay Nugget, which refuses to be "pushed around" and has no trouble with public bodies.

He says:

"It is my own feeling that if a council tends to become secretive, a good part of the fault lies entirely with the newspaper for not being aggressive enough. A lazy newspaper will give a council a feeling that all is well with the world and it will drift along giving the citizens a minimum amount of information."

Barked Shins

CRIEFF, Scotland (AP)—Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home swigged whisky in a Scottish saloon, bob-robbed with the rural blacksmith and managed to fall off a wagon on his meet-the-people election swing through the Highlands Tuesday.

Decked out in a well-worn tweed suit and crumpled shirt, he drove from village to village in the rugged mountain countryside which he seeks to make his base for a place in Parliament.

His tumble came on the third stop of the tour. Scrambling onto a straw-filled farm wagon for a speech, the prime minister slipped and tumbled back.

As the crowd gasped, a television man flung out his arm and stopped Sir Alec from hitting the ground.

Unruffled, Sir Alec climbed back on the wagon and gave the speech.

He said afterward he had barked both shins.

Paul Hellyer Shows Metal As Defence Chief, Swinging Cabinet on Frigate Program

OTTAWA (CP)—Political life begins at 40 for Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

The one-time farm boy, opera singer and seller of lingerie has won his first major battle in the war of attrition surrounding political advancement.

This war was not won in the Commons where the government Tuesday night survived a Conservative motion of non-confidence condemning Liberal defence policies.

It was won weeks ago when Mr. Hellyer, who turned 40 on Aug. 6, swung the cabinet to his support in favor of cancellation of the $452,000,000 frigate program.

This couldn't have been easy. Shipyard workers and the party they live in represent a lot of votes.

Not to put too fine a point on it, the frigate program was a political if not military millstone around Mr. Hellyer's neck.

To begin with, there aren't a great deal of funds for new weapons and equipment for the armed forces. At least 80 per cent of the $1,000,000,000 defence bill goes for wages, operation and maintenance.

TIGHT SITUATION

If Mr. Hellyer had gone along with the frigate program as initiated by the previous conservative government in April, 1962, he would have had little or no money to do any of he things he wanted to do in the defence portfolio.

He didn't make any bones about this. He told the Commons defence committee in June that he needed financial room to manoeuvre if he was going to be able to choose among various defence projects.

Now that he's out of range of the political sword of Damocles represented by the frigates, is he lucky and choosy, if not at leisure, at least without a sense of panic.

Mr. Hellyer has already wrung from the cabinet a promise of five-year defence budgets. In cabinet meetings, he knows how much money he will have available over a five - year period.

Aides say that the youthful, six-foot, three - inch minister came to the department determined that it would not be the political graveyard for him it has been for others.

'SHAKE' DEPARTMENT

In other words, if he was to make a political mark he would have to shake up the department as it has not been shaken in recent years.

He didn't care for the portfolio in the first place—half of a speech in Quebec City earlier this month was devoted to trade and economics—but, once given it, vowed to make the most of it.

There now appears no doubt he will reduce armed forces manpower, modify and then change the main roles of the RCAF, build a combined, airborne force and integrate the services to a greater degree.

In the Second World War pile of sticks, wallboard and linoleum known as defence headquarters, the awed question is being asked daily: "Where will he strike next?"

General Motors On Way to Shatter Records

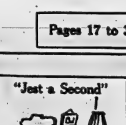
NEW YORK (AP)—Dazzling figures are sprouting from the dizzy production and sales pace set by Detroit's auto makers.

They gave promise of warming the hearts of almost all stockholders, including the more than 1,000,000 of General Motors Corp.

Of the "big three" automakers, only Ford Motor Co. remained today to be heard from following GM's report of all-time high earnings and dollar sales in the nine months ended Sept. 30.

Chrysler Corp. last week unfolded another financial chapter in its spectacular. Directors promptly voted a 2-for-1 split, the second in less than a year, and in effect doubled the dividend.

The results suggested strongly that GM is on the way to shattering 1962's records for a full year of $1,459,000,000 in earnings and $14,640,000,000 in sales, levels unequalled by any manufacturing corporation.



STREET WONDERS

Wall Street has been alive with speculation over what GM directors will do next week.

Some held hope of a stock split. GM last divided its shares in 1955 on a 3-for-1 basis, and before that split 2 for 1 in October, 1950.

GM factory sales of 4,503,000 cars and trucks in the 12 months ended Sept. 30 set a GM record, exceeding any previous model or calendar year.

Only a Radio

TORONTO (CP) —A haunting hum followed Stuart Roberts through the corridors and rooms of a downtown hotel Tuesday while he was attending the Ontario Hospital Association annual conference.

Baffled, he called in colleagues and hotel employees who checked ventilators and rooms, and then switched off lights to locate the mysterious noise. But the hum went on.

Finally, jamming his hands into his pockets in exasperation, Mr. Roberts association public relations officer, discovered a bellhop—a small radio receiver carried about hospitals by doctors to summon them to the switchboard.

A telephone representative had put it in his pocket after demonstrating the instrument.

Harry Hays

TENDERFOOT IN COMMONS — As one of three Liberal members of Parliament from the Prairies, Harry Hays continues a tradition begun before 1920 of having the minister of agriculture from this region. The former Calgary mayor was successful in his first bid for a Commons seat last April 8 and has been given a hot time by the 41 Conservative MPs from the Prairies. (CP Photo)

Prairie Political Tenderfoot Has Super Trigger Finger

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—Harry Hays was a political tenderfoot when he strode into the House of Commons as agriculture minister May 16.

The Calgary cattleman, a self-made entrepreneur who had served as mayor of the foothills city since 1960, faced one of the most sawy band of hombres ever to draw on a greenhorn minister.

He was one of three Liberals from the 48 Prairie ridings and 41 of the others were Conservative MPs spoiling for action on farm issues.

Quickly he was assaulted with a heavy fire of questions about his large department. He was chided for continuing as mayor of Calgary, and finally resigned that post before the October deadline originally set.

He was ticked off for honeying — without fee — suggestions to conduct cattle auctions made before his cabinet appointment.

Harry Hays seemed to ride small in the saddle at times under fire. His looked, in fact, something like his predecessor, Alvin Hamilton, when the Conservative MP drove to the cabinet in 1957 well versed in political theory but a novice at actual Commons or legislative action.

LEARNING STEADILY

There were times when Mr. Hays appeared to have his trigger finger jammed in his six-shooter. However, he is steadily gaining a surer touch and the capacity to give as good as he gets on any day in Parliament.

Harry Hays, 57, is affable, stocky, seemingly relaxed, blue-eyed, with a receding hairline and rimless glasses.

He may nurse a six-inch cigar all day. He's a staunch Rotarian-pressed governor of the western district—and that was just one of some 30 service clubs, Calgary community groups, social clubs, business organizations or livestock associations of which he was a member.

Politically, he was a beginner when he accepted the Liberal party nomination and won the April 8 federal election although he admits having received overtures from the Conservative and Social Credit parties.

By background and choice, he ranks good business practices high in performance as a cabinet member.

TO SPLIT MINISTRY

"I tried to operate the city of Calgary as a business," he said. "I think all governments are like any other business."

He was the one Liberal MP equipped to continue the tradition begun before 1930 of having the federal agriculture minister come from the prairies.

This time, though, he will be in double harness — with an eastern farm minister—if and when the long-prepared legislation for a dual ministry is passed.

Mr. Hays was one of eight children born to a doctor in the little Alberta town of Carstairs, 36 miles north of Calgary.

As a Depression youth who wed in 1934—his son Dan, an only child, is a University of Toronto law student—he lacked money for any post-high school education except business colleges. His wedding was on his bride's half-day off from her job as a furniture store bookkeeper.

By age 21, Mr. Hays had entered the cattle business and immediately after his wedding he set off for Britain with the first shipment of purebred dairy livestock ever dispatched there from Canada.

SHIPPED TO CUBA

Many other firsts followed.

In 1942, he traveled extensively to push cattle breeding stock sales in Mexico and other Latin American countries. In 1957, he shipped cattle to China.

In 1961, he shipped cattle to Cuba from Toronto and there were other deals with various countries including Spain and Italy.

In 1950, he bourgeoned the practice of public stockyard auctions at Lethbridge and the system now is widely used. At one time, he and a brother owned five farms in Ontario. The brother—now operating independently—retains three.

Mr. Hays recalls that they were willing to handle anything from horses to sheep. "We even collected bears for circuses." Peddling fox furs in Europe was a brief and non-profitable sideline.

Mr. Hays ran for mayor in Calgary in 1950 without any previous municipal experience and last year won re-election with a huge majority.

He retains his 3,000-acre farm near Calgary although he has ended other business associations. Growing grain and forage occupies about 2,000 acres and the rest supports purebred Hereford and Aberdeen - Angus beef cattle.

Mr. Hays has been spared one major headache in his portfolio, the complex operations of the Canadian Wheat Board. The Liberal government shifted that responsibility back to the trade department from where the Conservatives had switched it to agriculture.

Thus, Trade Minister Sharp has drawn a good deal of the daily Commons quizzing about grain that otherwise would have fallen to Mr. Hays.

But Mr. Hays has inherited a political problem in seeking to erode the firm grip maintained on the prairies by the Conservatives. That may take time.

Bellewood Lumber Officially Opens New Showroom

Local Firm Is Expanding To Serve Do-It-Yourselfers

Looking to the needs of the "do it yourself" customer in a rapidly growing phase of business operations for many in the building supply trade.

At least that is the trend seen by Mr. Fred Pope, of Bellewood Lumber on Dundas Street in the eastern limits of the city, who this year has added another 2,800 square feet of retail space and storage area to keep up with customer requirements.

Speaking of the tool rental business, Mr. Pope said "you just can't keep up with it."

He says the "do it yourself" man is quite prepared to shell out the rental cost for the tools he needs to fix that lop-sided verandah, to staple on insulation or to cut tiles for the bathroom.

"It's a lot cheaper to rent a tool for a few days than to buy something for a specific job and then never use it again," he says.

Only a few years ago the the building supply business was limited to the sale of lumber, cement and other building materials.

But today that is all changed and supply men now almost invariably carry all lines of building hardware as well.

And it's the day-to-day sales of materials to the "do it yourself" man or otherwise small customer that keeps the cash registers clicking during the winter months when professional builders are enjoying the sun in Florida.

STARTED 15 YEARS AGO

Mr. Pope started in the building supply business just over 15 years ago when he opened a wodworking shop at 398 Dundas Street where door frames and windows were manufactured.

From then the business was like Topsy. It just grew and grew.

He started with three to five workers — including the boss — and now employs 17 persons and operates three trucks for delivery.

Bellewood Lumber still operates a small mill but does only a bit of custom work. Composite for door frames and windows are stocked and then made up to the customer's order.

"This way," Mr. Pope says, "less storage space is needed, time is saved and better service is provided."

A Belleville area boy, Mr. Pope after the war worked in a drug store and at the American Optical before going to work for the Houston Lumber Company.

It was while with this firm that he developed the yen to be in the building supply business on his own.

A few years back he sold a part interest in Bellewood Lumber to the late Arthur Macfarland.

Following Mr. Macfarland's death a few years ago, Mr. Pope bought back full interest and formed a family owned limited company of which he is president.

While in partnership with Mr. Macfarland the business dealt almost entirely with building contractors.

But this meant there was a slow period in the winter, hence the switch in service to small er customer.

Today Bellewood Lumber is open for business at 7:30 and 9:30 in the evening offering a full range of builders' supplies.

They are open also until nine on Friday evening. That's when the men of the house comes in with his wife to shop around and talk things over about what is needed around the house.

Ann Landers

Adoption Short Cuts Often End in Tormented Grief

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The best way I know to get a problem before the public is to write to Ann Landers. I hope you'll print my letter and perhaps spare other couples the grief my daughter and son-in-law are now going through.

After seven childless years our daughter and son-in-law became discouraged and decided to adopt. They were interviewed by three agencies and told to "be patient." Their patience wore thin after two years so my daughter was understandably receptive to the suggestion of a friend who had gotten two gray-market babies and was delighted with them.

My daughter's husband agreed to go the gray-market route and two months later they received a beautiful little girl. She was the light of their lives for ten glorious months.

Last May the baby's natural mother turned up at their front door and demanded her child. She claimed she was irrational when she agreed to sell her baby to "that crook of a lawyer." I'll skip the details, but daughter and son-in-law were taken into court and they lost.

The nursery door is now locked and theirs is the saddest home I have ever seen. They are paying dearly for their mistake. Please print this, Ann. — SHATTERED GRANDMOTHER.

DEAR GRANDMOTHER — Yours is not the first such letter that has appeared in this column, but it is worth repeating. Thank you for writing. And again let's hope this serves as a deterrent to childless couples who are tempted to take a short cut.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A friend of ours who is in the funeral business has a habit which annoys me terribly. If you tell me he is right I will apologize to him.

When this friend introduces a clergyman he invariably says, "I would like you to know Dr. Quentin Collingwood, a Doctor of Divinity." This sounds so pompous that my blood pressure takes a leap every time I hear it. What do you think about this type of introduction? — ANTI-POMP AND CIRCUMSTANCE.

DEAR ANTI-POMP — I would not say your friend is wrong, but he is surely using a great many superfluous words. It would be simpler to say, "This is the Rev. Quentin Collingwood."

One does not introduce a dentist as "Dr. Farnsworth, Doctor of Dentistry," or "Dr. Rosenheim, Doctor of Philosophy" — not that it would be incorrect, but because it would be awkward.

* * *

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

In Trouble

TORONTO (CP) — Two visiting Russians ran into some trouble Tuesday with figures —their wives' figures.

Vladmir Kulich and Sergei Molochkov stepped into a Toronto department store to buy dresses to take home to their wives.

Kulich, leader of the group and only delegate able to speak English, knew his wife's dress size — on the Russian scale—but found out the North American system of sizes is different.

He had to search out a saleagirl similar in build to Mrs. Kulich and then he bought garments in her size.

Molochkov was more prepared. He produced a diagram of his wife and used a tape measure to get centimetres into inches.

The Russians are here as part of an exchange program sponsored by the Canadian National Council of Young Men's Christian Associations.

BANK WORKERS STRIKE

PARIS (Reuters) — All employees of the Bank of France except senior personnel Wednesday started a 24-hour strike for higher pay. A Bank of France spokesman said operations were being carried on with a reduced staff.

Sport Slices....

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

At last we're in the driver's seat. Finally we have installed a rouge-lure for the Ontario Minor Hockey Association's fur-flung empire, by "we" is meant the Eastern Ontario neck of the OMHA woods dubbed by Western Ontario outhunkery "Lower Canada."

AL WATKINS

Now, egad, we'll show 'em what a government of the minority by the majority and for the majority can do when it takes over the lead coneetogs in the OMHA wagon train.

If someone can coax him to grow a beard, we've got Abe Lincoln on the OMHA new frontier. And he's got a running mate, who can draw from the hip without spilling a drop.

The rest of the governmental posse are tried and true hands whose allegiance is unquestioned. They've ridden the OMHA ranges for some time, picking out strays and branding not a few with the hot iron of appreciation.

They hail mostly from the chuttered jungles of Western Ontario, where a teen-age Dyra can reach a peak and move a goal in a neighboring arena.

D. PATTERSON

The new trail boss of the OMHA herd is Albert (Al) Watkins of Peterborough who has been top hand for President Tod Elmes for the past two years. Stepping up to second-in-command of the executive beat-hoeing is Doug Patterson of Stirling, a saddle-mate of Prexy Watkins for 'le, these eleven years past.

The circuit judges of the association were not called into election combat. President Watkins and vice-president Patterson, with their third vice-president were given acclamations. The official announcement will be made at the 30th annual convention slated for the King Edward Hotel next Friday and Saturday.

If you'll pardon a touch of nostalgia here, the convention would have been a cliffhanger was for the late Sam Curry. Sam was the first moving figure in organized minor hockey in this section of Ontario. He was an executive member when he passed away. He would have reached the presidential chair this Saturday. The pronounced success of OMHA hockey originated here by Sam and carried on by his successors, will always be a monument to his memory.

Both President Watkins and vice-president Patterson are graduates magnum cum laude of the OMHA school of hard work and experience. Al is marking his 12th year with the body and Doug his twelfth. Both are "rankers" who worked their way up to executive spots and directorial positions. Their honors have not "come easy."

Doug caught the torch flung by Sam Curry and it could and have fallen into better hands. "Lower Canada" organized hockey has succeeded in Patterson a capable jurisdiction and that of his aides. He will be ably qualified when the time comes for him to step into the presidential position.

Eleven years ago he was playing minor hockey (the first grey-haired regency on record) when he was named to the OMHA executive. That, too, I believe, is a record. Seven years later he was elevated to third-vice and two years ago he became second-vice.

Seventeen years ago when "Sam Tweed" and I first attended the OMHA annuals, such Western Ontario wags as Chick Appel, Herb Parker, Mike Weichel, Ted Elmes, among others, looked us as askance. There were mutterings of "Upper Mangolians," "foreigners", "They no spik English," etc. Some approached us with sign language. When we shook our heads, some cracked they're deaf, dumb and blind.

It probably was the first meeting these habitues of the banana-bunched communities of their neck of the Ontario woods had with the men of the wide open spaces of the Eastern ranges.

Then someone discovered we were human and decided we hailed from "Lower Canada." The name stuck.

The discovery was normal. From that time on everything has been harmonious. But shifting, like virtue, has its own reward. Now, as was said, we're in the driver's seat. And as prens representative of the "New Frontier" I'm going to demand that those lathshod wretches of the press table like Appel and Morgenson, address me as "sir.". I haven't forgotten that "ring-a-ding" banquet curry.

Gordie Howe may be having difficulty scoring goal number 545 but Kenny Wharram isn't having trouble finding the net.

Wharram usually toils almost unnoticed in the shadows of the headline heroes of the Chicago Black Hawks, Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita. But tonight he will be dropped his supporting role as he took star billing with a three-goal hat trick that led the Hawks to a 5-1 victory over Detroit.

The win, in the only National Hockey League game played, gave the Hawks a six-point lead over Toronto and Montreal in the NHL race and stretched the Hawks unbeaten string to seven games.

Howe had four shots on net but was held to an assist in his bid to move ahead of Maurice (Rocket) Richard on the all time scoring list. Howe tied the Rocket at 544 goals Sunday and next gets a chance to break the record Thursday when Detroit plays host to New York.

Wharram got the Hawks off to a 2-0 lead in the second minute of the first period and added his third goal in the third period. It was his first hat trick in his NHL career.

He first scored at 11:36 when Mikita set him up with a goal mouth pass and he beat a helpless Terry Sawchuk. Then, at 12:07, he picked up Ab McDonald's rebound and rifled a 10-footer behind Sawchuk.

FAKE BIG LEAD

Al MacNeil made it 3-0 a little more than two minutes later and Johnny Bucyk added another on the second period.

Wharram got his third of the night and fifth of the season at 13:27 of the third when, with the team one man short, he carried the puck into the Detroit end with only defenceman Doug Barkley to beat. He moved in close and fooled Sawchuk again with a shot between the goalie's legs.

Norm Ullman ruined Glenn Hall's potential shutout at 15:43 of the final period when he took a pass from Howe and Andre Pronovost and scored while Wharram was in the penalty box.

Sawchuk made 30 saves and played the last two goals behind impaired vision after taking three stitches in an eyelid cut he suffered late in the second period in a collision with Bobby Hull. Hall had made 32 stops.

Toronto and Montreal can close the gap between them and the Hawks Wednesday when they meet at Toronto. Boston plays at New York in the only other game scheduled.

Golf Club Open for Play Until Nov. 10

The Bay of Quinte Country Club golf course will remain open for play until November 10 club pro George Balam announced this morning.

The current fine weather has brought out many golfers, Mr. Balam said and directors decided on a seasonal extension.

Green fees will be charged playing members.

The course is in excellent condition, the pro says.

Mr. Balam requests that all playing members remove clubs and other equipment from the pro shop and clubhouse tomorrow (Thursday). This, he says, is important, in case bad weather sets in.

Edmonton Eskimos Under Fire

Will Probe All Phases Of Club

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — The fans didn't have a long wake Edmonton Eskimos finished in last place last season.

They didn't even cry overly when the club traded Jackie Parker away during the winter after nine glorious seasons.

But a groundswell of fan unrest came to a head during the weekend and the director of the Western Football Conference club had ordered a full scale inquiry into "all phases" of the club.

The decision was made Tuesday night at a regular directors meeting. Six past presidents were asked to handle the job. They will hold their first meeting Thursday.

Eagle Keys, completing his fifth season as head coach after seven years as a player, scout and head coach, and Joe Ryan, manager since September, 1960, have come under fire from several directors, but most have remained anonymous.

Eskimos finished last in 1962 with a 5-9-2 record, missing the playoffs for the first time in 13 years. This year, the club has a 3-13 record, both wins coming against Eastern Conference clubs in interlocking play.

After last season, the club launched a major rebuilding program, starting with the trade to Parker to Toronto Argonauts of the EFC for five players.

Hastings (R-e-d) McMahon, present Eskimo president, said the inquiry was ordered "with the intent of clearing the air."

The advisory committee has been given full power to talk to anyone connected with the club and to study every phase of the team's operations. We want manager since September, 1960, have come under fire from several directors, but most have remained anonymous.

In the first round Albert Collegs edged Madoc 15-11, Picton beat Napanee 15-10, Trenton took Trevell 15-7 and B.C.I. defeated Stirling 15-8. O.S.D. had a bye after which they defeated Albert 15-11, Picton 15-6 and B.C.I. 15-3 all in order. As it was double elimination B.C.I. played off with Picton to decide who would play O.S.D. in the finals. B.C.I. won 15-8 and played off with O.S.D. but were defeated in a close spirited game. The O.S.D. team consisted of J. MacLachlan, B. Cooley, D. Russel, M. De La Franiere, R. Clark, J. Duggan, H. Gelgel, P. Sicoli and C. Carbin.

The Picton juniors won the Junior Bay of Quinte championship by defeating Trenton juniors 15-7. Murphy, Hobson, J. Murphy, Kragland, Brown and Cunningham.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita registered two assists in Chicago's 5-1 victory over Detroit Tuesday night to move into a two-point lead in the National Hockey League's scoring list.

Kenny Wharram, hero of Chicago's victory with a three goal hat trick, moved into a tie for fourth with Montreal's big guns at 12 points. He has scored five goals.

Bobby Hull counted an assist to stay within reach of the leaders at 11 points and Ab McDonald also registered an assist to bring his point total to nine and tie Montreal's John Ferguson for sixth position.

Green Bay Claims Quarterback

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The National Football League champion Green Bay Packers bought themselves some quarterback insurance Tuesday against a delay in the healing of Bart Starr's broken hand. They claimed Zeke Bratkowski on waivers from Los Angeles Rams.

Bratkowski, a 31-year-old veteran of eight NFL seasons, will relieve John Roach, the Packers' No. 2 signal-caller, if needed.

Starr's hand apparently is expected to be ready in less than four weeks.

With Starr out of business, Roach had the field to himself last Sunday and piloted the Packers to a 24-6 decision over the Colts at Baltimore.

If he'd been hurt, Green Bay had only handyman Lew Carpenter, who plays running back and offensive end, to call the signals.

CHAMPION JAILED

SELKIRK, Scotland (AP) — Chic Calderwood, British light heavyweight boxing champion, was sentenced Tuesday to three months in jail for assaulting a man who owed him money. The 26-year-old boxer had already been found guilty of two assaults on William Muir Dickson.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Wee Governor won his second straight race at Western Fair Raceway when he took the featured $600 dash Tuesday night in 2:06, fastest time of the night.

Owned by Dr. Alvin House of Mitchell, Ont., Wee Governor was kept in the second slot by reinman Ron McGee until the three-quarter pole when he was given his head and moved to the front with authority.

OTTAWA (CP) — After 12½ years in Canada—seven of them in Ottawa—Frank Clair has decided to stay.

The Ottawa Rough Rider coach said Tuesday he and his wife and two daughters, Robin, 23, and Holly, 8, plan to make a permanent home in the capital. The move may be made this winter.

Since he came to Ottawa in 1956, Clair has kept his home in Rensselaer, Indiana. Generally he has gone home shortly after the Canadian football season, returning once or twice during the winter.

Clair now is working on a five-year contract that extends through the 1965 season.

Clippers Win Over Aces 2-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gilles Villemure is living up to his advance publicity.

The five-foot, 160-pound goalie won the Western Hockey League's rookie of the year award with Vancouver Canucks last year and was shifted to Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League this year.

Tuesday night, the 23-year-old Trois Rivieres, Que., native stopped 15 shots in the first period and went on to boost Baltimore to a 2-1 overtime win over Quebec Aces.

The only player to beat him was Wayne Hicks who scored the tying goal at 10:34 of the third period, equalizing Marc Dufour's second - period goal which had given Baltimore an early lead.

Villemure ended up with 27 saves.

Mel Pearson scored the winning goal at 7:17 of the overtime period, 12 seconds after Dufour had been given a misconduct penalty.

With the Clippers short-handed, Pearson clicked on a pass from Harry Pidhirny.

The defeat kept Quebec from tying Providence Reds for the eastern division lead. It was the only AHL action Tuesday.

Scorekeeper Had His Own Code

WOODLAND, Wash. (AP) The official scorer at the high school football game between Castle Rock and Woodland last Friday kept jotting the initial "CWHS" after the name of Woodland ball carriers as he recorded the plays.

A puzzled bystander finally asked the meaning of the letters.

"Clobbered where he stood," snorted the scorekeeper.

Final score: Castle Rock 84, Woodland 0.

EDMONTON (CP) — Manfred Ellen Kruger, wife of safety Oscar Kruger of Edmonton Eskimos, said Tuesday she did not, in so many words, advocate that coach Eagle Keys of the Western Football Conference club be fired.

"I said that Eagle didn't have the ability or personality to be a head coach," she said.

Mrs. Kruger, a lawyer, was reported to have said in a radio interview following Eskimos 45-38 loss to Calgary Stampeders Saturday night, that Keys should be fired.

Also appearing in the post-game show was Marg Getty, wife of Canadian quarterback Don Getty. She is reported to have said that Keys was not fully utilizing the backfield talent Eskimos possess.

Mrs. Getty apologized to Keys Tuesday. She said she was sorry she had ever appeared on the program and had been placed in the position of criticizing the Eskimo management, but still felt she was entitled to her own opinions and they remained unchanged.

DIDN'T APOLOGIZE

Meanwhile, Don Getty denied a report that he had apologized to Keys and Eskimo president Hastings (Red) McMahon for his wife's statements.

The former University of Western Ontario star said he hadn't apologized for anything his wife had said and added that he didn't think her actions had, or ever would, need apologize.

"I spoke with Eagle an Mr. McMahon," Getty said, "but I wasn't apologizing for my wife's actions. We were straightened out a few things."

Getty also said that he hadn't heard of a weekend players meeting that had endorsed Keys methods.

It was reported that Eskimos held a short meeting Monday at which the matters of wives speaking out publicly was discussed. It was reported the players felt the whole thing had been blown out of proportion.

Head-on Crash Like Clout With Club

CHICAGO (AP) — A football player's shock after a head - on collision may be equal to that suffered if he was hit on his helmeted head with a baseball bat swung by Mickey Mantle.

That was the report Tuesday by a medical expert and former Northwestern University football star after a two-year study of football head injuries.

Dr. Stephen E. Reid, associate professor of surgery at Northwestern University medical school, told the National Safety Congress:

"A football player crashing into an opponent subjects his helmet to blows of more than 5,000 times the force of gravity.

"That's the same impact a ball encounters when Mantle hits it into the upper deck."

"However, perhaps it's more significant that the blows to a player's helmet are more than 500 times as intense as the force of gravity experienced by an astronaut during the lift-off and re-entry of a space capsule."

However, Dr. Reid, whose experiment used Northwestern gridders whose helmets were "wired for sound" said that hard-shelled, plastic suspension-type helmets generally used greatly absorb contact shock.

But, Dr. Reid said, since high school players seem most subject to head injuries, development of the best helmet available for them is the ultimate goal of the study."

Dr. Reid's next step will be to record the effects of impacts on a player's brain during a game.

Generals Tie Kitchener

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)— Oshawa Generals, indignant at a third-period ejection of coach Doug Williams, rallied for a 2-2 tie with Kitchener Rangers in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game here Tuesday night.

Williams, angered at an interference penalty on Oshawa's Bobby Orr, stepped on the ice to contend that Kitchener's Gary Edwards should also have been penalized.

Referee Hugh McKean sent Williams off the ice and out of the game, and Oshawa General Manager Wren Blair took over the team on the bench.

Ron Buchanan and Ron Zaine then scored for the Generals, to offset second-period goals for Kitchener by Bill Hway and Rob Jones.

Oshawa outshot the Rangers 29-17 before about 1,100 fans.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Farms chestnut Wonderwine outfoxed seven rivals in the featured Town and Country Club Purse at Greenwood race track Tuesday to score a fourth straight win and give his driver-trainer Jerry Eric Walsh his third consecutive win of the afternoon.

Conn Smythe's Warrior Day was second and Peter Marshall's Blue Light was third. The winning margin was 1¼ lengths.

Seat Postward as an entry with Stafford Farms Windy Shipl Woodenwine was favored at 4 to 5 with the 6,380 fans. The gelding returned $2.70 straight.

Meets Marmora for "B" Title

Nicholson Blanks Norwood

By JIM BLACK

Nicholson College gridders ingered their second straight shutout and sixth consecutive victory with a smashing 32-0 triumph over Norwood High School yesterday.

The collegians now meet Marmora High School for the Bay of Quinte COSSA Senior "B" championship here on Friday.

Don Holoway and Frank Sarrell shared the scoring for Nicholson each scoring two touchdowns with Sarrell kicking two converts and a safety point.

Holoway scored first on a quick kick for the point and later Sarrell went over for the first touchdown on a herd right play.

Late in the first quarter Bob McLaughlin tossed a 45-yard pass to Holloway on the five yard line and he went over to make the score 14-0.

The college crew maintained their offensive in the third, Stu Malloy running back an interception to the Norwood 15-yard line. On the next play Holoway took a pass in the end zone for the third touchdown. It was not converted.

In the final quarter came an exchange of interceptions with Nicholson eventually putting the ball on the two-yard line of Norwood.

On the next play Sarrell barged over for the final major score. The convert was good.

Jim Nabors Never Acted Before Joining Griffith

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Andy Griffith Show added last season a country-style character who worked out so well that sharp-tuned-actor Jim Nabors became a regular called Gomer Pyle. This season Gomer is around even more.

Gomer is expected to be on his own next year. A pilot film, starring Nabors as a comedy marine has been made and reports are that CBS is smiling happily upon it.

The Alabama-born Nabors, in New York on business, is still in a state of semi-shock over the good fortune that has come his way the last 15 months.

He was working in Hollywood as an assistant film editor, a specialist in chopping up old movies to make room for TV commercials. And he was singing for fun in a nightclub that encouraged amateur and frustrated talent.

Bill Dana, then a member of the Danny Thomas Show family, saw Nabors perform. He liked the voice and the comedy and helped him get work in show business.

Jim had never acted before the Griffith show.

Television executives are studying and worrying over the new and important national Nielsen ratings.

The list of the most popular shows contained few surprises. Beverly Hillbillies continued to be its top-rated program. Bonanza followed, trailed by Dick Van Dyke, Lucille Ball, Andy Griffith, Petticoat Junction, Danny Thomas, Red Skelton, Perry Mason, Donna Reed, I've Got a Secret and The Patty Duke Show, in that order including a couple of ties.

Among the shows with disappointing ratings — also anticipated—were the Judy Garland Show, the Jerry Lewis Show and Espionage.

Asthma Attacks Plante

MONTREAL (CP) — Physiotherapist Bill Head said Tuesday he has treated goalie Jacques Plante, suffering from an asthma attack, and that Plante may be able to leave Montreal Wednesday to rejoin New York Rangers.

"He's not in bad shape," said Head, whose offices are in the Montreal Forum—home of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens.

"Plante flew up for a treatment Tuesday afternoon. It's possible now that he can fly back within 24 hours."

Plante was goalie for Canadiens before being traded to New York last June and was treated successfully for asthma several times by Head. Some of the previous attacks—as this one—struck him while he was in Toronto.

Another former asthma patient of Head's is Phil Goyette, also traded to the Rangers last summer.

A six-time Vezina Trophy winner as the league's outstanding goalie, the 36-year-old Plante was sidelined for 11 games early last season because of the asthma.

"A few weeks later, while referring to his health and the fact that goaltenders carry 40 pounds of equipment, Plante said:

"If I get another asthma attack, I may quit. I don't want to die in the nets."

Harvison of the Mounties

CLOSES REMARKABLE CAREER—Clifford Walter Harvison (seated) retires Thursday (Oct. 31) as commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, closing a career that started in 1919 as a rookie with the old Royal North-West Mounted, and since has involved investigation of murder, moonshine, narcotics trafficking, fraud, and espionage. With him is his successor, former deputy commissioner George Brinton McClellan. (CP Photo)

From Sweeping Regina's Dusty Streets He Rose to Head of Canada's Finest

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — During the war year of 1942 a stream of coded messages was exchanged between a radio transmitter in Montreal and German spy headquarters in Hamburg.

The "spy" who handled most of them was Montreal - born Clifford Walter Harvison, retiring Thursday after 3½ years as head of the RCMP.

At 68, Commissioner Harvison is closing out a remarkable career that began with the old Royal North-West Mounted Police in 1919.

In an interview before leaving his desk, he recalled the wartime spy episode as the most intriguing case he ever handled.

It began early in 1942 when a U-boat put a German ashore on the Gaspe Peninsula. He had $6,000 in cash, papers, a radio transmitter and code book, but lacked the vital French-Canadian accent. A few days later he was picked up.

Commissioner Harvison, then an RCMP inspector in intelligence work in Montreal, interviewed the spy. He convinced the man it would be better to work for Canadian intelligence than face speedy execution.

"That's when my troubles started," the quiet-spoken commissioner said.

RUSE SUCCEEDED

First off, the spy's radio wasn't good enough to raise Hamburg. A 50-foot steel tower was erected on Mount Royal and power-boosting gear added. In the building under the tower a guarded apartment was set up. In the handful of men involved in the secret moved in with the German.

For nearly a year they translated, coded, decoded and transmitted messages. Hamburg called daily at 1 p.m. with requests. Montreal replies were at 11:30 p.m., feeding the German intelligence chiefs useless or misleading data on shipping factories and the like.

"Sometimes when we became too busy we'd invent a long trip for the spy and advise Hamburg," Commissioner Harvison said. Later information to Hamburg would relate to the imaginary trip.

In 1943 he was assigned to take the German to Britain for intelligence work there.

There were two postscripts to the incident.

During the radio operation there was constant worry over whether the spy had somehow tipped Hamburg about what was happening. "This would have been valuable to the Germans, who could have compared ours with other spy information from North America to detect other such setups."

RUSE SUCCEEDED

After the war, British intelligence seized the Hamburg files and reported that the Germans had gone book, line and sinker for the Montreal reports. They had no suspicions.

The final chapter for Commissioner Harvison came last spring when he went to Hamburg to address the International Press Institute. A report of his speech was carried in the Hamburg newspapers and that evening he had a call from the former German spy.

"He assured me he is in a different line of work now."

During his long career the commissioner has handled cases involving moonshiners, dope rings, fraud artists, killers, thieves and smugglers of every description. He is the last serving member of the force who enlisted before it took on its present name in March, 1920.

His rookie assignment with the North - West Mounted was sweeping Regina streets for the visit of the Prince of Wales, later Edward VIII. But from street - cleaning he moved quickly up to criminal investigations and tricky undercover work.

He left the force in 1923 to get married—at that time no Mountie could marry until he had seven years of service. He returned to the RCMP in 1932 and reached commissioned rank in six years. During the interval he headed investigation work of the Montreal Better Business Bureau.

NEVER FIRED SHOT

Shortly after he became the No. 1 Mountie in 1960 the RCMP marriage regulations were eased to two years' service. The commissioner felt the force was losing too many good men because of the former rule, which by then had been cut to five years.

Commissioner Harvison takes pride in the fact that he never fired a shot at anyone in all his years of police work, though he once came close.

That was during a narcotics raid in Montreal when he faced an armed suspect in a narrow hallway. The man cut loose with a shotgun blast that splattered the wall and ceiling but, miraculously, missed the policeman.

"I would have shot him then and at that range I couldn't have missed. Trouble was, I didn't have a gun." The Mountie had been out with his wife when he got a call to join the raiding force and didn't have time to collect a weapon.

Commissioner Harvison was due to retire last April after completing 35 years with the force. But he stayed on at the request of the government. Recently he requested permission to retire Oct. 31 in order to open up a series of promotions in the upper ranks of the RCMP and this was granted.

MAY LECTURE

His only immediate plans are for "three months of loafing—although my wife says I won't last three weeks at it." An avid fly fisherman, he hopes to catch up on the fishing trips he had to miss because of his demanding schedule.

The commissioner also is considering an offer for an extensive lecture tour and two publishers have asked him to write a book about his RCMP experiences.

He is succeeded in the $20,000-a-year post by Deputy Commissioner George B. McClellan, the RCMP's No. 2 man since 1960.

Commissioner Harvison has left many marks on the RCMP, which has grown to a force of 8,300 from 6,500 since he took charge.

One of the least known concerns the massive buffalo head that by tradition hangs on the wall behind the commissioner's desk. When the lanky, six-foot-four commissioner moved in, the mounting had to be raised a foot.

"Whenever I stood up, the darn whiskers tickled the top of my head."

Chinese Named Governor of New University

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Chinatown businessman with a background of public service has been appointed a governor of the new Simon Fraser University, the first Chinese to hold such a post in Canada.

George D. Wong, assistant manager of a Bank of Nova Scotia branch serving Vancouver's Chinese district, will help direct the policies of the new school during its birth and formative years. It is expected to open in 1965 in neighboring Burnaby.

Mr. Wong was born in Canton and came to Canada from China at an early age. He studied economics at McGill University and after graduation in 1942 served first as assistant director rationing on the Wartime Prices Board, then at naval headquarters as a desk-bound sailor.

A banker for 17 years, Mr Wong also has been active in community service. He formed the first Chinese Lions Club here in 1954 and was elected to the international board of directors of the club at a 1962 convention in Nice.

Mr. Wong has a firsthand interest in youth as father of three daughters and a son. One daughter, Donna, 20, is a television actress with a featured role in the series Littlest Hobo.

His appointment to the university he sees typically as "a challenge and an opportunity to do something constructive for the community."

Writer Calls Diefenbaker A Self-Charmed Politician Who Floundered Terribly

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker is a self-charmed politician who floundered because he couldn't help believing his own legend, Peter C. Newman, an Ottawa correspondent for Maclean's Magazine, writes in his new book, Renegade in Power: The Diefenbaker Years (McClelland and Stewart).

It is a journalist's chronicle of the rise and fall of the Conservative leader and his seven years as prime minister, based on 100 interviews with the principal characters, "catching history on the run."

"No other Canadian politician in this century could claim the emotional conquest of a generation, yet no prime minister ever disillusioned his disciples more", Mr. Newman writes.

"John Diefenbaker had a large, abiding love for his country. He gave prodigious energy to his office and tried hard to bring the federal administration into a more meaningful relationship with the average citizen.

"Yet he only rarely had the courage to follow his privately-held convictions. The right instincts were in him, but throughout his stormy stewardship, they languished in the cupboard of his soul.

GAVE LEADERSHIP CULT

"He gave the people a leadership cult, without leadership."

Mr. Newman says that when Mr. Diefenbaker was swept into power in 1957 and 1958 he stirred a feeling of trust among the voters with a sense of mission of a Winston Churchill or a Franklin Roosevelt, but "something went terribly wrong."

He acted as a spiritual leader at a time of growing national self - doubt, John Diefenbaker turned out to be not a spiritual leader at all, but a remarkable power—a renegade both to his cause and to the greater aspirations of the nation he was meant to be governing.

"He interpreted the people's splendid acclaim of him as adequate proof of his greatness and became intoxicated with the authority of his office."

Chapters of the 400-page book are devoted to the key people in Mr. Diefenbaker's prime ministerial career: E. Davie Fulton, Donald Fleming, Alvin Hamilton, George Hees, Allister Grosart, and his wife, Olive. To Mr. Hamilton, former agriculture minister, the author gives credit for rallying Mr. Diefenbaker and his supporters to beat back an attempt by cabinet malcontents to overthrow the leader on the eve of his year's general election.

CRITICIZES LIBERALS

While Mr. Newman is critical of Mr. Diefenbaker's performances in office, he is critical, too, of the previous Liberal government for assuming a "divine right to govern," and of the early years of Lester B. Pearson's leadership of the Liberals in opposition.

Mr. Newman praises the departmental work of such Diefenbaker colleagues as Howard Green in public works, George Nowlan in national revenue, William Hamilton in the post office, and Messrs. Hamilton, Fulton and Hees.

Main Objective in Labor War To Clean up SIU in Canada

- - Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Main objective for the federal government in the Great Lakes labor war is to "clean up" the Seafarers' International Union in Canada, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday night.

Two other targets are to keep ships moving, especially with record wheat-export traffic, and "to prevent these labor disputes poisoning our relations with the United States."

"This means—I wish to speak very frankly—full acceptance by the U.S. government and by the U.S. labor organizations of the action that the Canadian Parliament has taken to deal with a Canadian problem," Mr. Pearson told the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada.

It was his first address to a major party gathering since his minority government took office after the April 8 general election.

His remarks were contained in a text of his address issued to the press before delivery.

MOVED FAST

The new government chose to move quickly and "in moving quickly we inevitably fell into some mistakes, I acknowledge that frankly," Mr. Pearson said. "Naturally I wish we had not fallen on, but they were not irretrievable mistakes. On the contrary, we recognized them, have corrected them and have learned from them."

SUPPORT TRUSTEE

In cleaning up the SIU, the government would support the three-man federal trusteeship in every proper way. As for the U.S. ramifications, the problem remained a Canadian one essentially although the SIU of Canada was affiliated with the SIU of North America.

"If there is retaliatory action across the border designed to frustrate our trusteeship solution of it, by harassing and interfering with our ships in U.S. ports, a serious situation would develop on relations between the two countries."

But the U.S. government was aware of this and would do "what it can, I know, to prevent any such unhappy occurrence." The U.S. labor organizations, he hoped, would follow suit and they had an even more immediate responsibility.

to the chronicle, he writes:

"Although he had spent much of his life appealing to and trying to become one with the average Canadian, his years in office changed Diefenbaker. In the 1962 campaign, he was no longer a man of the people. He had become a man of power."

Indecision and mismanagement are repeatedly ascribed to the Diefenbaker government, and Mr. Newman says these became publicly revealed before the 1963 election in its failure to reach a sensible defence policy and in its own disintegration.

"There was, in the end, little logic or structure in his appeal to the last of a man trying to vindicate himself. A self-charmed politician, John Diefenbaker floundered because he couldn't help believing his own legend."

Castro Claims Seven Arrested On Spy Charges

Two Canadians Said Among Those Held

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Wednesday night his government has captured several agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, including two Canadian pilots, who were sent into Cuba on sabotage missions after Hurricane Flora.

He indicated they may face death sentences.

He said several prisoners from a CIA ship called the Rex would appear on television to tell their stories. He did not say when they would appear or give details of their capture but said the Rex was a 150-foot diesel craft flying the Nicaraguan flag and based in West Palm Beach, Fla.

In West Palm Beach, port manager Joel Wilcox said the Rex was tied up in the port of Fort Lauderdale.

In his three-hour radio-television speech, Castro accused the CIA of organizing workers, landing weapons and infiltrators in Cuba, hiring saboteurs and using postal packages to send dynamite and other explosives into Cuba.

JUSTIFIES REJECTIONS

"This was the kind of aid the United States sent to Cuba after the hurricane," he declared. "They thought they had their opportunity after the hurricane. This explains why Ambassador Cuba's rejections of the U.S. offer of aid."

The assistance was offered by the American Red Cross after Flora killed more than 1,000 Cubans and caused disastrous crop and property damage in eastern Cuba.

In Washington, the CIA declined to comment on Castro's charges.

Castro said the two Canadians identified as Ronald Patrick Lee and William David—were arrested in Havana Oct. 24 as they tried to smuggle bombs disguised as cases of explosives made inside foam rubber.

Castro said the pair had piloted a Canadian commercial plane into Havana on several occasions. He said their last trip aroused the suspicion of authorities when it was discovered they tried transporting mail from the United States.

DISPLAYS GRENADES

The prime minister showed his television audience hand-thrown grenades which he said were part of the Canadians' cargo.

"Canadian authorities have no responsibility in these acts," he declared. "They are Canadian citizens, recruited by the CIA."

Castro charged that the CIA of systematically raiding Cuba and linked the Oct. 21 strafing of

Drought Is Taking Toll Of Wildlife

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lower temperatures and lower water levels meant still lower spirits today for an estimated 30,000 farmers in desert-dry southwestern Ontario.

With November frost imminent there still was no hope of rain to ease the drought that has had increasingly severe effects deadline — October.

Sunshine was predicted for today. Long-range forecasts were pessimistic — little chance of any quantity of rain for two weeks.

Winter wheat crops were threatened by the encroachment of light morning frost.

Dairy cattle were not producing the normal milk output because watering had become a problem. The going rate for water in some parts of the drought areas was $7 to $9 for 1,000 gallons delivered.

Lincoln and Halton County dairy farmers are concerned for their cattle. "Milk production definitely has dropped," said Douglas Jamieson, Lincoln County's assistant agricultural representative. The same report was given by Halton officials.

HURTS WILDLIFE

In Kitchener, field naturalists said the mild weather that accompanied the drought through most of October may have been a disastrous effect on wildlife in southwestern Ontario this winter.

The naturalists said many insect-eating birds that had remained in the north because of continuing high temperatures were starving due to the lack of suitable food.

The drying up of ponds and small lakes has killed fish and made living a hazard for creatures such as frogs and salamanders that normally bury themselves in the mud.

Hunters are having their worst season in memory. In Waterloo County Wednesday, council approved cancellation of a proposed three-day deer hunting season in the district because of the dry conditions and dearth of farm water supplies in the event of fires.

Smoked Fish To Be Treated As Frozen Food

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Fisheries Institue has agreed to treat smoked fish from the Great Lakes as a frozen food as a result of recent botulism deaths traced to the product.

The government announced the institute's decision Wednesday night but noted that it does not alter its recommendation last week that all smoked fish products from the Great Lakes area now on grocery shelves or in homes be destroyed.

Tax Bill Approved By Govt.

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave approval in principle Wednesday to an income tax bill arising from the June 13 budget, but not before the government was subjected to another test of confidence.

The bill was given second reading on the fourth day of debate. A Conservative move to kill the measure was defeated 126 to 78, with the three spinster parties backing the Liberals.

Today the House will press on with clause-by-clause study of the bill and perhaps third (final) reading. Two other bills based on the explosive June budget were passed in the first part of the session, but the income tax measure has been waiting before the Commons since July.

Former finance minister George Nowlan repeated his earlier criticism that the tax proposals are anti - American, discriminatory and retrograde.

Finance Minister Gordon repeated his view that the bill will "encourage a more equitable trial' growth in economically-backward areas and give Canadians a bigger stake in their economy.

Spokesmen for the New Democratic, Creditiste and Social Credit parties repeated their arguments that the whole tax structure should be revamped.

Teacher Will Receive $54,200 For Moldy Gettysburg Stuff

WASHINGTON — A high school teacher has learned that the "mouldy stuff" he picked up at the Gettysburg battlefield last June is worth $54,200.

George C. Rapport, 46, was told by telephone that the collection of mutilated U.S. currency he turned in to the secret service in New York has a redemption value that the treasury sets at $54,200.

The Hungarian-born, N.Y. Rapports and their children, Eileen 17, and Jack, 13, visited the Gettysburg battlefield in Pennsylvania June 26 and 27.

As they concluded their tour of the American Civil War site, Rapport spotted a rotted bundle. He picked it up—"I had no idea what was inside" —and placed it in the trunk of the car.

Later, Rapport was to discover what was in the bundle. And he put it in the cellar of his home.

"I couldn't possibly spend any of it. It didn't look like currency. It was too moldy.

"About 10 days later, I didn't know what to do with it, so I reported it to the secret service in New York."

Meanwhile, according to W. T. Howell, deputy treasurer of the United States, this is what happened:

The mutilated currency was forwarded to Washington to see how much was redeemable. Howell checked with the national park service to see if it had any claim under law. He was told it did not.

Howell then notified the internal revenue service which is checking on whether it has a tax claim.

Howell said that once the revenue service is done Rapport will be getting his money.

Sign Truce, Then Squabble Before It Goes Into Effect

BAMAKO, Mali (AP) — The cease-fire in the Algerian-Moroccan desert war doesn't take effect until midnight Friday and already the two north African neighbors disagree about what they've agreed to.

Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella and King Hassan II of Morocco signed the agreement Wednesday night with Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Modibo Keita of Mali.

Based on a compromise formula drawn up by Selassie, it called for:

1. A cease-fire all along the Moroccan - Algerian border at midnight on the night of Nov. 1-2.

2. Withdrawal of Moroccan forces from territory claimed by Algeria.

3. Demilitarization of all evacuated territory with officers of Ethiopia and Mali supervising.

4. A commission to be set up by the foreign ministers of the Organization of African unity to determine the responsibility for the blood fighting in the Sahara, examine Morocco's territorial claim and make recommendations.

5. An immediate end to reach country's campaign of abuse against the other's leaders and political system.

6. Morocco and Algeria to seek all future disputes by negotiation.

Hassan and Ben Bella left for their capital, Haile Selassie flew to Switzerland. Then the agreements resumed.

The most to be evacuated by the Moroccans was not precisely defined in the agreement. Algerian officials said it included Hassi Beida and Tindjoub, the focal points of the recent fighting. The Moroccan

Profiteering in School Land Deals Reported

QUEBEC (CP) — Taxpayers have been victimized by local school board of greater Montreal have lost "many hundreds of thousands of dollars" through land purchases it conducted in a "negligent and careless manner," says a report commissioned by the Quebec government.

On one land sale to the board, the report said, $87,605 profit was shared by Edmund T. Asselin, Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace, and Frank Bernard, a Trois-Rivieres businessman.

It said John P. Rowat, board chairman and Union Nationale member of the Quebec legislature council, had provided Mr. Asselin with information about land the board might be interested in buying.

The report, prepared by Montreal lawyer Kenneth MacKay at the government's request, was criticized by Mr. Asselin, Mr. Rowat and the school board majority after it was made public Wednesday.

Mr. Rowat said there was nothing unusual about giving Mr. Asselin "the same information which I would have given to anybody, and which I had given publicly on numerous occasions."

In Ottawa, Mr. Asselin also said it was board policy to "inform members in their areas where it might be interested in acquire school sites," and added that the report contained a number of errors which might have been avoided if Mr. MacKay had sought "my testimony before making his report."

Three Cuban Ships Carry Military Arms to Algeria

ALGIERS (AP)—Three Cuban ships carrying heavy military equipment, including Soviet-built tanks, have unloaded arms in the last three days, authoritative sources said today.

There was a rumor, which they could not confirm, that 300 Cubans left the ships and were issued Algerian battle dress.

The informants said Cuba and Algeria arranged an arms deal "just before, or right at, the time fighting flared" along the disputed Algerian - Moroccan border and, as the battle continued, the shipments from Cuba were hastened.

Witnesses in the West Algerian seaport of Oran reported seeing Cuban ships unloading sugar during the day, and other things by night. At dusk, they said, the dock area was cordoned off and workers described as volunteers unloaded massive crates and boxes.

Some townspeople said they have seen men dressed in Algerian uniform who spoke Spanish instead of French or Arabic, the major languages of Algeria.

House Ends Session

TORONTO (CP) — Members of Ontario's 27th legislature breezed through their legislative work load with little fuss Wednesday, then ended their record special session with the prospect of more than two months' rest before meeting again.

The government of Premier John Robarts, skipping the traditional fall session, called the special session to deal with one matter—disbursement of Ontario's share of the federal government's $200,000,000 municipal loan fund.

That completed, Premier Robarts was expected to take the next two months to draw up his full legislative program, convening the legislature early in January for a lengthy winter and spring run.

Besides passing the government's Municipal Works Assistance Act, the House agreed to the reconstitution of select committees dealing with consumer credit charges and with municipal law generally.

The municipal loan measure sets up machinery for handling Ontario's $138,000,000 share of the federal government's municipal development and loan fund.

The federal fund is to be used by municipalities for job-creating projects above and beyond

Indian Guide With Wooden Arm Takes on 800-Pound Grizzly

CANIM LAKE, B.C. (CP)— A 50 - year - old Indian guide took on an 800-pound grizzly, matching a wooden arm and his strength against the bear's overwhelming power.

They fought for minutes while two hunters shot again and again into the bear's hide and literally blew the animal off the guide.

It happened Friday near this community 225 miles north of Vancouver, and the story was told Tuesday by the doctor who closed Eddy Dixon's wounds with 40 stitches.

"He was very lucky to come through it—more than anyone," said Dr. Peter Madge. He said Dixon, who lost his left arm in a sawmill accident, was with two American hunters.

"Dixon and one of the hunters both put shots into the bear," said Dr. Madge. "The bear chased one hunter down the hill. Then it started to chase the other hunter. But he was an old fellow and Dixon, fearing the man couldn't outrun the bear, did quite a courageous thing. He waved his gun to attract the bear to him.

GRABBED RIFLE

"The bear came toward Dixon. He grabbed his rifle and just split it in two like that. Then he struck Dixon with his paw, sending him to the ground.

"I suppose the bear . . . broke the rifle so as not to get shot again. Dixon got seven cuts to his scalp and right arm. While the bear was over him, the American hunters kept pumping bullets into the grizzly. He was huge. About 800 pounds they said. After it was over they counted 13 shells."

Observers were able only to determine Tuesday that the hunters were from Las Vegas, Nev., and that their first names were Cleo and George. They were carrying .300 magnum rifles.

The shots that finally brought the bear off Dixon struck the grizzly in the neck and between the eyes.

Union Leader Leaves, Wants to See Minister

TRENTON—The strike is on at Trenton Memorial Hospital and it "could go on 'til hell freezes over," according to Albert G. Hearn, vice-president of the striking Building Service Employees International Union.

In Trenton last night and this morning, Mr. Hearn left before noon to ask for talks with the provincial minister of labor, Hon. H. L. Rowntree, whose broken promise, he said, precipitated the strike, which started at 6 a.m. Mr. Rowntree had delayed previous plans for a strike with what the union considered a promise of pressure to introduce legislation for arbitration of the union's dispute with the Hospital Board.

A total of about 30 non-professional employees of the hospital are striking now, according to Mr. Hearn, and the total will be about fifty when the strike roll is complete. Strike pay will be provided, Mr. Hearn said, after about one week, but he did not say how much. Most of the striking employees are middle-aged women; many are their families' only breadwinners. A few union members are still at work.

The union sent a telegram, last night, to the hospital administrator, Mr. Hearn said, with an offer to meet at any time of the day or night. There was no reply to the telegram. No immediate settlement can be expected, Mr. Hearn said, because the hospital has hired enough non-union employees to hold out through the strike.

OPERATES AT HALF

Inside the hospital, administrator Miss Hazel Naudett told reporters the hospital could operate "as usual" despite the strike. Enough non-union employees were hired before the threatened strike of early October, she said, to operate the hospital in case of a walkout. Arrangements have been made, she said, to have supplies brought through the picket lines.

Only about 13 employees are left, Miss Naudett estimates, (a reporter counted 16 on the picket lines, and met more at strike headquarters), and they have already been replaced. She had received the telegram sent last night by the union, she said, but had not considered a strike her problem. Her business, she said, is the care of the approximately 110 patients now in the 150-bed hospital, and supervision of the total staff of about 200 is charged with the union, she said, were the province of Hospital Board chairman, S. G. Graham. Mr.

Dief Asks For Ideas For Reforms

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, declaring he has not changed his philosophy, appealed to voters generally Wednesday night to send him their ideas and suggestions for national reforms.

He said in a national television address that the Liberal government elected this spring took five years to put its party platform together and after six months in office its program is "almost in ruins."

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Liberals of weak and vacillating government, of permitting U.S. cabinet intervention in Canadian affairs, and of making false and scurrilous attacks on himself.

During the last six months, he said, it has been revealed that the previous Liberal government was to blame for many of the faults attributed to his Conservative administration.

Now, in opposition, the Conservative party was determined to stick to its basic principles but recognized that changing conditions required new and effective policies.

SPEAKS ON NETWORK

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke on the CBC TV network in the free-time political series, The Nation's Business. The speech was recorded before broadcast.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals promised great things in the election campaign, and in the last six months produced "a climate of anxiety and uneasiness."

"It has been a weird six months with the government making plans today and revising them or even abandoning them. The tigers of the Liberal opposition of last year have become paper cartoonists today."

The Conservative leader said his party lost the 1963 election by only narrowly—the 36 seats a shift of only three or four votes per poll would have returned Conservative candidates.

"We want your ideas. Wherever you go and whatever your age, I ask you to write and let me know your innermost ideas and hopes. Your idea may be one that will have in it new hope for the advancement of this nation and the welfare of its people."

The beaten body of Di Cicco was discovered in a lovers' lane area in Hamilton's east end.

It was hoped the car, reported stolen on Monday, would provide a major clue in the search for the killer. More than 100 persons have been questioned.

A Conservative motion to kill a tax bill implementing budget measures was defeated 126 to 78, only the Conservatives supporting it.

George Nowlan (PC—St. Digby - Annapolis - Kings) said the tax bill was discriminatory, anti - American and retrograde.

Lucien Plourde (Creditiste—Beauce) said the bill would out of order in moving that income tax laws be rewritten into simplicity.

Finance Minister Gordon agreed with the need to simplify tax laws for ordinary taxpayers but said it is difficult to achieve.

Jack Pickersh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) asked the government to investigate fares charged by TransAir between Regina and Calgary.

Jean Chrestien (L—St. Maurice-Lafleche) said more steps are needed to correct Canada's trade deficit with the United States.

Teacher Will Receive $54,200 For Moldy Gettysburg Stuff

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high school teacher has learned that the "moldy stuff" he picked up at the Gettysburg battlefield last June is worth $54,200.

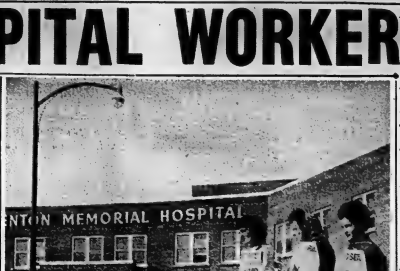
George C. Rapport, 46, was told by telephone that the cash-in-mutilated U.S. currency he turned in to the secret service in New-York has a redemption value in the treasury sets at $54,200.

The Massapequa Park, N.Y. Rapports and their children, Eileen 17, and Jack, 15, visited the Gettysburg battlefield in Pennsylvania June 36 and 27.

As they concluded their tour of the American Civil War site, Rapport spotted a rotted bundle. He picked it up—"I had no idea what was inside" —and placed it in the trunk of the car.

Later, Rapport was to discover what was in the bundle. And he put it in the cellar of his home.

"I couldn't possibly spend any of it. It didn't look like currency. It was too moldy.



"About 10 days later, I didn't know what to do with it, so I reported it to the secret service in New York."

Meanwhile, according to W. T. Howell, deputy treasurer of the United States, this is what happened:

The mutilated currency was forwarded to Washington to the auditing, accounting division. Howell checked with the auditing park service to see if it had any claim under law. He was told it did not.

Howell then notified the internal revenue service which is checking on whether it has a tax claim.

Howell said that once the revenue service is done Rapport will be getting his money.

ON STRIKE AT TRENTON MEMORIAL HOSPITAL, about fifty members of the Building Services Employees' International Union knew the hospital hired their replacements before the strike began. A union vice president said this morning the strike "could go on 'til hell freezes over."

Sign Truce, Then Squabble Before It Goes Into Effect

BAMAKO, Mali (AP) — The cease-fire in the Algerian-Moroccan desert war doesn't take effect until midnight Friday and already the two north African neighbors disagree about what they've agreed to.

Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella and King Hassan II of Morocco signed the agreement Wednesday night at with Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Modibo Keita of Mali.

Based on a compromise formula drawn up by Selassie, it called for:

1. A cease-fire all along the Moroccan - Algerian border at midnight on the night of Nov. 1-2.

2. Withdrawal of Moroccan forces from territory claimed by Algeria.

3. Demilitarization of all evacuated territory with officers of Ethiopia and Mali supervising.

4. A commission to be set up by the foreign ministers of the Organization of African unity to determine the responsibility for the recent fighting in the Sahara, examine Morocco's territorial claims and make recommendations.

5. An immediate end to reach country's campaign of abuse against the other's leaders and political system.

6. Morocco and Algeria to solve all future disputes by negotiation.

Hassan and Ben Bella left for their capital Haile Selassie flew to Switzerland. Then the agreements resumed.

The zone to be evacuated by the Moroccans was not precisely defined in the agreement. Algerian officials said it included Hassi Beida and Tindjoub, the focal points of the recent fighting. The Moroccans

Profiteering in School Land Deals Reported

QUEBEC (CP) — Taxpayers who support the Protestant school board of greater Montreal have lost "many hundreds of thousands of dollars" through land purchases it conducted in a "negligent and careless manner," says a report commissioned by the Quebec government.

On one land sale to the board, the report said, $87,695 profit was shared by Edmund T. Asselin, Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace, and Frank Sperland, a Trois-Rivieres businessman.

It said John P. Rowat, board chairman and Union Nationale member of the Quebec legislature, had provided Mr. Asselin with information about land the board might be interested in buying.

The report, prepared by Montreal lawyer Kenneth MacKay at the government's request, was criticized by Mr. Asselin, Mr. Rowat and the school board secretary after it was made public Wednesday.

Mr. Rowat said there was nothing unusual about giving Mr. Asselin "the same information which I would have given to anybody, and which I had given publicly on numerous occasions."

In Ottawa, Mr. Asselin also said it was board policy to "inform inquirers about areas where it might be interested to acquire school sites," and added that the report contained a number of errors which might have been avoided if Mr. MacKay had sought "my testimony before making his report."

House Ends Session

TORONTO (CP) — Members of Ontario's 27th legislature breezed through their legislative work load with little fuss Wednesday, then ended their record special session with the prospect of more than two months' rest before meeting again.

The government of Premier John Robarts, skipping the traditional fall session, called the special session to deal with only one matter—disbursement of Ontario's share of the federal government's $400,000,000 municipal loan fund.

That completed, Premier Robarts was expected to take the next two months to draw up his full legislative program, governing the legislature early in January for a lengthy winter and spring run.

Besides passing the government's Municipal Works Assistance Act, the House agreed to the reconstitution of select committees dealing with consumer credit charges and with municipal law generally.

The municipal loan measure sets up machinery for handling Ontario's $138,000,000 share of the federal government's municipal development and loan fund.

The federal fund is to be used by municipalities for job-creating projects above and beyond

Indian Guide With Wooden Arm Takes on 800-Pound Grizzly

CANIM LAKE, B.C. (CP)— A 50 - year - old Indian guide took on an 800-pound grizzly, matching a wooden arm and knife against the bear's overwhelming power.

They fought for minutes while two hunters shot again and again into the bear's hide and literally blew the animal off the mountain.

It happened Friday near this community 225 miles north of Vancouver, and the story was told Tuesday by the doctor who closed Eddy Dixon's wounds with 40 stitches.

"He was very lucky to come through it. He was very courageous," said Dr. Peter Mudge. He said Dixon, who lost his left arm in a sawmill accident, was with two American hunters.

"Dixon and one of the hunters both put shots into the bear," said Dr. Mudge. "The bear chased one hunter down the hill. Then it started to chase the other hunter. But he was an old fellow and Dixon, fearing the man couldn't outrun the bear, did quite a courageous thing. He ran over and gun to attract the bear to him.

GRABBED RIFLE

"The bear came toward Dixon. He grabbed his rifle and just split it in two like that. Then he struck Dixon with his paw, sending him to the ground.

"I suppose the bear broke the rifle so as not to get shot again. Dixon got seven cuts to his scalp and right arm. While the bear was over him, the American hunters kept pumping bullets into the grizzly. He was huge. About 800 pounds they said. After it was over they counted 13 shells."

The hunters were able only to determine Tuesday that the hunters were from Las Vegas, Nev., and that their first names were Cleo and George. They were carrying 300 magnum rifles.

The shots that finally brought the bear off Dixon struck the grizzly in the neck and between the eyes.

Union Leader Leaves, Wants to See Minister

TRENTON—The strike is on at Trenton Memorial Hospital and it "could go on 'til hell freezes over," according to Albert G. Hearn, vice-president of the striking Building Service Employees International Union.

In Trenton last night and this morning, Mr. Hearn left before noon to ask for talks with the provincial minister of labor, Hon. H. L. Rowntree, whose broken promise he said, precipitated the strike, which started at 6 a.m. Mr. Rowntree had delayed previous plans for a strike with what the union considered a promise of pressure to introduce legislation for arbitration of the union's dispute with the Hospital Board.

A total of about 30 non-professional employees of the hospital are striking now, according to Mr. Hearn, and the total will be about fifty when the strike roll is complete. Strike pay will be provided, Mr. Hearn said, although no one knows, but he did not say how much. Most of the striking employees are middle-aged women, some are their families' only breadwinners. A few union members are still at work.

The union sent a telegram, last night, to the hospital administrator, Mr. Durnin said, with an offer to meet at any time of the day or night. There was no reply to the telegram. No immediate settlement can be expected, Mr. Hearn said, because the hospital has hired enough non-union employees to hold out through the strike. STRATEGY AS USUAL

Inside the hospital, administrator Miss Hazel Naudeet told reporters the hospital could operate "as usual" despite the strike. Enough non-union employees were hired before the threatened strike of early October, she said, to operate the hospital in case of walk out. Arrangements have been made, she said, to have supplies brought through the picket lines.

Only about 13 employees are now, Miss Naudeet estimates, (a reporter counted 16 on the picket lines, and met them there at strike headquarters), and they have already been replaced, she had received the telegram last night by the union, she said, but didn't consider the strike her problem. Her business, she said, is the care of the approximately 110 patients now in the 150-bed hospital, and supervision of the total staff. She has been in touch with the union, she said, were the province of Hospital Board chairman, S. O. Graham. Mr.

Dief Asks For Ideas For Reforms

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, declaring he has not changed his philosophy, appealed to voters generally Wednesday night to send him their ideas and suggestions for national reforms.

He said in a national television address that the Liberal government elected this spring has five years to put its 1963 platform together and after six months in office its program is "almost in ruins."

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Liberals of weak and vacillating government, of permitting U.S. cabinet intervention in Canadian affairs, and of making false and extravagant attacks on himself.

During the last six months, he said, it has been revealed that the previous Liberal government was to blame for many of the faults attributed to his Conservative administration.

Now, in opposition, the Conservative party was determined to stick to basic principles that recognized that changed conditions required new and effective policies.

SPEAKS ON NETWORK

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke on the CBC TV network in the free-time political broadcast by Opposition's Business. The speech was recorded before broadcast.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals promised great things in the election campaign, and in the last six months produced "a climate of anxiety and uneasiness."

"It has been a weird six months with the government making plans today and revising them or withdrawing them. The tigers of the Liberal opposition of last year have become paper carnivorous today."

The Conservative leader said his party lost the 1963 election only narrowly—in 26 seats a shift of only three or four votes per poll would have returned Conservative candidates.

"We want your ideas. Wherever you are and whatever your age, I ask you to write and let me know your innermost ideas and hopes. Your idea may be one that will have in it new hope for the advancement of this nation and the welfare of its people."

Not Same Type

HAMILTON (CP) — Blood that will not match the type of a stolen car was one of the many tips a staff of 31-year-old Nicholas Di Cicco, father of three who was found murdered Friday night.

The beaten body of Di Cicco was discovered in a lovers' lane area in Hamilton's east end.

It was hoped the car, reported stolen on Monday, would provide a major clue in the search for the killer. More than 100 persons have been questioned.

Three Cuban Ships Carry Military Arms to Algeria

ALGIERS (AP)—Three Cuban ships carrying heavy military equipment, including Soviet-built tanks, have unloaded in Algeria in the last three days, authoritative sources said today.

There was a rumor, which they could not confirm, that 300 cubans left the ships and were issued Algerian battle dress.

The informants said Cuba and Algeria arranged an arms deal "just before, or right at, the time fighting flared" along the disputed Algerian - Moroccan border and, as the battle continued, the shipments from Cuba were hastened.

Witnesses in the West Algerian town of Oran reported seeing Cuban ships unloading sugar during the day, and other things by night. At dusk, they said, the dock area was cordoned off and workers described as volunteers unloaded massive crates and boxes.

Some townspeople said they have seen men dressed in Algerian uniform who spoke Spanish instead of French or Arabic, the major languages of Algeria.

Youth Told to Stop Pestering His Uncle and Grandmother

What happens to a teenager whose relatives turn on him and refuse him a home because of his behavior?

Magistrate T. Y. Wills pondered the problem as he placed 17-year-old William Robert Pike, on suspended sentence for a year and told him to stop pestering his uncle and grandmother.

Pike's mother died when he was a child and he was later abandoned by his father in Toronto. A grandmother gave him shelter, later taking him to live with her airforce son in Middleton Park.

Pike was brought into court on a vagrancy charge, laid after his uncle, Arthur Phelps and police finally decided on legal action. The charge was brought after Pike ignored warnings to stay away from the Phelps' home.

A REAL PROBLEM

"This is really a problem I've often wondered about," commented the magistrate. "There's no legal duty on anybody to support him after 16, so - where does he go?"

However, added the magistrate, "his actions as reported here are inexcusable."

OPP constable W. G. Willis listed Pike's actions among running up a $600 bill to his grandmother on a chain store charge account. On the spending spree, which spanned a couple of years, Pike "bought everything he could possibly buy," said the officer.

REFUSES TO CO-OPERATE

He described the youth' personal attitude as "totally indifferent to everything that goes on around him."

The "indifferent attitude" cost him a railroad job.

Salvation Army officer Bram Humphreys told the magistrate Pike had refused to co-operate with suggestions from him and that "work doesn't seem to appeal" to the youth.

Ordering Pike to stay away from the Phelps' home, the magistrate told him: "You have got to cease being a child and accept the fact that for reasons of their own—and some of them seem pretty good—they have decided they're under no legal duty to provide a home for you. And they're not going to do so."

Webb Queries P-M General On Appointment

OTTAWA — Rod Webb, M.P. for Hastings South, raised the matter of the dismissal of Jack Ireland as sub-postmaster in Belleville, during the question period in the House of Commons yesterday.

Addressing his questions to Postmaster General Azellus Denis, he first asked whether the Minister was aware that the sub-postmaster was being changed "for purely political reasons."

The Postmaster-General denied this.

Mr. Webb then asked whether the Minister was aware "the proposed new appointee is the secretary of the local Liberal Association and a close relative of the present Liberal member for Hastings South."

The Minister replied that he was not aware of this.

Rising on a question of privilege, Robert Temple, M.P. for Hastings South, declared "there is no nepotism in my family."

BIG TAX HAUL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States collected almost $106,000,000,000 in taxes in 1963. "This is the greatest amount ever collected by any country in history," said a spokesman for the Internal Revenue Service. For fiscal 1962, which ended June 30, U.S. tax collections were $6,500,000,000 higher than for 1962.

Scouting activities

The first annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of 3rd Belleville Cub and Scout organization took place October 21 in St. Michael's Junior School with Mrs. Gladys Barrett presiding. An encouraging number of mothers were present and a very spirited meeting followed. Mrs. Bernice Parnell, secretary gave the annual report, summing up an active year for the Auxiliary. Then the new slate of officers was presented for 1963-64. The officers' duly installed by Mr. Sid Charman, assistant District Commissioner and Scoutmaster Hopper are: president — Mrs. Bernice Farrell; secretary and publicity — Mrs. Betty Jones; treasurer — Mrs. Eleanor Black; sunshine convener — Mrs. Shirley Warren; telephone convener — Mrs. Theresa Denners; serving convener — Mrs. Eileen McCabe; social convener — Mrs. Sheila Wright; membership — Mrs. E. Douglas.

It was decided to donate a bake sale and card party on Nov. 19th. A past president's pin was presented to Mrs. Gladys Barrett for her fine work of the past two years.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Sheila Wright and her co-workers. Mrs. Mary Lynch, Cub Mistress and Scouts of 17th Belleville (Eastminster United Church) had a very successful Hallowe'en Party Oct. 26. Bottles, baskets and paper were collected in the area east of MacDonald Ave. and south of Pine Street.

Fire in some way got started around the back of the attic while running on the stairs with a fire extinguisher to fight the flames before the arrival of firemen. Mr. Brown fell and injured his back.

He is hampered by the old back injury but he doesn't hold that against city hall.

3-Way Fight For Mayoralty A Probability

The possibility of a three-way fight for the Mayor's chair in the December 2nd Belleville municipal election, is current rumor up and down Front Street.

The third possible entrant for the mayor's chair is one time alderman George Brown, 200 Victoria Ave., who early this year was Conservative MP for Belleville by the Ontario Hydro.

Today Mr. Brown admitted he was thinking of re-entering municipal politics but said he had not yet definitely made up his mind.

The two men already announced as in the fight for the position being left vacant by Mayor A. M. Haig are Aldermen Jack Ireland and Jack Ellis both of whom state they are definitely in the field

Mr. Ireland served two years on Belleville city council about 16 years ago and then was transferred to Toronto by Bell Telephone.

He was transferred back to Belleville last January.

"A number of people have asked me if I was running for mayor," Mr. Brown said today noting that apparently there was interest in his being elected long before he had stated it or had even thought himself of the matter.

While Mr. Brown was alderman back in the late 1940's he was instrumental in obtaining and saving the Belleville city hall from possible loss or serious damage by fire.

Fire in some way got started around the back of the attic while running on the stairs with a fire extinguisher to fight the flames before the arrival of firemen. Mr. Brown fell and injured his back.

He is hampered by the old back injury but he doesn't hold that against city hall.

Office Boy Given 3 Years For Bombings

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Schneider, 19 - year - old office boy was sentenced to three years in prison Wednesday for causing bodily harm through criminal negligence and placing explosives in Westmount mailboxes May 17.

A series of mailbox explosions in Westmount that day—during a three-month campaign of violence by the separatist Front de Libération Quebecois — resulted in serious injuries to Mrs. Maj. Walter Leja, 43, an army explosives expert.

Sgt.-Maj. Leja, maimed when one of the bombs blew up as he was opening a second it, is making a slow recovery in hospital.

Three other youths charged in connection with the wave of FLQ bombings and attempted bombings appeared in Montreal May 20 were released on condition of good behaviour by Mr. Justice Maurice Casgrain Wednesday, with the court reserving the right to impose sentence at the end of two years.

The three are Alain Gabriel, 20, and Alain Brouillard, 18, both students, and Andre Gerand, 22, a publishing house employee, all of whom had pleaded guilty earlier to public mischief.

Of the 18 persons charged as a result of FLQ activities, 13 have been convicted, two liberated, one is awaiting trial and two are awaiting on bench warrants after skipping bail.

Request Held In Abeyance

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—African nations requested Wednesday that South African major trading partners come up with concrete measures they will support in United Nations efforts to abolish peacefully South Africa's racial separation practices.

The request was held in abeyance as the UN's political and political committees suspended its lengthy general debate on South Africa's apartheid policy pending action by the Security Council.

It was seen as another move to put pressure on eight Nations and especially the United Kingdom and the United States, to take positive action toward forcing South Africa to halt its racial separation.

UNICEF DAY

OCTOBER 31st, 1963

WHEREAS it is well known that one of the most grave problems confronting the Governments of the World are the many children throughout many lands that have no means of care or sustenance.

AND WHEREAS the United Nations have constituted an agency known as The United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF).

AND WHERE UNICEF is organizing a children's crusade for children by children for financial assistance through its efforts throughout the world on October 31st, 1963.

THEREFORE, by the virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I hereby proclaim October 31st, 1963, as UNICEF DAY.

Deacon Brothers has been working six-day weeks since the end of September, and will continue the overtime through November, according to Fred Deacon. Reason is that Deacons are making all vinyella shirts for both the Deacon and Simpson's this year. No new employees have been hired to ease the rush. Fred said, because there are no trained needleworkers available and it takes two or three months to train them. By the time additional staff could be trained, he says, the rush will be over.

BILLY ASHTON

Rug news at Stephens-Adamson this week is that Billy Ashton has retired, after 34 years with the firm. Billy started in 1929, worked on S-A jobs around Canada and wound up as erection foreman. From now on, he plans to take life easy and do some work about his house and maybe start a few hobbies.

Also at S-A, sales manager Jim Young returned from Saarstrazia Monday. He went over last week, for a final look at the new S-A ore loader installed there. Says he didn't try for any more sales during the trip. Joe McCarey went over about mid-September, to teach the locals how to use their new equipment. He and his wife are coming back now — they left Tuesday night, are coming via Rotterdam. Expect them about the end of the week.

MAY SELL MORE

Meanwhile, the sales staff at S-A have their eyes on possible sales for two more loaders. The first one, in Brazil, is pretty well sold, once the customer finds a way to pay for it. That's the rub — and S-A considers the sale "possible, but not probable, according to Jim Young. Vancouver office manager John Hay, coming back from Isreal last week stopped in at Belleville to mention another possible sale. Seems someone would like to buy equipment

Curling Season Opens Nov. 9th Meeting Told

New and old members of the Quinte Curling Club gathered at the clubhouse on Wednesday to hear reports from committees that have been working all year and to be informed when ice will be available. The ice machine was started about ten days ago but it could make no impression on the sand and it was shut down. It was again started on Tuesday and it is possible ice will be available about November 9th.

On receiving of the 9th there will be a social evening to start the year's operation and mixed curling will be held the following day. The league curling for men is expected to commence on November 11th. Everett Black, president of the club, welcomed the members and attended a warmer welcome to the new curlers joining the club this season. The club has lost a lot of the original members — but the ranks have been filled with enthusiastic members and no doubt a splendid season will result.

Al McCallum, chairman of the games committee, gave a lengthy report on the making up of the rules and the method of scoring. He also reported on the new league that will be run where the skips pick their own rinks. This group will play on Wednesday nights.

There will be two draws at seven and nine each evening, and each rink with the highest points at the end of the season will be eligible for rinks and play for the club championship.

The distinct improvement in the club house was the lowering of the glass so that the whole rink can now be seen. Renovations were completed in the women's lounge which will be the office when built. A new coat of paint also adds more airiness to the building.

Trustees Meet Union Chief In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The three federal government trustees of five maritime unions met Wednesday with Leonard (Red) McLaughlin, executive vice-president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.).

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer of the British Columbia Supreme Court, chairman of the trustees said after the 30-minute meeting that no official statement would be made.

Judge Rene Lippe of Montreal and Charles Millard of Toronto, the other trustees, were also at the meeting.

Before a secret vote was taken, Mr. Hearn told the workers that the strike might go on for six months . . . or it could last six hours. Or, said Mr. Hearn, it might run into another Royal York situation where the strikers were out for 11 months. Mr. Hearn said that the international union would do everything in its power to back up the strikers in a financial sense, and that assistance would be sought from other unions, but refused to promise any set contribution towards strike pay.

The strike was called on the heels of an announcement in the Ontario legislature Tuesday by the Minister of Labor, the Hon. Leslie Rowntree that a committee would be set up to study the advisability and feasibility of the government setting up arbitration bodies to settle disputes between union members and hospital boards.

Mr. Rowntree appealed to the workers at Trenton hospital, to remain on their jobs until the reports of the committee was brought down.

EXPECTS NO SYMPATHY

Last night, Mr. Hearn warned the workers that they could expect very little sympathy from the government, and perhaps very little from the public, if they went out on strike in the face of Mr. Rowntree's appeal.

The general feeling at the meeting was that the government had had time enough to intervene and force negotiations between the hospital board and the union.

"It's time to call their bluff," said one union member.

As to the hospital board, Mr. Hearn said, in a prepared statement, "over the years, we, (the union at international level) have had a number of difficult situations in hospitals, but none has been as bad or as trying and certainly none has been as defiant as the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board."

Mr. Hearn also charged that the Ontario government had not kept faith, and had not produced a bill to force arbitration as promised on Sept. 30, when a strike, set for the next day, was called off by the Trenton workers.

"I think that we must also weigh the fact that your hospital board has adamantly defied every law of this province in regard to labor relations matters," Mr. Hearn said in his statement, "and we must sadly report that the Government of the Province of Ontario has allowed them to do it, and has refused to act against them."

WARNS OF HARDSHIPS

Nevertheless, Mr. Hearn urged the workers to make the decision to strike or not to strike an "unemotional one" He said that they must examine their own economic situation and consider that without full pay, utility bills and bills for water, food clothing etc.

"Nothing will drive you back quicker than economic pressure" he warned.

MORE

"With this employer, (the hospital board), you have a pretty clear indication that the employer will not take you back unless the strike is a complete success on the part of the union."

Several of the union members said that if they decided to forego a strike and wait for the government committee's report, they would be "the laughing stock of the hospital."

Many thought the strike should be called last night, when the hospital administration was not prepared.

Mr. Hearn pointed out that the union had said it would go out on strike the "day following" the adjournment of the Ontario legislation, if a bill to force arbitration of the issues between the union and the hospital board were not introduced

A temporary strike headquarters has been set up at the home of Mrs. Jane Mollenson, 34 Spring Street. Today the union executive will endeavour to rent an empty store or some other building where a permanent headquarters may be set up.

Mr. Hearn warned the workers that regular strike pay would be given only to the strikers who were willing to assume picket duty. He said that an immediate appeal would go out to all the unions in Ontario asking for financial assistance for the strike, but that he would be foolish to hazard a guess at how much assistance would be forthcoming.

Board of Education member, E. D. Topping, left, and Group Captain C. H. Thompson, Commanding Officer at No. 6 Repair Depot, have the fine points of a new piece of equipment in one of the shops at Trenton High School's new vocational wing, explained by C. A. Wells, technical director at the school.

Hire

Graham was "not in" to reporters this morning.

Mr. Hearn had accused Ontario Labor Minister Rowntree of a breach of faith after the dispute came up at a special session of the provincial legislature.

Mr. Hearn said in a telegram to the minister reliance on his word has placed the union leaders in an untrusted position in relation to union members.

SAYS PROMISE MADE

He said the earlier strike deadline was lifted on Mr. Rowntree's promise that he would introduce legislation for arbitration of the dispute.

Mr. Rowntree said during the legislature session Tuesday that the government intends to appoint a committee to report on the desirability of compulsory arbitration in labor - management disputes affecting public hospitals.

He appealed to the Trenton hospital employees to stay on the job while the inquiry is proceeding.

SEE NO HARDSHIP

The decision to go out on strike was made at a meeting in the Trenton Legion Hall last night by 21 of the 30 union members attending the meeting. The decision was an unemotional one. Workers agreed with their international vice-president Albert G. Hearn that the strike would work no hardship on the hospital administration or the patients, as the workers said that the administration had been bringing in outside help for weeks and it was to be presumed that these workers would take over the duties of the striking workers.

Before a secret vote was taken, Mr. Hearn told the workers that the strike might go on for six months . . . or it could last six hours. Or, said Mr. Hearn, it might run into another Royal York situation where the strikers were out for 11 months. Fireworks Plant Blasts Frighten Town in Ohio

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — Firemen kept a watchful eye today at a nearby fireworks factory at which a series of explosions and fires have taken one life and caused property damage estimated at more than $315,000.

All but one of the blasts and the fatal injury occurred at the Ohio Fireworks Company last Saturday night when a series of explosions and fires wiped out 32 small huts used to store fireworks.

But the latest, which came Wednesday night, could be heard miles away. While smaller than those earlier, it created the same fear and concern in this Ohio Valley area that last Saturday's blasts did when firemen were barely able to keep the flames away from a structure housing several tons of TNT.

Wednesday night's explosion occurred in a 20- by 40-foot building located between the company office and machine shop. A fire followed the blast, and units from five fire companies battled the blaze for about an hour before pronouncing it under control. No injuries were reported.

Committee to Investigate Children's Aid Allegation Trenton Children Neglecte

TRENTON — A three-man committee formed last night will investigate assertions by the Belleville and Trenton Children's Aid Society that neglect of children is common in Trenton and that town welfare directors A. C. Reed is not qualified to handle child welfare cases. The committee, Alfred Ling, Len Middleton and John Ware, will collect information from sources outside the town, then meet with town welfare officials.

The committee was formed at a meeting called by directors of the Children's Aid Society, who asked the town's people in a referendum the cost of a full time caseworker in the town. Total cost would be "about $8,000."

If the people of Trenton are not willing to assume this cost, said Children's Aid president George Wishart, the Society would apply for a charge of churches, to relieve it of its responsibilities in Trenton. The Society bases money on the service it does in Trenton, he said.

If the Children's Aid Society does withdraw from Trenton, this would leave the town without an official agency to handle adoptions, agreements and arrangements in divorce cases and provide shelter for neglected children, the Society warned.

Showdown Yet to Come

Al Tanner, vice-president of the SIU of North America, says that the SIU will continue to picket Canadian ships.

This means that the real showdown in the Great Lakes labor war has yet to come.

Here in Canada attention has been focused on the action of three government-appointed trustees in leaving Hal Banks, president of the Canadian SIU, in office. Banks has been talking as if the trustees had made a "deal" with him. The trustees deny this. Few Canadians will hesitate before deciding which story they should accept.

If no deal has been made—and, equally as important, if there has been no implied readiness to make a "deal" if Banks behaves in future—then it is a question of judgment as to when is the best time to oust Banks from office. In the nature of things, the trustees must exercise their own judgment on this matter and until and unless they are proven wrong by events, the public ought to give them the benefit of the doubt.

But this issue of retaining the services of Banks—for a while—pales into insignificance beside the question of what is to be done to prevent U.S. gangsters from ham-stringing our trade on the Great Lakes.

Canadian ships could refrain from docking at U.S. ports—but that would mean that we would be handing over to U.S. vessels all the Great Lakes trade between Canada and the U.S. That would be foolish, enough under any circumstances, but what makes it completely intolerable is that the SIU would, in effect, control most of these U.S. vessels.

The obvious answer would be to fight fire with fire—to refuse U.S. ships the right to use Canadian ports as long as U.S. ports were denied to Canadian ships. The obvious, though, is not always so simple. If this exclusion of U.S. ships were achieved through governmental action, the U.S. could rightly protest such a measure as an unfriendly action. The same results might be achieved if Canadian unions here refused to load or unload U.S. ships, but in the main the men discharging these functions belong to the same unions which are harassing Canadian ships in U.S. ports.

In any event, the stoppage of Lakes trade between the two countries might easily harm Canada much more than it would the U.S.

A slight chance of a solution of this problem might be granted us if other Canadian unions became sufficiently indignant to exert the utmost pressure on their colleagues south of the border, particularly on their parent unions.

—The likelihood of effective action by the Kennedy administration to prevent this harassment of our ships appears slight at present.

One thing, though, appears plain. Canada cannot afford to capitulate to the U.S. labor bosses. What is at stake is not just our Great Lakes shipping trade, but our sovereignty. That is worth any price we may have to pay—even if it means shutting down our lakes trade with the U.S. for the duration of the dispute.

What will likely happen is that picketing of Canadian ships in U.S. ports will draw little but verbal protests between now and the closing of navigation. It will be hoped that the "cooling-out" period which will be provided by the winter-enforced cessation of Great Lakes trade will serve to establish an uneasy truce. This hope, though, hardly appears to rest on a firm foundation.

Indeed, if there is any "cooling-out" its effects may be the reverse of desirable. The Canadian public's present impatience with the SIU is much more likely to cool than is the SIU opposition to the trusteeship over its Canadian branch.

The spring of 1964 may well provide the crucial test, not merely of the future of Canadian ships on the Great Lakes, but also of our right to call ourselves an independent nation.

I usually figure that if a patient tells me that her husband is just wonderful, I'm dealing with a neurotic woman, especially if I haven't asked him about her family life. It's a safe bet that the marriage will be on the rocks in a year or so. If a woman will admit to herself that she's married to a typically inconsiderate slob, the chances are she's normal.—Dr. Leonard L. Lovshin of Cleveland Clinic.

Frustrate a Frenchman, he will drink himself to death; an Irishman, he will die of angry hypertension; a Dane, he will shoot himself; an American, he will get drunk, shoot you, then establish a $1 million aid program for your relatives. Then he will die of an ulcer.—Dr. Stanley A. Budin of Dalhousie University.

Banks Could Have Starred In Old Gangster Movie

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — . . . notes off the reportorial cuff . . .

That cast of waterfront tough guy Harold Chamberlain Banks probably is Conservative Whip Hee and Grey Bruce MP Eric Winkler's acid one-sentence descriptive:

"Straight out of the cast of an old-time Edward G. Robinson gangster movie."

And the neatest 13-word nut-shelling of State Secretary, House Leader and Parliament Hill wheeler dealer Jack Pickering's unprecedented day in Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's wickedly accurate punch-line:

"The only man in the Commons who can do the twist sitting down."

MADISON AVENUE

Senator Allister Grosart simply can't break old habits.

The first of the political recruits from "Advertising Alley," and the pioneer on Parliament Hill in the fine public relations art of "packaging" election candidates he scribbles what he calls "campaign pap" when cloodning to kill time in the sleepy Senate.

Grosart was so sensationally successful as the publicity wizard who, as the Mad Avenue trade likes to phrase it, "wrapped and delivered" John Diefenbaker in the 1957 campaign that won the Conservatives those still breathlessly remembered 208 seats, that all the parties now have public relations "specialists."

So when Senator Allister Grosart sets his hand to doodling, the process, naturally, makes the Parliament Hill rounds rather than the wastebasket.

Some of his samples, whipped up, in all likelihood, while Groaning at the current traffic . . . Tough, strong, pops up too.

John George Diefe's the man for you . . .

Or try this:

Dief's your pleasure, double your fun.

Why not cast two votes instead of one, Joe? . . .

Or maybe this:

You'll wonder where the Socreds went.

And hope the Creditistes, too, get sent . . .

Or this:

Tory, the vote that refreshes.

Now it's Grit, for those who vote young . . .

And, finally, this:

Aren't you glad you vote Liberal?

Don't you wish all New Dems did?

NEWS ROOM ALUMNUS

Almost everybody knows that the Federal Government's "Man-Do-Nothing" Week chaired hectic days, Labor Minister Allan MacEachen is the son of a Cape Breton coal miner, a journalist, sociologist, confidante of Prime Minister Pearson, a powerful member of what is known as the "inner cabinet" and the only coal miner's son ever to get into that hot corner indeed under what has been some pretty brutally unsettling circumstances.

Trained for the job," his innumerable friends and admirers say with a wry grin, "by wondering just how high his mantle of esteem really are.

But that, apparently seemed to know or remember that Alan MacEachen picked up some of that steely-eyed reporting as a general assignment reporter, "Front Office Type," as they once called him in the press room floor at The Ottawa Journal.

It was 19 years ago when the then 23-year old reporter did a tour of duty picking up money to pay his way through St. Francis Xavier University.

He covered fires, police and city council, a fair touch then in the years before Mayor Charlotte Whitton started packing a gun — yes, that is right, packing a gun — around City Hall), and political speeches, including a campaign for former CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, a Liberal backbencher who since has become Minister of Labor in George McIlraith, and a globe-trotting diplomatic in External Affairs who became Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

For that, reporter-in-training Alan MacEachen drew a then quite financially respectable $28.50 weekly.

Since then, things, of course, have changed somewhat for him. He went to Harvard University, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the University of Chicago, Federal politics, and last April, the new Liberal Cabinet as the much better paid (at an annual $27,000) Minister of Labor.

But Alan MacEachen never regretted the "good hard months," as he remembers them "under the City Desk gun."

Letter to The Editor

Replies to Claims Of YPC Speaker

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

It was indeed with great amusement that I read an article under the heading of "Problems of Canada Today Have Increased Under Liberal Government, YPC told," in your edition of the present date.

Mr. O'Brien seems to have taken a rather strong stand on this issue. However, I have also noticed that he is in quicksand up to his knees and that he is sinking rapidly. More of this later.

Mr. O'Brien also seems to labor under some rather grave misconceptions.

Mr. Wilfrid Gordon is not a "late financial wizard" but rather a genius who proposed ideas that are simply beyond the comprehension of the masses. Most (not all) of the proposals were rejected. However, Mr. Gordon although himself to be stampeded than crushing a false image of himself and of his ideas. It should be noted that he had the courage to do in 60 days that which the Diefenbaker Government could not do in a year to do in nearly three years. Mr. Gordon brought down a budget, something which Conservatives had lived without for too long a time under Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. O'Brien states that "conservatism as a political philosophy is now resurgent throughout the Western world."

Firstly Mr. O'Brien neglects to say what the vague term "conservatism" really means. Is it the conservatism of the 16th century British aristocracy, or is it the conservatism of Abraham Lincoln, or is it the conservatism of Sir John A. Macdonald, or of Senator McCarthy, or of Senator Goldwater, or General de Gaulle. Certainly it is none of these. Few of us desire to see the political spectrum shift much more to the right. Therefore it not make us Conservatives (in the old sense) or even conservatives (in the U.S. sense) but rather Liberals but not radicals.

Secondly Mr. O'Brien says, "There is a resurgence of conservatism around the world." Is the United States not backing the Democrats more than ever? Is there yet in Gaulle not much trouble in France? How long will the "Tories" last in Britain—probably until the next election.

Even Liberal ideas not sweeping across Asia and Africa.

Does Mr. O'Brien live in the real world as I, or does he live in some ivory tower surrounded with his faction statements.

However to return to the more grave problem which confronts us as Canadians, the problem of bicculturalism in Canada.

Mr. O'Brien asserts that the problems of national unity have increased since the present Liberal Government. This of course is pure drivel — "talk for the sake of talk." The problems have been with us since the first settlers of French and English stock settled in this continent. Before the Quebec Act of 1774 the problems were informally recognized, but with the enactment of this bill and others, such as the Act of Union, 1840, and the British North America Act of 1867, the problems were given formal recognition.

If any one government ever increased the problem of national unity it was the Diefenbaker government. Here we have a government which received a minimum of support from Quebec and which indeed could not find an able French Canadian lieutenant within its ranks. Consequently as Quebec had ignored him, Mr. Diefenbaker chose to ignore Quebec. He often in fact played down a good deal of the French Canadian problem.

Then came the present government. Did it cause the problem? Did it add to the existing one? No, of course not. The government chose to publicize the fact. It overcame the apathy of English Canadians to such new constitutional bicultralism. In the "age of pedical expediency" the government even went so far as to appoint this problem by establishing a Royal Commission on Bicultralism.

Who is creating the problems of national unity? For the old adage "what you do not know will not hurt you" is not correct. The Liberal Government has not increased the problems of our national unity, but rather has brought them to the attention of an apathetic and passive population. The alienation of our French Canadian brothers would be a fearful wrong doing. Let us ensure that this does not take place.

Please Mr. O'Brien, say something worthwhile, or say nothing at all.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 21st, 1943.

Another popular employee of the Ontario Intelligencer, E. S. "Ted" Russell of Ottawa, has won his spurs with the Royal Canadian Air Force and is ready for the big adventure overseas.

"Ted" first came to the Ontario Intelligencer about seven years ago as an apprentice, later becoming a linotype operator. He left the newspaper three years ago to take a technical training course with the Dominion-Provincial War Emergency classes in Belleville, and later worked as a welder in a defence plant at Ottawa. Enlisting in the R.C.A.F. he trained as a pilot and then remustered to take the bombardier course.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Vander-voort of Coleman St. received a cable from their son East Vandervoort, RCNVR, announcing his safe arrival overseas.

Stanley Morton, son of Mrs. Morton and the late Percy E. Morton, Bridge St. E., who recently joined the RCAF, has been posted to Edmonton Manning Pool.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rennson of Windsor are holidaying in the city visiting friends and relatives.

Dr. and Mrs. F. J. R. Forster of Stratford, have returned home after spending a few days with Dr. Forster's sister, Mrs. Geo. F. Stewart and Mr. Stewart, Highland Ave.

30 YEARS AGO

October 21st, 1913.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Reid will leave by motor car tomorrow for Florida where they will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Carmichael have returned from Toronto where they spent several days.

Mr. Gavin Wallbridge of Madoc, was a visitor in the city today.

The Central Relief office here is making an appeal for old stoves of any type which may be used by the city's needy during the winter. The advent of colder weather some few days ago, several families have fled into the office for stoves and it is particularly hard on young children.

Miss Margaret Abbott of Forin St. has returned to the city after spending a vacation with friends in Toronto, London and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. James Forpyce of Detroit, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. George Forpyce of Toronto spent the weekend here with friends.

Strictly Personal

Women Like Playing Varied Roles

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: A man is always the same man and, on the whole, wants only to be himself, with a little or a few improvements; but a woman would like to be a dozen different women, as part of every attractive woman she sees; and therefore her insatiable need for more and more clothes can be understood not as the trite joke that it usually is (however temporarily) her deep desire to assume every aspect of the Eternal Feminine.

What many employers fail to understand is that a subordinate who never finds fault in his superior is either a fool or a hypocrite; if a fool, he is useless; if a hypocrite, he is dangerous.

Some orators are so unremedyingly solemn for fear that if they encourage the audience to enjoy a smile at the right place, they may finally be unable to prevent the audience from laughing at them, at the wrong place.

Speaking of humor, there is a sad and sardonic quality about Old World wit that younger (and luckier) Americans should have not yet grown up to — like that marvelous Polish proverb I ran across recently: "If only God could hire other people to die for them, the people could make a wonderful living."

Nothing in the world is easier than to be radical when you have little to lose, or conservative when you have a great deal to lose; we should pay careful attention only to those who are reasonably sure that the personal situation is not the determining factor.

The basic frustration of the statesman and politician in the atomic age can hardly be comprehended by those standing on the outside; for the statesman has lost his ultimate tool, the threat of war (which now becomes simply the process of mutual suicide), and his whole traditional sense of values is compelled to change — thus, the vacillations of modern governments are not a sign of weakness, but of quite rational fear.

All seeming "victories" over Nature are terrible traps for humankind; Nature returns in more subtle or potent form and takes its revenge — insecticides produce a stronger breed of insects.

It is fatuous sentimentality to think that we can live up to like one another more; all we have a right to ask is that they act similar to those who live by particularly like; and unless civilization can learn that kindness is more power than liking is not, nothing but catastrophe awaits us.

To Your Good Health

Cataracts Can Be Removed If They Interfere Grossly

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am writing this for my husband. He has a cataract on his right eye. He was examined three years ago and it was not ready for an operation then.

Doctors are quite expensive here. He can't afford many office calls as he is on a pension, but we would like some information.

He has flashing rings of light around his eye at night when the lights are turned off for a few minutes. No pain but a tired feeling and a touch of soreness.

Now all he can see through the eye is light. He can't distinguish objects but can detect what seems to be a brown spot that moves as he turns his eye. Is this normal for a cataract when it is ready for surgery. — Mrs. J. W.

Your doctor wouldn't thank me for trying, at this distance, to decide whether your husband is ready for surgery. You've written a good description, but no physician would try to do that basis.

Since your husband can only see light, I would say that he is almost certainly ready for attention — meaning, probably, surgery. Whether anything else is wrong with his eyes would require guesswork on my part.

And that's really all I can say, medically. Cataracts can be removed when they interfere enough to require removal — sooner for, say, an engraver, and later for someone who doesn't need his eyesight for close work.

But concerns me is the fact that your husband should have seen his doctor occasionally, and didn't. He's not a mechanic, so it doesn't want to waste his money. We can all understand that. Even doctors!

I agree that medical care costs money. Any skilled service does. Doctors are "quite expensive." So are TV sets, and butter, and clothes, and everything in life. And I concede, sadly, that our economy has gone through such gyrations that the pension is a fixed pension is in a squeeze. He does not have any unusual raises, and is forced to get along as best he can even though the price of everything goes up.

I, like everybody else, wish everybody could invest an economic income of $10,000 a year, plus pay for as much new as it bought in the beginning.

But I'm not God. I'm a doctor. I'm a man who has to live in this world as it is, and I'm not going to waste my time and patience on people who don't care enough about their own health to see a doctor when they should.

Dear Dr. Molner: What vitamin is in milk? — Mrs. R. S.

The chief one is Vitamin A — about the same amount as in cod liver oil. Milk also is rich in antiviral value. Goat's milk is given to infants who are allergic to cow's milk.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer the pain and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 196, Dundrum, Md., enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of handling.

Fair Board, Wives and Guests Close Good Year with Banquet

Belleville Fair, already comfortably ensconced as a first class agricultural showcase, is looking to industry as a complementary exhibit.

"It is now our hope that we can increase industrial representation at the fair," board president Bob Phillips told the organization's banquet at the Kiwanis Centre last night. "We feel we have just as good a fair as you can get agriculturally."

But, he added, the board in some way would like to increase the emphasis on industry.

His remarks were actually contained in an introductory to Alderman Ben Corke, representing city council and also president of the Belleville Chamber.

Mr. Phillips said the board should seek the help of the Chamber in increasing the industrial contribution to the big annual Quinte showpiece.

The president's words were foreshadowed earlier in the year by remarks from officials during the four-day August fair. Big industry was due a bigger place in the ever-growing ranks of exhibitors.

Highlight of the evening was presentation of a plaque from the provincial government recognizing the work of Carl Thompson to agricultural exhibitions generally.

Immediate past-president of the board, Mr. Thompson has been a member for some 18 years.

It was the biggest turnout on record for the annual event — more than 130 members, directors and special guests were present.

Among the veteran life directors were Elmer Sandercock MLA, who told the members: "I don't know of any (local) organization where men will take so much time out to work in its interests as this fair."

Trade Minister Says Issues Well Handled

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp Wednesday night said the government's handling of the longshoremen's strike and the SIU walkout was the Liberal administration's "finest hour since taking office."

Addressing a $50-a-plate fund raising dinner here for the provincial Liberal party, Mr. Sharp said if waterfront peace has been restored "it is peace with honor. At no stage did the government compromise with evil."

He said Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway labor troubles "called for the utmost in patience and forbearance and courage if they were not to have serious consequences upon relations with the Canadian trade union movement and with the United States for years to come."

Canadian - American relations were better than they had been for years. There was no anti-Americanism in Ottawa now.

WILL HAVE FLAG

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will have a national flag before the world's fair is held in Montreal in 1967, the centenary of Confederation, Prime Minister Pearson assured the Commons Wednesday.

Y Activities

The Belleville YMCA was a hive of activity on Wednesday night as members of the So-Ed club took charge of the program.

During the evening members attended any one of four different courses, Jim Ketcheson presented a film and discussion on "Etiquette" that was most interesting. Two movie films in color were part of a presentation given by Mr. E. Taylor on "Driving Instruction" that was also very interesting. Classes in ballroom dancing and a karate group were the other two choices. Following the educational sessions the group then partook of refreshments and dancing.

The So-Ed club presents a "Harvest Ball" for young adults at Club Canara on Friday, November 1st. Dress is to be semi-formal and everyone is welcome.

Next Wednesday night, Mr. Arthur Duncan of the Bata Shoe Company will speak to the members on "Honor". The "Quality of Life" will be the subject of a presentation by Mr. E. H. Buckley of B.C.I. and W.S. on the same evening.

The So-Ed is a social and educational program designed mainly for young adults. The purpose of the movement is to create an opportunity to make new friends and share their interests and ideas.

$35,470 Total United Appeal End of October

A further distribution of funds from last year's campaign, equal to 8½ % of the participating agencies' allotment, was approved by the United Appeal executives at their regular monthly meeting last Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. This adds approximately $7,213. to the amount of $51,767.65 already distributed this year and brings the total disbursed for the current year's operations to 69¾ % of the agencies' allocations. It is anticipated that when all outstanding pledges from the 1963 campaign are paid up, a further payment will be made.

Mr. N. B. Keith, this year's Campaign Chairman, requested that returns, while still behind schedule, are showing some improvement in the reporting by the many volunteer canvassers involved, with the total amount reported at the close of October 28th being $35,470.78. A few returns remain to be received. Saturday night, from the Residential canvass carried out Sunday, all of last week, should be added to some $1,200. Mr. Keith also paid high tribute to the response given by the many firms contacted through the National Corporations division, who so far have contributed $10,700. in total against a divisional target of $14,000. This division, he said, should be well appreciated by the Belleville community.

On behalf of the Publicity Committee, Mr. G. A. Wishart, thanked nearly all prize winning awards for the Art Contest that now been presented to the various student winners.

The Telephone Contest involving nearly 800 calls through out the Belleville district produced four winners, who received their turkey awards in time for their Thanksgiving dinners.

Cleo. B. Colling New Chairman Of Authority

Cleo B. Colling, Front Street druggist was officially named chairman of the Belleville Parking Authority at their monthly meeting held early this week.

At the request of merchants and businessmen from the Upper Front Street district, weekly parking permits will be sold for use on the off-street parking lot across from the McCarthy Theatre building. Parking privileges will cost $2.50 by the week.

The riverbank end of the parking lot will be reserved for the weekly customers.

Very Precise

BOSTON (AP) — William Dailey is very precise about leaving his house at 7:10 a.m. every weekday. He's extremely careful he doesn't miss the 7:25 a.m. commuter train from Bedford, Mass., to Boston.

At 9:30 he begins his day as general plant personnel supervisor for the New England Telephone Company.

Dailey has less than two months to go to complete a working career of 40 years with a remarkable attendance record.

The 56-year-old Dailey not only has never missed a day of work; he's never even missed an hour.

In 1913, he recalls, he started early and walked more than seven miles through a blizzard that had piled snow as high as his hips, but he got to work on time.

Dailey credits his wife and three children for his attendance record.

He says his wife keeps him in top health by rejecting any out-of-package meals in favor of old-fashioned dinners which she starts in mid-afternoon.

And the three children—now grown and married—they all were born on their father's day off.

Magistrate R. G. Pearse adjourned the case until Nov. 26.

OTTAWA — A contract estimated at $1,080,627, for construction of a conventional lock to replace the marine railway at Bewer Lock, on the Trent Canal system, has been awarded to McNamara Construction (Eastern) Limited, Toronto, Transport Minister George J. McIlraith has announced.

The new lock will replace the marine railway that up to now has handled boat traffic on the Trent Canal system at Bewer, bound for, Georgian Bay, Its construction, already started, is expected to be under way by spring. Its department says the new lock will permit the passage of vessels of the present maximum size, 142 feet long and 33 feet wide, similar in these dimensions to that at Fenelon Falls. It will have a lift of 46 and a half feet. The lock is being built in approximately the same location as that chosen for a lock started there ago, and abandoned. Its construction comes in the wake of lengthy engineering and economic studies carried out by Transport Department, to meet the foreseeable requirements of the Trent system. It is now one of the high-density boating areas in Canada.

Design of the lock was by the Design Division of the Department of Transport Marine Services. The structure will have electrically operated steel gates with "guillotine" type control locks located in a control tower to be constructed on the north side of the lock.

There will be two sets of secondary gates at the upstream end as a safety measure, due to the high "head" of water.

A de-watering gate will be below the downstream gate and will permit lowering sides and bottom for periodic inspection necessary maintenance or alterations.

South African Indictments Are Quashed

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters) — Transvaal Judge Quartus de Wet today ordered the quashing of all indictments against all those accused in the current sabotage trial.

Seven defendants were originally accused of plotting the overthrow of Premier Hendrick Verwoerd's Nationalist government by planning an armed revolution, guerrilla warfare and an armed invasion of the country. All had faced the death penalty.

It was announced earlier when the hearing resumed today that all charges against Bob Alexander Hepple, one of the accused, had been withdrawn. This left 10 accused.

Shortly afterwards, the judge made the dramatic announcement after considering the application, submitted Tuesday by defence lawyer A. Fisher, asking for the quashing of indictments.

their normal capital works. Two-thirds of the cost of such projects is provided by loans from the central treasury at 3% low-normal interest rates.

Although the grant is provided by the federal government the Ontario government will control the disbursement through the Ontario Municipal Board and the municipal affairs department.

Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner said after the session he expects some municipal projects to be approved within the next 10 days.

In the legislature Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) and Vernon Singer (L — Toronto Downsview) had expressed the fear that there would be too much delay in administering the new fund to make it useful in producing jobs this winter.

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, made an attempt to include in the bill authorization for the Ontario government to loan municipalities the one-third of the cost of their special projects not provided by the federal fund.

OUT OF ORDER

But he was ruled out of order, the chairman, Speaker Fred Edwards (PC — Perth), Mr. Spooner had objected because he said the fund is for combat unemployment, and this was a responsibility of the federal government.

Reconstitution of the committee on municipal law was criticized by Mr. Singer and Mr. MacDonald, both of whom said a committee made up of politicians was not the way to revise the many acts related to municipalities.

Revising municipal acts was essentially a technical matter that should be left to the experts, not politicians, they suggested.

Mr. Singer said the committee has been meeting for two years and has made two reports, but none of its recommendations has been acted upon. Premier Robarts answered that he expects the committee to complete its work this year.

Mr. MacDonald said the committee might do better to study the idea of creating larger units of government out of the many small municipalities.

The Algerians and Tunisians had the right to administer the demilitarized zone. The Moroccans said they did not.

lic, Municipal Affairs Minister Pierre Laporte said no legal action is planned "because there is no proof to the effect that what was done was illegal."

The investigation covered 49 land purchases made by the board between 1953 and 1962 and found that 40 of them appeared to be regular.

But in the remaining nine cases, the report said, either the price was too high, procedures were questionable, sites were unsatisfactory or there was "evidence of negligence and irregularity."

MENTIONS SALES

The report also referred to sales to the board by Michael Hornstein, Montreal real estate man and owner of 52 companies. The board had paid Mr. Hornstein $88,382 for land in St. Leonard — about double its value.

In another case, Mr. Hornstein's firm had bought land in 1949 for 52 cents a square foot and sold it to the board the following day for $1.40. The board had subsequently found the site unsuitable, and still was trying to dispose of it at cost.

The school board statement said some of the blame should fall on the Quebec superintendent of education and the Quebec municipal commission, both of whom had approved all the board's land deals.

Crisp-Talking Adolphe Menjou Of Films Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Adolphe Menjou, the dapper, crisp-talking actor whose career spanned more than half a century in films, died Tuesday. He was 73.

He had been suffering from jaundice for some time. Death came at his home in Beverly Hills. With him were his third wife, the former Verree Teasdale, and his son, Peter, 27.

Menjou was one of Hollywood's great stylists. Though born and educated in the United States, he used his foreign-sounding name to advantage in the early days of silent films. With trim moustache, slicked hair and continental tailoring, he became the epitome of the European gentleman on the screen.

Though type-cast to a marked degree, it never seemed to hurt him. Possibly it was because he could portray—with equal force —the irascible tycoon, the urbane wastrel or the warm-hearted uncle or father.

TURNS TO SOUND

He deftly managed the transition to sound. Audiences were surprised that he spoke with no accent. His manner of speech was American-perfect, though acclipped as his moustache. He delivered lines—and spoke in private life — at breakneck speed.

One of his earliest talking films was The Front Page, in which he played the garrulous managing editor.

Menjou was proud of being what he regarded as a "thinking man." He read up to eight books a week and was fluent in five languages.

Menjou was a freelancer in an era when studio affiliation was the accepted practice. But his availability paid off and he piled up a fortune as the film credits mounted.

By 1950 he had appeared in more than 200 movies.

Menjou was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., the son of a well-to-do hotel proprietor.

He became interested in theatrical work at Cornell University and joined the McLaughlin stock company in Cleveland, Ohio, after graduation. The same year — 1913 — he did his first motion picture work with the old Vitagraph Company in New York City.

Menjou had made few films in recent years, a reflection of his political views of the current product. But he found time for considerable television work when that medium had firmly established itself.

Philby's Wife Joins Hubby In Moscow

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The American wife of Harold (Kim) Philby—known as the "third man" because of his role in a British spy scandal — was reported today to have joined him in Russia.

Mrs. Eleanor Philby was believed to be living in an official dacha (country house) just outside Moscow with her husband.

He has been described as the "third man" who tipped off defecting foreign office officials that Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean 12 years ago just as British security officials were about to pounce on them.

Western observers said a woman answering Mrs. Philby's description got off a Soviet airliner here Sept. 26.

In London, a foreign office spokesman said that 49-year-old Mrs. Philby had left Britain on that date. The spokesman said: "She is an American citizen and free to go anywhere she likes."

Philby, who has been granted Soviet citizenship, was reported seen several weeks ago driving in a Soviet official chauffeur-driven car here.

Philby, 51, was a former foreign office official and correspondent for the London newspapers The Observer and The Economist in the Middle East.

He was a university friend of Burgess, who died here last summer, and was said to have had Communist associates at Cambridge.

Douglas-Home Rise to Top Good News for Kennedy Plan

By JOSEPH ALSOP
Chief Far East Press Staff Writer

Sir Alec Douglas-Home's rise to the British prime ministership is seen on the whole to be good news for President Kennedy's plan for a mixed-manned NATO fleet with nuclear capability.

The project for a Polaris missile-armed surface fleet has at best received a cool reception in Britain. But the new premier, in his previous role as foreign secretary, is believed to have indicated on a contingent basis in the face of cabinet opposition.

Some sources say Douglas-Home is more disposed toward the scheme than his predecessor, Harold Macmillan, and certainly more than Defence Secretary Peter Thorneycroft.

But there is close touch with the situation now been considered that not too much importance should be attached to that view.

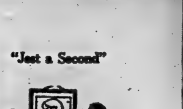
Traditionally, they emphasize, the role of the foreign minister is to keep the door open in negotiations with other countries—particularly NATO allies.

NO COMMITMENT

Douglas - Home, as foreign secretary, carried Britain into talk without commitment—with the United States, West Germany, Italy and Greece. But even before the Cuba crisis, now taking place, do not represent a British decision to take part in the multilateral NATO fleet.

There are conflicting reports in Britain as to the urgency of the need for a decision. Some observers have said Kennedy is unlikely to press for a decision with a U.S. presidential election in the offing.

It is thought in London that the Soviet Union's latest blast against the force may have been timed to coincide with Douglas-Home taking power.



An official Soviet statement Oct. 26 implied that the West by proceeding with the mixed-manned project might somehow damage the spirit, if not the letter, of the limited East-West nuclear test ban treaty, for which the British government has taken credit.

FEARS GERMANY

Russia raised again its fears of West Germany getting its hands on nuclear weapons "in whatever form" and said it would have to consider "the need to secure the safety of the Soviet Union and its allies" if the NATO force were established.

This was seen as a threat by Russia to set up some kind of a comparable force of its own, with the Warsaw pact countries — a threat that did not unduly impress British spokesmen.

It was noted that the United States plans to keep ultimate control of the Polaris missiles in the contemplated NATO fleet. Russia, if it did establish such a force, was unlikely to relinquish nuclear control of its satellites. Thus the strategic balance would remain unchanged.

Red Guerillas Capture Yanks

SAIGON (AP) — Communist guerillas smashed an experienced South Vietnamese force Tuesday and probably captured the three U.S. Army advisers with the 120-man group.

The three Americans, listed as missing and believed captured, were two officers and a medic. Stragglers returning from the rout said both officers had been wounded early in the fight—one in the head and the other in the leg.

A second government force of about 300 men, operating only a few thousand yards away, learned of the battle too late to help. U.S. authorities said Communist radio jammers knocked out both the main channel and the alternate channel on all vocal military radios.

Castro said the Cuban fighters strafed the J. Louis because it was thought the freighter was a mother ship from which coastal raiders in small boats were being launched. This conformed to an earlier announcement by the Cuban armed forces ministry that the air force that night had repelled a landing by two ... and had attacked the ... ship.

... Louis was en route ... naica to Corpus Christi, ... with a cargo of bauxite when it was strafed. It reached its destination damaged but with its crew unhurt.

visions: Tax holidays for new industries in designated slow-growth areas; withholding tax changes designed to encourage foreign - controlled corporations to sell some of their shares to Canadians; and loophole plugs aimed at stopping the business practice of reducing tax bills through "dividend stripping."

Mr. Gordon appealed to the Commons to give swift passage to the proposals so businessmen would know under what rules to operate.

This sentiment was echoed by members of the three splinter parties, who said uncertainty and confusion surrounding the budget should be ended.

Mr. Nowlan said there must be less restrictive methods of encouraging Canadians to invest more in their economy. He moved that the bill be denied second reading and that the subject matter be referred to the commerce committee instead.

Mr. Gordon said this would delay or destroy the budget proposals.

The Nowlan motion was opposed by 97 Liberals, 11 New Democrats, 10 Creditistes and eight Social Creditors. The 72 Conservatives present favored the amendment.

Minutes after the roll - call vote, the bill was given second reading with the Conservatives shouting "on division" to register their opposition.

Lucien Pigeon (Creditiste, Quebec West) moved notice that he will propose many amendments today in an effort to redraft the bill in simple language the average taxpayer can understand.

He said the annual preparation of income tax returns is a "nightmare" because the law is written in incomprehensible legal jargon. Mr. Gordon and Mr. Nowlan agreed simpler tax laws would be desirable, but added they doubted this would be possible.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) said tax holidays for industries in designated areas are unfair and probably unconstitutional. He argued that the proposal was interference in the provincial fields of property rights and local affairs.

"We made a little mistake out here. Did you notice a sudden increase in your voltage a moment ago?"

Holloway Street U.C.W. Hold Attractive Fall Tea, Bazaar

The lower auditorium of Holloway Street United Church was a hive of activity yesterday afternoon for the fall tea and bazaar sponsored by the United Church Women under the convenorship of Mrs. J. McMillan with co-convenors Mrs. W. Townson and Mrs. D. Richardson.

Everywhere the eye turned the autumn color scheme of brown and golden yellow was evident, with arrangements of yellow and brown mums on every window ledge, as well as at various strategic points. The autumn note was further carried out with sprays of bittersweet and ivy cascading down a variation of the tea room white brown and yellow panels outlined the one side. Colorful maple leaves encircled each of the pillars.

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLES

The focal point of interest was the attractively appointed tea table with its cocoa brown linen cloth centred with an artistic arrangement of sunny yellow and bronze commercial mums and flanked with stately yellow and brown candles in tri-branch candelabra. Gleaming silver tea services and floral edged serviettes added to the appropriate setting. Each of the six-place guest tables was centred with a tiny colorful gobbler encircled with maple leaves and bearing the word "welcome".

Into this enticing atmosphere the thronging guests were warmly greeted by Mrs. C. W. Coleman, wife of the pastor; Mrs. C. Holmes, Mrs. R. Boyd and Mrs. McMillan, convener of the event. Thos who presided at the silver tea service throughout the afternoon were: Mrs. M. Hick, Mrs. F. Scott, Mrs. E. Hubbs and Mrs. H. Martin.

MANY SALES TABLES

Round-about the spacious rooms were located the various sales tables, each one clearly identified, and all laden with their particular sales goods. A children's wear table was located in the upper lobby of the church. Others included: a table of novelties; a wide selection of colorful aprons; many items in home sewing; delicious homebaking; a pantry shelf, and numerous miscellaneous items at the white elephant table. The candy table with its variety of sweets was in charge of the Energetic Club.

Treasurers for this delightfully successful event were: Mrs. G. Denyes, Mrs. T. Ketchenson, Mrs. C. Green, Mrs. B. Moorman, Mrs. W. Symons and Mrs. Hendricks. Other ladies of the church contributed to the success of the event by serving, replenishing and tending to kitchen duties.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald [illegible] Doyle, Belleville, are pictured following their recent marriage in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, Southampton, Ontario. The bride is the former Joyce Louise Nickel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Nickel of Southampton. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mildred Doyle of Belleville and the late Mr. Leo Doyle.

DOYLE — NICKEL

A double-ring ceremony was solemnized in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, Southampton, Ontario by Father Murphy of Owen Sound recently when Joyce Louise Nickel became the bride of Gerald John Doyle, Belleville. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Nickel, Southampton and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mildred Doyle, Belleville and the late Mr. Leo Doyle.

Chantel sheath and white satin bows decorated the church for the occasion.

Miss Phyllis Gownlock presided at the organ and Miss Annis Gownlock sang "Ave Maria" and "I'll Walk Beside Thee."

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father attired in a floor-length gown of white French peau-de-soie with a jewel neckline, extending princess line waist and lily point sleeves. Her elbow length veil was held together by a small cluster of flowers and pearls and she carried a white missal with a bouquet of red roses.

The brides attendants, Mrs. Lee Lakings as matron of honor, Mrs. Paul Brown and Miss Linda Davis all of Lonson as bridesmaids, were identical gowns of Drake blue peau de soie with scooped neck lines, bell shaped skirts with matching satin shoes. Their headdresses and half mittens were of white net. Each carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Christine Lake, Belleville and Joleen Nickel, Southampton were flower girls wearing Drake blue peau de soie under white silk organza with matching wing ring headdresses. They carried small bouquets of blue and white baby 'mums.

Arthur Doyle, Belleville, was best man and ushers were William Lake, Belleville and John Nickel, Southampton.

The reception was held at the Walker House where the bride's father received the guests wearing a teal blue crepe sheath with black and white accessories and a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a green flowered jersey sheath, black and white accessories with a corsage of white 'mums.

For their wedding trip through Northern Ontario, the bride chose a beige silk-knit sheath with matching duster, chocolate brown accessories and corsage of bronze 'mums.

On their return the young couple will reside at 24 Gordon Street, Belleville.

Guests were present from Belleville, London, Wingham, St. Marys, Listowel, Tara, Chesley, Sarnia and Southampton.

Sweden Plans to Increase Export of Fine Models

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Sweden is planning to increase one of her most appreciated exports — beautiful, long-legged models.

Fashion houses and art studios in most Western capitals ask for more and more of these tall, expertly trained girls.

The Swedish Mannequins' Association reports about 200 Swedish girls now are modelling in New York, Paris, London, Rome and Zurich. This represents about 20 per cent of the association's membership.

Swedish girls come from tall, lean stock and they know all about the fame achieved by such countrymates as Greta Garbo, Ingrid Bergman and Anita Ekberg. So a constant stream of girls flows into Stockholm's three schools for models.

One of the schools, run by a former model, Kim Soederqvist, is making plans to develop the potential export market.

Mrs. Soederqvist, well-groomed and forty-ish, says she is building up a new system for providing photographers and fashion studios with trained models.

She said: "I have been running this school for seven years, and inspected perhaps 1,000 girls a year to be trained. Of these I choose 10.

"Now I am looking ahead, and I am going to make my standards even higher so that girls who leave this school will be known all over the world as the best. Out of 1,000 girls, I shall choose only five."

Models are born, not made, Mrs. Soederqvund believes. "You cannot be a model if you do not have a good head and a good heart. Make-up cannot hide anything."

As a beauty expert, she advises against smoking, drinking and late parties. "They will show on one day—on the face," she said.

All the models turned out by the school are about five feet nine inches tall and weigh an average of 110 pounds. Most of them are brunettes, only a quarter are "typical" Swedish blondes. But they all have the good bone structure associated with Scandinavians.

BY pegg rogers

FROM THE MAIL BOX

Dear Pegg Rogers: Recently, I took a good look at myself in the mirror and I have to admit that I must not wear black any more. I am forty-five and I look it. My hair is brown with a lot of grey and my skin is pale with wrinkles. I do not want to tint my hair as it is too much bother. I have brown eyes and a fairly good figure — 5' 6", I weigh one hundred and thirty pounds.

In my job, I have to look especially presentable all the time. I pay about fifty dollars for a dress and one hundred dollars for a suit and I wear them all for at least three years. I think I started to wear black because I found that I did not have to worry about matching accessories. I found that red, brown cocoa - brown in millio, Wood lighten the "all black" look.

When I decided to get out of black, I thought that navy blue would be becoming. This proved to be a good move and last spring, I had no difficulty assembling quite a nice collection in that shade. I did have to order a pair of shoes and a coat, but I managed quite well.

This fall, I cannot find a thing in navy. I need a winter coat, probably two dresses, a suit and an afternoon cocktail type of dress. Every salesperson I ask tells me that navy blue is not a winter color and that is that! Where and how do I find any of the above mentioned clothes in navy blue? — Signed — Miss R. L.

Dear Miss R. L.: I wish more women of your age with your coloring felt the way you do about black. There comes a time in the life of nearly every woman when she should admit that black is no longer the happiest choice. If more women admitted this, you would not be having such difficulties finding fashions in navy.

First of all, have you thought of buying a fur coat of beaver or sheared racoon? The shadings of the fur go beautifully with navy. If you feel that you cannot manage a fur coat, have you looked at some of the "pretend" furs? You will find a lot of shaded browns among them. If you decide on a cloth coat, ask that a special order be placed for you. (You are too good a customer not to rate this special attention. Like many busy women, I am sure that you shop at one store only.) You should be able to get the same service when you buy a suit or a dress. Of course, you will have to wait about three weeks for delivery. Have you looked at the collection of knitted suits? There are some lovely navy ensembles included in three lines.

If you decide on a fur coat, you could pick soft, brown shoes, handbag and gloves, and a hat of fur to match the coat. May I suggest a visit to a coiffeuse to revamp your make-up colors? I think you would find a change in lipstick and rouge tones is called for.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

QUEEN VICTORIA

The second general meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association, for the new term was held recently at which Mr. J. Cousins, Inspector of Public Schools, was the speaker.

In a most interesting and timely talk Mr. Cousins outlined the basic changes in modern education which have been introduced to meet the challenge of the space age.

In the last ten years greater changes in the field of education have occurred than in the previous fifty.

Education must have wider vision than ever before so as to cope with this, educators themselves must be more and more highly trained.

Mechanization has hurt the unskilled laborer with many more jobs calling for trained technicians.

The importance of guidance was mentioned and it was noted that this is something, which to be really effective, must be introduced early in the school career.

Another relatively new problem is that of the shorter work week. Children must now be trained to fruitfully fill their increased leisure hours.

Prior to Mr. Cousin's most informative address a report of the recent skate sale was given, and the meeting closed with the serving of light refreshments.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIN

USEFUL TIPS FOR EMPLOYERS

Question: When one is a guest for lunch in a restaurant, shouldn't the guest pay for the tip, at least? A girl friend invited me to lunch with her, and, even though I offered to pay for the tip, she insisted on paying for the whole thing. I felt rather awkward as a result. Wouldn't it have been more gracious if she had permitted me to leave the tip, so I wouldn't have felt so helpless in the matter? — Mrs. S. S., Boston, Mass.

Answer: When somebody specifically invites you to a restaurant as her guest, that is the entire expense of the meal and tip correctly belongs to the hostess. The guest is not supposed to pay — or even ask to pay — for anything.

Question: I've been asked to be bridesmaid at a friend's wedding, and I think my boy friend should be asked to be an usher so he can be my escort at the reception. My friend says she'll invite him to the wedding, but she doesn't think it would be proper to ask her fiance to invite him to be an usher. If he's not in the wedding party, then I won't be able to sit with him during the reception, which is to be a dinner. I know the groom-to-be fairly well. Do you think I can ask him to do me a special favor and ask my boy friend to serve as an usher? — R.D., Newark, N. J.

Answer: No. The groom-to-be chooses his own best man and ushers from among his best friends. If possible, he tries to include a brother of the bride, if she has one, among his attendants, but very close friends still get precedence. His fiancee had the good sense and good taste to refuse to ask him to include your boy friend, who may be a total stranger to him. When one accepts an invitation to be a bridesmaid, it doesn't automatically become necessary for the groom to invite a boy friend, husband or fiance to serve in a corresponding capacity. To insist on it, or even suggest it, would be quite inconsiderate and presumptuous.

Question: A friend has asked me to go out on a blind date with a buddy of her fiance, but I'm not keen on the arrangements she's made for the evening. I'm supposed to meet the three of them at her home and then we're supposed to go to a party to which they have been personally invited by the hostess. Although I don't know this person, she's been told I'm coming along as the date of one of her guests.

My friend assures me that this is quite correct, but I'd still feel happier about the whole thing if the hostess had sent me a personal invitation, as well. I'd also prefer that my date call for me at my own home, so my parents could satisfy themselves he's quite presentable and gentlemanly. My friend thinks I'm being overly formal and finicky. As far as the etiquette of the situation is concerned, what do you think about her arrangements for a blind date? — K. M., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: I think they're a little off course. A hostess should issue an invitation to everyone attending her party, including someone in your position who is hitch-hiking along on someone else's say-so. Your friend should ask the hostess to phone you, at least, and second the invitation — to put you at ease. In addition, your date should arrange to call for you at home, preferably in the company of your friend and/or her fiance. Naturally your parents want to meet anyone you're going out with and your friends should sympathize with you on this very important point. I don't think you are being finicky, but showing some good sense about correct social conduct.

B&P Women Conducting Course for Management

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—How does a woman become a top business executive?

Become a secretary and marry your boss? Go into business for yourself? Forget you're a woman?

Any one of these suggestions may work under specific conditions. But the Toronto Business and Professional Women's Club, many of whose members have reached the top in business and industry, feels it has an answer that covers the situation more broadly.

Learn what good administration involves and put your knowledge to use, it says.

To help women accomplish this it set up its Arts of Management Conference for women. It was held on a trial basis first in the spring of 1962 and again this year. Now it is to be an annual eight-day school.

A fund has been established to pay for some of the expenses. Fee for the course will be $250, to be paid by the woman taking it or her employer. This includes accommodation and meals but not transportation.

COPY BRITISH IDEA

The idea has met with enthusiasm from both women and men in business.

Companies look for qualified, competent management and they no longer care whether they get it from men or women, says Oakah Jones, president of the Consumers Gas Company and one of the conference's most ardent supporters.

The idea for a management conference for women came from Margaret Hyndman, a Toronto lawyer who attended an experimental school for managers at Henley — on-Thames, England, in 1946.

The theory behind that school is known in the business world as the Henley experiment—is that after a few years in business, those hoping to go beyond specialized positions and into the field of general management must go back for some self-analysis.

"They must stop and objectively look at what they are doing and how and why they are doing it," Miss Hyndman said.

Participants in the Arts of Management Conference, all of whom must hold at least supervisory positions and have five years of business experience, spend some time on the specific aspects of business such as financing and marketing.

ROOM FOR ALL

But emphasis is on acquiring the ability to make wise, quick decisions; to make the best use of experts; to communicate effectively with all levels of the business structure, and, perhaps most important, to differ objectively.

"Lots of women know all about marketing but they lack managerial skills," said Miss Hyndman.

Enrolment for next spring's conference, March 13-21, will be limited to 40 women. Among requests for applications already received is one from Lloyd's, the London insurance underwriting corporation.

Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Montreal and Kitchener have established bursaries to send a woman each year. And apparently men would like to attend as well.

"Several men feel we're discriminating against them because they can't come," says Christina Fairley, co-ordinator of this year's conference.

WALKER HARDWARE

WHAT IS A FAIR PRICE?

"FAIR", as above, became part of our slogan years ago. It means the same now as then; its choice was definite and purposeful.

HERE ARE THE REASONS:

There are many words to describe prices. "Compare at"; "right"; "correct"; "was and now is"; "discount"; "special" etc. These become only adjectives or relative terms if not based on VALUE and FACT. Is it not true that two items of unequal value can be "compared"?

Furthermore, "regular price" is only true if frequent sales have been made at such price, that is, by public acceptance.

A FAIR price depends upon several factors. Production and distribution costs are two but more important is Market Trend. Some stores have the same prices as below; others, higher. Some call them bargains. After this ad, some might cut them for a day or two to cause confusion but ACTUALLY THEY ARE FAIR RETAIL PRICES.

Pakistan Boy Points Out Universality of Problems

ANN LANDERS

DEAR READERS — The following letter was forwarded to me by Mohammed Azhar Ali Khan, of the Morning News in Karachi, Pakistan. I am printing it because it demonstrates so pointedly the universality of man's problems.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read your column today in the Karachi Morning News and the letter that struck me was written by a 17-year-old boy named David.

You see, I am 17 years old, and my name is David, also. I have the same problem the American David wrote about. In fact, his description of himself fits me exactly.

I know how he feels when people mistake him on the telephone for his sister or his mother. It is horribly embarrassing, not only for me, but for the person who makes the error. Like the American David, I, too, hate to speak in the classroom because my voice is so high-pitched. When I make a contrived effort to speak in a lower voice I become tense and my voice becomes even higher.

Could you please send me the address of the American David, Miss Landers? Since we have the same problem perhaps we could help each other. Sincerely yours — ANOTHER DAVID.

DEAR DAVID — Thank you for writing. I regret that I cannot do as you ask, but under no circumstances would I put one reader in touch with another through this column.

You sound like a fine boy, David, and the American David who wrote sounds like a fine boy, too, but I would not risk introducing people through the mails because sometimes people are not quite as fine as they sound on paper.

I hope you noticed my advice to the American David. It will work for you, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I just wrote a letter to you describing my problem. Before sealing the envelope I re-read it and was dumbfounded. Why? Because I suddenly realized I have read dozens of letters exactly like it — in your column.

Strange how each of us has a blind spot and thinks "I am different. The rules don't apply to me."

Here is the same tired story: Middle-aged woman — attractive, hungry for the excitement of an affair. Rationalizes that her husband has taken her for granted. The years are slipping away — she needs more affection. A middle-aged man, also married, and in their social crowd, confides that he has been smitten by her for years. His wife is cold and unfriendly. If it weren't for the children he'd get a divorce. How unfortunate that they don't meet 30 years ago!

After a few months of sneaking around, the Romeo becomes tired of her and suggests they'd better stop seeing each other "for awhile" because his wife is getting wise. So the lady gets the brush-off, plus heartache and humiliation.

I almost believed his lies until I suddenly recognized the familiar ring of my letter. I know now my affair was just like the others — cheap and meaningless. Perhaps this letter will awaken some other middle-aged women who feel the need for excitement. —MY NAME IS LEGION.

DEAR LEGION — Thanks for a frank and humble letter. I can add nothing.

* * *

Confidential to TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF — Who raised those vegetables? Your children are selfish and lazy because they have never been taught to accept responsibility. Your husband has been leasing pretty good, too. So long as you are willing to carry the whole load I can assure you they will be glad to let you do it.

* * *

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 30c in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Neighbors' Aid Enjoys Tour

END THURLOW — About 25 members of 2nd Thurlow Neighbors' Aid enjoyed a tour of the County Museum, last Tuesday evening which was arranged by program convener, Mrs. Harry Thomson.

Members were greeted by the museum attendants, Mrs. J. Sargent, Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Gerald Boyce who showed slides of the city and district beginning from the 15th century which were most interesting. Mrs. Robert Atkins expressed thanks to those in charge of the tour.

Later members were guests at the home of Mrs. Arnold Mitchell in Belleville where a short business period was conducted by the president, Mrs. B. Pratt. Mrs. M. Dent read minutes and correspondence and Mrs. A. Mitchell gave the financial report. Thanks was expressed to Mrs. Mitchell for her donating covering for the cupboard tops. Mrs. C. Keene and Mrs. Don Leeming will bring in the slate of officers for the next meeting.

A representative from the Lorne McDougall insurance agencies was present and explained the insurance coverage in respect to vandalism, theft or other loss to the Aid property.

Mrs. Poett read an appropriate address to Mrs. Teague who is moving to Oshawa and Mrs. Keene presented her with a lovely hammered aluminum relish tray on behalf of the members of the Neighbors' Aid.

Thanks was expressed to Mrs. Mitchell for her hospitality and lunch was served by the hostess and lunch committee, Messdames F. Mitchell, H. Thomson, R. Stratton and D. Atkins.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

The October general meeting of College Hill U.C.W. was held in the church, with Mrs. Bailey opening the meeting.

A tentative date of November 27 was set for the fall bazaar. A motion was made to send money for blankets for Algerians. The U.C.W. decided to register with the golden book of charity to obtain items for the new kitchen.

Mrs. Byrd, Sr., Mrs. Byrd, Jr., and Mrs. Dickens conducted an interesting worship service. Mrs. L. Baskett rendered a delightful solo, with her own accompaniment.

Mrs. Neal introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Tanner from Madoc. Mrs. Tanner gave an interesting description of her trip to the Holy Land, after which she showed slides, that were beautiful.

A social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Puff Pastry for Ambitious Bakers

by Mary Moore

Yesterday I gave here for Mrs. Arthur C. and for you ambitious bakers, the detailed method of making Puff Pastry. Included were the details for making Jam and Jelly Crescents which Mrs. Arthur C. wanted in particular.

Because genuine Puff Pastry shells are expensive and because homemade are better than bought ones, I will give the new method now of making

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY (Hallowe'en)

Broiled Lamb Chops; Mint Relish; Cauliflower; Steamed Corn and Baby Limas; Tomatoes Stuffed with Chive Cottage Cheese; Hobgoblins (see Tuesday); Tea.

SUNDAY: (Go-out)

Standing Rib Roast of Beef; Horseradish Cream; Pan Roasted Potatoes; Broccoli; Waldorf Salad (optional); Bowl of Fresh Dessert Fruits: Apples, Grapes Pears, Plums, Bananas; Sultana Squares (see Friday); Coffee.

PUFF PASTRY PATTY SHELLS (The kind used for Chicken Patties, etc.)

Possibly you would like to make half of the Puff Pastry into Patty Shells and half into Napoleons (below.)

Roll ¼" thick. Cut out round with a cutter dipped in hot water. Remove centres from half of the rounds to make rims. Moisten edges of plain rounds with cold water and lightly press on the rims. Bake cut-out small rounds separately for covers. Lay leftover trimmings on top of each other, pat and roll for small pastries.

NAPOLEONS (repeated from Dec. 2, 1958)

If you choose to make Napoleons use half of the amount of pastry given yesterday for these.

Roll cold pastry to ¼" thickness and cut into 3 long strips 2½" wide. A pastry wheel will facilitate this cutting. Quickly transfer strips of pastry to cookie sheet. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 5 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. by degrees, until pastry tests done. Test a little test piece to see if it is baked through.

When cool put together in layers with rich custard filling (see below) and peach, pineapple or apricot jam or conserve. (Pineapple jam is my favorite). Frost top with pastel-tinted butter icing and sprinkle top with nuts. (Pistachios are elegant). When cool and set, with a very sharp knife carefully cut each strip into squares or oblongs. These must be served with a fork.

RICH CUSTARD FILLING (for Napoleons, or layer cakes or cream puffs)

½ cup sugar, ¼ tablespoons cake flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1¼ cups milk, 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine flour, sugar and salt in top of double boiler; add milk and egg yolks, mixing thoroughly. Place over boiling water and cook ten minutes or until thick, stirring constantly. Cool, add flavoring.

Church Groups

W.M.S. LADIES' AID

IVANHOE — The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. and Ladies Aid was held Thursday at the home of the president, Mrs. Lindsay Silks, who presided and conducted the worship service.

The key word Thanksgiving was given by Mrs. William Donnan. An invitation to a bazaar to be held at Bethesda United Church on November 13th was read.

Thanksgiving meditation was given by Mrs. Harold Thompson; a solo by Mrs. Paul Adams; a chapter in Study Book by B. Fleming; poems read by Mrs. Arthur Hassell and Mrs. John Walker.

Meeting closed in the usual manner and lunch was served.

Woman Drives Taxi to Help Family Funds

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Hazel Green, a slender, attractive 25-year-old blonde tries successfully for fares with the shrewdest of Toronto's cab drivers.

And if she gets many of the breaks—the common complaint of male cab drivers about their feminine competitors—she deserves them.

Mrs. Green drives a taxi 8½ hours a day to help her husband, a night-shift laborer who earns $70 a week and often less, support their eight children aged two to 10.

Every morning shortly after six, one hour before her husband comes home from work, Mrs. Green is up making breakfast for the brood.

While the older children dress and feed the younger ones, Mrs. Green drives his wife to work.

Then he returns, helps David, 16; Peggy, 13; Patty, 12; Penny, 10; Danny, 9; Dayle, 7; and Catherine, 5, get off to school, then goes to bed until lunch time, taking the baby Kelly, Brian, 2, with him.

Mr. Green does all the family laundry but his wife is usually home in time to make supper. She does the housework on her week-ends off and also raises poodles to supplement their income.

The routine sounds hectic but it costs the Greens $25 a month for their modest home and at least $40 a week for groceries.

And the healthy, beaming faces of their children make it worthwhile.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Sherry A. Rosenberg

In the pursuit of personal freedom, we have channelled the power, love and hope which we have developed into a force which can come into the world. It is known that his indispensable for the individuals of the principle for the individuals who cultivate these virtues into curatives have difficulty in reaching the mainland because the Robinson Crusoe, we are not alone in our search for power. Paradoxically, the freedom we would have as individuals cannot because it has no basis in reality, so we search for expansion.

FREE SOCIETY

That contemporary democratic society is in crisis is evident in meeting the challenge of collectivism organized by the communities organized by the communities is also evident. It seems clear that the free society suffers from an inability to define its goals and meaning — freedom — to a people who have long since forgotten the basic principles that would link means to ends in the pursuit of goal.

The discovery of "choice" — based on individuals striving to single-mindedly to fulfill their own ends — is the discovery that must be replaced by a democracy of "wants" if freedom is to survive. The democracy of desire — that is the perverted view of freedom which is so prevalent today — that is the prevalent view of freedom which is so prevalent today...that is the prevalent view of freedom which is so prevalent today...that is the prevalent view of freedom which is so prevalent today...

Wants to Sell Her Hair

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Everybody admires my hair. It is long, black and beautiful, and I would like to sell it. Is it possible? If so, with whom shall I get in touch? I want that money for my mother.—LAURA.

DEAR LAURA — Look in the yellow pages of your own telephone directory, under "Hair Dealers — Human" for the name of someone near you. Or write in again, this time sending your address on a five-cent-stamped envelope, for the name of a dealer I can send you.

DEAR DORIS — This thirty-six-year-old single fellow had asked me out about six months ago, and I had accepted the date so readily that I felt ashamed of myself, so when he phoned for the date I turned him down.

I have turned him down twice since but now since he has quit paying attention to me, I find that I am becoming interested in him.

I know that I was rather cool to him but how can I just casually let him know that I might be interested without forwarding myself too much? — SORRY.

DEAR SORRY — Oh, let yourself go and invite him to stop by for coffee. Use one of those fancy greeting cards and put a note on it. And don't change your mind when he accepts!

DEAR DORIS — I am 18 years of age and have a waitress job. The law says at 18 a girl may leave home and no one can force her to go back. I want to get a suite or housekeeping room of my own. I don't want to be tied to mama's apron strings.

I stay with my grandparents and they are very good to me. On weekends I stay with my mother and sister. The problem is, I want to know how I can break the news to them gently?

I am capable of being on my own. I can cook, clean, wash and iron. I am enclosing a budget to show you I can do it. — NOT WANTING TO BE TIED TO MAMA'S APRON STRINGS.

DEAR NOT WANTING — O.K., now tell me what it is you really don't want. And be honest with yourself about it. Peddling your own canoe is not all roses, and if you move out too suddenly you may find yourself running back to those apron strings!

DEAR DORIS — I am 16 and very much in love with a boy who is 19. He says he loves me but I don't think so. Every time I mention marriage he acts like it's a disease and says wait for a couple of years. Other times he says he wants to wait until he's 25.

I think we should get engaged and married in about a year. I would like to have your opinion on this; I am so stumped it isn't funny. I am a nervous wreck. I would like to know mainly if I am too hasty in wanting to get married. — TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED — You guessed it, Troubled. Marriage "in about a year" could be worse than a disease — an incurable one at that. The B.F. has the right idea.

(Is it etiquette that worries you? Let Doris put you right on how it's done in Canada.)

Should Aid Women at Age of 60

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Old-age assistance to needy women at age 60 instead of the present 65 years was urged in a resolution passed Wednesday by the Canadian Women's Liberal Federation.

The payment would be subject to a means test, as is the case with the present $75 monthly whose cost is shared by the federal and provincial governments.

The resolution, which some delegates thought interfered in a provincial matter, was referred to provincial women's Liberal organizations for further study.

It was among a number of resolutions passed on the final day of the three-day national convention which also heard Citizenship Minister Favreau advocate greater active participation of women in forming of Liberal party policy.

CAN'T IGNORE

Dealing with biculturalism, the minister said it is dangerous to ignore the present "crisis of Confederation."

"The triumph of unity must be our first goal. In this great task of ensuring unity, of preventing the consequences of extremism, none but the women of Canada are better prepared to help and bring about success."

The Whitehorse South women's Liberal organization gained support for a resolution saying a person should be allowed to file for divorce under three conditions:

Proven adultery, desertion for a period of three years immediately before the time of filing petition, and in marriages where either partner is judged to be incurably insane and is continuously confined to a mental institution.

An honorary life membership went to Mrs. W. H. Davis, Kingston.

Britain's New Commissioner In Canada Looks Forward To Pleasant Time on Job

LONDON (CP) — Sir Henry Lintott, Britain's new high commissioner to Canada, looks forward to a stable period in Anglo-Canadian relations.

"There are no big issues to worry about," Sir Henry told a press conference just before he sailed for Canada.

"The Common Market problem is out of the way for the moment, I expect things to continue as usual with, I hope, an increase in British trade to Canada."

Sir Henry, 54, is one of the famed Flying Knights who accompanied Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath on the ill - fated Brussels negotiations in a bid for British membership in the European Economic Community.

Raised in Edinburgh, of Huguenot ancestry and educated at Cambridge, he is an expert linguist. At Brussels he and his colleagues dazzled European experts with their grasp of detail and fluent familiarity with the subjects under discussion.

FROM NOTTING HILL

Sir Henry and his wife, Lady Margaret, once a civil servant herself, lived in London's Notting Hill district. They have two children, John, 13, and Harriet, 9.

Since his appointment was announced last May, the new high commissioner has been briefing himself and adding to the knowledge of Canada acquired during four previous visits. Trade and commerce remains his chief interest.

Recently he and his wife took a two-week, government-guided tour through northern England and the Midlands, visiting new centres of industrial and residential development.

NOT DESPERATE

"One becomes out of touch negotiating in a Whitehall office," he said. "It's easy to think London is like the rest of England.

"In fact I was genuinely surprised at the social achievements we've accomplished here. I think I'll be able to tell Canadians with a straight face that England's condition is not as dire as some intellectual moaners would have us believe."

Sir Henry said he has no immediate plans for a tour of the provinces. So far the first speaking engagement in his book is at Toronto in February.

"In a country as large as Canada, it is always difficult for an ambassador. If he moves around, he is criticized for not minding his job. If he stays in the capital, he is criticized for never showing his face in the provinces.

"Like my predecessor, Viscount Amory, I'll try to strike a happy medium."

Trust Companies Request Basic Exemptions Under Act Be Raised to $100,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trust Companies Association of Canada recommended today that the basic exemptions under the Estate Tax Act should be increased to $100,000 from $60,000 on the grounds that death itself causes enough hardship without adding the burden of taxation.

The association, representing 35 member companies, said in a brief to the Royal Commission on taxation that revenue-raising has not been the historical purpose behind the tax, and the social objective — limiting the accumulation of wealth—should be reviewed in the light of today's society.

Estate taxes last year accounted for only 1.7 per cent of total federal revenues, and the association said that if the rates were raised to provide a significant source of revenue it would mean the tax's social objective would be changed to a confiscation of wealth.

"Such an objective would belong within a different political philosophy than the one which the majority of Canadians newly embrace."

Under the proposed increased exemptions — they would rise from $100,000 minimum with additional allowances—the association estimated that three-fifths of today's eligible estate taxpayers would be exempt, along with about 36 per cent of the remainder.

END PROVINCIAL TAX

To streamline administration, the association recommended that the government suspend their estate tax acts—Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia now levy their own taxes—and let the federally - administered tax. The federal government would retain the revenues collected by the provinces, and money from persons living in any province would be refunded to that province.

The brief said this system would reach the "desirable objective" of preserving the estate tax field for the federal level without creating new administrative difficulties for each province. It would also result in one uniform tax across the country.

Bishops Vote For Share Of Authority

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The assembled bishops of the Roman Catholic Church approved by a vote of almost six to one Wednesday a concept that they share authority with the Pope.

It was the second day in a row that the Vatican ecumenical council had taken historic votes with possibly profound significance for Roman Catholic thinking and for efforts to promote Christian unity.

On Tuesday, the 2,300 council fathers — cardinals, patriarchs, archbishops and bishops—voted to write a chapter on the Virgin Mary into a general document on the church, instead of giving her the emphasis of a separate schema.

On Wednesday, they adopted a view that the church's bishops as a whole, and by divine right, possess in union with the Pope "full and supreme power over the universal church," but that he retains his primacy.

CITE UNITY

Supporters of the action on Mary and the concept of shared authority had cited the promotion of Christian unity among their arguments. Non-Roman Catholic Christians often have complained that Roman Catholicism overemphasizes Mary and thinks too much on papal authority.

The council fathers also took two other major actions:

—They approved in principle the revival of permanent deacons, but did not go into the question whether the deacons might be married.

—They endorsed a council document opening the way for the use of such native music instruments as tom-toms and bamboo flutes in Roman Catholic religious services in mission lands.

Baptists Divorce Selves From Segregationalism

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The 30,000 - member Fellowship of Evangelical Baptist Churches in Canada has divorced itself from segregationist views of a southern United States preacher.

The fellowship's executive council issued a brief statement Wednesday night affirming its opposition to racial discrimination in any form.

Although the statement didn't refer directly to Dr. William Dowell of Jacksonville, Fla., it was prompted by segregationist remarks he made in an interview following Monday night's opening of the Baptist group's national convention.

The council decided to issue a public statement "because of all the unfavorable comment" that followed Dr. Dowell's remarks, said Dr. Merlyn Hall of Toronto, fellowship secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Dowell, chairman of the U.S. Baptist Bible Fellowship, told the interview that white and Negro churches should be separated in church and that integration inevitably lead to racial mongrelization. He hasn't touched upon the racial question in his sermons delivered to the convention.

ALL WELCOME

Expressing belief in the equality of all men before God, the council gave "testimony to the fact that all people of all races are welcome in our churches on profession of faith and believers' baptism with brotherly love and affection."

Some 900 delegates representing about 230 churches are attending the convention, which ends today.

Discussions Wednesday centred on the fellowship's decision to launch its own foreign mission program. Previously, it had participated in foreign missions activities on an interdenominational basis.

Retired Engineers Honored, Others Given Long-Service Pins at Banquet, Dance

Four Canadian National Railways engineers, who retired earlier this year, were honored guests of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Division 189, annual banquet and dance held last night at the Club Casara.

Well over 200 persons, including retired and still active engineers, together with their wives, and Branch and Auxiliary officials attended the banquet.

Presentations were given to the four retiring engineers, while long service pins honoring 40 and 50 years membership in the Branch were handed out to eleven men.

Pensioners who retired from service this year were Joe Gallagher, Frank Shortt, Jack Faulkner, and Allan Chaplin.

Receiving 40 year membership pins were W. Doran, P. E. Kerr, N. Williamson, T. Burden and D. McKee.

TOASTS PROPOSED

Fifty year membership pins were given to A. Bremner, G. McGee, Jack Cooper, J. Hall, F. McLean and R. Orne.

Local chairman E. L. Goodman acted as master of ceremonies for the banquet party and also introduced visitors and guests. Rev. E. P. Smith of Christ Church said grace.

A toast to the Grand International Auxiliary was proposed by First Engineer L. A. Daugherty with response by Grand Canadian Representative Louis Geoghegan. The toast to the guests was proposed by R. C. Jones with response by A. S. VanStone.

The presentations to the guests were made by Mr. Daugherty and Marjorie Hamment. Presentation of pins was by local Chairman E. L. Goodman.

Remarks were heard from Assistant Grand Chief Engineer W. J. Wright; S. C. Anderson, general chairman of Central Region C.N.R. and Lines in New England; Harriett Winslow, 1st Assistant Grand Vice President of Grand International Auxiliary and Tom Cooper, immediate Past Chairman of the Eastern Canadian Union meeting.

May Ban Sale Of Smoked Fish In Containers

OTTAWA (CP) — The health and fisheries departments are considering legislation to ban the sale of smoked fish packed in sealed containers unless rendered sterile by heat, Fisheries Minister Robichaud said Wednesday.

He told the Commons in reply to a question from former fisheries minister J. Angus MacLean that there is evidence to suggest that packing smoked fish in impermeable plastic wrappers increases the risk of botulism poisoning.

There had been no illnesses in Canada in the last three years from this source, Mr. Robichaud said. However, in that period there were nine deaths and a number of non-fatal illnesses in the United States.

The U.S. government has issued a warning about smoked fish products from the Great Lakes.

Mr. Robichaud said Canadian consumers should be informed that cooking destroys the toxic substance.

Fears Expressed Some Firms Will Be Hurt by Plan to Boost Canadian Production

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Not all Canadian auto parts manufacturers are happy over the federal government's new incentive plan to boost vehicle and parts production in Canada.

Fears that some companies may be hurt were expressed at a closed-door session of the Automotive Parts Manufacturers' Association here Wednesday prior to a speech by Industry Minister Drury.

The federal plan is designed mainly to encourage export of auto parts to the United States by granting Canadian car manufacturers remissions of duty on their imports equal to the increase in export volume of Canadian-made vehicles and parts.

The concern expressed by some parts makers is that a few big parts firms will get most of the new business while smaller and less efficient ones will suffer a loss of tariff protection.

Government officials concede there are risks and certainly opportunities for industry in the incentive program.

But they emphasize that duty remissions—and thus a reduction in tariff protection—will only occur if there is an increase in business for the parts manufacturers.

STILL PROTECTED

And they also point out that the parts industry's so-called minimum profit remains unchanged. This is the long-standing tariff provision requiring a minimum percentage content of the output of Canadian car makers—60 per cent in the case of the 1963 models—before they can qualify for tariff exemption on an important number of major imported components.

Mr. Drury, in his first speech since announcing the incentive program last Friday, said some firms may find it difficult to adjust to new conditions, but companies that showed initiative and imagination should find hitherto closed markets open to them.

One of the concerns expressed privately by parts makers here is that the import duty remissions will be available to the auto manufacturers, not the parts companies.

Mr. Drury underlined advantages to the parts manufacturer: Wider markets, plus the benefits of longer and more economic production runs enabling lower costs and greater competitiveness.

"The rewards can be substantial for those who are willing to participate fully."

He said the plan is "entirely consistent" with Canada's trade agreement commitments.

Madame Nhu Fighting Lady Says Clare Luce

NEW YORK (AP) — Clare Boothe Luce has defended Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, first lady of South Viet Nam, as a "fighting lady" ally striving to save her country from communism.

The former United States ambassador to Italy, writing in National Review, protests that Mme. Nhu had been treated on her tour of th United States as "a vicious enemy of our country."

"Why did President Kennedy slam the White House door in Mme. Nhu's pretty face," she asks, "while he ordered the red carpet handles polished to the nines for Communist Tito's visit?"

Recalling the Communist takeover in China, Mrs. Luce writes:

"The purpose of Mme. Nhu's visit to the United States was to convince her American hearers that her country is winning the war, but that it might lose it if she and her family are undermined and thrown to the wolves.

"What seems to be happening to the government in Viet Nam is reminiscent of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Mme. Chiang in China when the government of state pulled the rug out from under them, and Mao Tse-tung took over in China."

MONKS THAY BURN

Concerning suicides of Buddhist monks by fire in South Viet Nam, the author says:

"In America, if a Catholic priest were to burn himself to death in protest of the government's failure to provide free bus rides for parochial school children, or if a Protestant minister were to make of himself a living torch to express his opposition to th Supreme Court decision against prayer in public schools, we would consider them religious maniacs.

"And our government would take stringent measures to prevent any repetition of such acts. This is precisely the way Mme. Nhu has taken of the self-immolating bonzes."

The National Review in which Mrs. Luce's article appears is a conservative periodical, edited by William Buckley Jr.

New Brunswick Suffers From Obsessive Regionalism

— Robichaud

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick said Wednesday night his province suffers from an "obsessive regionalism" that isolates it from the rest of Canada.

He was speaking at a reception on St. Helen's Island—site of the 1967 Montreal world's fair—given by the St. Joseph Club, whose members are grandsons of French-language colleges in the Maritime provinces.

The consequences of this regionalism "are often disastrous for our economy," Mr. Robichaud said.

Regional, rather than national, thinking "has created by an absence of exchanges between New Brunswick and the other provinces, and by a scarcity of news media within the province itself.

The p'emier said newspapers, radio and television do not reach New Brunswick's whole population of 600,000.

"The province's four daily newspapers, for example, reach only 105,845 persons."

ASKS PARTICIPATION

But he said his government is working toward a renaissance in New Brunswick and invited members of the St. Joseph Club to participate.

He suggested the establishment of an interprovincial organization which would assure "a sharing of information between Quebec and New Brunswick and assure its dissemination both ways."

"How can we speak of culture, of national unity, when Quebec knows little or nothing of New Brunswick and vice versa?"

The premier said in an interview earlier, following a reception at city hall by Mayor and Mrs. Jean Drapeau, that separatism is doomed to extinction in contemporary Canada.

"I am sometimes asked what New Brunswick would do if Quebec goes separatist. My answer is that I've never even asked myself the question because I consider it so unlikely."

Jury Fails To Reach Verdict In Fraud Case

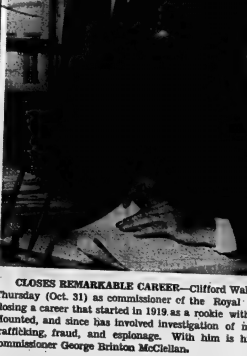
HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP)—A jury deliberated for seven hours Wednesday night without reaching a verdict in the trial of Tracy C. Swartman, 60, and Mrs. Bridgit Martha O'Hara, 58, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Ontario government.

The all-male jury will continue its deliberations today on the four charges against the suspended municipal engineer for the Ontario highways department at New Liskeard and the widowed owner of O'Hara Construction Company of Kirkland Lake.

The trial went to the jury after the 16th day. The jury returned once during the evening to ask about statements made by Alfred Harris, 69, former bookkeeper of the construction company in his cross examination Oct. 22 by defence lawyer G. Arthur Martin of Toronto.

In his address to the jury, Mr. Martin said Harris was an accomplice and warned of the danger of taking his word without corroboration. Harris was released after serving 10 months of a 12-month sentence for defrauding the department and is still on parole.

R. A. Hughes of Ottawa, counsel for Mrs. O'Hara, said Mrs. O'Hare was under the influence of Harris.



Charles Dubin, special Crown prosecutor, said the jury could assume there had been a fraud and that Harris was not the only one to benefit by overbilling to the department of highways by the O'Hare firm. Even without Harris' testimony there was ample proof of irregularities, he said.

U.S. Expelling Three Russians

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States is expelling three members of the Soviet UN delegation after accusing them of a spy plot with another Russian and an American electronics engineer.

Diplomatic immunity prevented arrest of the three delegation members, but the U.S. government demanded their immediate departure from the country. They were expected to leave today or Friday.

The Russian government was expected to protest the expulsion order and reject the espionage charge. A member of the Soviet UN delegation claimed the case was a provocation to prevent further improvement of U.S.-Soviet relations.

Council Decision on Virgin Major Step Toward Unity

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Vatican ecumenical council's preliminary decision Tuesday on details of the position of the Virgin Mary in the Roman Catholic Church could be a major step towards eventual Christian unity.

The council voted, by a narrow majority, to dispense with a scheduled separate document on the church's attitude to the blessed mother and to subject now will be included in its discussion of the wide-ranging draft De Ecclesia—the nature of the church.

On the surface, the debate seemed to many to involve purely technical matter of little significance. But in fact it touched a sensitive area—human Catholic teaching that has troubled Christendom for centuries.

And the vote of 1,114 to 1,074 represents yet another victory for the so-called progressive and moderate prelates.

MAJOR OBSTACLE

The degree to which the church holds the mother of Christ has always been a major obstacle in the Vatican's approaches to other Christian churches that do not share these views.

Opponents to the separate decree insist that their attitude does not suggest any lessening of the dignity of the Blessed Virgin or any disregard of her pre-eminent position. Nor is there any question of the Catholic Church renouncing any of its dogmatic definitions about Mary.

But they argue that a separate document could give Christians outside the church the impression that new dogmas were being prepared and would tend to give a false picture of her place in the church.

As now resolved, the church's attitude towards Mary will be considered into 3 single chapter at the end of De Ecclesia—the whole debate. This method of handling it, it is hoped, will make it less difficult for non-Catholics to acknowledge and appreciate the foundation of Catholic devotion to Mary.

GOING TOO FAR

As the saying indicates, nearly half the church fathers feel this is going too far. Some claim it will be an effect diminish the honor due Mary and give non-Catholics an erroneous impression that the church views on her role in the faith.

Several drafts have been circulated and it now appears likely that two of the more profound documents, by British and Chilean church scholars, will be compressed into the single chapter on the Virgin Mary.

Dom Christopher Butler, president of the English congregation of Benedictines monks, helped draw up the document on behalf of the bishops of England and Wales. This is to go back to the Bible to see what the Virgin Mary emerges before explaining how doctrine on the subject developed.

Cross-Canada Survey

Confused Web of Provincial Laws Is One Cause of Municipal Secrecy

If there's a growing tendency toward secret meetings by boards and committees handling public affairs, a reason may be that the laws governing such meetings aren't clear. In this story the situation in communities across Canada is discussed.

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A school board won't let a ratepayers' group photostat its minutes.

Another resigns in a body when citizens protest secrecy.

The chairman of another says it needs privately to cover up mistakes.

A police commission is completely indifferent to the public and press.

Some municipal officials put a prohibitive price tag on the examination of municipal records by taxpayers.

These are incidents, scattered around the country, of official secrecy about public business by boards, committees and public officials turned up in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press.

While they are not typical of the general run of public bodies, they illustrate what the public — and the press — comes up against in keeping track of how its business is transacted and how its money is spent.

LAWS UNCLEAR

The multiplicity of elected and appointed groups taking care of the public's affairs across the land has spawned myriad ways — some legitimate, some not wholly so — of keeping these doings under cover, at least until the officials decide to lift the curtain.

A complicating factor is a better-skeleton of provincial legislation — or lack of it — on the subject of public meetings by local bodies. By the time this has filtered through interpretations at the hands of a miscellany of local councils and their subsidiary bodies, any semblance of uniformity vanishes.

Some statutes within a province appear to jar one another. New Brunswick seems to have no legislation on the point, though in practice municipal meetings are open for the most part. Quebec imposes a generally open policy from the top, but local application varies widely.

LAWS ARE VAGUE

The intent of Manitoba's legislation is described as "hard to define, at best." A correspondent summed up Newfoundland law governing St. John's city council: "The sense of this act would appear to be that every meeting of the council is a public meeting — unless it isn't."

School and hospital boards seem to come into conflict most frequently with newspaper attempts to get all the community news, according to replies to a questionnaire by CP member dailies. Some of these are not legally obligated to have their discussions in public. Some are. With others, the dividing line is shadowy.

The Truro Daily News reports that a "potentially dangerous trend (not only here but elsewhere) is the gradual taking over of some public spending by various bodies set up by town and county councils which under their acts of incorporation are not required to hold public meetings."

PRESS TAKES PART

As with the municipal councils themselves, the press has had varying success — and lack of it — in opening up these other bodies to public scrutiny.

A notable score of the success side was chalked up by the Edmonton Journal after campaigning two years against a policy of closed meetings of the Edmonton hospital board. Now, not only are the meetings open to reporters, but they may play a role in the discussions to ask clarifying questions.

But the Fredericton Gleaner has been campaigning just as long, and with no results, against closed board meetings of Victoria Public Hospital, which spends public money but whose superintendent argues it is a private institution.

In Fredericton, too, school trustees opened up their meetings several years ago but some of their decisions cares under community criticism when they were reported in detail. Now, there is a tendency for more and more important business to be considered in closed "committee."

ACTS DIFFER

Moose Jaw's Union Hospital board has come up with a new twist for authorizing closed meetings. Saskatchewan's Municipal Act says hospital board meetings are open. The Hospital Act does not. So the board holds all meetings privately.

La Presse of Montreal was afoul of one out-of-town hospital in 1960 when it reported doctors were using its operating room to operate on dogs. It could get no comment from the hospital. Neither could it get any news on accident cases from this hospital for a couple of months.

There is a Gallic piquancy to some of the Quebec practices. In one village, a citizens' group claimed the school board met so informally and irregularly that its meetings might as well have been secret. The board, claiming bitterly that no one paid any attention to it until taxes went up, resigned in a body. Later, it went back.

Quebec follows the rule generally applied across Canada that interested persons may see municipal records for a fee, usually nominal, set by the municipality. But some Quebec councils get around this by setting a sky-high fee.

BAR PHOTOSTATS

Montreal officials used to fend off some askers by declaring requests to the city's executive committee, which might or might not get around to them. The practice was dropped this year.

Generally, the survey found that access to official documents was easy.

However, the Ottawa separate school board this year refused a group of ratepayers permission to photostat minutes, though allowing them to be copied. The ratepayers threatened to go to court and The Citizen protested, but the minutes are still being copied by hand.

The same board for years excluded reporters from parts of its meetings, briefing them later. Late this year, it threw the meetings open.

Chairman Andrew Robertson of the Winnipeg school board says he thinks the board overdoes the use of its procedural bylaw allowing secret hearings for property sales and personnel.

MISTAKES HIDDEN

"More often than not the board will go into committee just to cover up the damned mistakes of the administration," he says.

In Oshawa, Ont., not only does the board of education bar the press from many of its committee meetings but recently it published a public hearing to trustee A. E. O'Neill when he wanted to discuss his resignation as chairman of the management committee. His reason for resignation was the claim that the board was deliberately bypassing the committee.

At Woodstock, Ont., the city council has taken to assigning specific studies to bodies other than standing committees, then meet irregularly, and it is difficult to keep up with what they are doing.

The Kingston Whig-Standard reports a growing tendency for the city's Queen's controllers to meet privately, just before an official meeting, to discuss politically controversial and touchy matters, with its decisions rubber - stamped at the open meeting. In effect, the committee becomes "a closed-door board of control or council-et."

MEETINGS OPENED

At Galt, Ont., the board of education was resorting to lavish use of the committee-of-the-whole (closed) practice when The Reporter took up the cudgels. Now meetings are "virtually 100-per-cent open."

Less successful was the Stratford Beacon-Herald in protesting its board of education's decision two years ago to exclude the press from committee meetings. This year, the board decided to let the press in provided it used nothing until it was ratified by the board itself. The newspaper is still trying for no-strings access.

School trustees at Lethbridge, Alta., go into private session on matters involving school management. Fraser Percy, executive editor of The Herald, comments: "They can define almost anything as a school management problem."

The managing editor confesses that an incompetent reporter was responsible for a hospital board decision to bar the press. But that was several years ago and the press is still barred.

The editor observes:

"I think this is an example-at-point which is often overlooked by editors. I don't think a newspaper can honestly demand personal coverage of a meeting if it cannot supply reasonably good reporters."

(Replies from some newspapers indicate that the individual acceptability of reporters occasionally determines whether they are admitted, on a basis of trust, to closed meetings.)

NO ANNOUNCEMENT

There is no particular regional pattern of methods for combating press inquisitiveness. One trans-Canada trend is the habit of calling committee meetings and omitting to notify press or public.

Although police commissions as a rule get considerable statutory protection against publicity, press relations with them on the whole appear to be satisfactory and some go beyond their obligations in allowing access to their proceedings. There are exceptions.

The Hull, Que., commission, unlike other bodies there, never discloses the time and place of meetings, always meets behind closed doors and never announces decisions except for those that must be submitted to the city council.

Meetings of the commission at Orillia, Ont., are never open and its members refuse information on any business transacted. The late J. C. Peters of The Packet and Times, which refers to as "excellent" relations with other municipal bodies, said the police commissioners were "absolutely indifferent to the press and press and feel no obligation to them."

BOARDS ATTACKED

Some planning boards also come in for criticism. The Assiniboia, Sask., planning board recently ejected the press while one member landowners remained present. Mayor Lloyd Bellows said it was in accordance with "unwritten policy."

The appeals board of the Nashwaaksis, N.B., town planning commission barred the press this year during a discussion of public housing and was rapped editorially over the knuckles. Policy varies elsewhere.

One commission — the community centre group at Chatham, N.B. — found secrecy expensive. After it had privately argued about buying a park site at considerable cost, a landowner advised he would have donated a site in the same district if he had known about it.

SUNDAY SERVICE

For his sermon on Sunday evening Mr. Van Der Veen chose the subject of Martin Luther since it was close to Hallowe'en, All Saints day and Reformation day. The speaker reviewed the widespread apostasy of many present day nominal Christians. Luther, the great German reformer was born in 1483 and became a professor of philosophy at Wittenberg University. He resisted the sale of Indulgences, affixing his 95 theses against them to the door of the Castle church at Wittenberg on October 31. He defended himself at the Diet of Worms, at Augsburg and published his commentary on Galatians in 1534. He died in his 63rd year.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THE CUSTOMERS ALWAYS WRITE

The man was undoubtedly a Yankee buff, one of the die-hards who have yet to concede the Dodger hurling was out of the world; the Yankee batters were in orbit, and the better team won on the series play.

He grudgingly admitted that Koufax, Drysdale, Podres, the former Flatbush "Dangers" did a man-size job of hurling but "all three had one of their good days and had the series been played a week later, the result would have been different." He should have choked on the straw he was clutching.

Then he veered off on another tack. He rubbed a bristly chin, stared at the ceiling and remarked: "I guess, Lkallsey if Ole Casey had been steering the Yankee Clipper, the Battleship of the Bronx would have sailed into harbor with all her victory flags fluttering in the breeze."

"I know," I think that perhaps the man may have had a point there.

Since the Yankee clubrooms were declared a dictator area, much has been said and written of the man who was eventually "promoted" to general manager and his managerial job taken over by a tough, gnarled little chuck guy by the name of Lawrence "Yogi" Berra.

Ralph Houk, "the quiet man," his critics claim, lacked the dugout fire and personality of the barkerollman patsiarch from Glendale, California, Mr. Stengel.

Also, it is stated, Mr. Houk spoke the Queen's English as "she should be spoke" (Dizzy Dean), while Casey handled the Oxford dictionary and Fowler's Laws on syntax and usage.

As Old Dix maintained after a criticism of his use of the English by baby-talky women's groups, "a lot of people who don't say 'ain't,' ain't eatin' a'good."

Squat Yogi, my friend insisted, will bring back some of the color and managerial personality that was so sorely missing during the Houk regime. True, he said, Houk had a dry sense of humor, well-placed at times, but mainly he was on the rank-and-file of the Yankee payroll.

"Buddie," he added, "Yogi is popular with his former team-mates. He knows them from underwear to crush helmets. He knows their whims, vagaries and what have you. And the players know Yogi. They like and respect him and will play for him."

"The most of 'em are undergrads, and alumni of the Stengal College of English Verbal Composition, Yogi included. They figure if the Ole Prof got his message across via the twisted syntax courses of lectures, they won't have much trouble dissecting the Berra delivery," the man said.

He rubbed his hands. "I think happy days are here again. Someone said there were three things Yogi didn't resemble a ball player, a switch-hitting golfer and a millionaire. Now he is all three and the manager of a baseball club to boot."

He went into verbal daggered. "Listen to 'em—hear 'em roar—The Yanks and Yogi is .64." But he didn't hear the whispered comeback of Emilcee the copy boy. "Let 'em holler, let 'em cry—We still got "Koo, Fo and Dry."

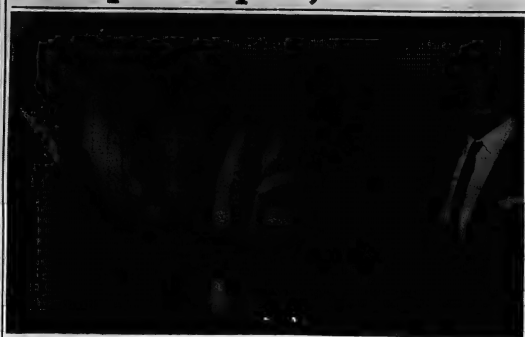
Back to Yogi, he is naive, innocent and reacts almost instantly to situations.

For instance when some team-mates were talking about Yankees who had built homes by the ocean, Yogi said, "So what's an ocean. You've seen one—you've seen 'em all."

When Yogi was introduced to the famous author, Ernest Hemingway, he was told he was a writer. "Yeah?" said the Yogs, "what paper?"

When he was asked what he thought of the Louvre after visiting the historic place. "It's okay," opined Yogi, "if you like pictures."

He was invited once to visit the famous Truman Library in Independence, Missouri. "Why," he asked. "I gotta lotta new books at home."



So if color, wisdom, personality, and the ability to put a message across are the ingredients for a world series victory, I'd almost be tempted to bet the Yankees next year.

Gump Lumped, Leafs Beat Rookie 6-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"TO THE VICTORS" — Co-captains Murray Swan (left centre) and David Anderson of the BCI COSSA Juniors "A" basketball champions receive the brand new Sherwin Williams Trophy, symbolic of the title. Mr. Stewart Babcock, company representative, made the presentation at the secondary school morning assembly the other day. On the right Homer "Red" Townsend, coach of the team, adds his personal congratulations.

They were joking about Gump Worsley before the game.

But not after.

When the Montreal Canadiens goaltender was a little late showing up for Wednesday night's game against the Maple Leafs in Toronto, the players chided standby rookie Jean-Guy Morissette.

"You're playing tonight," they joked. "Worsley's not coming."

Worsley turned up in time, of course, but by 2:38 of the second period he was helped to the dressing room with a pulled hamstring muscle and Morissette made his National Hockey League debut.

His NHL goals-against record of none remained intact for 16 seconds before Dave Keon put one past and when the final whistle blew three more pucks had gone by and Toronto owned a 6-3 victory and sole possession of second place.

GOYETTE HOT

In the only other game played, New York Rangers edged Boston Bruins 4-3 on Phil Goyette's three goals and Vic Hadfield's game-winner with 50 seconds remaining.

Worsley pulled the muscle in his left leg above the knee when he turned quickly to reach for a shot by Tim Horton. Leafs physician Dr. Jim Murray said he could be out for more than three weeks.

In reserve, the Canadiens have Morissette, a standout with the Eastern Canada Allan Cup finalist Moncton Hawks last year, Charlie Hodge at Quebec in the American League and Cesare Maniago at Omaha in the Central Professional circuit. Red Tee Blake said Hodge would get the call.

Ed Litzenberger gave Leafs a big lift with his first-period goals, his first of the season, and Toronto never led by less than two goals from that point. The win gave them 10 points, four behind the league-leading Chicago Black Hawks.

The other Leafs goals were scored by Gerry Ehman, called up Tuesday to replace injured Bob Nevin, Keon, Eddie Shack and Bob Pulford. Montreal scorers were J. C. Tremblay, Gilles Tremblay and Henri Richard.

It was a rough game. Referee Art Skov handed out 36 penalties, including two majors and two 10-minute misconducts.

Terry Harper of Montreal and Bobby Pulford of Toronto drew the serious penalties for a brawl that recurred in the penalty box. Both were hit with automatic $25 fines.

Goyette, traded from Montreal to New York in the Plante-Worsley deal, twice gave Rangers the lead but the verdict was in doubt to the end.

Andy Hebenton got Bruins off to a 1-0 lead in the first but Goyette connected at 11:20 of the second and 6:16 of the third. Wayne Connelly then evened the score at 11:07.

Goyette's third goal of the night, and fifth of the season, came at 17:07 and Rangers appeared home free. But 88 seconds later Bruins came back as Leo Boivin's goal.

Hadfield, however, sewed it up for New York at 19:10 on a pass from Goyette and Andy Bathgate, who assisted on the four Ranger goals.

The win moved New York ahead of Detroit and into a deadlock tie with Montreal at eight points. The loss, Boston's seventh against one tie and one win, left them deep in the cellar, four points behind Detroit.

In the only game scheduled tonight, Boston travels to Detroit, where Gordie Howe again tries to score goal number 545 to break the all-time scoring record he shares with retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Needs 13 To Break 'Games Played'

Iron-Man Hebenton Eyes Record

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Andy Hebenton, the National Hockey League's iron-man-to-be, is in excellent shape to continue his assault on the league's consecutive games played record. He needs only to appear in Boston Bruins' next 13 games to break it.

The veteran right winger has had his share of bumps and bruises during his eight years in the big league. Yet, he's played in 563 straight games. The record is 580 held by Johnny Wilson, former Detroit, Toronto and New York left winger.

His 563th game will be Sunday night, when the Bruins are at home to the Red Wings.

"I really have been lucky. The toughest time I've had was about three years ago when I got seven teeth in the same week while playing for the New York Rangers," Hebenton said Wednesday. "I lost four upper teeth when I was hit in the mouth by a stick in Montreal. A few days later in New York I got three of my lower teeth knocked out when the same thing happened."

The Bruins acquired the 34-year-old Winnipeg native from the Rangers in the NHL draft last June. He appeared in every game during his eight-year stay with New York.

CAME CLOSE

"My streak came pretty close to ending about three years ago when I was hit in the eye with a stick, Hebenton said. "Things looked bad because the eye almost closed tight and we had a game scheduled for the following night. But they put drops in the eye and I was able to take my full turn."

Hebenton turned pro with Montreal Canadiens 13 years ago although he never got into a game with them.

Day After Heave-Ho

Oshawa Jrs. Coach Quits

OSHAWA (CP) — Doug Williams resigned as coach of Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League Wednesday night, one day after he was ejected from a league game in Bowmanville.

Williams was removed after stepping on the ice to protest a penalty against one of his players in a game with Kitchener Rangers which ended in a 3-3 tie.

The OHA has called an executive meeting for tonight and has requested Williams to show up.

Williams, who has had a 16-year career as player and coach, expressed remorse over the situation.

"The referee (Hugh McLean) was right in having me taken off the ice," he said. "I don't really have anything to say to the OHA committee."

Oshawa general manager Wren Blair, who announced the resignation, will take over as coach until a replacement can be made.

"I accepted Doug's resignation with regret," he said.

FINE PILOUS

SEATTLE (AP) — Deaver coach Rudy Pilous was fined $100 Wednesday for protesting penalties too long and loudly Tuesday night's Western Hockey League game at Vancouver. League president Al Leader announced the punitive action. Pilous was banished from the game by referee Willie Papp in the first period.

Six Jailed After Dope Probe

LEWES, England (AP) — A pretty Swiss blonde and five men were given prison terms Wednesday following Britain's biggest racehorse doping trial.

Micheline Emilienne Lugeon, 26-year-old beauty consultant, was sentenced to a year.

She was one of the central figures in a trial which lasted almost a month. She and the men were found guilty of conspiracy to dope horses and cheat the bookies. They were said to have fed dope to favorites before they raced for the last six years.

Miss Lugeon went around British stables posing as a French race-horse owner. Prosecutor Owen Stable said she visited 20 stables in 67 days and "doping followed her about as if it was a contagious disease and she was the carrier."

The trial followed a mammoth investigation into doping by the Jockey Club, ruling body of British horse - racing. It employed private detectives and co-operated with Scotland Yard in combing every racecourse in Britain for evidence of doping.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Goyette's three - goal splurge and one assist in New York's 4-3 victory over Boston Wednesday night moved him into a third-place tie in the National Hockey League's scoring list.

Goyette, who only scored five times with Montreal Canadiens last season, ran his total in eight games this season to five goals and seven assists for 12 points. Tied with him are Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal and Kenny Wharram of Chicago.

Stan Mikita of Chicago, idle Wednesday night, owns the top position with six goals and eight assists for 14 points. Jean Beliveau of Montreal earned an assist in Canadiens' 6-3 loss in Toronto to gain sole occupancy of the runnerup spot at 13 points.

Bobby Hull of Chicago is in sixth position with 11 points and one point back of him is John Ferguson of Montreal who picked up an assist Wednesday night.

The leaders:

TREES ARE BIG

The eucalyptus trees of southwest Australia grow nearly 300 feet tall, measuring 10 feet across at the base.

BOSTON (AP) — Los Angeles lefthander Sandy Koufax — the comeback Dodger who made the difference — Wednesday was named the National League's most valuable player for 1963.

The 27-year-old strikeout king decisively beat Dick Groat, the St. Louis Cardinals' sparkplug, 257 points to 190. Results of the annual poll of a 20-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America were announced by BBWAA secretary Jby Hurwitz. Koufax was named on all but one ballot.

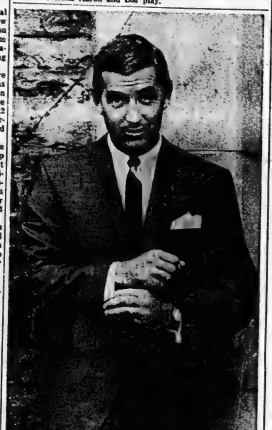
Koufax, recovered from a serious circulatory ailment in a finger on his left hand which sidelined him in July, 1962, pitched the Dodgers to the pennant they couldn't quite pull off without him the latter half of 1962.

The Brooklyn-born bachelor registered a National League record of 306 strikeouts en route to a 25-5 won-lost mark and a brilliant 1.88 earned run average. He pitched his second major league no-hitter early in the season against San Francisco Giants and personally accounted for two victories in the four-game world series sweep of New York Yankees.

TOOK 14 VOTES

Previously chosen the Cy Young Award winner as the year's finest pitcher, Koufax completed his double by capturing 14 first-place votes. Shortstop Groat was named first by four voters while Milwaukee outfielder Hank Aaron and Los Angeles infielder Jim Gilliam split the other two.

Groat was 1960 MVP for the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and Aaron, third with 138 points to 130 for Dodger outfielder Ron Perranoski, was honored in 1957. Groat and Aaron are the only players listed on all 20 ballots. Willie Mays of San Francisco was fifth.



Koufax is the first pitcher to be voted the National League's most prized player since Brooklyn Dodgers Don Newcombe in 1956 and only the seventh in 33 years.

Koufax had 11 shutouts in 30 games, most ever by a southpaw in the majors. He struck out 15 Yankees in the World Series opener, breaking the mark of 14 set by Dodger Carl Erskine 10 years earlier.

"Oh, thank you," Koufax said when informed of his selection by phone. "I didn't think I was going to win it because I didn't think a pitcher would win. I am especially proud because I believe this is the most important award in baseball."

CANNON IS BACK

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Cannon, the former Heisman Trophy winner, will be returned to active duty by Houston Oilers in time for Friday night's showdown battle with Boston Patriots. Frank Ivy, coach of the American Football League's eastern division leaders, said Cannon who has been out with an ankle injury, will not start against the Patriots but will play.

The response to the introduction of Hiway-Byway has been nothing short of overwhelming. We had to add a night manufacturer-vision, on any road, but we didn't foresee that our manufacturing would be so catching with car-owners. However, we've added a night shift to satisfy the demand — and are happy to report up-to-date shipments on most sizes.

WINTER EXPRESS has been our standby for the better part of a decade; in offering it at about half the price of our other snow tires, nothing has been taken from the tire — we have known it to be all those years. It's as big — it's as heavy and massive — and as strong as ever.

The rugged "keep rolling" traction tread of Winter Express needs it the road-blazer wherever the going was really tough . . . and it proved its keen highway with the quiet ride sought by its contemporaries. Now, it must be cleared out to make way for our New HIWAY-BYWAY . . . The tire that makes fun of winter driving.

OLYMPIC HOPE — Christy Hanson, 17, has set her sights on a place on the Canadian team in the 1964 Olympic dressage competition in Tokyo. Here she puts one of her three horses through exercises at her Oak Ridges home near Toronto. It's costing Christy and her family $5,000 a year to train her and her horses for next year's tests. (CP Photo)

Olympics Will Be Costly

TORONTO (CP) — Years of sacrifices will ride with Christy Hanson when she bids for a place on Canada's Olympic equestrian team next summer.

The cost for the dark-haired 17-year-old and her family can be figured in the thousands.

"I've always been crazy about horses," says Christy, who began pleading with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hanson, for a horse when she was only three.

Later, when she was in school, her father told her she could have one if she achieved first-class honors in her examinations.

She did and in 1957 bought her first horse, a hackney paid for out of her own television earnings. Christy—short for Christiot—played the role of Princess Crocus in a children's TV series.

Since 1960 she has won 60 ribbons in dressage competitions and last year was reserve champion in the Prix St. George dressage test at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

But these are small triumphs compared with the goal she has set for herself—earning a gold medal for Canada in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo next October.

TRAINING EXPENSIVE

Dressage is basically perfection in horsemanship and riding ability. The rider is expected to take the horse through an intricate series of manoeuvres, using almost imperceptible commands.

The Hansons estimate they have already spent $11,000 training Christy's bone Bonheur, a spirited and temperamental dark brown thoroughbred bought four years ago for $800. She also has two other horses.

They figure the annual cost of training both Christy and her horse now runs about $5,000. This includes the cost of sending Christy to Hannover, Germany, for nine months in 1961-62 to study under Gen. Oppelin Bronikowski, Olympic dressage gold medalist in 1936.

Christy takes her academic studies under a private tutor and this, too, is costly.

"But then it's easy to part with money if it means your daughter will not have to grow up frustrated because she couldn't achieve her goal for lack of money," her mother says.

The Hansons say that if it means mortgaging their spacious home in nearby Oak Ridges or their dance studio in downtown Toronto, they are prepared to do it. Mrs. Hanson teaches interpretative dancing and her husband is her business and studio manager. Christy, herself an excellent dancer, also teaches at the studio sometimes.

"There have been many bank loans," says Mrs. Hanson. "Three or four years after the Olympics we still will be paying on them."

Two Imports Join Larks

MONTREAL (CP) — Two new imports, both linebackers, have joined Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

The newcomers are Jerry Fields, 25, a member of the reserve squad of the American Football League New York Jets, and Howard Vonderesse, who played this season with Portland Sea Hawks of the Atlantic Football League.

The Alouettes also announced Wednesday that defensive halfback Barrie Hansen will miss Sunday's game here against Hamilton Tiger-Cats because of a bruised knee.

Jim Trimble doesn't want to risk the chance of Hansen aggravating the injury before the team's conference semi - final Nov. 9 against the Rough Riders at Ottawa.

Ottawa Fans Give Jackson Lots of Bull

OTTAWA (CP) — Fans attending home games of the Ottawa Rough Riders have named quarterback Russ Jackson as the most valuable player on the Eastern Football League club.

With the award goes a 1,000-pound top grade steer, donated by a packing firm.

Fans were invited to cast votes after each Ottawa game.

Clair Not Taking Chances

Riders Shuffle Lineup

OTTAWA (CP) — It won't do Toronto Argonauts any good to study films of Ottawa Rough Riders before Saturday's Eastern Football Conference game between the two clubs.

The films of previous games would only be confusing. Rough Riders are going with a lineup that might even confuse the Ottawa coaches.

First, coach Frank Clair doesn't want to take any unnecessary chances with quarterback Russ Jackson on this "nothing game." So Bob O'Billovich will move from defence to share quarterbacking with Jackson.

Larry Degraw will also move to offence for the first time. Gene Gaines will take a crack at offence, too. Punter Rick Black is slated to get a whack at a halfback spot. Scooter Ernie White still is bothered by an injured knee, so Joe Williams again will fill in at left half.

And Ed Hillmer, who played his first game with Ottawa against Hamilton last week, will get another try at defence.

Ron Stewart likely will rest, along with tackle John Kennerson and lineman Moe Roche. Captain Kaye Vaughan will see only limited action. All nurse various bumps and breaks, but will be ready for the semi-final game against Montreal Alouettes the following Saturday.

PRINCE IN RESERVE

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip was named Wednesday as a reserve on a basketball team that will play the Harlem Globetrotters here next Monday. Queen Elizabeth's husband was picked by the Lord's Taverners, a sports and social club connected with Lord's Cricket Ground and known for its charity, Philip is the club's patron.

Barons Edge Hornets 3-2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fred Glover, veteran player - coach of the Cleveland Barons, collected two goals and an assist Wednesday night to lead the Barons to a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets in an American Hockey League game.

The Hornets had gone into the game with a 5-1 record, best in the league.

DETROIT (CP)—Al Caron of St. Louis Braves has taken over the scoring lead in the Central Professional Hockey League, according to statistics released Wednesday by league president Jack Adams.

Bob Cunningham and Paul Andrea of St. Paul Rangers and Len Ronzoni of Omaha Knights share second spot two points back.

Marcel Pelletier of St. Paul is the leading netminder of the circuit, giving up 19 goals in six games for a 1.57 average and one shutout.

ST. PAUL (AP) — Omaha scored three goals within six minutes in the second period Wednesday night to defeat St. Paul 4-3 and take sole possession of first place in the Central Professional Hockey League.

St. Paul, which had been tied for the league leader's spot, took a 2-1 lead in the first period, but remained scoreless the rest of the game, wicked by 9,286 fans.

No player scored more than one goal.

Omaha opened scoring for Omaha at 4:59 of the first period. Other Omaha goals were scored by Corby, Ronzoni and Inglis. Markmenn for St. Paul were Bob Cunningham and McGuire.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Things are smoothing out a bit in the Western Hockey League and the champion San Francisco Seals are back at the top of the heap.

The Seals took a 3-1 victory from Portland Buckaroos at Portland Wednesday night. This, coupled with Denver Invaders' second loss in two nights to the Vancouver Canucks, 5-4 in overtime, was enough to give San Francisco a two-point edge in the standings over the Invaders.

Phil Maloney tied it for Vancouver at 12:57 of the third period and then helped lead white mate Buddy Boone the winner in 5:15 of overtime.

Defencemen Lee Hunt and Dene McCallum and Larry Popein got the other Vancouver goals.

Gordie Rodahl scored twice for Denver and Lou Jankowski and Gary Jarrett got the others before 4,698 fans, the largest crowd in the Denver Coliseum this season.

At Portland, 5,536 fans hoped for a Portland win saw the Seals take a 3-0 lead on goals by right winger Len Haley and Pete Panagabko in the first and second periods.

Gerry Cheevers saved the Seals from a shutout.

"Don't Know What Park He's In"

Piersall Blasts Casey

TORONTO (CP) — Jimmy Piersall said, among other things, here Wednesday night that he'll be playing major league baseball again next season.

"I've got two good offers," said the much-travelled centre fielder, "but I realize I can't command the high salaries anymore."

Piersall, in town for a television appearance, took in a National Hockey League game in which Toronto Maple Leafs clubbed Montreal Canadiens 8-3.

He was surprised at the ferocity of a fist fight between Montreal defenceman Terry Harper and centre Bob Pulford of the Leafs.

"Jees," said Piersall of Harper, "the kid reminds me of myself. But I never even won a newspaper decision in any of my brawls."

Given his outright release last season by Los Angeles Angels after an unsuccessful stint with the lowly New York Mets—Piersall says "my legs are good—I'll be playing next season."

He also had things to say on the taped television show about baseball in general, and some of its personalities.

On Casey Stengel, manager of the Mets: "Casey is great talkin' to the writers in the dugout, but on the field he don't know what ball park he's in."

The Tracks

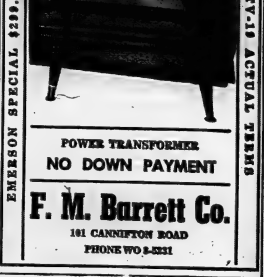
TORONTO (CP) — Allegro, a three-year-old filly whose record races have been somewhat off key, stepped up her tempo at Greenwood Wednesday to win the featured Lemonville Purse.

Before 7,225 surprised fans, Allegro sped through the stretch, putting more and more ground between her and the odds-on choice Mastlie Falls. At the wire the Windfields filly was 2¼ lengths ahead.

Racing for the first time since Oct. 1, when she finished last, beaten by 21 lengths, Allegro went to the post with stablemate Own Colleen at better than 8 to 1. The bay miss returned $18.80 straight.

'Kelso' Out Of Rich Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelso will be missing from Saturday's $200,000 Man o' War Stakes at Aqueduct, but one of the top grass course battles of the year shaped up today with announcement that Never Bend will meet the Aga II recent winner of the Canadian championship at Toronto.



Never Bend was the 1962 champion two-year-old, and in his last start whipped Chateaugay in the Washington Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

Cardinal Best Pass-Receiver

Tittle, Brown NFL Tops

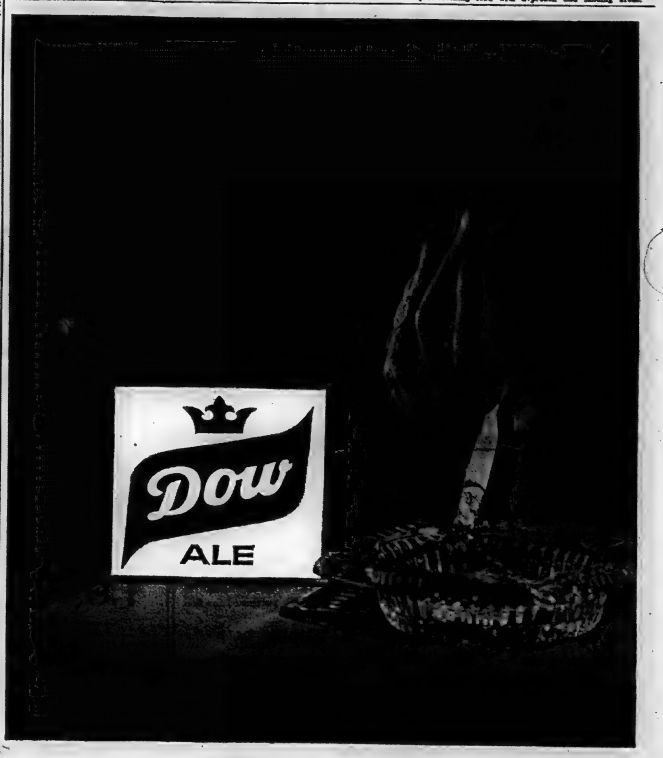
NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Brown, Y. A. Tittle and Bobby Joe Conrad continue to dominate the most important individual statistics at the halfway point of the National Football League season.

Brown didn't add much to his rushing total Sunday, gaining only 49 yards against New York Giants when Cleveland Browns suffered their first defeat, 33-6. However, he still is way out front with 971 yards compared with 626 by runner-up Jim Taylor of Green Bay Packers. Only Green Bay and St. Louis Cardinals have gained as much on the ground as Brown all by himself.

Lou Michaels, Pittsburgh Steelers' place-kicker, closed in a bit on Brown in the scoring race with 58 points to Brown's 66. Jerry Kramer, Green Bay's kicker, is close with 56 and Jim Martin of Baltimore Colts has 52 points.

Tittle retained the passing lead with a fancy 60.8 completion percentage.

Conrad, Charlie Johnson's favorite target at St. Louis, held the pass-catching lead with a total of 46 for 547 yards. Buddy Dial of Pittsburgh also had a good day as the Steelers beat Dallas, boosting his season total to 36 for 731 yards.



MOVE INTO TIE

Richie Petibon and Roosevelt Taylor of the Chicago Bears' alert defensive backfield moved into a tie with the Giants' Dick Lynch for interceptions. Each has five.

Yale Lary of Detroit Lions continued to lead the punters with a 48.1-yard average and Tim Brown of Philadelphia Eagles regained the lead in kickoff returns with a 36.5-yard average. Brady Keys of Pittsburgh became the top punt return man, averaging 16.3 yards.

NEEDS MINOR CHANGES

CALGARY (CP) — Minor changes will bring the Mount Norquay ski jump facilities at Banff up to Olympic standards, the Calgary Olympic Development Association learned Tuesday. International ski jump expert Helmi Klopfr of Oberstdorf, Bavaria said minor improvements are needed in approach and landing areas.

Chronicle Warm Production Of People Having Fun

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Chronicle, a CBS one-hour show Wednesday night about a young English couple on vacation in Blackpool, was a warm production filled with some nice, unpretentious people having fun.

The couple are factory workers, in northern England who spent a week's vacation in Blackpool, a resort on the chilly Irish Sea where the sun shines about half the time.

There was, of course, no real need to study a young couple with a $70-a-week income or to explore Blackpool, a rather shabby Victorian town full of pubs, snack bars, music halls and turn-of-the-century boarding houses.

"Some are quite terrible," explained the blonde young wife. "The sheets are damp and they smell of brussels sprouts."

But it was not Blackpool and its accommodations that made the program. It was the closeup of the people that counted, and the care and affection that was poured into the portrait.

Jackie Gleason, despite an arm in a cast, expects to keep right on working. The comedy star fractured a small bone in his wrist during the taping of his show Tuesday night. The bit, satirizing "torture tests" in a TV commercial, had him riding a bicycle through a plastic "brick wall." He fell with his arm twisted in back of him.

Sport Snapshots

By GRAHAM COX

WINNIPEG (CP) — Limitless courage, the optimism of former champions and a week of furious dickering was the formula that kept Fort Frances Royals in the Manitoba Junior Hockey League this season.

Royals, representing the northwestern Ontario town of 8,500 population, were on the hook for a $2,000 performance bond even before the league schedule started for them on Oct. 5.

Their first opponents in a two-game series were the Brandon Wheat Kings, defending league champions. Brandon won 18-2 and 17-2, and it appeared the bond would be needed for the club's funeral expenses.

But with six new players, Royals rose up in their second weekend series to beat Winnipeg Monarchs 7-1 and 5-3, and fans who had stayed away after the first games of the season filled the 1,500-seat arena for the fourth.

"A lot of people would have been disappointed if we hadn't come back," said Clarence Graham, Royals' general manager. "Now the town is very enthusiastic again. Everyone is talking junior hockey."

MANY PLAYERS

Royals played junior hockey last year also, playing experimentally in the Thunder Bay League to test their wings, using a full local lineup developed in the 1,200-player minor hockey system in the town. The 17 Fort Frances teams for players under 12, juveniles and midgets tax the capacity of the arena and seven outdoor rinks.

"We think we're ready for the rest of the league now," said Graham. "It was just unfortunate that we had to hit Brandon right off the bat."

Fort Frances, with teams called the Canadiens, had claimed the Canadian senior hockey championship in 1953 and the intermediate crown in 1959.

Now, although it may not come this season, the town is hoping for the Memorial Cup as junior hockey champions.

After the first two defeats "we knew we had to do something," said Graham, "and we got some new players. They didn't cost much—we did some dickering."

Royals picked up goalie Ben Harper and defenceman Bob Jaska from Brandon, and forwards Vic Buchy, Neil Kabal and Dan Johnson, and defenceman Hank Neufield, from Flin Flon.

NO HEL LINK

But they still have nine players up from their own minor organization. Of last year's team four or five went off to university, and two more joined the RCAF.

Royals are the only team in the Manitoba junior league lacking affiliation with an NHL club. Detroit Red Wings, however, are showing an interest in helping the club, says Graham.

"Those NHL clubs are sitting watching. If we come up with a good prospect or two this year, then maybe they'll show more interest."

In the meantime, through sale of about 500 season tickets and local subscriptions, the club is working on a $22,000 bankroll of which they have spent about $4,000, including the performance bond.

"We need about 700 or 800 fans for each game to break even at a dollar a head," said Graham. "And now we're ready. We expect to have between 1,000 and 1,500 for the remaining games."

'Wheeler Dealers' Rollicking Satire on Modern America

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The new movies—

In its pursuit of the second-comedy market, Hollywood has been forced to come up with more inventive devices for use in the ancient plot of boy chases girl. Results can be seen in two new films:

1. In Wheeler Dealers, Texan James Garner drives a convertible that automatically dispenses highballs, including ice and change for the proper beverage.

2. In Under the Yum Yum Tree, wolf Jack Lemmon operates a garish "sin-bin" to service his female visitors with such gimmicks as double violins that pop out of a chest and play by means of machinery.

The similarity between the two films ends there. Wheeler Dealers is a rollicking satire on modern America while Yum Yum is one long leer.

Wheeler Dealers takes aim at the world of finance, modern art and other targets. It scores hits with hilarious regularity. Garner epitomizes the sharp operator who can parlay fast transactions, tax breaks and borrowed money into tidy profits.

In Under the Yum Yum Tree Lemmon portrays a lecher and Pamela Tiffin is his victim.

He has played some of those roles marvellously well. But one still ponders what will be the cumulative effect on the public's conception of an actor who ranks among the screen's best.

Yum Yum offers Lemmon little to do except to be relentlessly lascivious. The frail plot—about an engaged couple who try to share an apartment platonically — offers a scattering of laughs.

Started Building Fallout Shelter in 1945 and Now Living Permanently in It

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—International tensions may appear to be easing but Fred T. Dicy isn't taking any chances.

He and his wife started thinking about building a fallout or bomb shelter in 1945, after the first atom bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Now, 18 years and $16,000 later, the Dicys have an elaborate ——tion shelter and live quarters 22 feet wide and 42 feet long a short distance from their home.

Mr. Dicy says that as the shelter stands it would give protection only against radioactive fallout. He needs an additional $4,000 for anti-blast dampers on the air-in pipes and ventilation outlets to make it "bomb proof."

Mr. and Mrs. Dicy and their two children, Freddy, 11, and Lura, 9, have moved into the shelter permanently.

It was not until 1956, when the family needed a new heating plant for their home, that they decided to proceed with the project. They read volumes on the effects of radiation and the precaution to be taken against it. Mr. Dicy did most of the work himself, obtaining professional help when necessary.

SIGN OF HILL

The five-room shelter capable of accommodating 20 persons is built into the side of a hill, the ceiling flush with surrounding lawns and with 240 tons of boulders and clay piled on top to a depth of four feet. The north wall is the only unprotected one and provides the sole entrance.

The shelter is separate from the house because, Mr. Dicy says, "I cannot see any advantage in building a shelter under a house that could burn and roast me in a basement oven."

It has its own electrical generating unit powered by two automobile engines. It has a ventilation system which, in the event of radioactive fallout, would purify the air by forcing it through water.

The walls are 26 inches of concrete and brick and the ceiling 10½ inches of concrete strengthened by three-quarter-inch reinforcing rods. The interior walls are brick and mortar nine inches thick. Everything is fireproof except doors and cabinets.

The largest room, 28 by 10 feet, has a general living area with space for a sink, stove, counters, refrigerator, deep freeze, heater, table and a piano. There are three sleeping rooms, one of which Mr. Dicy calls a crash emergency room and is better protected than the others. The room will be stocked with a year's supply of food.

Mr. Dicy says his family and the tenants of four apartments he owns will occupy the shelter in an emergency. He has flamethrowers to make sure no one else enters and for protection against the enemy if necessary.

"The purpose of the shelter is to survive," he says. "To admit more persons than could be provided for, or persons already contaminated, would defeat this purpose."

CAMPBELLFORD

Many Demands Made on CAS Says Speaker

CAMPBELLFORD — Douglas Nutter, Assistant Director of the Child Welfare Act in the interests of neglected children and as any agency of public welfare, has many demands. When a case is referred to them, there are two ways of allowing a remedy, the first of course, to attempt to correct the cause as many of the children come to their attention due to parental neglect. It is always the primary function of the society to endeavor to keep the child in his own home but where this is impossible, the child or children are removed.

The next step upon the removal of the children from the home is to try to find homes for them. According to the circumstances of a given case, the child is either a temporary or permanent ward of the Children's Aid Society. Delinquent juveniles become the wards of the Society only after they have been charged with some misdoing and become wards of a probation authority.

The Society then endeavors to find homes for the children and if no home is found they are placed in the Training Centre in Cobourg. "There are about 380 boys and girls at Cobourg Training Centre. Three-quarters of whom would not be there at all, if others had not given up on them too soon," Mr. Nutter said.

He said it is no problem to find a home for the younger toddlers, but the teenagers are another thing entirely. Mr. Nutter cited several cases which are presenting problems at the moment. A 16-year-old boy who has committed indecencies at all, is hated by his parents. He is a smart aleck, insolent and out-spoken, but he should have a home and at least a chance before being sent to training school. Another 13-year-old boy will soon become consigned to the training school because no home can be found for him. He has had eight years of bad guidance and deserved a chance.

Urging Rotarians to take the problem to heart, the speaker said there is some allowance paid to foster parents for boarding children and services are supplied by the Society. "These boys," he said, "present a challenge to our society."

The speaker was introduced by Cy Johnson and thanked by Rev. Gordon Whitehorne.

Mrs. Frank Johnston of Spencerport, New York; Mrs. Jana Ladwick of Rochester, NY; and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston of Trenton, and Mr. Wesley Johnston of Stirling.

POPULATION HIGH

The population of the world in mid-1963 was 3,180,000,000.

CANADA'S NO. 1 POLICEMAN — George Brinton McClellan, 54, a veteran of 31 years with the RCMP, Friday (Nov. 1) assumes the position of commissioner of the force, Canada's No. 1 policeman. He succeeds C. W. Harvison, commissioner for 3½ years. Commissioner McClellan's career has ranged from chasing backwoods moonshiners to hiding turncoat Russian spy Igor Gouzenko from possible Soviet vengeance. (CP Photo)

George B. McClellan Brings 31 Years of Experience to Post as Head of Mounties

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Hiking through the nearby Gatineau Hills, George Brinton McClellan might easily be taken for a husky woodsman or a professional football player.

A second guess, after a closer look, would probably hit nearer the mark. A husky six-footer with bushy eyebrows and a full moustache, he looks every inch the prototype of the top senior police inspector of TV mystery novels.

But there's no fiction about the new commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police — Canada's No. 1 policeman.

On Friday Commissioner McClellan will move to the headquarters desk under the gigantic mounted buffalo head—traditional symbol of the force—to replace C. W. Harvison who is retiring at 62 after 3½ years in charge of the Mounties.

A veteran of 31 years with the RCMP, the 54-year-old McClellan, native of Moose Jaw, Sask., has handled almost every assignment known to the force, all the way from chasing backwoods moonshiners to the most sensitive security and undercover jobs.

TWICE UNDER FIRE

For the last 20 years most of his work has been in administrative posts or secret security work about which he is reluctant to talk. During the Harvison era he was second-in-command, responsible for all operational work in policing, security and criminal investigation.

He is "very proud but more than a little nervous" about becoming the 12th commissioner in the 90-year history of the red-coated force. "Almost every Mountie on the day-to-his-enlistment dreams about this appointment," he said as he prepared to leave his deputy commissioner's office.

Like his predecessor, the new commissioner has the rare police record of never having shot at anyone.

He has been shot at twice, however, both times on local assignments in Alberta. A jealous husband who had been gunning for his wife's boy friend holed up in a portable granary and shot home with a shotgun blast when the Mountie broke in.

"Luckily, I stepped back after forcing the door. The blast tore up the floor and one pellet scraped my boot. I ran in and grabbed him before he could reload."

GUARDED GOUZENKO

The other incident was a rifle shot from ambush a couple of days after a string of McClellan-led lawless raids had wiped out a big moonshining ring. The rifle ball missed by inches. "I went to the ground and crawled around behind the bushes where the shot had come from, but he was gone."

One of his biggest security assignments—and the only one he will tell much about—came in 1946 after Igor Gouzenko fled the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa to disclose the operations of a big Russian spy network.

George McClellan, then an inspector, was brought in from Toronto to head the unit responsible for hiding Gouzenko from possible Soviet vengeance.

"We took him away, hid him in a guarded house, and brought him to Ottawa when the time he was needed."

Moving up in quick succession through the commissioned ranks, he spent three years in charge of Western Arctic operations and another three as chief of the entire Alberta force, which handles provincial police duties there.

GETS $19,000

He was brought to Ottawa as deputy commissioner in 1959 and a year later was appointed senior deputy.

In his new $20,000-a-year post he heads 8,500 men and women, 6,500 of them in uniform, and becomes the nation's senior policeman dealing with Canadian activities in Interpol, the international criminal police agency.

"This is an era of the jet-age criminal and we've got to have jet-age methods to cope with him." To do this, he believes the RCMP's ties with Interpol and such agencies as the FBI and Scotland Yard will have to become increasingly closer.

Commissioner McClellan sees many new problems ahead for police work. The RCMP is laying more and more emphasis on experts, sending talented men from the ranks to university for training in law and commerce.

A few days after settling into his new office he will confer with Justice Minister Favreau about future policy directions for the Mounties.

WORKED AS EDITOR

All this responsibility is a far cry from the original field of work he chose after leaving school. He spent two years as the editor of a weekly newspaper at Shawinigan Falls, Que., before joining the Mounties as a constable in 1932.

"Sometimes when I look at the job ahead I wonder if I shouldn't have stuck to journalism," he said with a grin.

For one thing, it might have given him more time to pursue his favorite pastime, camping, hiking and fishing in the great outdoors with his wife and three daughters—Barbara, 19, Margaret, 16, and Miriam, 13.

His second hobby is woodworking. Until a few years ago he regularly turned out fine furniture from his home workshop.

"Nowadays I'm lucky to get enough time for a birdhouse."

His favorite reading is the history of Western Canada and the United States but he also admits to an addiction for detective fiction or the British locked-bedroom murder variety and recently the James Bond spy-thriller series.

Grand Master of Orangemen Praised, Honored at Banquet

On Saturday evening over 400 Orangemen and friends gathered in Stirling community hall for a presentation party in honor of Rt. Wor. Bro. Lorne Hagarman, Grand Master of the Loyal Orange Lodge of Ontario East.

Representatives were in attendance from the various Grand Lodges of Central Hastings and there were many officers of Grand Lodge, as well as dignitaries from points in Quebec province, Smith's Falls, Kingston, Peterborough and Fraserville.

Grand Master and Mrs. Hagarman received their guests as they arrived and Mrs. Hagarman was the recipient of a corsage of rust carnations on her half of the lodges.

The program was staged on the theatre platform which displayed two Union Jacks as emblems of the order and a variety of artificial bouquets of flowers. County Master Milton McTaggart, Tweed, was master of ceremonies.

MUSIC BY S.A. BAND

Miss Betty McAdam was pianist for the opening and later contributed a piano solo, 12 members of Tweed Salvation Army band provided interlude of music as the guests were arriving and during the program they contributed two special selection.

Bro. Willis Cuningham of Fraserville showed a series of slides relating to the True Blue and Orange Home at Richmond Hill. This gave several views of the buildings, flower beds, and various living quarters provided for the children. Most of these children came from broken homes and the speaker cited many tragic cases of neglect by the parents. Since this home was instituted, over 5,000 children, have been given good care by home mothers and fully qualified school teachers.

Bro. J. P. Rotherman, Napanee accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Jarmin of Marlbank sang two selections, Miss May Pollock, Ivanhoe contributed a piano solo. Bro. Ed Payne, Peterborough with his sister as accompanist rendered a selection of humorous songs and later they gave a vocal duet with Mrs. Craig Watson at accompanist.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant contributed two readings. Mrs. Burton Woodcock, Stirling with her daughter Mrs. Carl Pitman as accompanist and Mrs. Lorne Wellman, Springbrook, with Mrs. B. Glendenning as accompanist gave vocal selections.

Bro. Alex Lough, Deputy Grand Master of Quebec Province vivoo brought greetings from the lodges in his jurisdiction. With Mrs. A. Patterson of Montreal as accompanist, he led a round of assembly singing and contributed guitar selections and vocal numbers.

Mrs. Clarence McCoy and her quartets group, Misses Catherine Burnside and Beverley Ketcheson of Hazards and two Bailey boys from Cooper with their mother Mrs. Fred Bailey as accompanist contributed two selections.

GUEST SPEAKER

Past Grand Master of Ontario East, Rt. Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman of Stirling introduced the guest speaker, Most Wor. Bro. John Hammond of Smith Falls, honorary member of British Americus Orange lodges.

Bro. Hammond told how Canada was founded on the principles of Christianity and the Protestant religion. He also spoke of the Orange Order in Canada and the part it played in the development of this country. He said that the Orange Order was founded on the principles of civil and religious liberty and that it was the only society in Canada which possessed a royal charter. The Orange Order in Canada owed a great debt to the Loyal Orange order which stressed equal rights to all special privileges to none. The Union Jack is the most respected flag in the world and stands for truth, justice, and freedom. In his opinion every Protestant clergyman should preach a sermon based on the Reformation theme each year.

The speaker outlined several stories from real life which proved that Canada is a land of opportunity, and in closing he left a challenge with the large audience regarding what they, as individuals could do to improve the order and said, "The size of your thinking determines your success."

GREETINGS

With Lorne and Margaret Hagarman and all the Grand Lodge officers seated on the platform, greetings were brought by Elmer Sanderson, M.L.A. from Hastings West riding; Deputy Grand Mistress Pearl Holmes, Belleville from L.O.B.A. Grand Lodge; Most Wor. Bro. Arthur Hodson, Peterborough from the Grand Black Chapter of Ontario East. Greetings were brought from Grand Lodge of Ontario East by Deputy Grand Master Bro. Godfrey Barr, and from Quebec Province by Deputy Master Bro. Alex Lough of Montreal. The chairman read letters of greetings from those who were unable to attend.

Bro. Archie Sinclair, Jr. of Tweed read an address of appreciation to the Grand Master and his wife. Bro. Elvin Carr presented Lorne with a wrist watch and Bro. Arthur Hazel presented Margaret with costume jewellery on behalf of the lodges of the County of Centre Hastings.

The Grand Master and Mrs. Hagarman voiced appreciative thanks for the gifts and the party in their honor and thanked all those who had attended this function and those responsible for making arrangements.

GIVEN AN OVATION

The Hagerman family in the audience were given an ovation and this included their immediate family, Lorne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hagerman and his sister Mrs. Ethel Bateman.

Lodge officers led the way to the banquet hall where refreshments provided by the Orangemen of the county were served cafeteria style under the convenership of Mrs. Lindsay Tanner and her assistants.
